CHAPTER XX.

"Goodness knows what they're up to," returned Phillips. "Missus is as close as a nut, and Miss Leonora don't say a word to such as we. But my advice is, Hills, bud your roses as fast as you please."

"Then ain't she a-comin' at all?" cried honest Dan Hills, discomfited.

"You leave me to find out, and when I know I'll tell you."

So Phillips took her turn at investigating matters, and inquired respectfully next day of her mistress when Miss Sydney's room was to be set in order. She didn't wish to be behind with it, and it would take a whole forenoon.

"Do it when I tell you," said Mrs. Alwyn, shortly, an angry gleam at the back of her eye. And Phillips answered,

"Oh, very well, 'm," with such meekness that her mistress scented suspicion in the obedient syllable.

"On the whole, though," she said with a good assumption of second consideration, "I think the room had better be thoroughly turned out. Help Waters with it to-morrow. Then it will be ready for Miss Sydney, if she returns next week."

"And for anyone else, if she doesn't," commented Phillips, acutely, on this order. And she added, borrowing the phraseology of a game-keeping parent, that nobody was quicker at a double than her mistress, but she, Phillips, was not to be took in by no doubles, and it was her belief that Miss Sydney was gone for good.

This disquieting opinion soon spread in St. Clair's. Reaching Patty Peggs, of whom, as of all her pupils and pensioners, Sydney had dared take no leave, it furnished her with courage to go bobbing, like a cork afloat, to Mrs. Alwyn the next Sunday, with "Please, mum, ain't Miss Sydney a-comin' to learn us our singin' no more? Mother an' me du want to know bad." And old Mrs. Hills lay in wait at her door, like an anxious spider, to catch the lady from the Dale with the same question; and even Mrs. Dacie, disturbed by some echo of this report, donned her black silk, and went over to Sydney's old home, determined to come at the truth, one way or other.

But the doctor's good wife was easily disposed of.

"To an old friend like yourself, Mrs. Dacie," said Mrs. Alwyn, meeting inquiry with an overawing melancholy, "I confess that Sydney has disappointed me—oh! sadly—me and others—me grievously. She is best away till—till it has blown over. Excuse my saying more. It is too painful. And are you really stronger? And how is the kind doctor?" Et cetera, et cetera.

Mary's simple-minded mother went away, after a most affable half hour, convinced that her favorite's banishment was only the outcome of a difference on matrimonial plans, and volunteered the opinion cheerfully that "her own notion always had been that Sydney was far too good for die-away Mr. Villiers. Mr. Drayton, now, was far more worthy of her. How nice it would be if he came over again, and they two made a match of it, wouldn't it?"

This call, however, left Mrs. Alwyn deeply disturbed. One mysterious sentence, "Neither of your young ladies to be getting married, after all we'd expected," strengthened a grew-some dread which had stolen lately into her mind. Leonora coming in found her mother perturbed past explanation.

"This state of things distracts me!" the elder lady cried. "I can't keep up the face of that unfortunate child Sydney being out on a visit forever. And I will not be compelled to publish the truth. I keep staving matters off till something happens—something gets settled—for you—my poor Leonora."

"Ah!" said Leonora, "but nothing does happen."

"But it may, my dear. Oh, it must!" "It's exactly three weeks and three days since Mr. Duvesne last called, mamma."

Mrs. Alwyn stood a couple of minutes as if focused for a model of middle-aged perplexity. Her nerves were so unstrung, her patience so exhausted, that a decisive step she must take, whether right or wrong.

As it happened, she took the wrong. "Ring the bell, Leonora," she exclaimed, flushed, with rising determination, "and order the pony-carriage. Tell Phillips she must help me to dress. For—kissing her daughter—"

"I am going to Oakleigh Place." Some thirty minutes the lady devoted upstairs to a more than ordinarily careful toilet. Then she descended, her still handsome countenance going into visiting array of suave composure; her costume of rich steel satin; ostrich-tips of the same hue about her head-gear; her slightly superabundant figure toned down by a costly Spanish mantilla. With perfect gloves, a card-case of oxidized silver, her eyeglass peeping forth from her bodice, no ornament save a necklace of superb onyx beads, Mrs. Alwyn might have passed for the peeress going to patronize the picnic. Her mirror said as much, and furnished her with self-possession for the expedition. One glance she cast at Hills—the corduroyed gardener lost in the liveried groom—at the well-hung little carriage—at the glossy pony, and the neatly monogrammed harness. These passing muster irreproachably, she took her seat, shook out her silken rug, unfurled her sunshade, with hope beating high, gave the order, "To Oakleigh Place," and off to Oakleigh Place they started. Now, at that very hour, Lady Comyngham was studying a letter received the same morning from Lady Avena Massey. It was not the countess's afternoon "at home," so in the abandon of well-worn morning costume her ladyship was reposing on her own small drawing-room sofa, her daughters Margaret and Gertrude posed attentively as she read scraps of their sister's missive.

"Christenin' day so fine! Baby behaved like a little angel. The girls— Ah! that I read at breakfast. But I skipped a piece because of your papa. He's disposed to limit our visiting circle in a way that I tell him can't be done in the country. But he nearly rebelled at our omnium gathering last summer, and would joke me forever if he found I had taken people up whom now I wanted to drop. So I stopped at this bit about Mrs. Alwyn. Here it is. Listen, my dears. One singular thing happened on the christening-day. When I went up from dinner, I had to go for a peep at my boy. As a great treat I gave my maid, Lewis, leave to go to the nursery and assist in putting him into his bassinet. Imagine my vexation when I saw his beautiful robe, which Mrs. Alwyn sent him, scorching in front of the fire in the night nursery! The lace was ruined. It was Lewis's fault, it appears, and when I reproved her for her carelessness, she broke forth crying violently, and sobbed out that the lace was horrid stuff all through, and she wished it might not bring the dear baby ill-luck. Of course I insisted on this being explained, and then she told me that her father had lost all his savings through this Mrs. Alwyn's husband, and that when she had been at St. Clair's with me and seen the style of living at the Dale, she wrote in her mother's name, begging a trifle for the old couple, and got an angry letter back and the noble sum of two-and-sixpence!"

"The cold-blooded creature!" cried Lady Margaret. "Mamma, I never liked that woman! But is Avena sure it's true?"

"Well hark. I quieted Lewis, and I made an opportunity of asking old Lady Wynne about these Alwyns. It seems that years ago they lived near each other, and Mrs. Alwyn, according to Lady Wynne, was a handsome, pushing person, who forced her way into society where she was not so welcome as her husband would have been if he had cared to enter it. He was a lawyer, and immensely respected. He was rich, too, but after he married his wife gave him no opportunity of saving. And when he failed through some mining catastrophe, Mrs. Alwyn gathered all the valuables together that she could, and decamped with them, and refused to spare one penny of her handsome settlements to save her husband's unlucky creditors from any misery whatever!"

"Horrible woman!" chorused the countess's daughters.

"The Wynnes and every one at Stillcote considered her conduct most grasping, and I assure you, dearest mamma, the notion of being under an obligation to such a person is most painful to me. I felt relieved that the robe was destroyed. I shall let Lewis sell that Mechlin she gave me and pass the price on to her poor father. I need not say, pray don't let the girls get intimate at the Dale! And in future, Edward— Oh! that's all."

"And quite enough, too, mamma!"

"Yes, annoying, is it not? But it's quite impossible to enter a new neighborhood without making a blunder. We must get over this as civilly as possible, but let Mrs. Alwyn distinctly see we intend no visiting in future. Which owes a call, my dears—Mrs. Alwyn or myself?"

"You do, mamma. She came a day or two after lunching here."

"Obtrusive, very. However, we go to Scotland in August. Till then we'll take care to see nothing of her—"

The door opened and a footman appeared. "Mrs. Alwyn, my lady."

"Not at—" began the countess. But too late. The soft sweep of the visitor's skirt was on the steps. Mesdames Gertrude and Margaret vanished into an adjacent conservatory. Mrs. Alwyn sailed gracefully into the room, and Lady Comyngham lunched in elegantly from her sofa to receive this undesired guest.

With silent satisfaction Mrs. Alwyn perceived her hostess at a disadvantage. Gauging other person's feelings by her own, she attributed to her heshabbile the annoyance that swept over the countess's features and proceeded to offer apologies, which she half considered her own due. To be found not bien arrangee after luncheon struck Mrs. Alwyn almost as a sin.

"How exceedingly kind of you, dear Lady Comyngham, to admit me on one of your off-days! I felt sure you would." "Why?" the countess's suddenly stiffened finger seemed to ask. "Or, rather, I hoped you would. I so much wanted to see you."

Then Lady Comyngham smoothing her crumpled frills, replied, unsmilingly, that "Mrs. Alwyn was very kind."

"I had been thinking of leaving St. Clair's for a few weeks. The Dale is so relaxing. My daughter requires a more bracing air, but—"

"Ah!" interrupted the countess, with real interest, "one daughter is gone out, I hear." (Mrs. Alwyn flinched. What was coming?) "But not, I think, as you expected when you last spoke of her. Not as a bride?"

"No—oh, dear, no! She is merely away—bodily—on a long visit."

"Not a ruptured engagement, then, I hope," returned the countess, civilly. ("For," as she said to her daughter afterward, "that younger girl was a gentlewoman. I am not ashamed to admit that I liked her.") "I should be sorry to hear of any disappointment to Miss Alwyn. She seemed so radiant when we last met."

File of Bodies

Found Huddled Together in Ruins of St. Louis Building — Seven Dead Taken Out Yesterday and Twenty-Seven Given up by Their Friends.

St. Louis, Mo., March 30.—The real extent of the calamity caused by the fire which destroyed the Missouri Athletic Club building yesterday, it is believed, will begin to unfold itself to-day, when firemen enter the ruins in search of the score or more of bodies thought to be buried there.

Four powerful searchlights which were played on the tangled mass of iron, brick and charred wood early to-day, revealed what appeared to be a pile of bodies huddled together near the front wall of the building. Because of the perilous condition of the last remaining wall, firemen were unable to recover the bodies.

It is expected, however, the ruins will have cooled sufficiently during the day to permit the rescue to be undertaken. What appeared to be a human body also was seen wedged between the fire escape and the last remaining wall just below a seven story window.

Seven dead were taken from the building yesterday and twenty-seven others who are known to have been in the building at the time of the fire have been given up as dead by their friends, who escaped. It is possible that beyond this number there were several persons in the club-house not registered.

The total number of persons who were in the club-house when the fire alarm was given and who escaped with more or less serious injuries, reached fifty-five. The men had been driven into the street in their night clothes and in many instances were compelled to jump from fifth, sixth and seventh story windows to save their lives.

Many of those who escaped, becoming dazed or hysterical through the experience, wandered about the city all day before reporting to the Board of Identification which had been established at the Press Club of St. Louis. This party was responsible for the excess number of dead given to the early estimates of the loss of life. Five of the seven bodies recovered have been identified.

Tit For Tat.

The Chicago Bachelor Girl's Club, which has sixty members has laid down rules for candidates for matrimony. Any man expecting to take one of the number must answer the following questions, among others:

1. Have you had habits, such as smoking and drinking to excess?
2. Will you treat your mother-in-law as you would your own mother?
3. Will you start the fire in the morning and carry out the ashes?
4. Do you intend to attain more prominence each year?
5. Do you attend church regularly and how much do you put in the collection box?
6. Will you promise to kiss your wife goodbye every morning, not as an act of duty, but as one of the rarest pleasures of life?
7. Will you promise to be cheerful at home and not kick on your wife's cooking?
8. Do you promise to spend your evenings at home?
9. Will you promise to obey the Ten Commandments?

This is a very commendable list of questions, and it is hoped that the girls are attractive enough to make the fellows want to give satisfactory answers. But why not put over against these questions for the girls to answer? That would be fair. And how would questions like these do?

1. Have you bad habits such as scolding and gossiping to excess?
2. Will you be kind to the fellows who are occasionally brought home?
3. Will you keep the house neat and clean?
4. Do you intend to make yourself more attractive each year?
5. Do you attend church, and how much do you go to study styles?
6. Will you make yourself so agreeable that your husband will feel that he has missed it when he cannot kiss you each day?
7. Will you promise to spend some of your time at home, and to learn to cook as well as you can play bridge?
8. Will you go out once in a while when a man wants to and be glad that your husband has other friends?
9. Will you keep the Two Great Commandments.

The men in this world were made to match the women. Indeed the men have largely been shaped by the women. If now and then some good women gets a poor stick of a man, the majority of men are so good as the women will allow them to be. This being good is a two-sided matter. There is something if either husband or wife really has contagious about the real thing. And if the other does not altogether escape.

The 'Leader' Grafonola!

The "Leader" is a veritable triumph of the "Columbia" Company's. It is a beautiful instrument and possesses all the charm of the Grafonola at its very best. It has full, rich, mellow tones that can be subdued at will, so as to make it suitable for a small room, or again can be made to produce a magnificent volume of sound that just as easily fills a large hall. The "Leader"—which well merits its name—forms a handsome addition to any drawing-room. Come and hear some grand opera records on it.

Price: $100.

Inverted Pride.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Was there ever a human being who was completely free from pride? I doubt it. If you find someone who isn't proud of the things people usually take pride in, he is probably proud of the opposite. And this inverted pride is often more intense than the ordinary variety.

A friend of mine has no patience whatever with the people who are always boasting about their aristocratic ancestors. "I frankly acknowledge that my ancestors were men of the soil," she likes to say. "There wasn't an aristocrat among them."

I believe it was Plato to whom Digenes boasted that he was absolutely free from any kind of pride. "No," answered Plato, "you're proud of your own humility."

We all seem to need to believe ourselves superior in some direction. Pride of one sort or another is as necessary to our self respect as air to our lungs. Let it, then, be of the right sort. Your conduct is influenced by your pride. Be careful what you are proud of; be sure it's something worth being proud of, and not a mere rebound from something unworthy to something else equally unworthy.

Incidentally who is proving just what she denies, namely, that wealth is of great consequence to her. If it were not, why should she set apart these people from the rest of her acquaintances by her manner of treating them. If wealth did not really matter to her she would respect or accept them on their own merit just as she does her other friends.

Another form of inverted pride is that of the person who hates flattery and rushes to the opposite extreme of unnecessary and often offensive frankness. I know a man of this sort who goes about making rude and uncalculated comments on his friends' appearance, clothes, conduct, etc. Needless to say, he is as proud of his rudeness as any flatterer ever could be of his diplomacy. When he says "I never flatter," pride sticks out all over him.

I know she thinks she is splendidly free from pride on the subject of ancestry. But she isn't. For she boasts of her plebeian origin just as frequently and with just as much pride as her aristocratic neighbors, and rather more aggressive than they. Again, I know a woman who looks scornfully down upon the kind of pride that exalts in wealthy friends. Toadying is to her one of the seven deadly sins. She would scorn to make friends with anyone because he was wealthy; and so she goes to the opposite extreme and is actually rude, and disagreeable when she is brought into contact with any person of wealth.

And of course she is as proud as Punch of her rudeness.

Ruth Cameron

Household Notes

A tea-leaf pillow is something new, having a restful, pleasant odor. It can be made out of tea leaves dried.

Dandelions are so important as an article of diet in the spring as to be well worth cultivating in one's garden. Don't overcrowd your house plants; two or three vigorous, healthy plants are better than a dozen puny ones.

It is said that the cooking utensils of a French chef are largely responsible for the delicious viands he produces. A paper ice blanket folded over the outer edge and top of the ice in the refrigerator will save the ice man's bill.

Write the children's little household duties on a slate in the kitchen, and so fast as each is done it can be crossed off.

Baking-powder biscuits can be spread with mayonnaise seasoned with chopped mint, and will make delicious sandwiches.

A Turkish stew is made of purslane and rice, boiled together and then seasoned with browned onions, pepper and salt.

An excellent thing for cleaning wallpaper is bran filled into cheese-cloth bags; also, it is better than soap for the bathtub.

The fine inner leaves of dandelions chopped fine and seasoned and moistened with mayonnaise make excellent spring sandwiches.

Never throw away the skins of oranges. The grated yellow rind is a good flavoring for cakes, etc., and is cheaper than extracts.

If your washbowl springs a leak on washday, stop the hole temporarily with a piece of bread rolled into a ball and pressed over the leak.

Mint and thyme are in season in May. Mint nowadays is used in ices, confections, sandwiches and salads, as well as in dressings for meats.

Radiator brushes are to be had nowadays; and very handy, indeed, they are, being constructed so that they will get between the coils.

When housecleaning time comes, it will aid greatly in cleaning the painted walls if they are gone over with thin uncooked starched water. Mock cauliflower can be made of half head of cabbage and half a bunch of celery chopped together and boiled thirty minutes. Add milk, salt, pepper and butter.

Tarnished gold lace can be restored by dipping into a weak solution of ammonia.

$30 In Cash.

1. $10 will be forwarded to the person sending us the largest number of words obtained from the words "Stafford's Liniment."
2. $10 for the largest number obtained from the words "Stafford's Prescription A."
3. $10 for the largest number obtained from the words "Stafford's Phorotone Cough Cure."

You will have a chance to win the $30 if you follow out the conditions below.

Conditions—All answers must be accompanied by either of the following:—
1. The outside green wrapper obtained from a bottle of Stafford's Liniment.
2. The words "Trial size" cut from the yellow cardboard box of Stafford's Prescription "A."
3. The word Phorotone from the white cardboard box of Stafford's Phorotone Cough Cure.

Either of these three things will do, so as to make your guess a bone fide one.

If you are not able to obtain either of these three preparations in your district, you can forward us (together with your answer) one of the following amounts:—
20 cents for Stafford's Liniment.
30 cents for Stafford's Prescription "A."
30 cents for Stafford's Phorotone Cough Cure.

If you want to try to win the 3 prizes you must purchase the 3 preparations.

On receipt of same we will forward the preparations you require by parcel post and your answer will be kept until the 30th day of July (1914) when we will publish the names of the winners.

In the event of two or more persons sending in the same number of words (and those being the highest ones) the one that we receive the first will win the prize.

The names of the Judges of this competition will be published at the same time as we publish the names of the winners.

Address all communications to DR. F. STAFFORD & SON, St. John's, Nfld., April 21, 11.

Heinie Zim.

Red McGhee says: You've got another name. I know, but it's too doggone long to go spelled out in my box score. You're always Heinie Zim to me 'an' you'll be that in history, so I ain't no use to read. Your name don't matter much at all. The way you held 'n' swing, a hot-out 'n' run around the sock's has made you stand in cold concrete. The way the fans how at yer feet yer knees 'd scrape their backs.

An' Heinie, you've got some physics; I looked that there word up this week; built like a touring car, a big wheel base—there's nothin' wrong, you'll do the way you are. An' up above those body parts you've got a top—a dome of parts, inside as well as out. Besides a garden.

Ponderous Personages

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Swish."
Walter Johnson is the second great man of that name to win fame in Washington—the capital of our country. There was once a president of that name who was very prominent at that time. But nowadays, when you speak of Johnson in Washington your auditor brightens up and says, "Wonderful boy, isn't he? Have you ever seen 'him pitch'?"

If Walter Johnson had gone to college and smothered with politics, he might have become president, and would have been forgotten by Washington after four brief years. But instead, he pitched hay until he had acquired a pair of wrists like automobile axles, and then began pitching baseballs. Long after he has retired from Washington, and has gone back to the bosom of his people, citizens of the capital will yawn in the midst of an inauguration or an administration ball and ask, "By the way, did you ever see Johnson pitch?"

Johnson is a very young man, and if he were in business, would only be considered old enough to take a message from the head of the firm to the chief bookkeeper occasionally. But as a pitcher he is Czar, Sultan, Emperor and High card. He pitched Washington from the bottom of the league to second place in three years, which is like pitching a freight locomotive into the fourteenth story of a skyscraper. So now he draws a large salary and when he walks around the streets moving picture men sneak up behind him and preserve front and rear elevations in action for future generations.

Johnson is husky and light haired. He did not learn baseball, but arrived completely equipped like a new model automobile. No doubt he could use brains in his work as Mathewson does, but at present, he is employing the well-known means and tricks which have given such good satisfaction in the past. He has a way of throwing a ball which reminds one of a quick-firing rifle shooting at a mark.

After he has streaked a few score curves across the plate the atmosphere in that ball park is all scared up and overheated, and there are burned out, hollow places in it which have not yet been filled up with new air.

Johnson lives out in Kansas and got his curves by studying the action of the common, or ring-tailed Kansas tornado.

Where Responsibility Lies.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. An order is received at the Office, its history is recorded at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands in the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is moderately and dependably equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICKE CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this equipment can surely be of use to you. Mr. Percie Johnson represents this world known firm in Newfoundland—April 11.

A Canada Life Endowment.

New Glasgow, N.S., February 26th, 1914.
J. I. FLICK, ESQ., District Manager, Canada Life Assurance Co., New Glasgow, N.S.

Dear Sir:—
I wish to state that I am well satisfied with the results which your Company have given me in connection with my Endowment Policy No. 47,776, which matures on the 17th of March. I find that the returns give me over $424.00 more than I have paid in premiums, in addition to the protection that I have had during the Policy term. I consider this all the more satisfactory taking into account the fact that the dividends were applied as a Bonus every five years. I, therefore, received a return beyond Bank interest, in addition to the protection.

Yours very truly,
JOSEPH STEWART.

A Break With the Manager

Marian was divided between a decision to venture on to New York with the fifty dollars her brother had sent, or to stay on with the hope that Ragtgenhauer would give her an engagement with the stock company. Much as she disliked and distrusted the man, she was aware of the fact that one mustn't expect theatrical managers in all cases to be gentlemen, and wound up with the decision to remain and hope for the best. The next time she called on him, he again manifested affectionate tendencies. "Please omit the stush," she ordered sharply, determined to head him off. "I'm just crazy about you," he protested. "I'm going to steal you one of these days."

"Oh no, you're not," she answered wittingly. "You're either going to confine your conversation to business matters, or you'll see no more of me."

"Why so peevish?" he grinned blandly.

"Call it what you like," she retorted spiritedly. "If there's anything I hate and despise, it's a snivelling male. Good day."

"I'll steal you yet," he asserted, as she turned and departed. As the elevator took her down, she added under her breath: "A lot of use in trying to use tact with a thing like that! I wouldn't work for him if he got down into the dirt and begged me to."

She wandered forth without objective point and soon found herself traversing that semi-bohemian region which nearly every city of several hundred thousand has, a sort of diluted Rialto, with its second-class hotels, its side streets of rooming houses where transients dwell, its pawnshops where the financially embarrassed may exchange a cherished belonging for a few groats.

Once she was half minded to enter the apartment of a clairvoyant, whose sign hung in a sombre window. But she checked herself, deeming her funds too low to pay for the numbed incantations of a seeress, much as she would have liked to tempt fortune and peer into the future.

Presently her roving glances encountered a sign that riveted her attention: "Eclipse Vaudeville Circuit-Booking Office." The sign was tucked away in one corner of a ground floor window of an indifferent looking hotel.

It occurred to Marian that here she might find the "open sesame" she sought into the realm of a career. True, she did not like the looks of the place nor of the neighborhood, and hesitated to enter. But from where she stood, she saw a number of perfectly respectable-looking people enter and leave the hotel, and she decided to risk it.

"Confine your conversation to business," said Marian sharply.

Entering, she saw at the end of one of the corridors the sign of the looking office, and started toward it. The spirit of adventure, of quest into the city's odd nooks and corners, descended upon her. She reflected that diamond-hunters sought rough gems in dark places. Might not she, she reasoned by analogy, perhaps unearth the beginning of a real career, though in humble and unideal fashion, at the end of this musty corridor of a dingy hotel?

M. I. A. Swimming Club.

The 1st annual meeting of this popular Club was held at the Institute rooms last evening. A goodly number were present and this together with Rev. W. H. Thomas in the chair, resulted in it being a most enthusiastic meeting. The following were elected to office for the coming year:—

President—His Lordship the Bishop of Newfoundland.
Vice-Presidents—Mr. E. R. Watson, Rev. W. H. Thomas, Capt. Whiteley and Mr. H. R. Brookes.
Captain—Mr. Charles Brookes.
Vice-Captain—Mr. Charles Parsons.
Secretary-Treas.—Mr. A. Stanley Harvey.
Working Committee—Messrs. C. Cross, B. Noseworthy, D. Kerr and W. Eaton.

The financial side of the club's affairs were found to be in a most promising condition, and it is hoped that with a little help a swimming or bathing house will be erected at Long Pond during the summer months. An affiliation with a good Canadian Swimming Club is being considered as is also a Juvenile Class to be in connection with the club. The captain of last year and of this year, Mr. Charles Brookes, who has done much not only in promoting the club but also for the successful manner in which he brought the club to its present standard, should have the thanks of all. Twenty young men have been instructed in the art of swimming during the past year and during the coming year Mr. L. Hartley who is an expert in "Life Saving" will instruct members also. This club deserves the full support of the community.

POOR FISHING.—Bad weather and scarcity of bait are responsible for the poor fishing done on the S.W. Coast within the past week or so.

C. C. C. Competitioe.

The Section Competition for the Shield took place at the C.C.C. Assembly last night, and was attended by a large gathering of friends and supporters of the brigade, including several of the clergy and the Christian Brothers. Major Davenport, A.D.C., judged the competition which resulted as follows:—

No. 3 Co. (College Co.)—1st.
No. 5 Co. (Holy Cross)—2nd.
No. 4 Co. (St. Patrick's Hall)—3rd.
No. 1 Co.—4th.
No. 2 Co.—5th.

After the result was announced cheers were given for Major Davenport and the winning section; the Battalion band played the National Anthem after which the Corps was dismissed. This is the first year the College Co. has been first in the competition, and a large measure of their success may be attributed to Sergeant X. Duchemin who was in charge of that section.

The Home of FASHIONABLE REFINEMENT!

The business which has successfully catered to the wants of men of style and good taste for three years past has been moved to more extensive quarters and will be opened to-morrow (Saturday), May 2nd, in the store at

312 Water St.,

NEXT TO MR. P. J. SHEA'S.

We had to move to a larger building to accommodate the legitimate and natural expansion of the business. It would be unfair to our patrons and ourselves to remain in quarters that were cramping us more and more every day. We have spared no expense in fitting up our new location, which is a fitting abiding place for the home style and correct taste.

As usual our stock will appeal to men of refined taste in garbing, and we will show nothing shoddy, nothing off style. We need not enumerate our lines, they include everything for men's and boys' wear. Old patrons and new friends will be welcomed to our opening to-morrow.

TALISMAN HERE.—The S.S. Talisman, Cap. Berg, arrived in port yesterday afternoon after a run of 75 hours from Halifax, and brought a full general cargo. She sails again to-morrow for New York, having now completed her service on this route.

THE UNIVERSAL AGENCIES.—Messrs. P. E. Outerbridge and R. Jean, both of whom have been conducting a commission and agency business, have formed a partnership which will be known as the Universal Agencies. Both young men are well known in the city, and we feel safe in predicting a full measure of success for the new combine.

THE MUSTY PAST.

Thirteen Days and Nights On the Icefloe.

(By H. F. SHORTIS.)

At different periods, the seal fishery has been noted for the great loss of life and property, but the terrible loss that occurred during the present year has been by far the greatest in the annals of our country. During this year of 1914, two hundred and fifty-one of our fellow-countrymen have been taken from amongst us, 78 from the crew of the steamship Newfoundland and 173 by the loss of the steamship Southern Cross, which was last spoken to near Cape Pine by the s.s. Perth, Capt. Connors, and the particulars of the sad event will probably never be known.

As far back as 1857, six men were taken from the crew of the s.s. Harrist, Capt. Parsons, of Grates Grace. She struck on Grates Rock, and the body of one of the crew, Patrick Murphy, was recovered some six or seven weeks afterwards by some fishermen, who were overhauling their cod-seines. In the bottles 17 men were lost at Greensound from the brig Princess, Captain Pat Nagle, and two of the crew, a woman and another, saved their lives by going up the jib stay hand over hand to the foremast head, and clinging there for hours, until rescued by the people from the shore. Skipper David Power and his two sons, of Harbor Grace, were the only ones who lost their lives. The Princess was built on Belleisle, I think by the Kents, who also built many other vessels at Belleisle, in those days, notably the Belleisle, Bellinda and Beccaloon. Capt. Pat Nagle was a foreign-going captain also, and always bore the name of a thorough seaman. The Margaret was also lost in Conception Bay with 27 of her crew. There was also another disaster in the forties, which I think has escaped the memory of our historians. I refer to the running down of a boat and crew by the schooner Mary, Capt. Brausfield, of Carbonear, while at the seal fishery. He was in search of the boat and crew, and there being a great blizzard on at the time, the schooner struck the boat, smashed her, and the crew found watery graves. Ever afterwards, to this day, when any of the old-timers refer to this schooner, Mary, they always title her the "Murdering Moll." In the sixties the brig, Elfrida, Capt. Jeffers, struck on the Old Sow Rock, near Bristol's Hope, and seven of her crew were drowned. In 1872, the brig, Hantsman was lost with 44 of the crew, including Capt. Robert Dawe and his son, 17 were saved. In 1898 we had the greatest disaster up to that date, known as the Greenland disaster, when 48 of the steamship's crew lost their lives. There are other disasters which occurred at different periods, but the lack of space prevents me from referring to them.

In the year 1857, there all but occurred another terrible disaster. As it was, three men lost their lives. In that year the brig, Norman, Captain Patrick Lynch, was returning from the seal fishery with nearly 4,000 seals and when about nine miles off, Bay Bulls, thirteen of the crew conceived the idea, and carried it into execution, of walking to St. John's, the ship being firmly caught in the ice. Information reached the ears of Captain Lynch as to what a portion of his crew intended to do, and he called them all aft, pointed out the danger to them—told them they were very comfortable where they were, to have patience and that the vessel would soon get clear. He pleaded, and apparently has many years of happiness and well-deserved comfort before him, in the evening of his days.

I understand that there is also another man, one of the crew of the Norman, who is living in Holyrood; but this may not be, as there were only two boys on board the Norman upon that eventful voyage, and Pilot Hagerty was one of them. If the Holyrood man is still alive, he must indeed be a very old man. His name is Brian.

Amongst the crew was a man named Griffin, who, at one time, was master of a vessel himself. This individual possessed an oily tongue and considerable power of persuasion, in fact, a regular sea lawyer. He accused the crew of cowardice, and said he was not afraid to go, if they were men enough to join him. The mention of the word "cowardice" was sufficient to stir their proud spirit, and about midnight, the thirteen of them left the ship to enter upon their hazardous undertaking. When they arrived near the land between Bay Bulls and Petty Harbor, they found that the ice was about half a mile from the shore, so they walked towards Cape Spear, only to find the same condition of affairs. They were well provided with food, at least, for a limited time, but they did not count upon such difficulties and hardships as they had to undergo. For thirteen days and thirteen nights they were on the ice, miles from land, exposed to all the cold and storm which are generally to be contended with during the month of April. When some days out, a man named Healy, of Maddox Cove, Petty Harbor, succumbed and died. He was reckoned to be the strongest man amongst the crew—a man of powerful physique and six feet tall. Two others also gave up and died. The remaining ten men did everything to keep themselves alive, and when all hopes were abandoned a vessel from Conception Bay, bound to St. John's to land her seals, hove in sight. They made signals, and she bore down and rescued them. I think the master of the vessel was named Bussey. However, they arrived in St. John's all right. Some of them were terribly frost-bitten, more especially a man named McAuliffe, who lived on the Southside near Job's Bridge. One of the survivors, named Phil Grace, of Torbay, or neighborhood, walked ashore from the ship as lively as the day he went on board the Norman, and proceeded to walk to his home, a distance of nine or ten miles.

Capt. Lynch was in great anxiety over his men, when he found out that they had gone on their fool-hardy expedition, but his second-hand, Capt. French, and the master watches endeavored to console him with their belief that they had landed all right, and, at last, he thought so himself. As the Norman was nearing St. John's, a vessel was sailing quite near them bound to Conception Bay, after having discharged her seals at that port, and Capt. Lynch hailed them, and asked the captain of the schooner, "What was the news in St. John's?" "Bad news," replied the skipper. "Three of Capt. Lynch's crew was brought in dead, and the others more or less frost-bitten." Capt. Lynch received an awful shock and became prostrated with grief. Of course the master of the schooner, being a stranger, did not know to whom he was speaking, or he would have been more careful in his reply. Everything possible was done for the survivors and although some of them were crippled for life, others recovered quickly, and I understand prosecuted the fishery for many years afterwards.

Of all the fifty men who composed the crew of the Norman upon that eventful and memorable occasion, there is only one alive to-day in St. John's, as far as I can ascertain, and he is the venerable Pilot Hagerty, who for so many years has brought His Majesty's ships of war so successfully in and out of nearly every bay and harbour along our coast and whose valuable services were rewarded last year by the Admiralty presenting him with a silver cup, beautifully engraved, and a handsome monetary consideration for the care, attention, knowledge and ability displayed by him in carrying out his duties as pilot of our warships on the coast of Newfoundland. Our venerable friend is still hale and hearty, and apparently has many years of happiness and well-deserved comfort before him, in the evening of his days.

THE GREATER QUESTION.

At this season of the year for Farmers with up-to-date ideas is, what are the best means to use to get the best returns from the land.

Fertilizers must be used liberally if large returns are looked for. There are several good chemical fertilizers which may be recommended, but Sulphate of Ammonia has been proved to give the best returns, and is the most valuable and economical source of Nitrogen for agricultural purposes.

For vegetables, grass, and all leafy crops, about one and a half cwt. per acre is the best quantity to use, and this should be applied when the plant is making its growth, as well as before sowing the seed.

If a liquid manure is preferred, a 1/2 oz. of Sulphate to one gallon of water should be used, and applied once a week for a month. This quantity should not be exceeded.

It is a good plan to reduce the Sulphate to a fine powder, and mix with four or more times its own bulk, for the purpose of diluting the manure, which is very powerful.

For potatoes the following mixture is strongly recommended:—

- 40 lbs. Superphosphate.
- 25 lbs. Fine bone meal.
- 10 lbs. Carbonate of Magnesia.
- 15 lbs. Sulphate of Potash.
- 21 lbs. SULPHATE OF AMMONIA.

1 cwt. Apply at the rate of 10 to 11 lbs. to 43 square yards.

The use of Carbonate of Magnesia, in conjunction with Sulphate of Ammonia, is of great importance in potato culture.

For turnips use the following:—

- 66 lbs. Superphosphate.
- 13 lbs. Fine bone meal.
- 13 lbs. Sulphate of Potash.
- 20 lbs. Sulphate of Ammonia.

1 cwt. Apply at the rate of 10 to 11 lbs. to square yards.

Sulphate of Ammonia of excellent quality is now made by the St. John's Gas Light Company, and may be obtained on very reasonable terms.

Full particulars may be obtained at the Gas Works, or at the Board of Trade Building. Ask for special booklet on the use of Sulphates, it will be found of great value in securing the heaviest crops.

Bleak Days.

The clouds are gray and grim to-day, the winds are sadly sighing; it seems like fall, and over all a sheet of gloom is lying. The dreary rain beats on the pane, and sounds a note of sorrow; but what's the odds? The genial gods will bring us joy to-morrow. We have the nurse, the doctor humps himself around to cure it; we're on the blink and often think we simply can't endure it; to all who list we groan, I wist, and tell a hard luck story; but why be vexed? Week after next we'll all be bleaker. The neighbor folks are tire some blokes, they hore us and annoy us; with such folks near it's an'ny clear that that one can be joyous; things would improve if they would move—we really do not need them; but let's be gay! They'll move away, and worse ones will succeed them. The world seems sad, sometimes, my lad, and life is a disaster; but do not roar; for every sore to-morrow brings a plaster. The fool he kicks against the pricks, all optimism scorning; the wise man goes his way—he knows joy cometh in the morning.

Feature Pictures at the Crescent.

At the Crescent Picture Palace, to-day and Saturday, a very fascinating two-reel feature "The Thumb Print" will be the leader and "The Shop Girls' Big Day" is a frontier drama that is also of exceptional interest. For a good laugh see the comedy, "Almost an Actress." Mr. Sydney Ershaw, the vocalist, who scored such a marked success in his rendition, "If I'm as good as my Old Dad," will render the newest novelty song, "Kiss me Good-Night." A special matinee to-morrow afternoon for ladies and children. On next Monday and Tuesday, the great 3-reel photo play "Brave Lady Babby" will be shown. This is an extremely good story of America and Americans whilst a Crown Colony. The actors include some of the leading artists in the motion picture world. The leading lady is Barbara Tennant. The opening programme next week will be a record one.

Failure of N. S. Loan.

London, April 25.—Referring to Nova Scotia's ill-success in only 15 per cent of her loan going to the public, the Daily Mail's financial editor says that there is no doubt that the heavy guarantee granted by some Canadian Provinces to railway bond issues tend at the present time to appreciate the market for securities of the Province as a whole.

Generous Giving.

The generosity of our own people and of our friends abroad is already coming up to the full expectation of those who were appointed to take charge of the Relief Funds, and it bids fair to exceed the expectation. This morning Mr. Watson officially acknowledges some $125,000. The large increase over the amount acknowledged yesterday is due to the receipt of $25,540.83; from London of £5,000 sterling and $2,207.53 from the Halifax Herald Fund. There is still to come in the $25,000 which Premier Borden announced in the Dominion House of Commons a few days ago. This with other sums which have been and are collected in Newfoundland, the British Isles and the States, and which have not yet been transmitted to the Treasurer will probably place at the disposal of the Trustees some $200,000. It is pleasing to note that the employees of the Steel Company at Sydney have contributed about $3,000. Of course there will be plenty to do with the money.

St. John's, May 1st, 1914.

Salaried People and Their Savings

As a rule the smaller the amount to be invested the more anxious is the owner to obtain a high rate of income, and the greater is the risk he willingly assumes. This willingness to assume risks in order to "get rich quick" makes many salaried people easy prey for the selling of worthless stocks. With the advent of the Partial Payment Plan, however, a decided improvement has set in.

This plan discourages speculation by enabling salaried men and women to buy the highest class of investment securities on such easy terms as $10 down and $10 a month for each $100 par value purchased.

We would appreciate an opportunity of sending our explanatory booklet and of suggesting suitable securities to select on this plan. Address our Halifax office, please.

SO SAID THE NEWSPAPERS OF MME. EVELYN SCOTNEY OF THE BOSTON OPERA CO.

When critical Halifax audiences pack the Halifax Academy of Music for three nights in succession at two dollar prices, there must certainly be a good attraction inside. The "Acadian Recorder" of May 29th, 1913, published the following review:—

"The Boston Opera Stars closed their engagement last night in a blaze of glory; they had an immense audience, with almost every seat in the Academy of Music occupied, and the applause was warm and hearty at all times. Not only were the audience enthusiastic, but the performers showed their appreciation of the interest displayed by responding to encores, giving taking and pretty ballads. The number of the evening was the mad scene from Lucia by Mme. Scotney."

JOHN B. AYRE
NEWS BY CABLE.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, To-day. There is a lull in the Home Rule controversy, pending the resumption of conversations between political leaders with a view to overcoming the Ulster difficulties. It is generally admitted that Redmond and Carson will be present at all such conversations. Great difficulties still surround the desired settlement by mutual consent, the greatest being to get Redmond and Carson on common ground. Liberals are also fearing the possible loss of Nationalist support in Parliament. For this reason many Ministerialists favor the Bill passing the Commons unamended, deferring until it is before the Lords, any suggestions which will ultimately be embodied in the new amending of the Bill. The Times alleges that the Nationalist members are also averse to concessions being made, owing to the hostility of their Irish constituents. Judging from the tone of the Irish press yesterday all parties in Ireland were averse to any compromise: Ulster Unionists demanding as a minimum the exclusion of the whole Province from the Bill without provision for subsequent inclusion in a federal scheme, declaring that the latter is desired neither by Britain nor Ireland. Nationalist members declare they won't admit even the temporary exclusion to Ulster under any circumstances. No fresh important developments are expected until after next week, which the Commons will occupy with discussions of finance, including the Budget. One result of the lessened political tension in Ireland is that the Government decided at a Cabinet meeting yesterday to rescind the decision of a previous meeting to prosecute the Ulster gun-runners according to the Morning Post.

REACHED LIVERPOOL.—The S.S. Swansea Trader arrived at Liverpool on Wednesday after a passage of 14 days. The ship had to take a southerly course to avoid the ice, and thus covered over 600 miles more than the usual run.

A message received from the Bruce this morning states that the ship was a half mile off Low Point and that the ice was closely packed. The ship is making very little progress and will have to wait a change of wind, which is now W.N.W., and accompanied by snow squalls. The Lintrose was about 3 miles off Cranberry Head at 8 a.m. to-day and reports similar ice and weather conditions. The ship is making no progress, and if present conditions continue will not reach North Sydney to-day.

Wanderers Meet.

The Wanderers Baseball team held an enthusiastic meeting last night. The committee reported that a suitable practice ground had been secured, and the team will begin work as soon as weather conditions permit.

Mr. J. W. Wallace was appointed to act as manager during the absence of Mr. T. Hartnett, and his place as League delegate will be filled by J. P. Pritchard. One of the supporters of the team offered to supply stationery for the use of the club, and another six bats which offers were greatly appreciated.

Mr. Barrett Lectures.

Mr. Jacob Barrett, one of the rescue party of the Bellaventure in the recent sealing disaster lectured to the members and friends of Wesley Bible Class last night. Mr. Barrett was one of the first to reach the Newfoundland survivors, and told a pathetic story of their struggles with the elements. He described in detail the discovery of the bodies and the manner in which the survivors were cared for. Mr. Barrett was an assistant Master Watch at the icefields during the recent voyage.

At the close a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the lecturer, and the meeting closed with the National Anthem. During the evening a clarionet solo was given by Mr. C. Garland, and was greatly appreciated.

S. S. Philip and James.

ADDISON born 1672. The well known writer who by his famous essays, first in the "Tatler" and afterwards in the "Spectator," made an undying name.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT born 1850. Brother to Edward VII., and uncle of George V.

DAVID LIVINGSTONE died 1873, aged 60. The well-known missionary was brought from Africa and was buried in Westminster Abbey.

DUKE OF WELLINGTON born 1769. Britain's most famous General was born in Ireland. He entered the Army at 18. His crowning victory was Waterloo in 1815, which brought an end to the Napoleonic wars.

Justice discards party, friendship, kindred, and is always therefore represented as blind.

Rossley Gives Big Benefit.

On Friday, May 8th, Jack Rossley will give a monster Benefit performance for the Sealing Disaster Fund; the Levene Stock Company now engaged at the Rossley Theatre, has kindly offered their services free, which is more than good of those people. Our friends Orth and Burkhardt, also, and not for the first time either. The clever pantomime pupils of Mrs. Rossley will be seen in new songs, dances and warabobe; everybody will delight in seeing our own city children again. Jack Rossley and his capable wife and daughter Bounie, will once again come before the people of St. John's whom they have pleased for over three years; and when Tommy Levene, Patik Martin and Jack Rossley all get together on the stage, well, enough said.

The College Widow Best of Them All.

There was another big house at Rossley's last night, when the farce comedy "The College Widow" was presented, and everybody says that it is the best of all the comedies. It was one long laugh. The funny situations had the audience in roars. Then there was a dancing specialty between Tommy Levene and Felix Martin, which brought down the house. The pictures are very good indeed. On Friday, May 8, there will be a grand benefit performance for the Sealing Disaster Fund, when one of the biggest shows ever given for a benefit with many novelties and surprises. It will be one long continuous performance. Don't miss it, as the money taken in will be devoted to assisting the widows and orphans of the poor fellows who lost their lives at the ice.

Lectured at S. S. A. Rooms Last Night.

Mr. J. I. Slattery delivered a lecture on "Home Rule, and Why," at the Star Rooms last night, before a large and appreciative audience. The lecture was an eloquent and masterly one, and the speaker showed himself thoroughly conversant with the Home Rule question. At the close a vote of thanks proposed by Mr. Holden and seconded by Mr. Cahill, was heartily accorded. The chair was occupied by Mr. J. J. Lacey, who in a few well chosen words tendered the vote of thanks to the lecturer for his interesting and instructive discourse.

Scott Film Worth While

Casino Theatre Exhibits an Educational Subject that is Well Worth Seeing.

It is no exaggeration to say that the moving picture film, entitled "The Undying Story of Capt. Scott," is really remarkable in its way, and its presentation at the Casino Theatre this week has proved an entire success.

The studies of animal life in the Arctic region are clearly in a class to themselves. We have never seen such a complete view of the seals, penguins, and killer-whales as is shown in this film, while the photography is perfect. The surroundings are especially fine, and Photographer Ponting, who accompanied the actual Expedition, shows great taste in the selection of points of interest—such as the ice-bergs, the fields of ice, the Camp at Mount Erebus, etc.

Anyone who has read the graphic story of this ill-fated Expedition, as related by Capt. Scott in his journals, should not fail to see the photographic production which is a fitting accompaniment. The films are divided into several parts, and are shown twice each night, while the admission, twenty cents, is comparatively low for such a topical feature.

Commission on General Hospital.

The Government has resolved on the appointment of a Commission on the General Hospital. The Commission will have full scope to enquire into everything which concerns that institution. For some time past, there has been considerable friction among the staff. The Commissioners in all probability will be Hon. J. A. Robinson, Hon. M. P. Gibbs and Mr. W. F. Lloyd. In the case of the latter the Government are following the precedent established by Sir Robert Bond, in his appointment of Mr. A. B. Morine, a member of a similar Commission.

Here and There.

NEPTUNE'S TURNOUT.—The s.s. Neptune finished landing her seals last night. Her cargo was 8,111 young harps, 499 bedlamers, 744 old harps, total, 10,354; net value $22,219.81; gross weight, 259 tons, 4 cwt., 23 lbs., net weight, 247 tons, 15 cwt., 2 qrs., 27 lbs. Her crew of 200 men shared $36.84 each.

STOWAWAYS BEFORE COURT.—The lads who stowed away on the Floriel, as referred to in another column, were arraigned before Judge Knight to-day, and pleaded guilty to what they had done. His Honor imposed a fine of $10 or 4 weeks' imprisonment. Lidstone was also charged with breaking a pane of glass in the prison cell, and was fined $2 or 7 days' additional.

Benefit Entertainment and Operetta by the pupils of St. Patrick's Hall and Holy Cross Schools, Casino Theatre, Wednesday, May 6th. Splendid programme; beautiful singing; good acting. Everything high-class. Get your tickets at the Atlantic Bookstore. Don't procrastinate. Do it now!—May 1, 1.

THE FATALITY IN GEORGE ST.—Mr. Michael Power, the father of the child who was killed on Wednesday in George Street, tells us that the child was only 2 years and 9 months old, and had not wandered from home in Convent Square to George Street. The mother had taken her two children to a house in Convent Square where she was helping her sister to clean house. The child had not been more than two minutes absent from his mother, when the fatality occurred.

The Lintrose is on the way to North Sydney.

A Little More And A Little Less.

A little more deed and a little less creed.
A little more giving and a little less greed.
A little more bearing of other people's load.
A little more Godspeed's on the dusty road.
A little more rose and a little less thorn.
To sweeten the air for the sick and forlorn:
A little more song and a little less drum.
And coins of gold for the uplift of the slum:
A little less kicking the man that is down.
A little more smile and a little less frown:
A little more Golden Rule in mart's of trade.
A little more sunshine and a little less shade:
A little more respect for fathers and mothers.
A little less stepping on the toes of others:
A little less knocking and a little more cheer.
For the struggling hero that's left in the rear:
A little more love and a little less hate.
A little more of neighborly chat at the gate:
A little more of the helping hand by you and me.
A little less of this graveyard sentimentality:
A little more of flowers in the pathway of life.
A little less on coffins at the end of the strife.

CAMBRIDGE, April 30. A lone suffragette tried to hold up King George to-day while he was riding in an auto during his visit to the Leys School at Cambridge. The chauffeur opened up the car's motion to full speed, and dashed away from the woman. As the car sped by she threw a bunch of pamphlets at the King but hit the chauffeur.

Try Again.

HIGHER WAGES DEMANDED.

Mr. James McGrath, President of the Longshoremen's Union, presented today the circular of wages the Union asks the employers to pay after May 6th. The rates show generally an increase of about 25 per cent. After midnight for night work they ask for an increase of 25 cents an hour. For Sundays, Christmas Day and Good Friday, they ask a dollar an hour, stating that they prefer to work at all on these days. The merchants have not yet met to consider the proposals.

Why?

Some of our friends have asked us why we handle the 5 Star Trade Mark line of Shoes in preference to others.

Well, we'll tell you.

In the first place the Brown's 5 Star Trade Mark is more complete than any other. For instance we have Men's White House Shoes in "Bench Work," "President Quality" and "Nation's Quality." For women we have "White House," "Mansion" and "Usona" Shoes. For boys and girls the "Buster Brown" line. Brown's Shoes are—
