THE DESIGN OF OUR LIFE.

THE DESIGN OF OUR LIFE.

The design of our life !—alas that it should be so little thought of? The very words seem to awaken a new idea, to open up a new vista, to surprise as in a manner by their unfamiliarity, contrasted with their mulifest nearness to our interests, duty and destiny. They fall like a repreach upon our worldliness from an upper sphere, calling us back from the outward and the earthly, and remaining as that there is something better and worthier than these. It will be well if such shall be the practical result of our present meditation: sach is its aim. We would discown for a time the accilental and the passing—the transient peculiarities which constitute the mere drappy of our being—that we may the mere calmly contemplate the great and the universal, and by thus looking at ourselves and our fellows in the light of those higher and wider relations which have their roots in the soul, and which pass into the infinite, we may take the lightest course for reconciling ourselves to ourselves, to one another, and to the world without, while we shall, by the every fact of dwelling upon them, be strengthening and sectuaining all that is most glorious distinctive of humanity in man. What is our life? anys an inspired writer: " It is even a vapor that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away." And yet this vapour-life has for its trophics all that is great and imposing in the world—tecaples, and citizes, and palaces, and kingdoms—all that is great and beautiful in art; and all these have been fostered under its wing, and are the footprints which it has left on the sands of time. Nay, but this vapour-life is laden with eternity; this meteor flash, every time that it is kindled, lights an immortal spirit to heaven or hell: it fixes destiny, it determines a course of oudless progression upwards among the stars, or of endless sinking and divergence into a deeper gloom than brooded over the primal chaos. So that the trial of Solomon was no solitary case.—Life holds the balance to every man; the go written on its very constitution. But the world denies it: it grovels in the dust instead of soaring to the sun: and with his practical denial meeting him everywhere, can we wonder at the mementary scepticism of the holy seer—" Wherefore has thou made all men in vain?"

Not less alien from the truth, and not less suggestive of the psalmis's question, are the doctrines of chance on the one hand, and the dreams of pantheism, ancient and modern, on the other. By the first, we are taught that man is the plaything of circumstances, tessed for a little hither and thither, now in sunshine, now in shade, on the current of events lawless as himself, and passing away we know not whither, even as he came we know not whence; while, by the second, we are compensated for the loss of individual importance, responsibility and will, by the fautastic assumption of one Great Spritt underlying the universe, projecting into the region of the actual, the members of our race, who are again to be absorbed into the parent essence in process of time. There is thus the scepticism of a materialism on the other. Both are at away with the doubtion of a materialism on the other. Both are at away with the doubtion of the dignity of man; both are as death to his aspirations and hopes; both are subversive of his individual life; both have a chaos before and behind, and a painfully tangled web in the midst; and looking at the world from either position, we are again troubled with the doubt-world from either position, we are again troubled with the doubt-world from either position, we are again troubled with the doubt-world from either position, we are again troubled with the doubt-world from either position, we are again troubled with the doubt-world from either position, we are again troubled with the doubt-world from either position, we are again troubled with the doubt-world from either position, we are again troubled with the doubt-world from either position, we are again troubled with the doubt-world for man and the design of his life, we m great, that

"The heavens are steep, and hell is deep,
And the gates of life are hard to win."

This must be the first great aim of our life—individual emancipation from the guilt and the tyranny of evil. Nothing can be a substitute for this: it is the necessary condition of all other great and generous aims. We should be found but silly builders without it, for, says an apostic "Let every man prove his own work, and so shall be have rejoicing in himself alone, and not in another."

Looking at man, then, in his-isolated aspfet we say, that one great design of his life is to wrestle, and risp't be moving heavenwards ever—converting all things around him into the means of his advancement, even his very passions and comities into the pedestial of his fame and the ladder of his glory.

But then, after all, he is not an isolated being; he is part of a system wide as the universe, he stands in important relation to all his follows, he cannot dischin even the weakest and poorest among them, but in selfabness and sin : and here looks forth another great design of his life. He was formed to love, and there is no religion without it. There is more than a beautiful sentiment in these design of his life. He was formed to love, and there is no roligion without it. There is more than a beautiful sentiment in these words of the poet:

"He past who have a summary to the proper than a beautiful sentiment in these words of the poet:

"He made and loveth all."

If our blessed Redeemer had done on more for the world than to bequesth it his lessons of love, he would have been its greatest beneficial to the server of the serve, it mingles the cap tor the drenkard, at casts up his gains andist the rains in has made, and white a bother is bleeding, and nigh unto death, it stalks nimbly past on the other side. Thanks to our Redeemer for his overy condemnation of this—that, both by his lips and by his life, he pat the brand of Hawren's displeasure, on the solish, and extinguished the voice of that implous ereed—" Am I my brother's keeper?"

But we must not forget that love is a practical thing. Its proper language is not words, but deeds; it has peans for the prosperous, indeed, and pity for the fallen; but it has also food for the hungry, raiment for the naked and refuge for the homeless and the outcast. It knows to have compassion on the ignorant, and them that are out of the way." Its celestial footprints may be traced, not, perhaps to the house of feasting and wassail, but to the dasky dwelling of the mourner, to the edge of the sepalchre where the teartong lists in the eye, to the cell of the caliprit, where the words of wisdom fall from its lips, and to the uttermost limits of the earth, where it makes the glad tidings of solvation to ring. Like a pharoliph, it girds the whole horizon of we, and the heart beast lighter in its preacnee, and the eye looks less sorrowful at its approach. Nor does it want scope for its wing in a world like this for the desolate and the fallen are everywhere, the ignorant and the fearful, the hungry and the homeless; nor encouragement in its work, for "it is more blessed to give than to receive" It is the high usury of heaven: "be that soweth bountifully shall reap alsou

"That undisturbed song of pure concert, Aye sung before the sapphire-colour, I throne To Him that sits thereon."

We are here to learn, and these are our teachers. Let us listen to their voice—let us answer to their beckonings, let us catch up the melody, of their song, and

"Keep in tune with heaven, till God ere long,
To His celestial concert us unite,
To live with him and sing in endless mera of light."

FRENCH FARE IN IRELAND.

A Monsieur travelling in Ireland, put up at a house of entertainment in the country, and as the time for dining approached, mine host ventured to ask his guest:

'May I make bould to ax yer honor, what is it you'd be wanting for your dinner?'

'The Frenchman's appetite prompted his natural aptness, and he therefore, guessed the purport of Pat's query.

'Any peegeous?'

'Oh, plenty of them.'

'Veny well, mon ami, get me some for my dinner?'

'To be sure I will yer honor, and welcome'

'Away went the host to obey the foreign orders, without a remark louder than he thought in his own mind of 'blood and ouns and that's quare taste sure enough.' Up came the dinner, and down it went into the secret caveras of French digestion. Next morning Paddy appeared before his boarder with—

'What will yer honor have for dinner to-day?'

'Ah, my friend, your peegeon ver goot, ver goot indeed; I shall have more peegeon, to-day?'

'Oh, thin, to be sure you shall, your honor—an welcome—more and more if you like them.'

On went the week, and each day was the untiring taste of the epicarian tourist supplied with 'more peegeon.' Saturday came, and with it came the host.

'Oh, then, what will your honor have for yer dinner to-morrow, it is Sunday you know?'

'Peegeon ver fine!' cried the Frenchman, smacking his lips, 'you got any more peegeon!'

'Troth, and the devil another pusheen is left in the whole parish, barrise that your honor would wish to ate the old tom cat himself.'

'Cat.—'Thomas Cat.—eh? I said peegeon, my friend.'

Sure ye did—and the devil a thing else have I given you but pusheen.'

'Well, our pusheens will fly at ye, too, if ye tread on their tail.'

'Sure ye did—and the devil a thing else have I given you but pusheen.'

'Peegeon that fly, I mean.'

'Well, our pusheens will fly at ye, too, if ye tread on their tail.'

'But, 'replied the trensbling Frenchman, 'you did say sumthing about one cat?'

'One cat! Why, by the head of Saint Dennis, 'tis not one, but six cats your honor has ate.'

'Eat zix cats! yelled the pet.'if.ed tourist. 'What, me cat zix cats!! I saked for peegeon.'

'Well, pusheen is what we call little kittens—wee cats.'

'I did mean peegeou with wing and fedders!'

A light here gleamed upon l'addy's knowledge box. 'Oh, by my soul and conscience I believe 'twas pigeons yer honor wanted.'

'Ohi, yes—to be ager my friend.'

'Ah, then why the devil don't you French people learn to talk plain. Sure you do cat such quare things as frogs, saids, and rats judd luck to me if I zaw anything strange in your calling for little cats.'

'Divil a doubt of it'

Divil a doubt of it."
The grimace which followed the certainty of this fact, may be more easily imagined than described. The Frenchman quickly packed up, and as quickly made away from a country that knew no difference between cats and pigeons. We do not know whether he ever published his Thoughts upon Irish Miseries, if so, they were never translated.

SCIENTIFIC FARMING.

A VISAT TO. THE FARM OF JUDGE MEAGE.

That Vermont is one of the best agricultural States of the New England group, there can he no quastion. Her valleys are rich, and her montains are covered with good soil, quite to their sommits. The town of Shelbarne, in which I am writing, is territorially small, but the soil is well husbanded and productive, and the inhabitants industrious and independent. Here Judge Meach resides, on his splendid farm, which attesthes along the shore of Lake Champlain, and contains 2,300 acres in one both. This farm is admirably located, and presents some beautiful points saids from the richness of the soil and the great amount of agricultural wealth which now covers it. The mansies house where the Judge and his wife reside, is situated but a few rods from the shore of the lake, and stands in the carties. You enter the give and find yourself upon a wide and beautifully-gravelled with, ever admirated by some two or duce rows of full, handsome coders. Here is a spot worthy to be described. You enter the give and find yourself upon a wide and beautifully-gravelled with, ever admirated and then creat a cryoff in both, the rows into a fish-good below, where you might have seen disporting themselves some score or two of large speaked treat, well fed and fit, if some inferral semmy had not caught them out a few weeks ago, when diskness covered their evil deeds. The rascale who perpetrated that theft, would stout the butter from a Nego slave's hoe cake, and nob the dead of the pennies that cover she was a substitute of the pennies that cover the year. You make any of the brook, with an arch of woodblies in front, and roses about its entrance? The answer will be: "The house, where the pass of milk are set for the cream to rise, and where the yellow, as west batter is made." You pass under this beautiful arch of woodblies and that the rise and the substitute of the brook, with an arch of woodblies in front, and roses about its entrance? The new there were the pass of milk are farm.

I have endeavoured to give a plain unvarnished account of this farm, but I am quite sure the description falls far short of the reality. I have visited a good many farms in this State and in the Great West, but I have never seen one that is equal to Judge Meach's, taking every thing into account. Who would not be a farmer, if he could be such a farmer? After all, a farmer's life is the most happy one. And is it not strange, that so many half and hearty young mon will congregate in our cities, when such a variety of soil and climate as our country affords is within their variety of soil and climate as our country affords is within their reach? We must have merchants, it is true, and they are a useful class of the community; but then their lives are full of perpletities, and often of great adversities. Seedtime and harvest are promised to all, but we have no warrant against the convulsions in the mercantile world. Besides, it is easier to be honest on a farm than in a trading-house. The farm has no indecements to be otherwise than honest, while the trader is all his life-time subject to tempta-

AGRICULTURAL.—Will our Farmers carefully read and consider the matter which the following paragraph contains? It is copied from the Carleton Sentine!—

"We are surprised that so little Winter Whest is sown by our Farmers, when it is known, that it is a much surer crop than the Summer Wheat, and will make whiter flour and better bread. We have now before us a few heads of Winter Wheat, taken from a field owned by Mr. George Bull: they are very full and heavy, and ripe enough to cut, without the least appearance of smut or weevil, while a field of Summer Wheat adjoining, is nearly distroyed by the weevil. It will be seen by the following, from the Portland Transcript, that the American farmers are turning their attention to the raising of this grain:

"The Piscataquis Observer says, the Farmers in that County are turning their attention to the rowing of Winter Wheat, and that the experiment works well. We recently saw fields of vigorous looking winter grain on the Kennebec, and were glad to see them. Let us, as Mrs. M'Curtle says, "thread ourselves."

The turnip in Russin is enten as fruit by all classes. In the bouses of the nobles sliced turnip with brandy is offered to the guests.

THE IRESH.—A late American paper furnishes the enumeration of the Irish throughout the world:

Calm is the dawn of a summer more,
When the sun his just climbed the sky,
When a thousand sweets on the air are borne,
With the sound of melody.
A mist hange o'er the lake's calm blue,
Half veiling the smiling earth,
But the green trees proudly tow'ring through,
Wave free in the breezy mirth.

The bright frail web by the spider made,
Hangs out from the cider boughs,—
Glist'ning with dew and in light arrayed,
L'ke a fancy net-work glowe!
Its globes as lace from an artist's loom,
Droop pendant the leaves among,
Trembling, while listening their early doom,
By the merning breezes sung.

So much of calunces the earth enshroud While freshness and glory smiles,
The purple depths of the orient clouds,
Seem as beauty's richest ieles.
A thousand flowers their odours pour,
And a thousand streamlets ring,
Waking a voice from the forest hoar
With the gladness of every thing.

Like the peerless beauty to childhood given, Is the light of the early day; For both seem fresh from the hand of heaven, And robed in its pure array.

Dewdrops and tears have a kindred birth,
Sunshine and smiles are one,
So the face of childhood is like our earth,

Just waked by the morning sun

Darieties.

CLOTHING.—The buman animal is the only one that is by nature destitute of covering, and the only one that can clothe itself. Hence man is adapted to all seasons and all climates. He can adapt the waranth or lightness of his covering to the temperature of his dwelling. Had he been born with a fleece on his back, although he might have been comforted by its warmth in the higher latitudes, it would have oppressed him by its weight and heat, as the human species spread towards the equator. The clothing of many animals, particularly of that large tribe of quadrapeds that are covered with furs, changes by a natural turn with their necessities; and it is well known, that the fur is much thickened by the approach of winter; so that what art does for man, nature does for those unimals that are incapable of art. Wool in hot countries passes into hair? A nother adaptation is equally remarkable. Bears, welves, foxes and hares, which do not take the water, have the fur much thicker on the back than on the breast; while it is thickent on the breast of the beaver, accustomed to the water. It is so, too, with the feathers of water-fowl.

PRILOSOPHY OF SWIMMIGG.—The following rules and reacons, given many years ago, by Elizur Wright of Boston, ought to be published every summer in every newspaper in the land.

No branch of education has been so much neglected as this. Man is the only animal which does not swim naturally. He sinks in deep water, from the size of his brain when not properly excreised. That is to say, the weight of his brain above his nose ainks that organ a little hencath the surface when he is in an erect position, before his body displaces its weight of water, and thus find a equilibrium. With the nose under, one must breathe water and drown. But when the brain comes to be exercised enough to throw the head back and the nose up, pointing to the very zenith, and you keep hands and feet carefully under water, then, by the eternal laws of hydrostatice, the nose will continue above water, and the person will float like an empty bottle, which is so balanced as to keep his mouth uppermost. No haman being can sink in still water of any depth, lying on the back, with hands and feet under water.

THE ART OF EMBALMING REDISCOVERED.—At a meeting of the Asiatic Society in London, some time ago, a human hand and a piece of beef, preserved by means of a preparation of ve-getable tar, found on the borders of the Red Sea, in the vicinigetable tar, found on the borders of the Red Sea, in the vicinity of Mocha, were presented: a specimen of the tar accompanied them. Col. Holt, who presented the specimens, observes: "During my residence on the Red Sea, a conversation with some Bedosin Arabs. in the vicinity of Mocha, led me to auspect that the principal ingredient used by the ancient Egyptians in the formation of mummies was nothing more than the vegetable tar of those countries, which is called by the Arabs, Catren.

vegetance tar of mose countries, which is called by the Arabs, Catren.

My first trials to prove the truth of this conjecture were legs of mutton; and though made in July, when the thermometer ranged at 94 deg. in the shade, they succeeded so much to my satisfaction, that I forwarded some to England, and have now the pleasure to send to the society a human hand prepared in a similar way four years since. The best informed among the Arabs think, that large quantities of camphor, myrrh, sloes, frankincense, etc., were used in the preparation of the mumics. These specimens will, however, prove that such additions were by no means necessary, as the tar applied alone penetrates and discolours the bone. This tar is obtained from the branches of a small tree or shrub, exposed to a considerable degree of heat, and it is found in most parts of Syria and Arabia Felix."

TAKING THE VEIL.

The solemn and imposing ceremonial of taking the white veil was performed at the Catholic Church, on High-street, on Sanday moraing. The whole services occupied about three hours, and were performed by the Right Rev. Bishob, assisted by a large number of his clergy. The fair devotees, who thus took upon themselves the vows of poverty, clustity and obedience, were three is number. They were youthful and groceful in person, and when they entered the chirach, were all beautifully attired as for their histial. The appearance of all indicated intelligence, cultivation and refinement. A discourse, unusually learned and eloquent, upon the religious life to which the young ladies had devoted thenselves, was delivered by a most able and venerable father, Rev. Mr. M'Elroy, from the State of Maryland. At the close of the discourse, the sisters retired to throw off the drapery of fashion, and robe themselves in the garb of their order, and we felt more than half inclined to felicitate them upon their happy escape from the temptation and sin by which they were surrounded. But cure conversion was transient. When they returned in their religion habits, the poetry was all gone. Those beautiful treases,—

"Whose glossy black to shame might bring The plumage on the raven's wing,— were forever withdrawn from the gaze of man, the pure and eloquent blood which unsatled their cheeks, was hidden by muffler and bandage; the graceful, swelling form was concealed by the ineligent dress which they had just assumed; and if ever we breathed forth a sincere, carriest, and unselfish prayer, it was that the most abundant grace and consolation might be ministered unto these young creatures under the restraints and deprivation of their self-assumed widowhood.—Providence Journal.

Convon...—An aged couple in Galashiels had retired to slumber, when, at midnight, the guda dame was aroused by the gare of a fire, which illuminated the horizon. Frightened at the sudden sight she awoke her sleeping mate with a call to "gat up and pray, for the hast day was come." John, leath to be aroused, was not a little terrified, but soon collecting hisself he replied with characteristic shrewdness and philosophic induction," Hoot, havers I who ever heard o' the day comin' in the middle o' the nicht?,—

JUDSON'S CHEMICAL EXTRACT OF

CHERRY AND LUNGWORT.

Coughs, Colds, Hoarsness, Splitting of Blood, Night Sweats, Asthr Liver Complaints, and CONSUMPTION.

DO NOT NEGLECT IT. Consumption can be and has been cured, in thousands of cases, by this only certain remedy, JUDSON'S CHEMICAL EXTRACT OF CHERRY AND LUNGWORT, nedy has ever before been discovered that will certainly Cure Consumption.

The most strongly marked and developed cases of Pulmonary, Consumption, where the longs have become diseased and ulcerated and the case so utterly hopeless, as to have been pronounced by Physicians and friends, to be past all possibility of recovery, and at times thought to be dying, have been cured by this wounderful remedy, and are now as well and hearty as ever. It is a compound of nedications which are peculiarly adapted to and essentially accessary for the cure of COUGHS AND CONSUMPTION.

Its operation is mild, yet efficacious; it loosens the phlegm which creates so much difficulty, relieves the cough and assists nature to expel from the system all diseased matter by expectoration, producing a delightful change in the breathing and chest, and this after the prescriptions of the very best medical men and the inventions of kind and sorrowing friends and Nurses, have failed to give this smallest relief to the Consumptive sufferer.

persons have been deceived repeatedly in buying medicines which were said to be infallible cures, but which have proved only palliatives, but this medicine is not only a palliative but a cure for ulcerated lungs. It contains no deleterious Drugs and one trial will prove its astonishing efficacy better than any assertions or certificates in curing consumption and all diseases of the Lungs, such as Spitting of 6030d, Coughs, pain in the side and cheest, night-suceats, &cc. &cc.

About 1000 certificates of almost miraculous cures, performed by this medicine, from some of the first Ductors, Clergymen and Merchants, have been sent us for this medicine, but the publication of them looks too much like Quackery, [we will show them to any person, calling at our office.] This medicine will speak for itself and enough in its own favour wherever it is tried.

Cuution—This medicine is put up in a large bottle and you must find the nance of Judson & Co., Proprietors, New York, on the splendid Wrapper around the bottle. All orders must be addressed to Comstock & Brother, No. 9 John St. New York.

CARLTON'S CONDITION POWDERS FOR HORSES AND CATTLE.

CARLIUM'S CONDITION POWDERS FOR HORSES AND CATTLE.

The changes of weather and season, with the change of use and feed, have a very great effect upon the blood and sinuous fluids of horses. It is at these changes they require an assistant to nature to throw off any disorder of the fluids of the body that may have been inhibled, and which, if not attended to, will result in the Yellow water, Heaves, Worms, Botts, &c. All of which will be prevented by giving one of these pc wders, and will at any time, cure when any symptoms of disease appear, if used in time. They purify the blood, remove all inflammation and fever, loosen the skin, cleanage the water, and invigorate the whole body, enabling them to do more work, with the same feed. The action of these powders is direct upon the Horse, the Ox, the Ass, and all Herbivorous animals—all diseases arising from or producing a bad state of the blood, are speedily cured by them. them.

Consumption!!!

Every body knows is a flattering disease. It commences and progresses so insidiously, that before one is aware of it, the lungs are a mass of ulcers, then a sudden exposure or change from heat to cole, produces an inflammation, and in a few days or weeks, it is said he or she died of hasty Consumption. For all troubled with cough or lung complaint, we would refer to the advertisement on the outside of this paper of Judson's Chemical Extract of "Cherry and Lungwort," which is said to be a certain cure for this awful disease.

Thrpat, Catarrh, Diseases of the Lungs and Bronchal Affections.

This favorite remedy is composed of Pure Cod Liver Oil, combined with other valuable ingredients, which completely disguise the repulsive taste of the Oil, without detracting from its medicinal virtues, presenting it in a form by which it can be administered to the most delicate invalid, without inconvenience. The medicinal influence of this Candy pursues the exact tract of the inflammatory action, causing cough. First, soothing the organs of the voice, its sedatative influence, passes along the mucous liming of the windpipe into the bronci, and allaying pulmonary irritation, giving case and comfort to the chest, restoring the voice to its accustomed elearness and powers; Congeaded Phiegm, Acrimony in the Fluids, and Obstructions in the Glands, are gently and safely discharged by easy expectoration. It sweet disagrees with the stomach, a common cold yields to its benign influence in a few hours, and when resorted to, before the complaint is far advanced, all danger of Consumption is entirely prevented.

IN A MOS! HOPELESS STATE.

Extract of a Letter from Mr. Matthew Harvey, of Chepel Hall;
Airdrie, Scotland, dated the 15th January, 1850.

To Professor Holloway:
Sta.—Your valuable Pills have been the means, with God's blessing of restoring me to, a state of perfect health, and at a time when I thought I was on the brisk of the grave. I had consulted several eminent Doctors, who, after doing what they could for me, stated that they considered my case as hapeless. I ought to any that I had been suffering from a Liver and Stounch complaint of long standing, which during the last two years got as much worse, that severy one considered my condition as hopeless. I as a hast resource got a Box of your Pills, which soon gave reliefe, and by persevering in their use for some weeks, together with rubbing night and morning your Ointment over my chest and stomach and right side, I have by their means alone got completely cared, and to the astoniahusent of suyself and every body who knows me, Extract of a Letter from Mr. William Smith, of No. 5, Little Thomas Street, Gibson Street, Lambeth, dated December 12, 1849.

To Professor Holloway.

Sila,—I beg to inform you that for nearly 5 years I hardly knew what it was to have a day's health, suffering from extreme weakness and debility, with constant nervous headachers, glidiners and sickness of the stomach, together with a great dispression of spirits. I used to think that nothing could benefit me, as I had been to many medical men, some of whom, after doing all that was in their power, informed me that they considered that I had some spinal complaint beyond the reach of care, together with a very disordered state of the stomach and liver, making my case so complicated that onthing could be done for me. One day being unsamally ill and in a dejected state, I saw your Fills advertised and resolved to give them a trial, more perhaps from curiosity than with a hope, of being cured, however I sone found myself better by taking them—and so I went on persevering in their use for six months, when, I am happy to say they effected a perfect cure.

Extract of a Letter-from Mr. J. K. Heydon, 78 King Street, Sydney, dated 10th November, 1849.

To Professor Hollowax.

Sila,—I have the pleasure to inform you that many extraordinary cures of Asthma have been effected here by means of your Fills. One is that of a lady reviding near the "Razorhack," who after having for Twenty years been mable to make the slightest exerction, suffering very fearfully from shortness of breath coughing and sytting, but is now, (to use her own expression) able to run up to the top of that mountain. Another case is that of Mr. Ca'on, Tailor, Hutchinson's buildings, Clarence-street, who was so dreadfully had that he was confined entirely to his bad-room or six months, prior to his commencing with your Fills, and attended regularly by his suedical man, who pronounced him to be in a djung attended r
