Plot That Failed;

Love That Would Not Be Denied.

CHAPTER IX.

In due course they appeared at the Park, very dusty and rather hot. Mrs. Mildmay was greatly alarmed and distressed at the idea of their walking such a distance in such weather, but it was the captain who so cleverly suggested that a little refreshment might be acceptable.

Mr. Leicester eyed him for the first time with something like amiability. "I am thirsty, I'll admit," he said, with his curt smile.

"Mrs. Mildmay rang the bell. "Some claret, and hock, and some seltzer water."

Violet, whose eyes were quick, saw a quiet twinkle in Mr. Fairfax's eyes, and said, with a laugh:

"Perhaps you would prefer something else, Mr. Fairfax."

"No, not I," said wicked Bertie; "but Leicester here has acquired a most degraded taste for bitter beer."

And as Mr. Leicester did not take the trouble to deny the imputation, Violet added, "and some bottles of ale."

The servant brought them, and while the gentlemen—including the captain, who said that he really could not resist the temptation—discussed them, Mrs. Dodson delivered herself of the purport of her visit.

Would Mrs. and Miss Mildmay and the captain come over to the Cedars and eat a friendly dinner with them on the morrow?

Mrs. Mildmay glanced interrogatively at Violet. Violet looked up, smilingly, and accepted.

"I shall be delighted, for my part," she said, "if it is really to be a very friendly unceremonious evening."

The captain and Mrs. Mildmay echoed, and Mrs. Dodson looked pleased.

"It will be very quiet," she said. "We did expect Lord and Lady Boisdale from Coombe Lodge; but it is not certain whether they have come yet; if they have they have promised to join us."

"I am so glad," said Mrs. Mildmay, who was secretly quite surprised that the Dodsons should be on dining terms with the Lackland family. "I like Lady Lackland so much. I met them very often in town. Violet does not know them; they have not been to Coombe Lodge since she left school."

"Then you will come, and I hope we shall see them," said Mrs. Dodson, rising. "Seven o'clock. Have your gentlemen finished your ale, and do you mean to ride back?"

"I walk, please," said Leicester, rising.

"Then you must rest a little longer, I think," said Mrs. Mildmay.

So it happened that Mr. and Mrs. Dodson were escorted to their carriage and started off, and that Leicester and Bertie spent the afternoon resting in Violet's drawing-room and conservatory, and that while Bertie was absorbed in conversation with the captain, Leicester was left to exchange notes and opinions with Violet.

Perhaps it did not seem so dull to Miss Mildmay that afternoon, and perhaps Mr. Leicester was not altogether unhappy, stretching his long legs among her ferns and flowers.

At seven o'clock on the following evening the Park carriage dashed up to the door of the Cedars, and the guests alighted.

"Fancy calling upon those people, the tallow chandlers' auntie," whispered Violet, wickledly, as they were ushered through the immense hall to the magnificent drawing-room.

"Hush, my dear! they will hear you," murmured Mrs. Mildmay, warningly, as Mrs. Dodson came forward to greet them.

But Violet was shaking hands with Mr. Leicester and Mr. Fairfax, the latter looking particularly handsome and yellow-haired in his evening dress.

"The Boisdales have not come yet," said Mr. Dodson; "but they are coming."

"And here they are," said Leicester, as another carriage, not quite so well appointed as the wealthy Mildmays, dashed up.

Violet looked toward the door, with some curiosity, which was transformed to pleased interest as Lady Ethel entered.

Violet, whose likes and dislikes were most sudden, and oftentimes unaccountable, liked Ethel at first sight.

The two girls bowed first, and then shook hands. There was no doubting Violet's open, kindly eyes on Ethel's part, and Ethel's gentle, quiet smile on Violet's.

"This is my brother, Fitz," she said, as Violet made room for her on the sofa, and Violet looked up and saw good-natured, simple Lord Boisdale standing looking down at her with his boyish grin.

Violet felt herself superior to him immediately, and bowed quite condescendingly, as she would to a school-boy. Lord Fitz felt—well, he never could tell how he felt at their first meeting though he tried to often afterward.

"What a pretty place this is!" said Ethel. "I am so sorry we have not known more of it. It is the prettiest drive possible up the cliff."

"And that house with the green, old buildings on the hill," said Lord Boisdale, "is quite a treat. I wonder who owns it?"

"Miss Violet Mildmay," said Mr. Fairfax, who was standing near, quite silent, for a wonder, and looking out of the corner of his frank, blue eyes at Ethel.

"Eh? Eh? I beg your pardon," said Lord Fitz, coloring.

"You have done nothing to need it," said Violet. "I am quite grateful to you for admiring what I love."

"Well, it is pretty," said Lord Fitz.

"By Jove! prettier than this," he added, in a loud whisper, which was fortunately drowned by the announcement of dinner.

Mr. Dodson took in Lady Ethel, Lord Fitz followed up with Mrs. Mildmay, and Violet found herself upon Bertie Fairfax's arm, but Leicester Dodson sat near her at dinner, and, being at home, found it his duty to talk.

It was a pleasant dinner, exquisitely cooked and served by discreet, attentive and noiseless servants.

When the ladies returned to the drawing-room the gentlemen seemed to miss them, and after a very little wine was consumed they followed them.

Somebody proposed whist to Mr. Dodson presently. The captain said it was a good idea, and simple-minded Fitz, Mr. Dodson and Bertie and the captain sat down, just for a rubber, while the ladies gave them a little music.

Leicester could play a good hand at any game of cards, and was fond of whist, but he found himself at Violet's side, by the piano.

The captain was induced to sing, and the audience dropped into silence, for when Captain Murpoint pleased she could still conversation most effectively, and never did he sing more effectively than he did then.

When the carriage came up the party was quite loath to break up.

Coombe Lodge was within such an easy drive, and the Park so near, that, as Mr. Dodson said, they were like a family party.

It was a lovely moonlight night, and Leicester proposed that, if they insisted upon going, they should send the carriages on at a slow pace and walk themselves part of the way.

They started and sauntered on, the moonlight pouring down upon them its soft, placid, fitful light, and bathing sea and land, cliff and hollow, in a silver stream.

The party soon broke up into groups. Fitz and Leicester, with Violet, Bertie and Ethel with Mrs. Mildmay, and the captain and Mr. and Mrs. Dodson.

It was certainly a tempting night, and the young people seemed to quietly revel in it. Twice the Lackland carriage was sent on; but at last Ethel decided that they had better get in, and, much to Bertie's inward grief, Fitz consented.

"The day after to-morrow, then," he said, as he closed the carriage door. "You will not forget that as you forgot me."

"No," said Ethel, laughing, but with a slight flush, "I will not forget, and I hope we shall all have a nice ride. Good-night."

Bertie bent over her hand and held it until he was in danger of the wheels. Then Leicester declared that he would go on as far as the Park and return with a cigar.

"You may light it now," said Violet, "if you like. I do not mind."

Leicester was very grateful and lit it.

By some means the captain attracted Bertie's attention as they neared the Park, and so, calling him away, left Leicester and Violet alone.

They did not seem to notice it, however, and stopped to look at the ruins of the old abbey clinging to the new house.

"Beautiful!" said Leicester. "Bertie has been in ecstasies over this; he is an author and an artist, you know."

"I like him," said Violet, in her decisive way.

"So do I," said Leicester. "He is my best friend. My rooms and his in the Temple adjoin."

"Do they?" said Violet. "How strange it sounds: 'in the Temple.' What do you do in chambers?"

"He works hard. I—smoke, drink, read, think, and watch him working."

Violet laughed.

"It must be very nice," she said.

By some means the captain attracted Bertie's attention as they neared the Park, and so, calling him away, left Leicester and Violet alone.

softly. "Look!" she said, suddenly; "that is the ghost's window."

"That long oriel window?" said Leicester. "You promised to tell me about your pet ghost."

"Don't joke about it," she said, with a short laugh. "Ask the fishermen about it. No man, woman or child would pass that tower after dark."

"What sort of a ghost is it?" asked Leicester, with extreme levity. He did not believe in the supernatural.

"Have you never heard the legend?" said Violet. "It is a strange one."

"Tell it me here; it is a fine opportunity, and proper surroundings. Is it a man or a woman?"

"A woman," said Violet, "in white robes, with a skull's face and two gleaming eyes. My old nurse had seen it three times. And after each appearance something dreadful or unfortunate happened either at the Park or at the village. Once the old farm took fire and was burned down, the second time one of the Godolphins, who were then living at the Abbey, was drowned in the bay, and the third time a child fell off the cliff."

"The people of Penruddie should insure their lives after the ghost appears," said Leicester, laughing.

"You laugh; but is it not strange?" said Violet, gravely. "And, what is more strange to my mind, all the descriptions of the apparition by the different persons who have seen it tally exactly. All say it is a woman in white robes, with a skull's face and gleaming eyes, and that it carries a strange, shaded light, which throws a fearful, dim glare for some distance. Is it not awful?"

Leicester smiled.

"Not very," he said. "I have seen better at Drury Lane. And does your ghost confine herself to that lower and oriel window, or does she perambulate?"

"Yes, she has been seen at that small window on the right, you see, which the ivy half covers."

"I see," he said, "and what room is that?"

"A room in the old abbey, which was left standing by my father's directions," said Violet, in a low voice. "He used it as a sort of study or reading-room, and when he died it was closed up."

"It is empty then," said Leicester. "No; we would have nothing removed. There is all the old furniture as it used to be when he lived. It used to be left undisturbed while he was absent on his voyages, and it is undisturbed now."

"It is a room for a ghost," said Leicester.

Violet nodded.

It is imperative that the wide skirt should be short.
Buckles are even more in vogue than ever on slippers.
Shoes of brown fabric or brown suede are fashionable.
White fox fur is lovely on a white hat or on one of black.
The latest hats are straw and satin military turbans.
The old-time variety of ostrich fan is in fashion again.
Battleship gray and khaki brown are among the new colors.
The vogue for fur trimmings even extends to separate skirts.
Circular overskirts slightly looped at the sides have returned.
Rows of graduated velvet ribbon appear on long net tunics.

The polonaise draperies will make a new and charming silhouette.
Some of the new waists have a simulated closing down the back.

Patriotic Concert.

"Our men are fighting the foe for us. What are we doing for them?"

Women are knitting and sewing, others are singing and playing and acting to raise the money to buy the goods for others to knit. We cannot all give big donations to the Patriotic Fund; we cannot all sing or act or play, but we can all help a little by buying a ticket for the Patriotic Concert at the Casino on Wednesday, January the 20th. It will be a good concert, bright and rousing. It is under the patronage of the Governor, Lady Davidson and the officers of the 1st Nfld. Reserve Force. Let everyone be there to spend a pleasant evening and help on the good work. Tickets will be on sale at the Atlantic Bookstore on Friday morning. Buy yours early.

The Second Contingent

Yesterday an examination for non-commissioned officers was held at the C. L. B. Armoury. It will be continued until Friday. Instructor Moore is conducting the examination. There was drill at Government House grounds yesterday. The members of No. 4 Platoon were at the South Side Range in the afternoon and did excellent work, six men scoring 18 points out of a possible 20 at the 500 yards range, while the minimum score was 12. The Musketry Instructors say the shooting is highly creditable, particularly in view of the fact that most of the volunteers were inexperienced with the rifle. Last evening seventy men were supplied with uniforms and an equal number were measured at the Nfld. Clothing Factory for khakis.

Charity Concert.

The entertainment promoted by Mrs. (Dr.) Keegan, under the patronage of H. E. the Governor and in aid of the Belgian Relief Fund, promises to be of exceptional interest. Some of our leading musical artists are taking part. In view of the object of the concert no one should miss it.

Five Pictures at the Nickel Theatre.

"Jack and the Beanstalk" Friday.
There are no less than five different pictures at the Nickel Theatre this evening including a two-part film. It is by the American players and features Winifred Greenwood. It is entitled: "Like Father Like Son." This delightful story teaches a strong lesson and all should make an effort to see it.
"A Woman Without a Soul" is a fascinating drama with a touching moral.
"St. Claude, France" is a charming travelogue which has special interest at the present moment.
"Breaking Even" is a social comedy drama which will appeal to all.
"San Francisco Carnival" is a beauty. This picture in itself is well worth the admission fee.
"The Rogues Gallery" is a rollicking comedy by the Keystone Co.
Miss Margaret Ayer will repeat her dainty number "The April Song."
On Friday and Saturday afternoon of this week there will be big matinees for children when the two-reel film: "Jack and the Beanstalk" will be given as a special. Don't let the little ones miss this. It is especially for children and they may never get the chance to see it again.

If Child is Cross, Feverish and Sick

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanse little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely. A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is, they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.
Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

Back From West.

The S. S. Portia, Capt. J. Keane, returned from western ports after a quick round trip. She called at North Sydney for bunker coal and at which port she was delayed two days. She also called at St. Pierre on the return trip to pick up volunteers. There was considerable ice at Bonne Bay and which was being closely packed to the land when the Portia left. She brought a large freight and these passengers in saloon:—Messrs. G. Camp, J. W. Hagen, W. Lamb, Walsh, George Devereaux; Mesdames McDonald, Devereaux, Meehan; Misses O. Bishop, L. Tibbo, J. Miles, Myrick, Master Ron Hagan and several in stowage.

The Prospero Forcing North.

Capt. A. Keane of the s.s. Prospero wired the following message to Bowring Bros. last night from Westport: "Called at Bear Cove, and arrived here at 7 p.m. Ocean covered with slab ice, but favourable wind now and will get to Jackson's Arm alright. Will make a dash for St. Anthony tomorrow morning, wind and weather conditions permitting."

Winter Fishing.

Vessel owners, banking masters and fishermen generally are actively preparing for the winter fishery on the Western Banks. By the Portia we learn that the fishermen around Rose Blanche, Burgeo and other nearby places have done very poorly within the past few weeks on account of stormy weather.

The Cycle of Adversity.

"The Cycle of Adversity" the headliner presented at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day is a strong drama produced by the Rex Company, the leading roles are sustained by Bob Leonard and Edna Mason, the staging and acting is such as the Rex Company always produce.
"The Brute" is a compelling drama of the frontier, the scenes are all pictured in the rugged mountains and the story brings out the good that is in the worst of us. A whole reel of interesting and instructive topics are contained in "Universal Animated Weekly" the most famous in the world.
"Shookum's Last Racket" and "Without Pants" are two side splitting comedies.
J. O'Neil Farrell, baritone, is singing popular ballads.
On Friday Edwin August will be featured in a great two reel spectacular production "Into the Lion's Pit" a feature somewhat on the lines of "Quo Vadis".

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited. Gentlemen,—Theodore Darais, a customer of mine, was completely cured of rheumatism after five years of suffering, by the judicious use of MINARD'S LINIMENT.

THE GREAT GODS THEY.

(By Kenneth Proctor Littauer, in "Leslie's Weekly.")
The word has gone forth from our rulers. The lips of our Princes and Lords
Have sounded the challenge of Nations and bidden to battle our hordes.
And we, at the sound of their voices, have come in our ignorant might, To fight for we never shall know just what. Only—They bade us fight!

We have left the homes of our building, in the lands our fathers knew;
We have left the hearths of our holding, and the hearts that warmed them through.
From the black peat bogs of Ireland to the streets of Tokyo,
We are gone for we never shall know just what. Only—They bade us go!

From the wind-swept Steppes; from the Dekkan, where the hot-breathed monsoons bowl;
From the Balkan heights, from the German firs, from the flanks of the green Tyrol;
From the blighted vineyards of sunlit France, from the Big Woods of the West,
We have come to fight for we know not what. Only—They thought it best!

Our fingers close on the triggers; our spurs have sunk to the flanks;
The echoing hills have answered back the shock of our charging ranks.
Our bodies people the furrows; our souls consort with the dead;
But question Them for the why of it, Theirs was the voice that led!

We were content with our portions; we begged no leave to die;
They, yea our Kings and our Captains They guard the reasons why!
Now we are come to the slaughter; (We never sought what to do)
Come for we never shall know just what. Only—They told us to!

Letter From Private Rose.

Dear Uncle,—Just a line from Fort George, Scotland, to say all well over in this bonnie country. The Regiment is comfortably installed in snug quarters, everyone is in the best of health and looking forward to a jolly Xmas in spite of it being from home. A small Company of 200 Seaforth Highlanders is stationed across from us in another barracks, the rest of these gallant men are at Aldershot and the front where they are giving a good account of themselves. Hard training goes on as usual, but the harder it is the better we like it as it gives the inner man a good chance to show his powers. We haven't had a wet day since we have been in Scotland, and the air is crisp with a pinch of frost in it which makes you feel top-notch on a route march or skin-mirthing. It is close by pen pushing also, and perhaps he has something interesting to tell you about the Regiment's movements which perhaps I have overlooked, and I guess I'll leave the rest for St. as its near lights out and sweet dreamy dreading and the folks you left behind. I close this short letter by wishing you one and all a Merry Xmas and a very Happy New Year.

Very truly yours,
WILFRED J. ROSE,
1st Nfld. Regiment.

Evening Telegram

W. J. HERDER, - - Proprietor
W. F. LLOYD, - - - - Editor

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 13, 1915.

Mr. John Redmond.

The re-election of Mr. John Redmond as President of the United Irish League is an all sufficient answer to Sir Roger Casement, Jim Larkin and the Irish-American Irreconcilables in America who have allowed themselves to be the pawns of the Germans in agitating against the British Government. No one has shown greater keenness in efforts to stimulate recruiting in Ireland since the outbreak of the war than Mr. John Redmond and Mr. T. P. O'Connor. This has made them a target for the venomous abuse of German agitators in the States and their Irish-American dupes. The latter however are by no means representative of the general Irish sentiment in the States, for as we have pointed out previously the regular Irish Societies, associated with the Irish Nationalist's constitutional propaganda, have endorsed Mr. John Redmond, since the outbreak of the war, and passed a vote of confidence in him. In considering the recruiting question in Ireland, it should be remembered that Ireland has never been backward in contributing what may be regarded as a good quota of her population to the regular army, and as for the old volunteer or the new territorial movement, the never had a chance, for such units were never authorized before the war. The Ulster Volunteers were unauthorized and irregular movements, not recognized by the War Office, as was the opposing movement which came to life later. These movements in the other parts of the British Isles had much to do with stimulating the war spirit of the nation, and have assisted largely in releasing line regiments from Gibraltar, India, and elsewhere. While the artillery at Gibraltar necessarily is composed of regular forces, the regular infantry has been replaced largely by these territorials, and as for India, the whole Westsex Division of Territorials, under Major-General Donat arrived at Bombay nine weeks ago. This division consists of three brigades of four battalions each and four brigades of Field Artillery. Ireland has never had these territorial organizations and therefore she has never had the chance of doing with territorials what the west of England has done. But in spite of such drawbacks, Mr. John Redmond has been to the fore in urging Ireland to rise to the occasion. His actions have been dictated by a fine sense of honour, and any other course he declares would be dishonourable and rather than be a party to it, he would quit public life.

Hodeida Outrage.

Immediate Reparation For Affront in Arabia.

Rome, Dec. 12.—The "Giornale d'Italia" reports a serious incident at Hodeida, in Arabia. The Ottoman authorities, having learned that the British Consul had remained in the town, ordered his house to be entered and himself arrested. The Consul's house is near the Italian Consulate and the British Consul, seeing Turkish soldiers approaching, left his house and took refuge there.

Signor Cecchi, the Italian Consul who is a very young man, ran up to defend his premises, but in spite of his protest and resistance the British Consul and his kavass were forced outside the building and taken on board a boat which left for an unknown destination. Signor Cecchi did not suffer any personal violence.

The "Giornale d'Italia" adds: "The United States, which has taken over the protection of British interests in the Ottoman Empire, will protest against the violence committed on a British subject. The Italian-Turkish incident is, however, regarded as a violation of our consulate."

In the Chamber this afternoon Baron Sonnino, Minister for Foreign Affairs, replying to various questions on the incident, gave an account of the affair which took place on November 29, and said that as soon as details were available he had telegraphed insisting on exemplary reparation. The Ottoman Government had replied that communication between Constantinople and Hodeida was interrupted, but that it was looking into the affair. He had telegraphed the previous day to the Italian Ambassador in Constantinople renewing his categorical instructions that he should demand immediate reparation.—Reuter.

CONDITIONS IN VIENNA SERIOUS.

VENICE, To-day. Private reports from Vienna and statements appearing in Austrian papers show that conditions in the Austrian capital are daily becoming more serious. Smallpox, cholera and typhoid are prevalent. Forty-five cases of smallpox, being officially reported in Vienna during the first nine days of January. Many cases of contagion are also reported from various centres of Lower and Upper Austria, Styria, Bohemia, Moravia, Silesia and Galicia.

NEW ATTACK ON SERVA IMPUDENT.

AMSTERDAM, To-day. Major Morhat, military correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt, says as to the new offensive against Serbia as announced, we must desire it on political grounds, but it should not be undertaken at the expense of the forces in Galicia. If progress can be made in the Balkans without diminishing the main army, it would be prudent first of all to await successes in Poland.

Patriotic Meeting AT CURLING.

Message From Curling to Hon. W. C. Job, dated January 12, 1915.

Meeting a great success, two young men volunteered, one for Army and one for Navy, names, Hugh D. Gillis, Navy; Windiso Delareosh, for Army.

THE ARREST OF CARDINAL MERCIER.

ROME, To-day. The German denial that Cardinal Mercier was not arrested in Brussels is true in only a technical sense, says the Tribune, in a special edition. The Cardinal was not physically arrested and taken away from his residence, but he nevertheless was placed in a state of arrest within his Palace, and was watched by the Military. The German Government, realizing that violence against a Prince of the Church would have painful consequences throughout the world, and also among the Catholic population of Germany, and fearing the effect of the measures which might be taken by the Vatican, decided hurriedly to restore conditions to their former status. Nevertheless an act of violence has been committed against the Primate of Belgium. The Holy See has asked that reparation be made by the German Government, and the explanation of Germany is awaited eagerly.

PARIS PREPARES FOR AIR RAID.

PARIS, To-day. While Paris is not having perpetual zepplin scares that London indulges in, there has been great activity because of reports that the air will be full of aeroplanes and dirigibles dropping bombs just as soon as weather conditions permit, therefore the inhabitants have been warned not to be alarmed if they suddenly get orders to turn off their lights and be prepared to read by lamps behind screened windows.

First Vessel to Start Fish Killing.

The first banking schooner along the South-west coast to take a "cold tail" aboard for 1915 will most likely be the Cluett, of Belleoram, in charge of Captain Vatcher. At any rate she will be the first vessel to commence the winter's codfishing operations on the Western Banks, as when the S.S. Portia was at Belleoram two days ago the Cluett had all her outfit and crew aboard and was practically ready to sail. Captain Vatcher told those on the coastal steamer that he would be leaving the home port on Thursday (to-morrow). Several other schrs. along the coast will be ready to sail in a week's time.

GERMAN DESERTIONS.

PARIS To-day. The real reason for the strict guarding of the Belgian-Dutch frontier says the Matines Crift at Havre, is an epidemic of desertion which began in the German ranks after the battle of Yser. From Nov. 15 to Dec. 15 there was 11,000 desertions from the garrison of Bruges alone.

RUSSIAN SUCCESSES IN THE CAUCASUS.

PETROGRAD To-day. An official statement issued by the General Staff of the army in the Caucasus, says fighting in the region of Othi (150 miles west of Kars) continues obstinately. The rear-guard of the Turks going on the River Othi, and to the west bitter fighting in the Kara Urgan region has latterly inclined in our favor. On Jan. 11 we captured the 92nd regiment of Infantry, including eleven officers, three Sergeants and 1500 men. We also partially destroyed the 52nd regiment of Infantry, a portion of which consisting of 350 soldiers and one officer was captured. We captured a height in the Turkish territory and in taking the enemy's camp there we secured depots of artillery and ammunition.

Horse Race.

The revival of horse-racing here will be hailed with delight, and on next Monday week, the 25th inst., the first general holiday for the winter season, a series of horse-races will be held on Quidi Vidi Lake, ice and weather permitting. The competitors to date are Messrs. M. Kelly and W. Wiley, cabmen, though it is likely that more than twice that number will enter the contest. Several of the fast trotters get a tryout on the lake daily and, no doubt, the event will be looked forward to with much interest.

Vessels Left Coast.

When the Portia was at Bay of Islands a week ago, all the American and Canadian vessels left there for the home ports, as they would not take chances of being frozen in. Some vessels got part cargoes of herring while others got none at all. The herring fishery at Bay of Islands had not been as good as expected while at Donna Bay the fishery was a complete failure.

Met at North Sydney.

On her last trip when the S. S. Portia was at North Sydney bunkering, the Norwegian steamer Njord was there getting her supply of fuel for the sealfishery in the Gulf where she will prosecute this spring. Capt. Joe Kean tells us that the Njord is a sister ship of Bowring's sealing steamer Viking. The owners of the Njord will, no doubt, feel satisfied if she proves as successful a seal hunter as the Viking.

Police Investigating

Lloyd's Volunteers.

65 WITH HIS MAJESTY'S FORCES.
Lloyd's, the long established and world-renowned firm of shipping surveyors and underwriters, are being well represented in this war and already sixty-five of the staff, including surveyors, compilers, etc., have re-specified nobly to the call to arms and are now with His Majesty's forces. Mr. Black, local representative for Lloyd's, has been apprised of the above from Head Office coupled with the volunteers names, which were neatly printed and enclosed in picture form. Mr. Black has also been advised officially, that he will get revised lists of the volunteers from time to time.

THE GENEROUS STRANGER.

(Letter to Answers from Mr. H. R. Coudray, of Newport-on-Tay, Fife.)
This is a true story, and I send it thinking it may interest Answers' readers.
There was a certain old woman in Dundee whose son was fighting at the front. He was wounded and brought to a hospital in the South of England. She greatly wanted to see her son, so some friends clubbed together and got enough money to pay her fare.
While she was in the ward talking to her son she noticed a tall, military-looking stranger talking to the men. Presently he came over to her and asked where she came from. "Dundee," she said. "But you aren't Scotch?" he asked. "No," she replied, "I'm Irish." Whereupon he slipped half a sovereign in her hand and went to the next bed.
The old woman was so excited over this that she said to her son: "I wonder if he's Irish?" The tall man looked round and replied, "Yes, I'm Irish, and my name is Kitchener."

Newfoundland Marine Insurance Company, Ltd.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the above Company was held yesterday, when the report was presented, and officers were elected. The President, W. A. Munn, Esq., spoke as follows:—

PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

We have pleasure in presenting the Fourth Annual Report of this Company, and it is indeed pleasing to have really satisfactory returns for this year.

We have been fortunate, as it was exceedingly stormy during October and November, and many losses occurred amongst the local craft.

The rates of the Local Mutual Clubs show higher figures than for many years.

After paying all outstanding claims, and making allowances for every claim of which we have any notification, also putting aside amount for insurances not yet run off, we can show a surplus of fourteen thousand five hundred and sixty-three dollars ($14,563.00), which gives available assets of forty thousand dollars ($40,000), and, after payment of claims actual cash value of over $30,000.00.

When the War broke out we decided to take limited lines of War Risk Insurance on Foreign business, which has assisted our profits materially.

You will also notice that we have invested nearly fifteen thousand dollars ($15,000) of our funds in Debentures of the Nova Scotia Steel Co., at a price below par, and that bring us in six per cent. per annum. These accumulated profits all assist to build up our capital.

We have made improved connections for Re-insurance with one of the oldest and most substantial Companies in England. We are now in a position to expand our steamship business to any amount, and meet any legitimate competition. The terms arranged show a profit to our Company on all this re-insurance, and should be backed up in every possible way by our shareholders. This point has not been sufficiently considered by our shareholders, or they would see that larger lines of insurance are placed with us. If we are to expand this business as we should, it means that our shareholders have to give us more business.

The Directors recommend that a dividend of ten per cent. (10) be declared for the shareholders on the paid up capital, and the balance of profits placed to reserve with the intention of presenting the shareholders with paid-up script as soon as the amount of reserve is sufficiently well established & warrant this.

The counting of ballot papers showed the same Directors elected as last year.
The shareholders were all very pleased with the result of last year's business, and hope that the coming year will also be satisfactory. The promise of support was emphatic that this business should be transacted here in every way possible in our local Company and keep the money in the country.

McMurdo's Store News.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 13, 1915.
The value of a good shaving soap—always considerable—is especially marked at this season of the year, when sore and chapped faces are so common. We would remind you that the Excelsis Shaving Stick is made of the finest English superfatted soap, and not only does it give a free and thick lather, that does not soon dry upon the face, but one that is not under any conditions harmful to the surface of the skin, but on the contrary even soothing to the epidermis. And being a well dried soap it is very economical in use, and will give you more shaves than any other shaving stick. Price 35c. a stick.
A bottle of McMurdo's Jamaica Ginger will serve as a quick and effective diffusible stimulant in cases of impending chills, pain in the bowels, etc., and is valuable in winter, often preventing severe attacks of bowel trouble and grippe. Price 40c. a bottle.

"Ours" in the West.

This popular little theatre was filled last night at each performance with a highly delighted crowd, who thoroughly enjoyed the splendid pictures. There will be another change of pictures to-night. Mr. Rossley hopes to place a first class lady vocalist at the West End soon. Either of the Rossley theatres is a good place to spend an evening; good all round clean and refined entertainment with the finest music in both houses.

WILL MAKE ANOTHER TRIP.—Though no word of her arrival has been received, no doubt the Red Cross Florizel, which left New York for London on New Year's Eve with a general cargo, has reached her destination ere this. It is understood that the Florizel will take another cargo of merchandise from New York to the metropolis.

Higher Freight Rates.

It would take a sixteen-inch shell in the thorax to arouse the average American citizen to an interest in national defense, but most of us would cheerfully get out of bed at 3 a.m. to discuss higher freight rates.

Higher freight rates have only become a question since the Interstate Commerce Commission took over the power of suspending them. Before that they were not a question at all. They were a certainty.

The genial railroad president looked over the books of his customers once a year and if it appeared that there was a margin between cost and production he raised the freight rates. This kept the ordinary business man from becoming haughty and indifferent because it put his money in a safe place where he could not get at it in moments of great recklessness and spend it for peanuts.

Under this system everybody was happy. The shipper was happy because the kind railroad president had left him enough to live on when he might have doubled the rates; the kind railroad president was happy because pretty soon he would be able to sell $100,000,000 worth of bonds and furnish his palatial new residence with a duke.

Unfortunately the big shippers who wanted home dukes themselves conspired with the railroad presidents to raise the rates on the little fellows and lower them on the large, portly boys. This produced bankruptcies, monopolies and other diseases and presently it became necessary for the railroad owners to get permission from Washington before they published any new editions of the 11 pound book of tariffs, which is America's nearest approach to German philosophy in intricacy.

This has led to a sad situation. Owing to the larger number of dukes, country residents, steam yachts and other bric-a-brac used in the construction of American railroads they have been very costly, and when hard times set in they cannot make ends meet—except, of course, those ends represented by a locomotive and a caboose. It will therefore be necessary to raise the freight rates or call in the sheriff.

But if the freight rates are raised the next era of extravagance will see the railroads so prosperous that vast bond issues can once more be floated for the improvement of roadbeds, family trees, etcetera.

This will once more increase the obligations of the railroad to such an extent that the next hard times will require another horizontal raise with trimmings.

Nobody desires to see the railroad president when reduced to the necessity of collecting money for his business in a hat, but it does seem as if when he is allowed to raise rates he should be compelled to issue bonds with at least the same cautious conservatism exhibited by a sailor who is trying to spend four years' wages in three days.

Best of all Pantomimes—Robin Hood.

Last night the Rossley Theatre was crowded to its utmost capacity to see the new pantomime "Robin Hood," and there's no doubt about it, it is by far the best of any of the big productions yet presented. It is the most spectacular, novel and beautifully costumed show of all. Running smoothly since the first night, everything gets nicely settled down. The performance by Robin Hood brings greater credit than ever to Mrs. Rossley. The children have some splendid numbers in this show. Jack Rossley, at the finish, as the Scotch mariner and his ships on dry land is one of the most original and beautiful sights ever witnessed here. Big matinee to-day. Send the children to see Little Red Riding Hood.

AN EXTREME TEST.

"Reckon I look a reg'lar Bluebeard!" quoth Tommy to himself, as he caught a khaki reflection of himself in a passing glass.
On going nearer he gazed at the rough stubble on his chin ruefully, and took a thoughtful look at his watch.

"Just time," he muttered, as he pushed open the door of an unknown barber's shop.

That worthy, with his patriotic fervour, placed himself at the disposal of Tommy absolutely, and, between various tricky questions on points of war, nicked and gashed our poor soldier's face with consummate skill.

The job finished, the barber surveyed Tommy with pride and admiration, as he flicked him down with a towel. Our hero, however, again went and surveyed his face in the glass.

"Give me a drink of water," he gasped.

"You ain't goin' to faint?" exclaimed the alarmed hairdresser.

"No—oh, no!" calmly replied Tommy, staunching the wounds on his face. "I just want to see if my mouth'll hold water!"

Some Good Advice.

Here is some advice given to merchants who think they are cutting down expenses when they stop advertising.

The speaker is a very eminent authority. He says:

"Your advertising—if it is advertising worthy of the name—is your best salesman, and you don't hesitate to lay it off indefinitely because business was bad yesterday.

"Your advertising is a bigger factor in your business than your location—and you'll move it down a back street or wipe your advertising location off the city map because you're not feeling right to-day.

"Your advertising is the big sign over your door and you'll take it down and store it in your cellar; your advertising is the most profitable and most economical tax for insurance against loss, and yet you'll lightly 'SAVE'—save the mark!—that expense for a few days if your dinner or business conditions don't exactly suit you.

"Advertising is a great force in business and many great and many foolish claims are made for it, but it is not greater nor more powerful than any other factor of your business. It can't do the impossible. If you expect to get any good from it you must keep it on the job; make it work while you sleep."—Montreal Star.

Letters From Troops.

We direct attention to a notice of the Postmaster General in reference to the transmission of letters and postcards to and from troops on active service. Letters and postcards from our soldiers on the other side which are not stamped or insufficiently stamped are ordered to be delivered to those to whom they are addressed free, and postmasters are directed to forward all letters and postcards unstamped to their destination. The effect of this will be the free transmission of letters and postcards to and from our troops on active service. They are all worthy of this concession from the Government.

A Text From Baseball.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"Now take the Braves —" the Author-man was saying to the Cynic, as his wife entered the room. "Good Heavens," said she. "I thought I had heard the last of the Braves and the Athletics and all the world series talk weeks ago."

"This isn't exactly baseball talk," said the Author-man laughing. "It's just talking a text from baseball."

The Baseball Miracle.

"It's this way. I myself don't take such an awful lot of interest in baseball. But there was something greater than the game—greater than any game, in the way the Braves (that's the fan-name for the Boston National Baseball team, my dear) came through and won the pennant. It was as thrilling as the boy's stories I used to read. Here was a team of third-rate men, occupying the last place in the league, who overnight became a team of world beaters. It saved of black-art. These same men who had been losing game after game, began winning game after game until, in a little less than three months, the team that had been rated as about the poorest of big-league teams, proved itself the best, by beating everything in sight and winning the world's series."

"I wondered at it. To me it seemed inexplicable. To discover how the Braves became world beaters instead of world-beaten would be to discover something worth while."

"Now if one man more than any other might be counted on to know the reason for the change, that man is the

How a War Levy Was Recovered.

The story of a French doctor's fee for attending a German Prince has just become known. It was when the Germans were advancing towards Sezanne and Fere-Champenoise. They reached Epervay, where they consumed 50,000 bottles of champagne and demanded a war levy of £57,000. After the Battle of the Marne, when the Prussian troops were in full flight, one of the Imperial princes was seriously wounded. He was conveyed to Epervay, which was still being guarded by a few German troops. But not a German surgeon was to be found in the town, so a staff officer went in search of a French surgeon. He was advised to go to Dr. Vernon, a celebrated surgeon, who was promised a princely fee if he would attend to the Imperial patient. The doctor, hearing in mind the war levy demanded from his native city, fixed his fee at the sum of £7,000. The paymaster of the German army sent the amount demanded the same evening to the mayor in gold pieces bearing the image of Emperor William.

How is This for Prophecy.

As to the Germans they will reap what they have sown. Now they are at the pinnacle of power; they have made all Europe tremble, and they are foolish enough to rejoice at it. It is very dangerous to frighten every one, we learned this at our expense; they will learn it in their turn. Because Bismark succeeded in his enterprises, they look upon him as a kind of God; they will not see that he employed only dishonest means; strategy, lies, espionage, corruption and violence. Nothing is ever firm that is erected on such a foundation. But to tell all this or nothing to the Germans would amount to the same thing; they are intoxicated by their victories, and they will awake only when Europe wearied by their ambition and by their insolence, will arise to bring them to reason. Then they will be forced to acknowledge that if night sometimes overwhelms right, justice is eternal.—Erickmann-Chartrain, written more than forty year ago.

German Officer's View

London, Jan. 6.—An officer attached to the British headquarters, in a letter to his wife, writes: "In war the views and ideas of your enemy are at least as instructive and interesting as any comment you may hear from your own people, therefore, the following from the lips of a German officer recently captured is certainly worthy of your consideration, as the conclusions he drew contained a strong element of common sense."

"He was asked how long he thought the war would last. He replied that he was unable to form a definite opinion, but that he would be very pleased to prophesy where it would end, so he was asked to proceed, and then said: "Within 40 yards of where I was captured."

Directors Meet in Battle Trench.

London, Jan. 3.—Possibly the strangest company meeting ever recorded, says the Chronicle, was held in a dug-out in the trenches somewhere in France on Dec. 2. It was a meeting of directors of Vacher Ail & Sons, Ltd., parliamentary printers. All the directors of the firm are on active service. Their accountants sent the chairman, Capt. Stanley Low, a summary of the year's accounts, and have now received the minutes of the meeting, at which Capt. Low and another director, Capt. Geoffrey Cox, passed on the accounts.

The two directors present at the meeting in the trench dugout, regretted the absence of the third director, Capt. Claude Low, "whose whereabouts at the front are unknown to them."

Doctors and Gas Fires

In an article which recently appeared in the London "Evening News," Mr. W. G. Faulkner stated: "In making my inquiries I discovered one significant fact. This was that one company—the Gas Light and Coke Company—had among their consumers 2,500 doctors who had gas fires installed in their houses, some as many as ten or a dozen; that 1,500 of these doctors had become users of gas during the past three years; and that not one had ever given them up."

Professor C. V. Boys, F.R.S., says, in the "Standard": "Sentiment and inertia are the only obstacles against the general adoption of gas fires and cooking appliances. Wonderful strides have been made, in spite of deep-rooted prejudices. A gas fire, burning with a blue, is an admirable agent for heating a room; and, as a scientist, I fail to understand how such a gas fire displaces the air in a room more than any other fire."

The One O'clock War Train.

"A stirring if a touching sight is the departure of the one o'clock train each day from Victoria Station: taking back to the front officers and men who have been spending their short leave at home," says the Times. "A great mass of people throngs the station; but double barriers keep from the platform itself all but the travellers and the friends who have come to see them off."

"There are tears, of course, shed unobtrusively; and partings at the last moment from which one can only turn away. There are anxious women's faces. But the men themselves are in-or gallantly assume—such laughing spirits that anything like general or sustained depression is impossible. Extraordinarily fine men they are, too, many of them in equipment which shows unmistakable evidence of recent hard usage; and the mixture of regiments and uniforms makes the assemblage doubly interesting."

"RE. R.A. R.F.A. R.M.C. A.S.C. M.M.P., you can read the lettering of almost every branch of the Service: Grenadier and Coldstream Guards, South Wales Borderers, Lancashire, Highlanders in kilts, armen and Staff officers of every degree; ribbons on the breast which tell of service in South Africa, in the Sudan, and on the Indian frontier; and every man looks fit, outwardly, at least, is as happy as a schoolboy going for his holidays."

"The train runs in two sections, the earlier leaving at a few minutes before one o'clock, the second a few minutes after. It seems impossible, as the whistles blow, that out of all the clinging leave-takers all the passengers can really get on board. But somehow, swinging into open doors and clustering on carriage steps as the train is already moving, they are safely off, still shouting back laughing 'Good-byes.'"

"It is all very British, the casualness of it, and the masking under laughter of the deeper emotions. Certain reflections must occur to anyone who witnesses the scene. The first is of the splendid quality of the sacrifice which we are making. To British eyes, it seems impossible that any men whom other nations are offering on the battlefield can be quite as fine as these, our own."

One hundred local Chinamen want to go with the third force as cooks, but it is not expected that their offer will be accepted.

BE GRATEFUL.

WALTER MASON

The New Year finds poor Europe torn, and splashed with fifty kinds of gore; a million sad-eyed women mourn the loved ones who return no more. A million orphans, starved and sad, their hearts too early known to pain, look down the road and call for dad, and look and call and weep in vain. A million homes are gaunt and bare, where once the sound of glee were heard, where children lisped the evening prayer, and parents read the sacred Word. And in this country, blessed of God, there is no roar of foemen's guns; no grisly terror stalks abroad to slay our brothers and our sons. No butchers on our shores aspire to dye our streams, now running clear; we gather by the evening fire, secure from harm and free from fear. Does gratitude your bosom fill, that you are from such anguish free, or do you whine of ev'ry ill, however trifling it may be? Oh, we who go our peaceful ways, unmenaced by war's steel-clad ranks, should fill the air with songs of praise, and bombard Heaven with our thanks.

Have You an Itchy Spot?

Somewhere on your body? If so, attend to it at once. In eczema—and itchy spots, whether dry and scurfy, or moist and inclined to "weep," are generally eczematous—delays are foolish, allowing the disease to spread and affect more of the good skin. Your best chance for a cure is to use Zylex, which will give almost instant relief, and if used in the earlier stages of the trouble will almost certainly bring a cure, and in any event will greatly ameliorate the trouble. Ask your druggist about it. Price 50c. a box. Zylex Soap, 25c. a cake. ZYLEX, London.

Ambulance Car Fleet.

Maharajah's Splendid Gift to The December 22.—The King at Buckingham Palace yesterday accepted from the Maharajah Scindia of Gwalior, a Christmas gift of a fleet of motor-ambulances, auxiliary cars, and motor-cycles. The gift was offered to his Majesty by Lieutenant-Colonel Sir David Barr, who represented the Maharajah.

The King was accompanied by the Queen, Princess Mary, and Prince Henry.

The fleet consists of 41 ambulance cars, 4 officers' cars, 5 motor-lorries, and 10 motor-cycles. Each car has attached to it a brass plate bearing the name of the donor, "Scindia." The cars entered the palace grounds by the Grosvenor-gardens gate and filed past the King and Queen, who had taken up their stand near the King's Door, afterwards leaving the grounds by the Garden Gate and passing to the Mall through the courtyard.

The King placed the gift at the disposal of the naval and military authorities and intimated his intention of telegraphing his thanks personally to the Maharajah.

GAINS MAINTAINED.
LONDON, Jan. 12. The Governor, Newfoundland. The French Government reports progress northwest of Soissons and north of Perthes. Gains recently reported have been maintained.

MILITARY ESTABLISHMENTS DESTROYED.

LONDON, Jan. 12. A wireless despatch from Berlin says that the military establishments in and near Dunkirk were completely destroyed in an attack on the city Sunday. Dunkirk's lighting plant was also destroyed. The despatch says that this information is contained in a message from Rotterdam. Dunkirk, on the coast of France, is the British Continental military base. Troops and supplies arriving from England are landed at this port, where extensive military supply stations have been established.

ESTABLISH BASE NEAR GHENT.

GENEVA, Jan. 12. Word has reached here that the Germans have established a base for their aerial fighting craft near Ghent in Belgium. Four Zeppelins of the latest type, and a number of aeroplanes have been assembled at the new aviation grounds. It is from this point that they made their recent trip over Calais.

TURKEY AGREES TO ITALY'S DEMANDS.

LONDON, Jan. 12. A special despatch from Rome today says that Turkey has agreed to the demands of Italy in connection with the Hodeida incident. According to advices, Turkey has ordered the release of British Vice-Consul Richardson, who was arrested in the Italian Consulate at Hodeida, and has promised to punish the soldiers who broke into the Consulate, as well as to salute the Italian flag when it is again hoisted over the building.

FRENCH OFFICIAL REPORT.

PARIS, Jan. 12. The French War Office this afternoon gave out the following: "From the sea to the Oise there was yesterday an intermittent cannonading fairly violent in certain places. On the Aisne to the north of Soissons determined attacks have been delivered against trenches occupied by us on the 8th and 10th of January. The enemy during yesterday attacked our positions several times; we repulsed them and we took possession of more trenches. From Soissons to Rheims there were artillery exchanges, our heavy pieces of artillery responded efficaciously to their batteries this morning. In Champagne in the region of Souain, there was yesterday very active shooting by our artillery directed against the positions of our adversary near Perthes, Lefortin, situated to the north of Deaujeour farm, was the scene of a desperate attack. The enemy succeeded in setting up a trench at a point with a series of field works, the commanding position of which was held by us. This fighting is still going on. In the Argonne and as far as the Meuse there is nothing to report. On the heights of the Meuse there have been two German attacks, one at the Forest of Bouchot. Each was repulsed. To the southeast of Ciry sur Vesouze, one of our detachments surprised and put to flight a German company which was pillaging the village of St. Sauveur. Weather bad. A snowstorm is raging in Vosges and Alsace."

IRELAND'S ARMY ROLL.

Mr. John Redmond, M.P., speaking at an Irish National Volunteer review at Limerick recently, said the Irish people had accepted the passing of the Home Rule Bill into law as a solemn treaty of peace, and not as "a scrap of paper" to be torn up. If now, in this crisis, as some people suggested, the Irish people were to attempt to stab England in the back, it would inflict a deadly blow on the honour of Ireland. If such a dishonourable attitude were adopted, he would not remain one single hour in public life.

Happily there was no such danger. Ireland had 150,000 men of Irish birth with the colors, and in addition the Irish Brigade was rapidly filling up—15,442 of the Irish Volunteers were enrolled on November 1, and since then large numbers had joined. He could not understand why the Government and the War Office were so chary about giving assistance and instruction to turn the Volunteers who could not join the colours into an efficient body for home defence, as in England.

Fashion promises the coming season to be a white one from tip to toe.

FROM EAST AND WEST FRONTS.

LONDON, Jan. 12. French attacks to the north of Soissons, on the Aisne, near Perthes, and east of Rheims, are developing into a serious offensive. Gains, which the French have made at these points, if followed up, would have a two-fold importance. They threaten the railways, which the Germans are using to supply their troops in the fighting line, and are a serious menace to the German forces which hold positions north of Rheims. The French have found it impossible to take these positions, from which Germans bombarded Rheims, by frontal attacks, but advances on either side would envelop them and force their retirement, thus giving the Cathedral City a much desired relief from German shells, from which it has suffered so much. In Argonne and on the heights of the Meuse, the Germans are on the offensive and claim to have made further progress. It is reported that the Germans have sent heavy reinforcements to this district to prevent the French from breaking through their lines, which are very close to their own border and not far from Metz. Fresh German troops despatched to Alsace, combined with wintry weather, have stopped the French advance in that region. Similar conditions prevail in the east, and while they have not completely stopped fighting, they have called a halt over the greater part of the field of operations. The Turks are offering a stubborn resistance to the Russians in Karasun, where a battle has been in progress for five days. It is a death struggle for them, for so long as the Russian fleet commands the Black Sea the Turks cannot get reinforcements from Europe, the overland route being a long and difficult one. They have an army corps at Bagdad, but this is needed to oppose the advance of the British-Indian army from the east.

TURKEY'S TROUBLES.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12. The closing of the Dardanelles and the shutting off of Turkey from outside commerce, has resulted in the people of Constantinople being reduced almost to the verge of starvation, according to George Tomayan, of Chicago, who for the past eight months was in charge of the American Orphan Asylum at Constantinople, and who arrived here to-day. "When I left Constantinople less than a month ago, that city was reduced to sore straits for food, all available supplies having been confiscated by the military authorities. The suffering among the poor people is intense, and the struggle for food by the poor is pitiful in the extreme."

GERMANS USING ICE BREAKERS.

LONDON, Jan. 12. The Germans are utilizing ice breakers on the Mazovian lakes, in East Prussia, to prevent the lakes from freezing over, according to a Reuter despatch from Petrograd. Their double object in this is to enable the German gunboats to continue operations and render it impossible for the Russians engaged in East Prussia to cross on the ice.

JAPANESE CRUISERS ACTIVE.

LIMA, Peru, Jan. 12. Japanese cruisers continue to be active along the coast of Peru, seeking the German converted cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich. Latest reports received here set forth that the Japanese armoured cruiser Asama went into Payta, Peru, yesterday, and took on board provisions. She left again the same afternoon. There is reason to believe that the British steamer Oryana, on her way back to Liverpool from the Pacific Coast of South America, is being sought by the German boat. In any event, it is apparent that the Japanese cruisers are endeavoring to come up with the Eitel Friedrich.

THE 'FARN' IN DISTRESS.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Jan. 12. The former British collier Farn, which now flies the German flag, arrived here to-day in command of a Lieutenant of the German cruiser Karlsruhe. Her crew consisted of fourteen Germans and twenty-two Chinamen. The Farn was in distress and put into San Juan for provisions. Customs immigration authorities have cabled to Washington for instructions.

NO REPLY TO MAKE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. President Wilson said to-day that he had no reply to make on the British reply to the American note, as it was only preliminary. He indicated that he had not given the British communication full study, and that he proposed soon discussing it at length with Secretary Bryan.

SMALLPOX IN NEW YORK HARBOR.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12. Thirty-six passengers in the steamer Buenos Ayres, who had been exposed to smallpox, were removed from that vessel to-day, under orders of the Health Officer, and taken to Hoffman Island for observation. While the vessel was bound for this port from Barcelona and Cadiz, one of the steamer passengers developed the disease in a malignant form. He died, and was buried at sea.

BRIGADIER-GENERAL DEAD.

Poultry Association

ANNUAL REPORT.

To the Members of the Newfoundland Poultry Association.

In presenting the fourth annual report, your Directors are pleased to be able to draw your attention to the fact that during the year progress has been made. During 1914 six new members have been added to the roll, making a total of sixty subscribing members, bringing the total number of shares up to 253.

As will be seen by the Treasurer's report, the Association is in a sound condition, financially, besides having a very valuable asset in coops, wire netting, etc., for exhibition purposes. The Association has to thank the Board of Agriculture for their annual grant of $400.00, which has proved of substantial assistance to the Association.

The third annual Show was held in the Prince's Rink on Nov. 18th, 19th, 20th. It was opened by His Excellency the Governor, and the cups won were distributed by Lady Davidson.

The Exhibition was a great success. There were 60 exhibitors showing 629 birds, and great credit is due to those who had charge of it.

The Association is greatly indebted to Lady Davidson and Messrs. Bowring Bros., Ltd., for silver cups for competitors this year, and also to the Dixie Feed Co., of Chicago, for silver cup for 1915.

The following cups have been won three years, and are now the bona-fide property of the winners.—Hon. W. C. Job's cup, for Barred Plymouth Rocks, won by W. Barker; Hon. J. Harris' cup, for White Plymouth Rocks, won by W. Reid; Percie Johnson, Esq.'s, cup, for White Wyandottes, won by M. McLeod, which leaves us without cups for some of the principal breeds. We hope that the interest will not wane, but that we will be able to report that other Cups have been donated, and that the competition will be as keen as ever.

The birds were judged by Mr. W. H. Henry, of Shubenacadie, who gave satisfaction to all, and the many visitors were agreeably surprised and delighted with the number and display of thorough-bred birds.

In March, the President, Mr. G. Gushue, gave a very interesting address on hatching and breeding chicken, and in April Mr. F. Blackall read a paper on Sprouting Oats.

In concluding this report and retiring from office, your Directors wish the Association abundant success during 1915.

Patriotism.

Patriotism in its truest spirit has been demonstrated by Messrs. J. B. Harris, H. King, R. Mercer and B. Allan who volunteered with the Second Contingent at the very outset. When going through their medical examination each was found to have some slight defect and rather than be turned down they entered the General Hospital to have the defects remedied. All four were operated on and three of them had toes amputated.

YOUR KING and COUNTRY WANT YOU

The above is one of the most popular of the many fine patriotic songs now being sung wherever the British flag flies. It has a sweet, pathetic melody and a tender appeal in the simple words. This song has been sung specially by Miss Maggie Teyte (the greatest British Prima Donna) for the Columbia Graphophone Company, who are paying a royalty on each record sold to the Prince of Wales' Patriotic Fund.

↑ We have just received a shipment of 2,000 Columbia Records direct from England—the largest consignment ever received in Newfoundland at one time—consisting chiefly of Patriotic Anthems, Marches and Songs. Among these are:—

God Save the King.

La Maresillaise.

Arrival of the British troops in France.

Russian National Anthem.

Belgian National Anthem.

My Bugler Boy.

Follow the Drum.

Bravo, Territorials.

Soldiers of the King (new version).

My Volunteer.

↑ Come and hear Miss Maggie Teyte sing "Your King and Country Want You" at the U. S. Picture & Portrait Co.

The Kaiser When A Boy.

Even when a child the Kaiser was a very precocious youth. The late Mr. W. P. Frith, the famous painter, used to tell a story of the Kaiser's childhood. Wilhelm, when a little boy, was staying with the artist, and on one occasion wiped so much color on his face when in the studio that Mr. Frith had to remove it with turpentine. This painful process annoyed the rebellious young prince, and at its conclusion he administered a violent kick to the surprised artist and then flung himself under a table, where he yelled until he was tired. While Mr. Frith's method of removing paint from the Kaiser's face was not altogether unlike our process of Dry Cleaning, we are exceedingly grateful that our patrons do not adopt the Emperor's way of showing their appreciation of our good services.
