

POOR WADDY.

BY MISS E. H. ROOPER.

That was what everyone called him in his family, or rather his step-mother's family, included—until Waddy, to whose extreme unpopularity of form and features had been added a keen, almost childlike sensitiveness, being some looking or more apparently so than himself. His mother died soon after his birth, and his father married again—dying however, when Waddy was in his ninth year, and leaving him an annuity of three hundred dollars—a very small proportion of the amount his shrewd and managing step-mother secured to his half-brothers and sisters, all of whom would have been glad, however, to forget or ignore that degree of relationship. He was permitted, notwithstanding, to remain in the family, a sort of tolerated nuisance, his clothes and meals being charged as an offset against the annuity his father had left him.

But the time was approaching when Waddy would have been considered a young man if he had not been scuffed, caressed, and kept back. He had, moreover, been doing some thinking of his own in a quiet and sensible way, and had at last decided to turn his attention to bookkeeping. He had already, in some way, learned to move his pen with the ease and grace of a master of that art; and as for numbers, his mind glided into them with a readiness which in a few years enabled him to gain a thorough knowledge of the almost incomprehensible science; and he prepared to leave the old family home and repair to the nearest city in search of employment.

"Waddy," said one of his half-sisters, inspired by a bright idea, when about to bid a cold farewell to the beds, with whose society they were so willing to dispense, "suppose you get your life insured for about five thousand dollars, and assign the policy over to us. Your annuity will keep it paid up, you know." Waddy said he would think about it, so he fastened the last strap of his traveling valise and moved out and away.

"There is a queer-looking fellow here," said Frank Morely to his partners, "who says he would like employment as a bookkeeper. He writes a fair hand, and appears thorough in his profession, but his only reply to my inquiry for references, was that he had never been in the work-house or in prison, but had looks having exempted him from both places. He is ready to take any wages we offer."

A desk in the rear of the book office was assigned to the new bookkeeper, and for a lodging-place he was permitted to fit up a small room in the upper part of the building, where also he took his meals, brought in from a restaurant. In this way a year went by, the bookkeeper's wages being, in the meantime, gradually raised from twenty to sixty dollars a month, with a fair prospect of still further advancement.

"What are you trying to do with that drunken man, Miss? I'll make him stand up, or, if he must lie down give him chance to do so in the station-house." "The man is not drunk, Mr. Policeman," answered the young lady addressed. "He fell on the ice just now and hurt himself badly, I fear, but got up with my help, and I am trying to assist him to the drug-store on the corner below."

"Hello, old fellow! Who are you, and where from?" said the policeman, taking hold of the man's arm and giving him a shake. "Please don't speak roughly to him," urged the young lady. "He has already given me his name and address—down in the business part of the city, more than two miles away."

brother has just gone to the station-house to report you missing." "Then I have a little more work for you, Mr. Woolley," said Florence, addressing her companion. "Please go around to the station-house and tell them to bring a girl child found." "But what is the meaning of this?" persisted her mother. "Are you crazy?" "Mother and daughter were soon in the laughing mood. "Crazy people are not apt to be conscious of any defect in their reason." "The presence of Mr. Langdon, who had, for the last two hours, been enjoying the agonies of the goat, and was in a humor to quarrel with any one except his daughter; with her, for some reason, he could never get angry. He would always insist upon first hearing her story, and then would never fail to discover that her conduct had been quite right and proper. On this occasion he was soon laughing heartily, quite forgetful of the mortal agony he had been suffering."

Several years had elapsed since this passing and apparently unimportant incident, when the attorney who managed Waddy's business affairs remarked to him one day: "A letter has just been received from your late father's executor, inclosing your annual remittance; and, as you will see, expresses a desire to be informed in regard to your health and general welfare, and closes by asking if you have an insurance on your life and are keeping it paid up."

"It will be best, I think, to simply forward my receipt for the annuity, and make no notice of any inquiries," was Waddy's quiet rejoinder. "I would like, however," said the lawyer, after a short silence, "to learn something in regard to the Mrs. Anderson to whom the five-thousand-dollar life insurance, to the keeping up of which your annuity has been applied. It is most probable in the event of your death, I have, as you know, received several letters from the lady, expressing an earnest desire to learn to whom she is indebted for the remittance I have been occasionally sending her by your order; but you have only permitted me to tell her that they come from a friend who cherishes a deep interest in herself and her family."

"Wall, Mr. Brown," said Waddy, "I suppose it is best for me to tell you the whole story. I have seen the lady but once in my life, and then only for a short time." He then proceeded to relate the adventures with which the reader is already familiar, adding: "That, sir, was the first time, so far as I could remember, when any one had done anything for me which I could not conceive of as having been prompted by a selfish interest in some form. The only evidence I had that she thought of me afterwards, was the receipt of a note from the clerk who had accompanied her, saying that he and the young lady would like to know if I had sustained any serious injury from my fall. That kind inquiry I immediately answered, with many thanks to him and Miss Langdon, whose full name and address I had obtained from him."

"From that time," continued Waddy, "I have followed her history and fortunes continually. Her father failed in business a year after that incidental meeting, and died within the next year, his family being left to do the best they could for themselves. Under those circumstances, I adopted Florence as the special object of my interest and care, and have done what I could for her. Her husband, an enterprising young man, to whom she was married a few years ago, has been getting along very well, in the Western city where they now reside, with their three little children. The satisfaction of knowing that I was rendering an acceptable service to one who was worthy of it, and who might one day, after I was gone, know from whom it came, has furnished the motive that has been to me like a guiding star in my life."

Six years had passed since the conversation here referred to; and as the last of them drew to an end, the bookkeeper closed his ledger for the last time, and passed on to render his account before a tribunal that permits no changes or erasures in the record of any one. A sincere and tender respect was manifested by the few persons who accompanied the remains of poor Waddy to the grave; but none of his kindred were there, nor did they even know of his death until they had learned from his attorney and executor that the annuity would be no longer required, except a small balance due at the time of his client's decease. The money was promptly reissued, also a request for a copy of poor Waddy's will, which was immediately forwarded, and from which they learned that he had left a life insurance of five thousand dollars, also about a thousand in the savings bank. His library, with other articles, had been left to certain persons who had administered to his comfort during the latter years of his life. He had directed that his funeral should be conducted in a plain and becoming style, and a simple marble slab should be placed at his grave, with the words—"Poor Waddy," and nothing more. These matters being provided for, there would remain the sum of eight thousand dollars, which by his will he had directed to be paid to Mrs. Florence Anderson.

Another letter soon came from Waddy's former home, written by a lawyer this time, intimating a disposition to test the validity of the will, unless certain questions—a dozen or more—were satisfactorily answered. The answers were not given, nor was the will ever disturbed. A few weeks after the bookkeeper's funeral, an elderly gentleman rang the bell at a quiet and pleasant residence in Western city, and placing his card in the hand of the servant who answered it, requested her to take it to her mistress, Mrs. Anderson.

"I am much pleased to see you, Mr. Brown," said the lady, entering the parlor. "I received your letter a few days ago, announcing the death of one whose generous and constant remembrance of me has been a great mystery, as well as an occasion of sincere gratitude. The trials and disappointments that have fallen upon me, especially at and soon after the death of my dear husband, followed also, in a few weeks, by the death of my youngest child, were lightened and made unbearable, so far as they could be, by the consciousness that I had an unknown friend, somewhere, who was watching me continually and caring for me with a father's or a brother's affection. And now, sir, please let me know to whom I have been indebted for this kind and watchful solicitude."

"Let me first ask you to sign this receipt," said Mr. Brown, as he placed on the table before her a certified check. "Right!" exclaimed the lady, and signed the receipt. "Can it be possible that I am the recipient of this unfeigned gift, in addition to the former acts of kindness I enough, with the little my husband left me, to make me and my two remaining children comfortable to the end of our lives? I cannot remember that I have ever done anything for any human being that could deserve the hundredth part of what I have received from this generous friend."

"Do you remember," began Mr. Brown, "the poor bookkeeper, who fell on the ice?" "What?" interrupted the listener. "Waddy Rullman. Can it be possible that that little act of kindness furnished the key to this mystery? Has the man whom I simply helped by his feet when he had fallen on the sidewalk, and assisted to his home, been doing all this for me?" "Yes, madam," was the lawyer's reply. "He has watched you from that until the end of his life, and you have been the recipient of most of the money he has saved. His painful sensitiveness in regard to his personal appearance made him almost a monomaniac on that subject, and he felt that for him love or marriage was forever out of the question. At the same time he needed some end or purpose higher and more unselfish than the supplying of his own personal wants, and the belief that he was contributing to the comfort of one who deserved and thankfully received the assistance he was rendering, has supplied the great want of his life and constituted the one sweet and innocent remembrance of his otherwise lonely and loveless existence."

Much more was told during that visit, and Mrs. Anderson's eyes were full of tears when she at last bade her visitor good-bye. Every year, at the anniversary of his death, a wreath of immortelles was placed by her order, upon poor Waddy's grave, as a token of her grateful remembrance of the hitherto unknown benefactor who had so liberally requited an act of simple kindness.

Rheumatism is caused by a poisonous acid in the blood and yields to Ayer's Pills. Many cases which seemed chronic and hopeless, have completely cured by this medicine. It will cost but little to try what Ayer's Pills may have in case. We predict success.

The Use of Words. Words and their uses again. Some queer phrases come to the Listener's ear in the course of a twelve-month! Here is one, used by a friend, which is quite new. To this friend woman speaking the other day of her surroundings and home, her neighbors, more especially, said:

"We have very little society—very few callers; we find we don't congregate very well with the people about here." Possibly the trouble was that the people really did congregate because they didn't like Partingtons. But what she meant was probably congenial.—Boston Transcript.

"They have a larger role in my district," says a well-known druggist, "than any other pill on the market, and give the best satisfaction for sick headache, biliousness, indigestion, etc., and when combined with Johnston's Tonic Liver Pills will perform what no other medicine has done before for suffering humanity." Pills 25 cents per bottle. Sold by Goode Druggist, Albion block, Goderich, sole agent.

How to Make Chocolate. The secret in making chocolate, says a leading confectioner of New York city, is in mixing the powder with enough boiling water to make a thin paste, and then pouring on boiling milk, and let a little more boiling water and scalding one minute. It can be made with all milk and no water if desired, but it is too rich for most people without the addition of some water. Chocolate, cocoa, or any such mixture should never be stirred with anything but a silver or a wooden spoon. A teaspoonful of chocolate to a cup is the rule, and if the liquids are poured on while they are boiling and the whole scalded in porcelain—never tin—there will be no doubt but that it will be a success.

Chronic Coughs and colds. And all diseases of the throat and lungs can be cured by the use of Scott's Emulsion, as it contains the healing virtues of Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites in their fullest form. See what W. S. Muer, M. D., L. R. C. P., etc., Truro, N. S. says: "After three years' experience I consider Scott's Emulsion one of the very best in the market. Very excellent in throat affections." Sold by all druggists, 50c. and $1.00.

Last all Faith. A New York fat owner advertised as usual that he would rent only to people who had no children. His flats were soon well filled, and he congratulated himself that no childish voices were to be heard in the halls. One day a few weeks ago he came around to collect the rent, and nearly dropped dead when he found that two families had been blessed with triplets, four with twins, and seven with single babies. He has lost all confidence in the human race, and now goes about with lowered head, as a man who has been deeply wronged.

The best regulators for the stomach and bowels, the best cure for biliousness, sick headache, indigestion, and all affections arising from a disordered liver, are without exception Johnston's Tonic Liver Pills. Small in size, sugar coated, mild, yet effective. 25c. per bottle sole by Goode, druggist, Albion block, Goderich, sole agent.

QUEBEC IN SORROW.

Terrible Result of a Cliff Slide.

Many Persons Killed and Wounded—Houses Crushed like Pancakes.

QUEBEC, September 20.—The city was terribly agitated last night by a fearful calamity which took place in Champlain street, and, notwithstanding that the rain came down in torrents, and the said street a business crowd of people repaired to the accident. Shortly after seven o'clock a huge portion of the rock immediately underneath the Citadel, at the extreme west end of DuRoi Terrace, suddenly gave way and went crashing into Champlain street, carrying away or wrecking all the buildings on No 123 to 163, or between the residence of Mr. Power, store of the Allen line steamship office. Some seven houses in all have been wiped out. They were mostly all tenement houses and densely populated, and death and destruction in all its appalling forms have been left in the path of the land slide. The street is piled up with hundreds of tons of huge boulders, and is impassable, while some of the buildings are knocked completely to pieces and others are buried underneath the rocks and debris. Detachments from "B" Battery, the Cavalry school, city police force, and willing citizens were promptly at work, immediately after the accident, to rescue those buried in the ruins, but the task was a herculean one, and up to this morning very little had been accomplished and it must be a considerable time before the street will again be clear.

CAUSE OF THE CATASTROPHE. The immediate cause of the disaster is attributed to heavy rains, which have prevailed here continuously since Monday. Yesterday the rain was unusually heavy, and torrents of water were rushing down the face of the cliff in all directions and the action of the water must have penetrated the crevices and loosened the rock. Eye witnesses of the disaster say the whole mass came down in the twinkling of an eye, some of those who witnessed it being almost paralyzed and barely able to get out of its way. Only a few years ago the Federal Government spent a large sum of money in buying up and removing the houses on the cliff side of the street where the disaster occurred, and built a thick retaining wall as a guard against accidents of this kind; but it had no effect on last night's disaster. It ceases the loss to the surviving victims in heart, all the furniture and effects being a complete wreck. Relief measures are being adopted.

THE STORM OF WIND AND RAIN here yesterday, and some minor slides are reported along the same street, but fortunately without damage. Lewis suffered from the same cause, and low-lying localities were flooded. Another eye-witness of last night's fatality says there was ample warning to get out of its way, as portions of the rock fell at intervals of about five minutes, in small quantities at first, but increased in bulk till the final crash came. Previous landslides have occurred in the same localities with equally disastrous results. There was one on the 17th May, 1841, which wiped out eight buildings and killed 32 people. There was another in 1852, about half a mile higher up the street, when seven people lost their lives.

The coroner reports that 26 are dead and 30 missing. The wounded number 70 or 80, and are doing very well. The dead were all laid out in the water police station, whence about ten have been removed by friends. The coroner reports decomposition as already setting in, and says that the rats are swarming in immense numbers from the streets, and that he has had to have coffins constructed as rapidly as possible. The coroner's jury will be sworn in tomorrow and the bodies identified, and the inquest will be held on Monday. The Roman Catholic dead will be buried on Sunday morning at ten o'clock.

ANOTHER CRACK REPORTED. Another crack in the rock immediately behind the present slide is said today to have opened out about nine inches wide yesterday. The loss of life, it is said, would have been much heavier but for the fortunate circumstances that numbers of the residents were at wakes above and below the doomed locality. Orders have been issued to cease firing the heavy guns from the Citadel, so as not to shake the cliff. Some of the poor little children saved seem to have become somewhat mixed up, and there are instances of one man claiming another man's child. The victims have met their deaths in all forms. Several of them are suffocated; others have their heads crushed in, and some fell in the street while trying to flee from the avalanche.

HORRIFIC INCIDENTS. While workers were busy clearing the debris of a crumbled building, faint groans were heard at intervals from under the huge pile of rock. The efforts of the volunteers were concentrated to that point, and after three hours' hard work the bleeding body of Joe Kemp was extricated from the mass of rock. The poor man was in the most miserable condition. Both legs were broken at the knees, the left arm was fractured above the elbow, and several ribs were also fractured. Kemp will not live two hours longer. He is unconscious, and a livid pallor and death-like appearance prevail in the man's face. Two hours later his wife's body was taken out of the wreck. Her head was almost severed from the body, and indications of the most revolting and violent death were apparent.

Further away another hideous spectacle was offered to sight. The corpse of a young woman, Mrs. Lawson, who had been admired in her lifetime both for her beauty and amiability, was extricated from under a raft of which about ten tons of stones and matter were lying. The sight was more than many could bear. She was smashed almost flat and the body frightfully torn. Her husband, at the sight of his beloved wife's remains, became frantic and is now insane for perhaps the remainder of his life. A man named Michael Bradley, who had gone almost crazy when told that all his family had perished in the landslide, discovered while working over the wreck of his house his five-year-old daughter, still alive. His joy was indescribable. He kissed and patted the mangled form, called her by endearing names, and fondled her as a mother would her baby. It is thought the child will live. Still another accident came to notice in the result of Mr. Farrell. At the time of the calamity he had his infant babe in his arms. The two were found together, but the deadly rock had done its work, and both bodies were removed to the office of the river police. The city is thronged with strangers coming from all parts of the Quebec district to witness the effects of the terrible avalanche.

What Invention Has Done.

In cutting out clothing and cloth caps we try dies - one worker does the work of three by old methods.

In leather manufacture modern methods have reduced the necessary number of workers from five to fifty per cent.

A carpet measuring and brushing machine with one operator will do the work of fifteen men by the old methods.

In the manufacture of flour modern improvements save 75 per cent of the manual labor that once was necessary.

In making tin cans one man and a boy, with modern appliances, can do the work of ten workers by the old process.

By the use of coal mining machines 100 miners in a month can mine as much coal as 500 miners in the same time by the old methods.

One boy, by machinery, in turning woodwork and materials for musical instruments, performs the work of twenty-five men by the old methods.

In the manufacture of boots and shoes the work of 500 operatives is now done by 100, a displacement of wage-earners of 80 per cent by aid of machinery.

In nailing on shoe heels one worker and a boy, with machinery, can heel 300 pairs of shoes per day. It would require five workers to do the same by hand.

The horse-power of steam used in the United States on railways, steamers and in factories and mines, was in 1888, 12, 100,000, against 1,020,000 in 1930.

I have dressed twelve laborers, with a machine, can dress 12,000 staves in the same time that the same number of workers by hand could dress 2,500 staves.

In the cotton mills of the United States the manual labor has been reduced about 50 per cent. Now one weaver manages from two to ten looms, where formerly one loom was tended by one worker.

In the manufacture of brick improved devices save one-tenth of the labor, and in the manufacture of fire brick 40 per cent of the manual labor is displaced.

In the manufacture of carriages it used to take one man thirty-five days to make a carriage. It is now made by the aid of machinery with the work of one man in twelve days.

In the manufacture of agricultural implements 600 operatives, with machinery, including eighteen classes of wage-earners, do the work of 2,145 wage earners without machinery, displacing 1,545 workers.

The introduction of machinery in the manufacture of children's shoes during the past thirty years has displaced six times the manual labor now required, and the product of manufacture has been reduced 50 per cent to the consumer.

In the manufacture of wall paper one worker, by the aid of machinery, does the work of a hundred workers by manual labor, and in cutting and drying paper by machinery four men and four operators do the work of 100 operators

SUNDAY "SPARKING". - The following is from the report of a recent Sunday School convention, and shows how "A touch of nature makes the whole world kin." A Rev Mr Bell was speaking, and he said he thought that "sparking" on Sunday was not exactly productive of the true spirit in which the day ought to be observed. Of course the young man and young woman made it all right with their own consciences by going to church and singing of the same hymn book, but he thought "sparking" ought to be strictly a week-day affair, even although he could not affirm that he himself had never done just a very little courting on the Sabbath in days not so long past.

When the reverend gentleman asked for show of hands from those who had never, never "sparked" on Sunday, there was only one hand went up, and that was the hand of a 3-year-old in his mother's arms. With a sigh of relief Mr Bell took his seat.

How an Axe is Made.

The largest axe factory in the world is in operation in Pittsburg and is capable of turning out 3,000 or more axes a day.
The following description of how an axe is made we condense from the Pittsburg Times:

Entering the main workshop the first step in the operation which is seen is the formation of the axe-head without the blade.

The glowing flat iron bars are withdrawn from the furnace and are taken to a powerful and somewhat complicated machine, which performs upon them four distinct operations—shaping the metal to form the upper and lower part of the axe, then the eye and finally doubling the piece over so that the whole can be welded together. A workman stands by, seizing the partially fashioned pieces one after another with a pair of tongs and hammering the lower edges together. Next the iron is put in a powerful natural gas furnace and heated to a white heat. Taken out, it goes under a tilt hammer and is welded together in a second. This done, one blow from the "drop" and the poll of the axe is completed and firmly welded.

Two crews of men are doing this class of work and each crew can make 1,500 axes per day.

When the axe leaves the drop there is some superfluous metal still adhering to the edges and forming what is technically known as a "fin." To get rid of this fin the axe is again heated in a furnace and then taken in hand by a sawyer, who trims the end and edges
The operative has a glass in front of him to protect his eyes from the sparks, which fly off by hundreds as the hot metal is pressed against the rapidly revolving saw. The iron part of the axe is now complete.

The steel for the blade, after being heated, is cut by machinery and shaped with a die. It is then ready for the welding department. A groove is cut in the edge of the iron, the steel for the blade inserted, and the whole firmly welded by machine hammers. Next comes the operation of tempering. The steel portion of the axe is heated by being inserted in pots of molten lead, the blade only being immersed. It is then cooled by dipping in water and goes to the inspector. An axe is subjected to rigid tests before it is pronounced perfect. The steel must be of the required temper, the weight of all axes of the same size must be uniform, all must be ground alike, and in various other ways conform to an established standard.

The inspector who tests the quality of the steel does so by hammering the blade and striking the edge to ascertain whether it is too brittle or not. An axe that breaks during the test is thrown aside to be made over.

Before the material of an axe is in the proper shape it has been heated five times, including the tempering process, and the axe when finished has passed through the hands of about forty workmen, each of whom has done something toward perfecting it. After passing inspection the axe goes to the grinding department, and from that to the polishers, who finish upon emery wheels.

On the Surface.
Skin diseases appear on the surface and are often humiliating to the sufferer from them. From two to three bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters will cure salt rheum, erysipelas, shingles, tetter, netti rash, eczema, boils, pimples, or blotches, at the same time restoring the general health.

There was a fall in oil in Gorrie recently. Mr David Sanderson was unloading all in front of his store on Tuesday last week, and a barrel containing about 45 gallons fell to the ground, bursting both ends out of the barrel and spilling the contents on the street.

DUNGANNON. From our own correspondent. Rev. A. Potter has arrived home from visiting his aged mother.

A brother of Wm. McArthur's is at present visiting him. Mr. Alex. McKay, a modelite, was home visiting his folk on Friday and Saturday.

Potato raising, threshing, and fall ploughing, are the order of the day. No apple picking this year.

Mr. William Malouff, J. P., who has been very ill, we are pleased to be able to state is becoming convalescent.

Our Main street is being nicely gravelled with a good supply of gravel. Mr. Jas. Walker is inspector of the work.

A more efficient person could not be easily had, as he will have it done in good style.

Mrs. Jas. Tremble and others of this village, who have been visiting relatives, and taking in the sights at the Industrial Exhibition, Toronto, arrived home the latter part of last week, being highly pleased with their trip.

As to weather we presume the Northwestern Exhibition at Goderich has been a week too early, as so far this week weather is delightful.

However we understand that notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather during the Exhibition it was a financial success.

Dungannon Fall Show takes place on Thursday of next week, the 3rd of October. We hope that the weather will continue to be as delightful as it is at present.

As Dunngannon, like Goderich, has been in prison years unfortunate in having unpropitious weather at show time.

The demise of Mr. Samuel Cook, an old settler in the township of Ashfield (near the village of Belfast), took place on last Friday; his remains were interred on Sunday, the 22nd inst., in Dungannon cemetery, being followed thither by a large concourse of relatives, friends and neighbors.

Mr. G. S. Woods and family have the sincere sympathy of the community. WHAT NEXT?—A young pedagogue arrived safely in our hamlet on or about last Wednesday, the 18th inst.

We welcome the young gentleman, hoping that he will be spared to teach the young idea how to shoot. We take the liberty to congratulate the joyful parents (Mr. G. S. Woods and his wife) on the happy event.

They are quite elated over the heir. Mr. G. S. Woods is the principal in our school.

NILE. From our own correspondent. The Methodists are very thankful to Mr. W. S. Clark for his kindness in giving them the use of his grove.

This is the third time they have used it. Mr. John Pentland is able to be out. His friends are pleased to see his health improved.

Mr. James Young, of Clinton, and Mr. Horace Foster, of the same town, who supplied on the Nile circuit during Rev. H. Irvine's vacation, were very highly appreciated.

Both gentlemen will be warmly welcomed by the congregations of Nile circuit whenever they can come and preach for us again.

Clinton is highly favored in having such a quartette of Methodist local preachers as Messrs. Manning, Holmes, Foster and Young.

The Methodist "Harvest Home" on Tuesday the 10th was a success. The day was beautiful, the woods shady and cool, the games and swings interesting for both old and young, the crowd orderly and happy.

There was an abundance of provisions provided by the good ladies of Nile circuit. Rev. Jas. Livingston was the only speaker, but his speech was highly enjoyed.

He and his good wife were very welcome visitors to our gathering. The total proceeds of the Harvest Home were $78.90.

This sum goes to the Parsonage Trustee Board, to assist them in paying off the balance due on our new parsonage.

LANGSIDE. Miss Christie Ross and Miss Jessie McAllister paid us a flying visit on the occasion of the Caledonian games at Lucknow.

Some of the hearts of our youths were made happy by their presence. Mr. Archie McKenzie, whom we are always glad to see, has been visiting friends here during this week.

A very enjoyable time was spent by all during his stay. Our genial merchant, Mr. B. Malouff, formerly of Lucknow, has settled down to business.

He is keeping up his reputation as a good business man, and we are pleased to welcome him to our midst. Mr. Murdoch J. McKenzie, our popular teacher, entertained visitors on Friday last, in the persons of Misses May and Maggie McKenzie, of Paramout, who gave a very flattering account of the work done by the teacher.

One of our most prominent young ladies was united in the holy bonds of matrimony a short time ago to a member of the Order of Disciples of Ohio.

DUNLOP. From our own correspondent. Garib Montgomery, formerly an old scholar of S. S. No. 6, now of Drayton, Ontario, is visiting his old schoolmate, Chas. Moore.

The school here enjoyed two days' holiday last week, the teacher attending the recent teachers' Institute held in Goderich.

The calves at the northern end have been treated to a new plank, by the township fathers, J. H. Barker being the contractor.

Quite a number of our residents took in the big world Show held in Goderich, and are all full of anecdotes of what they heard and saw, particularly the wild mustangs and the fearless riding of the cowboy in catching them.

The little folk, as well as many of their elders, are lost in deep admiration of the pretty broncho pony which has been purchased from the lot seen in the Northwestern Show in Goderich, by our townsman, A. Allen, for his son Frank.

A recent assistant deputy judge at Goderich Show gave our plough a flying visit this week and is so pleased with the show of the poultry department that he intends to start a mammoth henery which he says will excel any in Ontario.

HERCULES.—This massive, power traction engine which works the Bisset Separator in threshing this season, was in our midst last week, and its driver, Max Baechler, showed great skill in running it along the roads and backing it up into position for setting the machine for threshing.

The workmen going from one farm to another to thresh enjoyed their ride on it and the tank which draws water makes a good coach for passengers. The fair sex think the driving seat should be enlarged.

The separator is drawn by horsepower by its owner, Geo. Bisset. A. Nicholson, well known for some years on the Morrow and Eshin threshers, is on the staff. The lads are full of chat and lots of fun, and seem to think Dunlop the jolliest place they have struck during their travels this season.

LEEBOURN. From our own correspondent. Mrs. W. Bruffy, of Goderich, and Mrs. W. Reid, of Hamilton, visited relatives here last week.

Mr. R. Fulford took in the Toronto Exhibition last week, and visited friends in Hibbard township, Perth county, on his way home.

Saturday morning of last week H. Zellner had two sheep killed by dogs. Mr. Zellner is going to take measures to prevent future ravages from the canines on his sheep.

PERSONAL.—Mr. D. Fotheringham, of Tuckersmith, with his two sisters, Jane and Maggie, visited here for several days last week, and were the guests of their cousins, James and John Linklater.

TONIGHT.—The I. O. G. T., No. 213, will hold a free entertainment in their hall, and a good program will be given by its members.

Also the Rev. Mr. Hutton, pastor of Victoria St. Methodist church, Goderich, will give an address. Proceedings to start at 8 o'clock sharp.

The teacher of our school, P. Stuart, attended the meetings of the West Hill County Teachers' Institute held in Goderich last week.

Miss Jane Linfield, who teaches near Zurich, was also up at the season, and gave her friends here a flying visit before returning to resume her duties on Saturday.

Prayer meetings, which for a time have not been held, will, on Wednesday night of this week, be resumed in the school room of the church and be held afterwards weekly. Rev. J. A. Anderson will be present at them once a fortnight as formerly and will preside at this one, and during the afternoon of Wednesday make pastoral calls as before among the charge here.

The recent world's fair in Goderich saw a good turn-out from Leeboorn to see its wonders, all of whom were well pleased with what they saw and heard, and the Little Northwestern, which appeared on the show grounds as another object of interest for assembled spectators to view, returned with its mother safely home on Friday afternoon.

WOMEN AND MICE. The reason why a woman is afraid of a mouse is a profound mystery—indeed, it has never been very clearly proven that she is. But some women are constantly in such a nervous, irritable condition that the slightest thing annoys and startles them. The cause of this unfortunate state of affairs is usually some functional derangement, some distressing or painful irregularity, some derangement or peculiar weakness incident to her sex, or it may be due to inflammation, ulceration or displacement of some of the pelvic viscera, or to other organic lesions peculiar to her sex.

From whichever cause it may arise, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive remedy, so certain in its curative results that its manufacturers sell it, through druggists, under a guarantee of its giving satisfaction in every case, or money paid for it will be promptly refunded.

"Favorite Prescription" is unequalled in its value in treating such ailments as nervous excitability, irritability, exhaustion, prostration, hysteria, spasms and other distressing nervous systems commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womb. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and dependency.
