The Best Time.
To-morrow's people lose their way so often through the day, because they overlook, I fear, the results of now and then. And let the little minutes fly through all the paths of to-day-by.
There's time enough, they say, and so, you see, the first time they know. The very best time—that's today—its softly run away.
And with a will and late-after-day, oh, so many hills to climb.
Today and tomorrow are worth 'tis treasure of the earth; And all their busy people, too! And such a happy crew, Let's win the wisdom of To-day, And find the wisdom of To-morrow.

Coleman's Collie; the Tale of a Dog.
By M. S. ROCKWELL.
(Our Dumb Animals, Boston.)
It was one of the first warm-like days of early spring, and the farmers from the surrounding country had come into town upon various errands touching the near approach of seed time. There was a hardy, contented-looking lot, hurrying up and down the single street of business houses in the village, each carrying his own particular purchase—one a plowshare, another a pair of rubber boots while still others carried packages and bundles for use in the household.
Among this crowd of jolly, jostling men was John Harbour, the youngest farmer in the country—a tall, broad shouldered fellow, striding aimlessly about with his hands thrust deep into the pockets of his light, sandy-faded overcoat. He had not come into town for the purpose of trading, but had been summoned to appear in court. His farm, one of the most remote in the settlement, adjoined a corner-section of hay-land belonging to a certain Mr. Hardestie, a wealthy landowner having the reputation of being an exceedingly hard man, and an unpleasant neighbor.
A short time before the opening of this story, John had been burning off his hay-land. He lost control of the fire and it had gotten onto Hardestie's land and burnt up one of his haystacks. John had offered to pay for the hay, but Hardestie recalled a certain thrashing of the young farmer had given him at a heated political meeting, and asked upon this violation of the prairie-fire law, as a means of evening up with him. This meant ruin, for the court, in its usual carelessness in handling such cases, would undoubtedly impose a heavy fine, and Hardestie knew that in order to pay it John would have to sell his best wheat. This would render impossible a crop next year, and hence, no money to meet the fall payment on his machinery; and following this would be the sheriff and the ultimate loss of his farm.

These thoughts, and the thought of a pretty, patient little woman for whom he was struggling hard to make a home, were what occupied the young man's mind, as he walked here and there, aimlessly about the town.
'Twelve,' he muttered, as he passed in front of the Barris' block, and looked at his watch 'very early two hours to wait yet.'
Everybody was at dinner and the streets were almost deserted, except that the bench in front of the hotel bore its usual unkempt-looking lot of town loafers. They smoked, gossiped, and expectorated great quantities of tobacco juice on the sidewalks. Nothing seemed to escape their notice, and no subject was too trifling for discussion.
'I see Chambers has been getting a new set of harness,' said one.
'Yes,' answered another loafer, 'and less than a week ago he bought that cart. Seems to me the old man is going it pretty steep on the strength of seat fell's crop.'
Harbour listened in an abstracted way to their chattering, and watched a dog that came trotting down the middle of the road. The animal was

You can only get off this depression when the nerve cells are restored to health by such treatment as Dr. Chamberlain's Sarsaparilla. Your digestive system has failed to supply proper nourishment to the nerves and you are compelled to seek aid from other sources.
It will take some patience and persistent treatment, but there is no way by which you can so certainly restore health and vigor as by the use of Dr. Chamberlain's Sarsaparilla.
The best time to test the nervous system is long before such a critical condition is reached. March Weather Rheumatic Weather.
VICTIMS CAN CURE THEMSELVES WITH DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS
With the coming of March people who are afflicted with rheumatism begin to have unpleasant reminders of their trouble. The weather is changeable—balmy and springlike one day, raw, cold and piercing the next. It is such sudden changes of weather that sets the pains and tortures of rheumatism, lumbago and sciatica going, but it must be borne in mind that although weather conditions start the trouble, it is deeply seated and can only be cured through the blood. All the lotions and liniments in the world can't cure rheumatism. Rubbing may seem to ease the pain while you are rubbing, but there is no cure. Only through the blood can you cure rheumatism. That's why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have so many thousands of cures of this trouble to their credit. The new, rich blood which they actually make drives out the poisonous acid, and rheumatism is vanquished. Here is an example. Mr. W. C. Douglas, Webbwood, Ont., says: 'I was attacked with inflammatory rheumatism, which spread through my entire system. For two months I was not able to go about, and seemed to be hovering between life and death. My joints were swollen and my legs and arms twisted, until I expected they would never return to their natural shape. The doctor seemed to help me but not to cure me, and I would be better one day and worse the next. At this time I friend strongly urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I got a dozen boxes. Soon after beginning the pills there was a change for the better, and I continued using the pills until I was quite well again. The swelling disappeared from the joints, my limbs returned to their normal shape and I feel as if Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had saved me from being a rheumatic cripple. I hope my experience may prove a blessing to some other poor sufferer.'
If you suffer from rheumatism, or any disease of the blood, begin to cure yourself today with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Children Injured.
ORDINARY CATHARTICS AND PILLS AND HARSH PHYSIC CAUSE DISTRESSING COMPLAINTS.
You cannot be over-careful in the selection of medicine for children. Only the very gentlest bowel medicine should ever be given, except in emergency cases. Ordinary pills, cathartics and purgatives are apt to do more harm than good. They may cause griping, nausea and other distressing after-effects that are frequently health-destroying.
We personally recommend and guarantee Rexall Ordinaries as the safest and most dependable remedy, which we know, for constipation and associate bowel disorders. We have such absolute faith in the virtues of this remedy that we sell it on our guarantee of money back in every instance where it fails to give entire satisfaction, and we urge it in need of such medicine to try it at our risk. Rexall Ordinaries are eaten just like candy, are particularly prompt and agreeable in action, may be taken at any time, day or night; do not cause diarrhoea, nausea, griping, excessive looseness, or other undesirable effects. They have a very mild but positive action upon the organs with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regenerative tonic upon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowels, thus overcoming weakness, and adding to restore the bowels to more vigorous and healthy activity.
Rexall Ordinaries commonly completely relieve constipation, except of course, when of a surgical character. They also tend to overcome the tendency of constantly taking laxatives to keep the bowels in normal condition. Three sizes of packages, 10 cents, 25 cents, and 50 cents. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Wolfville only at our store, The Rexall Store, A. V. Rand.
When you have rheumatism in your foot or instep apply Chamberlain's Liniment and you will get quick relief. It costs but a quarter. Why suffer? For sale by all dealers.

Keep Minard's Liment in the house.
The collic seemed to regard the new arrival with lively curiosity. He had evidently never seen a bulldog before, and was ignorant of his dangerous character. He arched his neck, raised his ears, wagged his tail and advanced to touch noses and get acquainted.
Without making a sound or betraying the slightest sign of anger, the bulldog started straight at the throat of the unoffending stranger. Snarl went his powerful jaws, out a lurch from the grassed throat of the collic. That foolish dog—to the great astonishment of the spectators, after such a formidable demonstration upon the part of his enemy—made no attempt to escape. Instead he made another friendly overture; but this was received in no more kindly fashion than the first. Then there was a change. The peaceful, inquiring creature of a moment before was suddenly transformed into an animal little as a panther, bristling with rage, and alert for battle.
The landlord laughed loudly and clapped his hands on his knees. 'Sit him, Bill!' he shouted, 'sit him! Sit him up!'
A crowd soon began to gather to see what was going on. Once more Harbour walked out from the tree; free or otherwise, he was determined to champion the mastery dog in his unequal combat, and moved about as if his long legs were set on springs.
The dog whose ancestors had roamed the heath clad hills of old Scotland, soon proved that he possessed the keen brain of his kind. He evaded every charge of his heavier adversary, and leaping lightly to the rear bit him mercilessly on his leg and leg. The bulldog became furious; the lion dripped from his savage jaws. Time and again he rushed upon his seemingly helpless foe, only to be misled and badly bitten before he could recover himself. His strenuous exertions, however, were beginning to tell upon the supple collic; his leap became less agile, while the tense bulldog, though lame and panting for breath, appeared to grow more savage each moment.
'Grab that cowardly whelp. Just let Bill have one grip on him!' bawled the puffing landlord.

One of his louts made a move to obey his order, but returned to his place with considerable haste and Harbour's No. 9 shod in close proximity to his coat tails. Presently the bulldog made a rush and almost caught the collic in a deadly grip. His glittering teeth grazed the muzzle of his evasive enemy. The latter enraged by the stinging scratch, seized his heavy antagonist by the hind leg, and, with a quick side pull rolled him on his back. For a few moments there was a confused mass of struggling, snarling animals; then the collic leaped to his feet, and the bulldog rose slowly, with a long red gash in his side, and one hind leg hanging-limp and broken. Seeing this the landlord caught up a heavy piece of scantling and rushed toward the victorious collic. But he came to a sudden stop.
'Oh, no you don't, my friend!' said Harbour. 'You and your dog started this trouble. Now you and your dog will take what's coming to you. The man who lays a finger on that dog, to hurt him, will feel the weight of these—' brandishing a pair of gigantic fists.
'You see moved or spoke, and the collic, who at that moment must have caught some trace of his master, trotted off, with the name forgotten, undaunted at that had characterised his coming. The hotel keeper seized his beaten, whimpering dog by the collar and pulled him inside; the crowd of people standing about, jeering him as he did so.
Harbour once more found himself alone, and his heart sank as he turned toward the old implement-shed that served as a town hall. His trouble, after the brief excitement of the dog fight which he had just passed, seemed weightier than ever, and his spirit sank lower and lower, as he strolled along. A light pressure on his arm caused him to turn quickly about and there stood the thin, keen-featured man, Hardestie.
'Well?' questioned the young farmer, gruffly.
'I—I—guess, John,' began Mr. Hardestie, with a slight, nervous halt, 'I guess we'll call this fire business off. I've just been down and withdrawn the charge. You needn't bother about the matter of hay, either—hay is cheap this spring; and, anyhow, I've lots left. More than that, my teams will be through with the seeding early, and if you are needing any help, come to me. I want to bury the hatchet, and here's my hand on it.'
John stared in speechless astonishment, reaching out his hand mechanically, as he did so. 'I—I—I—Why? What for?' he managed to stammer at last.
Mr. Hardestie halted astride the side of his wagon box, into which he was climbing. 'Look,' he said, 'and there were unmistakable signs of moisture in his little, hard, gray eyes, as he pointed to the spring seat, where coiled comfortably upon his master's overcoat, holding in his teeth the

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., MAR. 22, 1912.

Digby is spending $300 to advertise the town as a tourist resort, hunting, fishing and manufacturing centre. The tourist business would boom in Wolfville if something like this was done. We do pretty well without hall trying.

On the 17th inst., Rev. Joseph McLeod, D. D., the able editor of the Maritime Baptist, completed forty-five years of continuous editorial service. THE ACADIAN is very glad to join with a host of friends throughout the Maritime Provinces in tendering heartfelt felicitations, with the hope that for many more years he may be spared to continue his grand work in religious journalism.

An Ottawa despatch of March 17th says: Prof. Kirkpatrick, of Queen's University, has been placed in charge of the survey party to make soundings on Northumberland Straits and to report on conditions there, in connection with the inauguration of the car ferry which the government intends to establish. The rise and fall of the tide, the flow and other things will be reported on, and, upon this, much will depend as to the selection of terminals for the service.

Rev. D. H. Hart has about completed the census of the county in the interests of the finances of the King's County Temperance Alliance, and the result is far in excess of the expectations of the most sanguine. The amount raised will be over thirteen hundred dollars, which will be sufficient to wipe out the indebtedness of the Alliance and leave a fund for the carrying on of its work. The people of the county are evidently behind the Alliance in their effort to promote the cause of temperance and morality and a number of our best citizens have expressed their intention of making yearly contributions toward the work of the Alliance. They are making no mistake.

Death of S. P. Benjamin.

By the death of Mr. S. P. Benjamin, which occurred at his home here last Friday afternoon, Wolfville loses one of its oldest and best citizens. Mr. Benjamin was a native of Pugwash, Cumberland county, and when a boy of seventeen came to Wolfville where he spent some time. He afterwards spent some years in Boston and later in Mobile, Ala., where he engaged in the commission business. At the outbreak of war he returned to Nova Scotia and engaged in business at The Overs, Lunenburg county, going from there to Bridgewater where he carried on a lumber business.

In 1879 he came to Wolfville and purchased the millinery business at White Rock, which he successfully carried on for a number of years and accumulated considerable property. Of late years he also carried on large lumbering operations in Hants county. He was a good citizen and won the respect and esteem of his townsmen. A prominent member of the Baptist church he gave freely of his means towards its support.

Mr. Benjamin was married while residing at The Overs to Miss Orpin who survives him. He also leaves one son, Mr. Percy Benjamin, of this town, and two daughters, Mrs. (Rev.) W. M. Smallman, of New Glasgow, and Mrs. Edgar Smallman, of Halifax. Two children, Aubrey and Bessie, died some years ago.

The funeral, which took place on Sunday afternoon from his late residence, was very largely attended. The service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Weber, who gave a most appropriate address. The interment was at Willow Bank.

Doings in the Legislature.

An important amendment to the Towns Incorporation Act is proposed, whereby a town shall be permitted to carry an over-draft on current account to the extent of one per cent, of its total assessment. At present such over-draft is limited to one-half of one per cent.

Mr. MacGregor, of Pictou, has introduced a bill called the 'Optional Assessment Act,' the object of which is to permit any municipality to tax personal property and improvements, if it so desires, at a lower rate than land. This is in line with legislation in the Western Provinces of Canada, under which such cities as Vancouver and Edmonton have gradually eliminated all taxes, except on the unimproved land. It is designed to encourage thrift and industry and not penalize a man for improving his property.

An important bill introduced by the Attorney General has reference to the sale of goods in bulk. It is designed to prevent fraud on the part of men who sell out their stock 'en bloc' with a view to defrauding their creditors. It provides that such a sale cannot be made without the written consent of sixty per cent of the creditors, that a list must be filed of all creditors over fifty dollars, and that, failing the consent of the creditors, the money received from the sale of stock of goods 'en bloc' must be paid over to the official Assignee.

One of the amendments as well as the most instructive extenders we have seen for this year is sent out by the White & Weyford Manufacturing Company, Manufacturers of 'Auto-oid' and 'Baltimore' Corrugated Paper. The bill proposes the following: 'That the high price of the printing of bills and notices of the year in these other places printing, makes the cost of such bills prohibitive. A bill for the printing of such bills should be made in such a way as to be printed in one or two copies.'

Sir Wilfrid and His Party.

In his speech of the 5th, when the bill for the extension of Manitoba's boundaries was up for second reading, Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that he stood within the lines of 'Torres Vedras.' He accused the government of having a policy it dare not explain, refusing to state his own policy, however, and at once the poor old Morning Chronicle began to shout that the 'Flag Flappers' were cowards, and Sir Wilfrid alone was a hero in the line of battle.

On Tuesday, the 12th, the brave Sir Wilfrid was manoeuvred out of his lines of 'Torres Vedras.' He came out, and according to his own showing, not with horse, foot and artillery, but simply in his own person. It was not as the leader of his party, he said, but simply individually. He did not explain why he had not seized the earlier opportunity presented, just one week before. The clever old fox was waiting until he received his cue from the reception of Mr. Bourassa's monumental national speech of the Sunday before.

He was forced into the light and had to choose between voting with the government against the amendment, or with the few Liberal and Nationalist who supported it. He had done his utmost to make the school question a snag in the Manitoba boundary extension, an extension which he himself, from weakness, policy or vindictiveness, had kept long pending. The Bayden government grappled fearfully with the question, and pushed it through the House, while Sir Wilfrid Laurier used all his large skill and influence as a political schemer to make the subject as thorny as possible, and his fee Italian hand was exerted in vain. And then came his hypocritical homily on a conciliation which was no more reasonable when beaten and humiliated than it would have been when he said he was within the lines of Torres Vedras. His continued insidious efforts, backed by his Quebec lieutenant, Lemeau, to make the bill a brand of discord having failed, he lapsed into the minor chord of peace, which strain of disappointment reached even as far east as Halifax.

The strict party majority for the Borden government of 55 was but the natural result of Sir Wilfrid's crooked course upon the whole school question. In 1896 he, by a bold stroke, became the champion of the ultra-separate element, and in opposing separate schools for Manitoba he was carried into power. To all his friends and many opponents he appeared the useful statesman and constitutionalist.

A French Canadian and Roman Catholic to lead the Orangemen in their fight against the Tupper ministry was certainly heroic and apparently conscientious. But what did he do in 1905 with the Province of Alberta and Saskatchewan were founded. He proved himself as compared with 1896 a merely agile opportunist. Supported by a large majority in Parliament and with no election imminent, he absolutely reversed his 1896 policy, and succeeded, despite great opposition, in imposing a separate school system upon those two great new provinces, a system that must remain until all eternity. From an outspoken advocate of provincial rights, allowing each province to settle its own school business and its own educational system, he became a violent and unrepentant agent of the vilest centralists. He permitted Mr. Bourassa to draw those clauses in the autonomy bills which deprived the two provinces of their right to formulate their own educational policies. To day Mr. Bourassa rages because Mr. Borden refused to let him do the same trick for the Manitoba boundary bill. And yet not a single grit newspaper, that we know of, certainly not one in Nova Scotia, has had the grace, decency, or honesty, to give Mr. Borden credit for his backbone in standing by the constitution while Sir Wilfrid has played the slave and the political trickster.

The grit press entirely overlooks Sir Wilfrid's backsliding. It fails to admit that the Manitoba boundary settlement, so happily effected by the Borden government, might have been settled years ago had Sir Wilfrid Laurier dared to divide Keewatin without imposing separate schools on Manitoba, as he did on the two sister provinces.

In all very consulting to about 'Flag Flappers,' 'Crows' and 'Brand' hand and foot by Bourassa, and claim that their party stands for beautiful government and righteousness generally. In vain do these discredited political hirelings shout their loyalty to the constitution and to the interests of the people. In vain do they tell how good they are, and what a glorious proclaimer Sir Wilfrid is.

For the last ten years of the Liberal government's term of office their officialism was to remain in office, no matter what the cost. The Laurier government entered to the ultramontane of Quebec, in Quebec, and to the Orangemen when outside Quebec. It bought and sold constituencies wholesale. It poured out money on under public works. It used the patronage system with abundant liberality, and in the end it tried to force an anti-national and pro-Yankee fiscal policy on unwilling people, with what results we are happily acquainted, and hold to the man to day who would pocket the Laurier name and legend once ever he recanted in Canada. The Flag Flappers are no day and night men.

W. S. Sanders, the editor of Forward and Provincial Organizer, in conveying a special message from the Grand to the Subordinate Divisions of the Sons of Temperance through the province. He is meeting a most cordial reception in Kings county and his appeals for closer union between the Subordinate and Grand Division has met with enthusiastic responses. This was very much in evidence at the meeting of Goodwill Division at Kingsport on Friday, the 15th inst., when Rev. George Miller, by request of the Worthy Patriarch, in a forcible and eloquent speech replied for the Division and endorsed the appeal of the representative of the Grand Division.

A very pleasing incident of the visit to Goodwill Division was the completion of the work started by the Division for the re-organization of Harvest Workers Band of Hope with the following Board of Managers and staff of officers:

Patron—Rev. George Miller. Managers—Mrs. Hill, Mrs. Dickie, Mrs. Miller, and Misses Johnson, L. Loomer, J. Loomer and W. Ellis. Officers: President—Emma Dickie, V. Pres.—Lena Spicer. Sad Death at Grand Pre.

On Saturday evening last the death occurred at Grand Pre of Harry, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Eaton. He had only been ill for a short time, the disease, which was at first thought to be fever, developing into tubercular trouble. He was ill only a little over a week. Much sympathy is felt for the bereaved family, this being the second member of which has been taken away in a few years.

Sad Disaster.

On Saturday night the Gloucester fishing schooner Patricia was lost at the entrance to Jordan Bay, Shelburne Co., and ten lives were lost. The vessel carried a fishing crew of twenty men and half of the crew came to a watery grave and the ten only reached the shore in an exhausted condition. Those drowned were Captain William Goding, Pubnico Beach, N. S., John Goodwin, Bear Point, N. S., Halman Hopkins, Woods' Harbor, N. S., James McKerson, Woods' Harbor, N. S., Clarence Perry, Shag Harbor, N. S., Michael Jennings and William Gill, Boston, Joseph Robichaud, Surrogate Island, N. S., and George Sharp, Bonaville Bay, N.B. The vessel was blown considerably out of her course by a strong breeze from the southwest while on her way from Sandy Point to Brown's Bank. At ten o'clock at night she struck on the Black Rock ledges. From the force of the impact the forecast fell and only three dories available for the men. In the confusion and darkness the dories were lost and the survivors drifted ashore. The accident is one of the worst that has happened on the Atlantic coast for many years.

DOCTORS HAD GIVEN UP ALL HOPE

"Fruit-a-lives" saved my Life

Barbara A. Frazier, G., May 9, 1910.
I look upon my recovery as nothing short of a miracle. I was for eleven years, constantly suffering from Chronic Dyspepsia and Indigestion. I was treated by several doctors and they simply did me no good. During the latter part of my illness, I was so thin that I weighed only 90 pounds, and I wanted everything I ate.

The doctors gave me up to die as the stomach trouble produced heart weakness and I was frequently unconscious. I received the Last Rites of the Church. At this time, a lady strongly urged me to try "Fruit-a-lives". When I had taken one box, I was much better and after three boxes, I was practically well again, and had gained 30 pounds. I have taken 13 boxes in all and now weigh 120 pounds and am well.

What Have You Done To-Day?

We shall do much in the years to come.
But what have we done to-day?
We shall give our gold in a princely sum.
But what did we give to-day?
We shall lift the heart and dry the tear.
We shall plant a hope in the place of fear.
We shall speak the words of love and cheer.
But what did we speak to-day?
We shall be so kind in the after-while.
But what have we been to-day?
We shall bring to each lonely life a smile.
But what have we brought to-day?
We shall give to truth a grander birth.
We shall feed the hungry souls of earth.
But, this the thing our hearts must ask:
What have we done to-day?

Flavored With Brandy.

In the early married life of a certain lady, a young friend whom she had known and loved since childhood—only son—came from his home in a neighboring town to spend the day with her. He had been a victim of alcohol of the "spree" variety, but to the great joy of his friends, had now for eight months triumphed over his demon master.

All went well until dinner, when for dessert, the mistress of the boarding house sent up the usual pie and pudding flavored with brandy. Mrs. B—quietly moved the latter back from both the plates, saying to her friend, "You and I will take pie," but the familiar odor had made its appeal. He alternately drew up and pushed back the plate, and at last nervously seized it and eagerly devoured the poisoned food.

PILES

Do not suffer from Piles. It is a common ailment, but it is not a disease. It is a condition of the rectum, and it can be cured. The first time Billson stayed out with us he took his shoes off when he got to the corner, instead of waiting as most men do, until he had reached the door.

Locomotor Ataxia.

"My nerves were very bad, and I could not sleep at night, nor could I control my arms or legs," writes Mrs. Kate, Boston, Mass., "Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cured me of what I believe was the early stage of locomotor ataxia, or paralysis. I cannot describe what I suffered, but now I am entirely cured."

Learn why PURITY FLOUR is unlike any other brand

PURITY FLOUR is unlike any other brand of flour. No two milling companies follow exactly the same process of milling. In fact, no two different brands of flour in the world are exactly alike in quality. And here is another fact worth knowing: Every wheat berry contains both high-grade and low-grade portions.

The process of milling PURITY flour costs more than to mill ordinary flour. The low-grade portions are separated and excluded. PURITY is an ALL-HIGH-GRADE, hard wheat flour. It has greater strength, greater absorption and greater expansion. It is a thirstier, more elastic flour. It drinks more water and expands into more loaves.

Use PURITY FLOUR for your next batch of bread. Count the loaves. You'll find you have made "MORE BREAD AND BETTER BREAD" from PURITY than when you've used an equal weight of weaker and cheaper flour.

PURITY FLOUR
"More bread and better bread"

IMAGINE, if you can, how much whiter, and more toothsome, and more nutritious, the bread made from such a HIGH-GRADE flour must be.

And can you imagine yourself enjoying the flaky pie-crust and the light, delicate cake?—your reward for using PURITY flour. When making pastry, please remember to add more shortening than required with ordinary flour—for on account of its extra strength, PURITY FLOUR requires more shortening for best pastry-results.

Yes, PURITY FLOUR costs slightly more than ordinary flour. But use it once and you'll see it's worth more—much more—than the difference.

Add PURITY FLOUR to your grocery list right now.

the next, and often doubled on his tracks. Suddenly he dashed around a corner. Then everything was still. They rushed around the corner in turn and found—nothing. He had completely disappeared.

They ransacked the neighborhood, and searched all the houses, but without avail. The burglar had escaped. By the time they had finished their search, a man, footsore and weary, was walking in security some two miles away on the other side of town, his steps bent toward the Iroquois Club.

Of times in battle men are shot through the limbs, or even through the body, almost without pain. Some-times they never know that they have been hit.

On the other hand, a stray bullet may slip a piece of ear or chop a finger off and cause excruciating pain. This man had been hit—painfully hit—but the bullet had merely clipped the end of his middle finger.

The wound was not serious, but it had been painful—and had caused the involuntary shriek of anguish which he had emitted when the shot had taken effect.

The man thrust the injured hand into his pocket, and walked on in the direction of the Iroquois Club. Meantime Burke and his men had kept the Iroquois Club well surrounded. They had watched there all night.

It was now after half past two in the morning. Still the man they were looking for had not appeared. But still they waited.

A policeman pacing slowly upon his beat passed the place where Burke stood half concealed.

"There's been a burglary up town," he said to Burke. "I just came out with the S.O.S. squad and heard 'em talking about it."

"Not!" exclaimed Burke. "What, another one? Get out!"

"It's heaven's own truth," replied the man.

"Where was it?" inquired Burke.

"Up in the swell quarter," returned the other. "Family of the name of Dumont—lot of jewelry an—"

The special caught the policeman by the arm.

"Dumont!" he repeated to the other. "Are you sure? Did they say Dumont?"

"Sure," answered the officer. "I heard 'em talking about it. I'm sure it was Dumont."

"Great Scott!" exclaimed Burke. "Why—why, I was there tonight myself."

"That's where it was," went on the officer. "I'm telling you straight. Well, 'long, I got to go."

Burke himself had started away in the other direction.

"Well, 'long!" he responded. "I've got to go myself, for here comes my man now."

He had glanced toward the entrance to the club. A man came out.

The man stood for an instant under the bright light above the door. Then he descended the steps into the street. He turned to his right and walked leisurely along. Burke and his men followed him.

As the man strode away, he kept his hand, carefully perhaps, concealed in the pocket of his coat—

CHAPTER XI
The Dumont robbery was the last straw.

The police department had been worried right and left by the press and the people, and it was even hinted that certain of the officers were in league with the gang of burglars.

It is due to the honesty of the force as a whole that they were innocent of the slightest information relative to the affair. They had tried their best to prevent the depredation, but without success.

Just as certain as they became intensely vigilant in one quarter, the burglars burst out fresh in another.

Pneumonia from a Cold

PNEUMONIA is second only to consumption in the number of deaths which it causes, and like consumption always has its beginning with a cold.

Cold in the head, fever and chills, a cough which gradually becomes dry and more painful in the chest, rapid, difficult breathing, feelings of exhaustion and depression—these are symptoms of pneumonia.

You can prevent and cure pneumonia by the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, the greatest of all treatments for the throat and lungs.

The only safe way is to regard every cold as serious. By frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine you can quickly break up the cold and guard against dangerous developments. 25 cents a bottle, at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

and Cassidy to step up here and tell their story."

"They told the same tale. Andrews was the officer on the Dumont beat, Cassidy was a rouseabout. Their positions had been arranged the night before by the members of the sudden lighting of Miss Dumont's room.

The illumination attracted their attention, and they distinctly saw the man in her room as he replaced his mask and leaped toward the light bulb on the wall. Prior to that they had not seen his face.

One of the men immediately moved to the rear of the house, mounted to the extension roof, and was about to enter the window as the burglar, a tall, well built man, dashed past him and leaped to the ground. They fired, and evidently hit their man, because along the line of chase they discovered drops of blood.

In their opinion they had wounded him painfully, and perhaps very seriously. And then he had disappeared. They had done their best—and no man could do more.

"Now, look here," asked the chief, "did this man look like Storme?"

"You know the man I mean."

He scrutinized their faces carefully. He was not quite certain that the escape was altogether unavoidable.

"Well, sir," said Andrews, "as I said, we didn't see his face. But to tell the truth, Storme was the man that we were looking for—we had an eye out for him—and this man seemed to us to be about his build. We thought, sir, he was Storme."

"At this juncture a man in plain clothes entered—a man with sunken eyes and weary frame.

It was Burke. He had not slept for thirty hours. He sank in an exhausted way into a chair.

"Where have you been, Burke?" inquired the chief.

Burke stepped wearily up to the front and stood before the desk.

"I'm dog tired," he announced with a smile. "I've been followin' 'is. Stand 'long, Storme."

"What have you found out?" inquired the chief.

Burke shook his head.

"Nothing—just nothing," he replied. "Either we're away off or else he's dead on us and is keepin' straight."

The chief turned a pair of suspicious eyes upon the detective.

"What the mischief do you mean, Burke?" he demanded. "Don't you know that Storme robbed the Dumont house last night?"

Burke started up as though stung.

"What?" he demanded. "What d'ya mean? Robbed the Dumont house? Never!"

"Do you mean to tell us," said the chief, "that you saw his face, that you saw his eyes, that he wasn't the man who did it?"

"Sure he wasn't," answered Burke. "Of course he wasn't."

"How do you know?" asked the chief.

"Well," replied Burke with a smile, "I would like to know, I saw Storme go into the Iroquois at about midnight last night, saw him take his place in the card room, and saw him sitting there all night (I'll half past two next morning, saw him go home, and I've just now come from the Gouverneur where he lives."

"Do you mean to tell me," demanded the chief, "that you saw his face—saw Storme, himself—in the Iroquois all night long?"

"I'll tell you," explained Burke. "I didn't see his face after he went in, but I saw it from his eyeholes up, and it was Storme's head all right, all right; and besides, the doorman told me half a dozen times that Storme was there. He was even all right, all right, too. I'm sure of that."

The chief glanced uncertainly at the men before him, and then he addressed Cassidy and Burke.

"Did you see Miss Dumont in the room last night?" he asked.

Cassidy nodded.

"We did," he returned. "That's the reason Andrews climbed up. He was afraid the fellow might offer some violence."

The chief touched a button. An official appeared.

"You get a cab," he commanded the chief, "and go up to Miss Dumont's house and bring her here. I'm going to have her down. She's the only one who can solve this mystery."

"I won't go up there where I'll be embarrassed. I'm going to have her down here. Tell her that she needn't be afraid in none. I'll see her in my room. We'll make it as easy for her as we can. But she must come—she must. It's for the good of the community. Bring her down at once."

Half an hour later another man entered.

"Miss Dumont is here," he announced.

The chief went in and saw her. He took Burke in with him—he wanted Burke to hear and see—he wanted to see Miss Dumont very much.

Miss Dumont was very pale—she seemed exhausted. The chief explained to her gently just why this was a very important matter.

She replied that she understood and
