THE HEIR OR Lancewood

CHAPTER XXXI.

"You would not forfeit them," he said. Miladi waved her white hand. "I should. If I married you tomorrow, you would spend my whole fortune, and when it was spent you would be the first to ill-use me. I decline the honor of being rendered penniless by you, Monsieur de Nouchet."

"I wish," said Miss Neslie, "that you would permit me to pass; with this unseemly dispute I have nothing whatever to do."

"Nay," said he. "I entreat you to remain. My lady, you have driven me to bay. You promised to marry me, and you have refused. I have you in my power. I tell you that unless you consent, I will betray you to Miss Neslie."

"A betrayer is always a coward," she observed.

"Then I will be a coward. I will tell her all. And then, presumptuous as you are, you will not dare to remain here."

"I shall remain here," said miladi. "Your betraying me is a matter of little moment now. My fortune is secure."

"His face grew frightful in its livid rage."

"I will tell all I know of you," he said, "unless you consent. Think again, Valerie—you shall have a gay, sunny, bright life in Paris. You know I love you, and will make you happy."

Miladi shrugged her shoulders.

"We will leave love out of the question," she said; "this is a matter of funds for gambling, and the betrayal of a friend."

"I have more patience with you," he hissed between his white lips, "than I thought I could have with any woman living."

"It is all of no use," said Lady Neslie. "Words are vain; threats, persuasions, are vain. I will not marry you. You want to marry me because you want my fortune to gamble with; you shall not have it. I would rather gamble it all away myself than give it to you."

He drew his watch from his pocket and laid it on the table between them.

"I give you just five minutes in which to reconsider your words. Lady Neslie, if you promise to marry me, you shall never regret it; if you refuse, I will tell Miss Neslie your story."

"Pray give me a chair," said miladi, laughing. "I am tired—I cannot stand for five minutes longer."

But he did not stir, and the others stood in silence, unbroken save by the faint ticking of the watch.

The scene was intensely dramatic. Outside a bright moon was shining, the dew lay on the sleeping flowers, the tall trees stood like huge sentinels.

els; inside the soft pearly light of the lamp filled the room with a warm glow, and shone upon the three faces. Never was there a more striking group—miladi, lovely, laughing, mocking, her gay dress and jewels seeming to attract all the light, her mouth curled in scorn, her eyes flashing defiance, yet gay and reckless; Vivien, with her picturesque velvet dress sweeping the ground, her grandly-beautiful face filled with noble disdain, tall, imperial, queenly; the Frenchman, agitated, pale, with white lips and burning eyes.

Never a word was spoken. Miladi stirred the air with her fan. Vivien's heart beat loud and fast; it seemed to her that she stood there holding the honor of her house in her hand. How slowly the minutes passed! What had she to hear when they were over?

"Now," said Monsieur de Nouchet, "the time is past; give me your answer, Lady Neslie."

"I refuse most absolutely to marry you," she replied.

He bowed, and Vivien thought she had never seen anything so terrible as his handsome, haggard, livid face. "You refuse; then I will keep my word. I pray you to listen, Miss Neslie, while I tell you Lady Neslie's story."

"I would rather not hear it; it comes to late," said Vivien, earnestly. "Lady Valerie is one of us now; if there are any secrets in her past life, let them lie buried."

"That is the most sensible speech you have ever made, Vivien; but really I do not mind—it can make no difference to me. Before Sir Arthur's death I persuaded, coaxed, conciliated; but now I am quite indifferent—nothing can touch my fortune. As for my position, we shall see what harm monsieur can do me."

"Valerie," he cried once more, "will you retract?"

She looked at him with burning eyes. "After you have threatened me! Coward, betrayer, I would not marry you to save my life!"

He turned to Vivien. "Miss Neslie," he said, "listen to me. This woman who mocks me so cruelly now was my first love. She was not Valerie D'Este, as she told your father, but Valerie Rolleux, the daughter of a grocer in Paris."

Miladi interrupted him with a little laugh.

"Miss Neslie will not be surprised to hear that. She never believed that I was a D'Este—did you, Vivien?"

The haughty disdain of the beautiful face was her only answer. Monsieur continued:

"Valerie was always pretty; her sister Marie, who passes here as her maid, always plain. I need not weary you, Miss Neslie, by telling you of the quiet home where this cold, cruel woman lived, or of her vanity, greater even than her beauty. I was the son of a notary living near, and as a child I madly loved her fair, laughing face. The quiet home did not long content her; against the prayers, the wishes of her parents, she left it, and when she was only fourteen she was known as the most daring rider in the most fashionable cirque in Paris. She travelled half over France with that circus, and then returned to Paris and promised—ah, madmen that I was to believe her!—to marry me. Her parents were dead then, and she had a little money. She took her only sister Marie as her maid and travelled abroad. She afterward returned to a Parisian boarding-house, and there met your father—Sir Arthur."

Vivien interrupted him. She did not look at the fair, false woman who had blighted her life, but the dark, earnest eyes were fixed on De Nouchet.

"If you do not mind," she said, "will you tell me how she duped my father?" I always knew that she had deceived him; I never knew how."

"Yes, I will tell you. When she found from the mistress of the house that a rich English baronet was staying there, she at once made up her mind. She caused herself to be introduced to him as Mademoiselle D'Este, a daughter of one of the younger branches of the D'Estes. She told him a sad little story about limited means and the painful position of an orphan girl. Sir Arthur, your father, permit me to say, Miss Neslie, was not very shrewd. She was very quick, very cunning; she was very fair and very charming. She had the face of an angel, the voice of a siren; he was indolent, and liked to be amused—she amused him. He did not take the trouble to inquire into her antecedents. He took all she said for granted, fell in love with and married her."

"But you, monsieur—what did you do?" asked Vivien. It annoyed her that her father should have been so easily duped—her poor dead father.

"What did I do, Miss Neslie? I had to submit. What could I do? When she told me of her resolve to marry a rich baronet, I knew that all I could say would be in vain. I will not grieve you by repeating what she promised. As to one thing she kept her word. After she was married she sent me continually handsome sums of money. She has been ungrudgingly generous to me."

"And you took it?" said Vivien. "Yes; I took it. It was the price of miladi's secret. I professed to believe her a D'Este. I said no word about her being a strolling player."

Miss Neslie held up her hands with an exclamation of horror.

"Hush!" she said. "Your words are terrible."

"They are true," he declared. "She was neither more nor less than a strolling player. I kept her secret—she paid me to do so. I read the notice of your father's death in the English papers, Miss Neslie, and then I wrote to her, reminding her of her promise. It was for that reason she came to Paris, and no other. You know what followed. She promised to marry me as soon as etiquette would permit, and in the meantime she invited me to the Abbey. Miss Neslie, she is there—ask her whether every word I have said is not true."

"There is no need to ask," said miladi, with careless, airy grace. "I do not deny it. Every word is true. What then?"

The proud indignation of the noble face, the measureless contempt in the dark eyes, would have silenced another—they produced no effect on Lady Neslie.

"You deceived him," said Vivien. "So much the worse for him. He should have been more on the alert," she observed. "I admit it all. I do not mind in the least about the exposure. I only cared to keep my affairs secret during Sir Arthur's life. Of course an exposure then would have been very awkward for me. He might have tried for a divorce, though I cannot see on what grounds. He would certainly have altered his will and left me penniless. Now that he is dead and my fortune secure, I am indifferent. You may have the story printed, Vivien," she added, "if you like; it will be a finishing touch to the honor of the Neslies—a strolling player, a grocer's daughter, mistress of Lancewood. It seems to me that infelling it you will bring more shame to yourself than to me." Then, turning from Miss Neslie, she looked at Henri de Nouchet. "As for you," she said, "traitor, coward, trader on a woman's secrets, go! Never while I live will I look upon your face again!—never will I address another word to you. Go from my presence, and take with you my contempt. You have done your worst. Do what you will, your power over me is ended; the strolling player, the grocer's daughter, has the honor of wishing Monsieur de Nouchet a lasting adieu."

With a smile parting the crimson lips, showing the pearly teeth and the pretty dimples in the white chin, with the light gleaming in her jewels, with an easy, careless grace all her own, miladi swept from the room, while the Frenchman looked after her with a curse.

"She has ruined my life. I have spent it as I should never have spent it but for her," he said. And so ghostly, so terrible was the despair on his face, that Vivien almost pitied him.

"What money do you want?" asked Vivien, curiously.

"Enough to take up my bills; I have some due now."

He seemed to shrink from the clear, bright glance of her dark eyes.

"Monsieur de Nouchet," said Miss Neslie, "I think you are a man utterly without principle. You have traded on a woman's secrets, you have been deceitful, mean, and dishonorable. I would not condescend to ask a favor from you, but I will purchase one. Write down for me all the money you owe. I will give you the amount on condition that you tell no other person what you have told to me, and that you never mention Lady Neslie's name again. This I do," she added, "not in the least from any motive of compassion for you, but to save the honor of the Neslies."

CHAPTER XXXII.
Lady Neslie returned to her guests with a calm, unruffled face, as though nothing had happened—indeed, Henri de Nouchet's exposure of her to Miss Neslie troubled her very little. No one could send her from Lancewood or take her fortune away. It was true, Vivien might and probably would say some very unpleasant things, but then words were only air—they could not hurt her.

"Henri's revenge has come to nothing after all," thought miladi; "and I am really glad to have had the chance of quarrelling with him. How could I have ever fancied that I loved him. How foolish girls are!"

The grand exhibition of fireworks came to an end, the banquet was over, the dancers, wearied and tired, had gone home; no one noticed that the handsome Frenchman who had been her ladyship's shadow had vanished. The exhausted servants had gone to their rooms; my lady, gay and brilliant to the last, had at length allowed her tired sister to escape. The whole household slept except she who had once been its mistress. Vivien Neslie was half bewildered by the horror of what she had heard, though it did not take her by surprise. She had always doubted Lady Neslie. Her brilliant beauty and airy grace could not conceal the fact that she was not a thorough-bred lady. Vivien would not have been surprised had the reality been even more terrible. Her whole soul seemed to die within her. Alas for Lancewood—proud, stately Lancewood! Evil and dark were the days that had dawned on it. A strolling player—Vivien shuddered as she said the words to herself—to take her mother's place—what shame! Never until now had she known the depths of her love for her ancient home, or her pride in it. She was in despair.

Trace Diabetes to the Pancreas.

New light is thrown upon the origin of diabetes by the discoveries of Drs. Samuel J. Meltzer and I. S. Kleiner, N. Y. city, who are associated with the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research.

They find much to support the belief that the grave malady is due to the failure of the pancreas to secrete a liquid which in the healthy person aids in the elimination of surplus dextrose from the system.

The announcement is made in the proceedings of the National Academy of sciences recently published in Washington and is in the form of an article bearing the signatures of the two physicians.

Diabetes is a disease of which the cause has always been considered obscure, the pathology uncertain and the treatment unsatisfactory.

1350-1356. WAIST-1350. SKIRT-1356.

A Charming Summer Dress.

Composed of Ladies' Waist Pattern, 1350, and Ladies' Skirt Pattern, 1356. As here illustrated, white taffeta was employed in the making, with pipings of new blue on the free edges. The waist has new style features. The sleeve in short length is finished in bell style, and trimmed with buttons to correspond with those on the waist front. The skirt is composed of double flounce sections, that may be finished with deep scalloped or straight lower edges. For poplin, linen, organdy, lawn, dimity, voile or crepe, this design is very attractive. The waist is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. The Skirt in 6 sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches waist measure. It requires 7 1/2 yards of 36 inch material with 1 1/4 yard of lining for the foundation skirt, for a medium size. The skirt measures about 3 1/2 yards at lower edge of lower flounce.

This illustration calls for TWO separate patterns which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. FOR EACH pattern in silver or stamps.

1344—A SMART DRESS FOR MORNING OR HOME WEAR.

Ladies' House Dress with or without Collar, with Sleeve in Wrist or Elbow Length, and with Skirt in Raised or Normal Waistlines.

This neat and trim little model is good for linen, lawn, gingham, repp, poplin, voile, chambrey, ratine or percale. It is also nice for tub silk, taffeta, cotton crepe, corduroy, seersucker or galatea. In white pique with pipings of a smart bright color, it will make a very chic frock. The lines are new and attractive. The shaped yoke is a new style feature, and the sleeve is good in wrist or elbow length. The skirt is a four gore model, and may be joined to the waist at raised or normal waistline. The Pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 8 yards of 27 inch material for a 36 inch size. The skirt measures about 2 1/2 yards at the foot.

Capt. Finch, Lieut. in the Royal Naval Reserve, was in command. He is a veteran skipper, having sailed in the Pacific for years out of San Francisco.

A report from the British steamer Macgolia, said that the British steamer Dansey, had also been torpedoed, but some time after the Arabic went down she was still afloat, and picking up survivors. The Dansey is 5,300 tons gross and left Liverpool yesterday for Boston.

The Arabic was bound for New York. On her last eastward trip the Arabic arrived in Liverpool on Aug. 6th from New York. Following the receipt of a cablegram announcing her safe arrival, the bureau of combustibles of New York City, allowed the fact to become known that sticks of dynamite had been discovered on board the liner on July 27th, the night before she sailed from New York for Liverpool.

According to reports owing the Arabic boats to Queenstown says that there were 22 Americans in second cabin and 3 in steerage.

According to survivors the Arabic was torpedoed without warning. Excellent discipline prevailed. Twenty-one boats were lowered. Apparently all, except those that were empty were picked up.

In later announcements the White Star Office gives the list of lives lost as 6 passengers and 25 of the crew, adding that it is impossible to state definitely whether any Americans are among the lost.

SERBINO TORPEDOED.

LONDON, Aug. 19. The British steamer Serbino, of Hull, has been torpedoed. She was 2,205 tons.

KITCHENER INSPECTS WESTERN FRONT.

PARIS, Aug. 19. A joint inspection of parts of the western battle line was made on Monday by Kitchener and M. Millerand, French War Minister. They were accompanied part of the time by General Joffre and Sir John French. The military leaders paid particular attention to conditions in Champagne and the Vosges. An official note which gives details of the trips says that Kitchener and Millerand were greatly pleased by the splendid appearance of the troops and their high morale. Several conferences were held, but the nature of these is not disclosed.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19. The allied governments have agreed on the principle that cotton is contraband of war. The exact date when this announcement shall be made is still under consideration.

FRENCH STATEMENT.

PARIS, Aug. 19. The French War Office this afternoon gave out the following statement: There was much activity last night on the Artois front. An attack by our forces made us masters of the junction of high roads between Bethune and Arras, and between Ablain and Angres, where the German position constituted a salient into our advance line. Several counter attacks on the part of the enemy were repulsed. The north coast of the Somme was successful in repulsing attacks made with hand grenades and bombs. In the region of Perles and Adifer, infantry firing continued yesterday. There was also cannonading between the Oise and the Aisne, in the section of Bially, as well as on the plateau of Queenneviers and Nourvon. In the Artois our artillery put an end to activities of enemy batteries and bomb throwers in the vicinity of Fontaine aux Charnes as well as in the region of Marie Therese. In the Vosges there was yesterday a violent and continued engagement on the summit of the Oise and the Aisne, in the section of Bially, as well as on the plateau of Queenneviers and Nourvon.

BERLIN, Aug. 19. (By wireless to Tuckerton, N.J.)—On August 17th at two o'clock, five boats of one of our torpedo boat flotillas attacked a small modern British cruiser and eight torpedo boat destroyers near Harmer's Lightship on the west coast of Jutland, and sank the cruiser and one destroyer with torpedoes. Our forces had no losses. During the night of the 17th and 18th, our naval airships again attacked London. London City and important Thames establishments were liberally bombarded and good results were observed. In addition factories and furnaces at Woodberg and Ipswich were bombarded. The airships suffered no damage despite the severe fire, and returned.

BRITISH THEATRE.

Madame Olive Timmons will sing the celebrated and ever popular songs "Fiddle and I" and "Bonnie Sweet Bessie," at the week-end entertainments which will be given at the British Theatre commencing to-day. Five most excellent photo-plays have been chosen which will be thoroughly enjoyed as each one is a work of art. The usual big programme will be given for the children.

"THE POISONED BIT."

A great two reel Edison feature is the headliner at the Crescent Picture Palace. "Andy and the Redskins" is an Andy story by Mark Swan featuring Andy Clark and Kate Price. "The Opal's Curse" is a very strong drama by the Edison Company. "Lizette the Life Saver" features Ruth Roland and Lloyd V. Hamilton, the Kalem Comedy pair. Mr. Harvey Collins, Irish tenor, sings to-day—"When You're a Long, Long Way From Home." Go to the Crescent to-day and enjoy this big show. It costs no more.

OURS IN THE WEST END.

Always a big crowd at the popular little house at the West End; first class pictures, good songs always new, dainty costumes and everything up to date and first class at Rossley's West End Theatre.

THE RUSSELLS BEST EVER.

The crowd at Rossley's last night were more than delighted with the splendid programme provided. Jack Russell in his single turn sang two great songs. His song on the tramp was a perfect masterpiece; he is an actor as well as the greatest vocalist ever heard in St. John's; lovers of the artistic appreciate him. One of the best turns ever seen at Rossley's and that's saying something. The great racing sketch, "A Tip on the Cup," is one that should please all; it is full of humorous situations and had the crowd in roars. Jack Russell is busy on a great patriotic song that will appeal to all with one of the greatest novelties ever seen. On Saturday the Royal Punch and July Six will be the featured attraction. A performing dog, Don, the children's delight; don't miss The Russells to-night.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Benson and their daughters, who had been on a visit to Mrs. Benson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rogers, left on Tuesday for their home in Montreal.

The Methodist Sunday School picnic was held yesterday afternoon. Shortly after the children arrived at the appointed place a shower of rain forced all to go to the school hall, where the weather was a very pleasant evening was spent.

The thunder storm on Tuesday evening was very heavy here, but we are glad to say no damage was done.

The body of the young man Munden Bray, referred to a couple of days ago, arrived from Sydney by Monday evening's train. The funeral took place on Tuesday and was attended by the brethren of Rising Sun L.O.A., No. 1, of which the deceased was a member.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Whiteway, of St. John's, are in town on a visit to friends. They are guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Parsons. Mr. Whiteway's very many friends are pleased to see him, and wish him well. Father Time is treating him.

The heavy downpour of rain on Monday night or Tuesday morning caused ruts to be cut in the streets in different parts of the town. It would be well if the Road Board could remedy this at once, and also the gratings should be cleared of the sand, etc., that is choking them. This little repairs would probably save greater damage should another downpour of rain visit us in the near future.

The schr. Studland is now on dock undergoing repairs, after which she will go coasting for a time.

Miss Kitty Croucher is in town the guest of Ex-Inspector and Mrs. Bailey.

The Electric Light Co. notified the public early in the week that owing to necessary repairs to the dam and flume, they would be forced to shut off the power from Wednesday night at 12 o'clock until to-morrow night. There has been very little inconvenience of late, and the company is to be congratulated on its good work. We think it an excellent plan to let the public know when repairs are to be made, as the company did in this, and other instances.

Announces Cure for Meningitis.

Melbourne, via London.—The discovery of a specific for cerebro-spinal meningitis was announced to-day by Dr. Richard Bull, director of the bacteriological laboratory of the University of Melbourne. Dr. Bull stated that eucalyptus would destroy the germ.

The treatment of cerebro-spinal meningitis has long presented a serious problem for medical science. Up to a comparatively short time ago it may be said that there was no effective treatment for this disease, known popularly as "spotted fever," or "the black death."

The introduction of serum therapy, however, offered hope of combating the disease successfully. In the epidemic in New York in 1905 the serum of Dr. Flexner and Dr. Jobling was used with striking success among young patients. The death rate where serum was employed fell to 46.8 per cent. compared with 90 per cent. without its use. In the nineteenth century there were serious epidemics of this disease over Europe and in the eastern part of the United States.

The medicinal properties of the oil obtained from leaves of the eucalyptus tree long have been recognized. It has been used in treatment of microbial diseases of the lungs and bronchi and employed as an antiseptic.

ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND, AUGUST 20, 1915.

SHELL - MAKING In Newfoundland.

During his recent visit to Ottawa, Mr. F. W. Angel had several interviews with Mr. Thomas, the Munitions Agent for the British Government on this side the Atlantic. Mr. Angel has secured an order for 40,000 shells, and since his return by the Stephano yesterday has been busy getting the business in order. He is seeking capital, and when it is secured, some $50,000, will get the plant together and set to work to manufacture shells. Mr. Angel should experience no difficulty in raising the capital in a community which has subscribed over $50,000 for aeroplanes and machine guns. Newfoundland has done well in supplying men, and money for aeroplanes and machine guns, and now has a chance to supply munitions, which is the great need of the day. We wish Mr. Angel immediate success in his efforts. Time is all important in the supply of munitions. The greater the supply and the sooner it is forthcoming the sooner the war will be over, and now Newfoundland has a chance to do her "bit" in this respect. The response we expect will be immediate and prompt, as the business is not only a patriotic one but affords a safe, sure and profitable investment, besides affording good work to a number of our mechanics.

Cotton as Contraband

News comes from Washington that the Entente Allies have agreed on the principle that cotton is a contraband of war, and that the date of the official announcement has not yet been determined. This course is not unexpected, either by the entente people, Americans or Germans. The justification of the course is based on the fact that cotton is used to make gun-cotton, and that it forms the basis of many explosives. Under the blockade most of the cotton imported by Germany directly into its own country has been cut off, but the imports of cotton from neutral countries contiguous to Germany, has been far in excess during the year of the war of what it was during the year immediately preceding the war.

It seems to us that American cotton destined for the use of Germany for military purpose will come under the second class, and can be declared contraband by the Entente Allies. There is a suggestion, however, of paying for certain cargoes of cotton rather than to condemn and seize them, as the Allies would be entitled to do if they made it contraband.

Found Bomb on Liner Arabic.

(New York Journal, Aug. 6.)
Despite insistent denials of the police for the last few days, it was admitted to-day at Police Headquarters that two sticks of dynamite, weighing about half a pound each, had been found on a cabin on the steamer Arabic, of the White Star Line, which sailed for Liverpool on July 28. The dynamite was found the day before the steamer sailed by a steward. It was between the hot and cold water pipes under a wash basin and was wrapped in two pieces of newspaper. It was in such a state of deterioration that the slightest jar would have caused an explosion, the nitro-glycerine having soaked through the paper. Following the finding of the dynamite the police were notified and the explosive was taken to Police Headquarters, where it was later turned over to Inspector Owen Egan, of the Bureau of Combustibles. Egan said the dynamite, had it exploded, would have caused great damage.

Find is Kept Secret.
In notifying the police, the steamship officials asked that nothing be made public, as publicity would cause an unnecessary scare among the passengers, and after an exhaustive search was made on the liner, without result, the police agreed to make nothing public. The persistent rumors of a bomb being found in one of the consults, however, forced the police to make public the fact of the finding of the dynamite. "The Arabic arrived safely in Liverpool at 4 p.m., English time, according to a telegram received by me this afternoon, said C. W. Thomas, general manager of the White Star Line. "She had an uneventful voyage. As to the discovery of the dynamite—two sticks were found on the night of July 27. A search was promptly made by private detectives and the police, but no other explosives were discovered. It was not until we were absolutely certain of this that the ship was allowed to sail."

F. SMALLWOOD, The Home of Good Shoes.

A Great Dictionary Maker.

"Sir James Murray, editor of the 'New English Dictionary,' has just died at Oxford. In spite of failing health he was working to the last, and only a week or two ago produced an instalment of the tenth and last volume of the great Dictionary, bringing it to the phrase 'turn-down,'" says the Times.

Sir James was seventy-eight years old, having been born at Denholm, near Hawick, in 1837.

The story of the origin of his famous dictionary is thus told by the Times:—

At Mill Hill.
"When Mill Hill School was reopened under the headmastership of Dr. Weymouth, Murray, who had married, in 1867, as his second wife, Ada Agnes, the eldest daughter of George Rutuvan, of Kendal, went there for fifteen years. These he always regarded as the most delightful years of his life, his 'golden age,' his Arcadian period.

"That he should edit a dictionary was first suggested to Murray by Messrs. Macmillan, but it was not till 1878 that the work was begun.

He then came into touch with the Oxford delegates. Terms were arranged on the condition that Murray should be editor, and an agreement was entered into. It was then contemplated that the dictionary would be finished in a very limited time and would occupy only a very limited number of volumes. It was Mrs. Murray who decided the acceptance of the offer; she took the view that her husband, instead of doing a number of small things, should do one great thing. But it proved a tremendous task.

Murray's Special Gift.
"Dr. Murray was fitted for his work not so much by a special as what may be called a general genius with great natural variety and versatility of bent and powers. He had, both in his education and in his experience, cultivated his talents on many lines. In addition to his early love and gift for languages, he was also, from the first, an excellent mathematician. He had made himself in his early years at Hawick a thorough botanist, learning to know the British species, and by degrees collecting most of them. He was also something of a zoologist, and had done dissections on his own account. In geology he showed up less competence. As secretary to the Philological Society he explored the neighbourhood and became acquainted with the leading geologists, among them Sir Archibald Geikie and his brother.

"His wife and himself always thought that the dictionary was going to be finished in a limited time, but that over 100,000 words have thus been gone through. The quotations extracted number more than 5,000,000. Of these about one million appear in the dictionary. The process of selection has been difficult, and involved a great expenditure of time. It would have been easier to print them all. All have been kept, and could be made available for the student of the dictionary in its existence, and show the future or for any further amplification.

GEO. M. BARR.

He had faith that the dictionary would, in the long run, though it might be a very long run, ultimately pay. "Anyhow, I must see it to the end," he said.

"The recognition of the dictionary is now universal. It has been frequently quoted and made use of in Parliament. Sir Courtenay Inbert consulted Sir James about the history of the Parliamentary term 'Whip.' It was no uncommon thing for him to receive telegrams from the Law Courts, asking for an immediate decision or advice as to the use of some special term.

The Scriptorium.
"When he began work at Mill Hill he only had "one assistant. The material collected by the Philological Society had been gradually handed over to Dr. Furnivall. His house was crammed with it so that it was almost impossible to go up the stairs. There was literally tons of stuff in sacks, and it took considerable time to transfer it to Mill Hill. When it got there it was all placed in one room, but the room was so full it was impossible to deal with it, and it became clear that some additional space was required. At first they thought of using a cottage adjoining the house, but the risk of fire had to be considered, and Lady Murray finally proposed the erection of an iron house to reduce the risk. This was the first scriptorium. No fire has ever occurred while the scriptorium has been in use, but the old scriptorium which was left at Mill Hill and no longer employed for its purposes was, as it happened burnt down. A new memorial building has been erected there to commemorate its existence."

Later on a new scriptorium was built at Oxford—a building which roused Ruskin's ire.

"Untrusting in his capacity for taking pains and always laboriously accurate, he made the dictionary the most authoritative and important work of his kind ever undertaken," says the Morning Post. "It will be the basis of all future English dictionaries as well as the model for similar works in foreign languages."

Quite an Experience.

In a letter to his sister, under August 9th, Tony Evans, writes of this city, but now of New York, of an experience which he had on a trip from Rockaway Beach, New York, the ship almost met the same fate as that of the Easton on the Chicago River some time ago. On board the Grand Republic were 3,300 persons, including men, women and children. A drunken brawl started and the passengers in their anxiety to see the fight rushed to the starboard side of the ship, causing her to list heavily. With the sudden remembrance of the Eastland tragedy of a few weeks previous, the passengers became greatly excited and a riot ensued, the captain bravely endeavoring to draw revolvers to restrain order. When the ship reached the pier over 100 lady passengers were taken ashore in an unconscious condition.

Very little has been done with the fishery since the recent storm; trapping has been practically a failure, one trap only securing thirty herrings, since the storm, and virtually nothing with hook.

Mount Saint Vincent

AS AN EDUCATIONAL INSTITU- TION FOR YOUNG LADIES.

Successes Derived by Some of the Pupils the Past Year.

Although the happy vacation days are only seemingly begun, and school books but so lately cast aside, yet anxious parents are already consid- ering what is best and most profitable in the educational line for the com- ing scholastic year. War, in its dire consequences, has called our young men away, and the positions they filled are now requiring substitutes. Are our young ladies getting ready to fill them? Female minds and hands must be ready for this imperative de- mand, and by the discipline and train- ing of a solid and advanced education fit themselves to accomplish the pro- posed tasks worthily.
The Academy of Mount St. Vincent now offers all the necessary require- ments for fitness to any avocation re- quired. With a complete curriculum for any branch of education, an equip- ment for scientific, classical and com- mercial studies, we are ready to co- operate with all claimants, and give to our patrons complete satisfaction in any department they ambition. The fine arts, music, painting, the modern languages are all at the command of youthful aspirants, and can be brought to successful issue under the tutelage of competent and systematic instruc- tors. The lovers of the drama and impersonation can here find most in- spiring incentive. Each year scenes from Shakespeare and other classical plays are represented, and varied programmes of instrumental and vo- cal music, with the addition of a fine orchestra, prepare the pupils to find in programmes so often in demand for benevolent purposes.
Then the requirements for domestic aptitudes are not neglected, and an allotted time each morning is given for household duties, which are re- quired to be accomplished with great neatness and precision. Needle work is a special and much prized branch, and plain and ornamental work claim at least one-half hour daily from each pupil.
As health is the first requisite for the successful pursuit of study, ev- erything is done to promote and pre- serve it. Outdoor sports of all kinds and a well equipped gymnasium aid in the development of the system of the young student, and prevent the strain that otherwise might result from ex- acting and heavy study. The situa- tion of this Academy is unrivalled; nature here furnishes her most at- tractive charms of wood and lawn, lake and ocean scene, all tending to develop the artistic and to give in- spiration to the youthful literary as- pirant.
As all claims to proficiency are measured by success, we add the following report as the result of last year's work.
In the Collegiate Department, one of the Academy's students secured B. A. on the London University examina- tions; one was awarded M. A. at Dal- housie University; four others passed second year tests of the same Univer- sity, with excellent marks. By an ar- rangement under consideration with the Dalhousie authorities, the Mount St. Vincent collegiate training is to be recognized as giving the first and second years of the Arts Course, while the third and fourth years of the same course are to be given at the Academy, under the Professors of the Univer- sity.
The Provincial A. Class, of thirteen registered students, all succeeded with excellent percentages, the highest being 80. Several of the class, includ- ing the graduates, Miss Lena Auld and Lillian McQuinn, scored teachers' passes. Miss Marjory McDougall, the winner of the English medal, donated by His Royal Highness, the Governor- General of Canada, received 92 per cent. in English Literature. The young ladies who applied for B were also successful.
The last boat from England brought the welcome news of success to the Commercial class at the Academy. The pupils wrote the speed test, and of the class of 34 pupils there was not one failure. Each pupil received a beautiful diploma from Sir Isaac Pitman & Sons, and to crown the work the class was awarded a bronze medal by the same Institute. It was merited by Miss Mary McInnis, of Dominion, C.B.; she attained the highest mark, 100 per cent., writing on political matter one hundred words a minute for five consecutive minutes. Some of the successful competitors whose marks rank highest are:
Mary McInnis, Dominion—Speed test.
Catherine Cummings, Boston—Speed and theory.
Marie Penney and Evelyn Quinn, both of New Brunswick—Speed and theory.
Laure L'Esperance and Marie L'Es- perance, of Quebec—Speed & theory.

Margaret O'Sullivan, Halifax—Speed and theory.
Marjory Wakely, Halifax—Speed & theory.

THE TORPEDING OF THE ARABIC.

LONDON, The big White Star Line Arabic, formerly a favorite ship in Liverpool and Boston, which on the present trip was way to New York, was torpedoed by a German submarine on Thursday morning. The steamer, to a statement of the White Star, was attacked without warning, went down in ten minutes, and only six passengers were accounted for being to only six passengers were missing. Whether any of the accounted for are Americans yet been determined, but the only 26 citizens of the United States on board, 22 being in the cabin and four in the steering Arabics carried no first class passengers, having lately been turned into a two-class liner. Survivors of the steamer in the ship's hold were picked up later by passing steamers and arrived in Queenstown. They are being accommodated in the White Star hotel and houses in the little town. A short time ago care for the orphans of the dead Lusitania, the sinking of the Arabic, but that the loss of life was in no way lessened by the weather was fine and the steamers plying in German waters now keep the boats safe and otherwise prepared for such. The torpedo which was fired by the Arabic struck her on the side, one hundred feet from the stern, and she was disabled. The vessel left Liverpool on the day afternoon, and was seen by a German vessel off the Irish coast. When a view of avoiding the mine, which was laid in the shore. When some 400 miles west of where the Lusitania was sunk in May, the German undersea vessel, the marksmanship of the man, as in the case of the Arabic, was deadly. The Arabic was shortly disappeared from view. Survivors, according to reports received here, saw the Arabic, and witnessed the torpedoing of the steamer, presumably the Arabic, that this caused a great loss of life. The Arabic had 250 passengers who had rushed to the lifeboats and had barely time to get into them when the German vessel had turned its torpedo against the vessel's side. Ten lifeboats were seen, and the number of lifeboats were over the side of the steamer. These a large number of passengers and members of the crew were rescued. Many passengers on board the Arabic were rescued. The water but they got hold of and clung to them and were rescued. One woman fell into the sea and screamed piteously for help. The other and tidal conditions being able, the sailors swam to her and succeeded in lifting her on a raft. Among those who were rescued were Capt. Will E. Douglas, the well known English chief engineer, surgeon, assistant purser, chief steward, Douglas was on the Arabic when she was sunk. His good luck followed him all day, for he is among the few who were rescued. When the news of the sinking of the Arabic was received in London late this afternoon, a tremendous sensation was created. It was feared the number of passengers had been small. Crowds soon gathered at the Star office making enquiries and relatives who had taken on board. Reassuring news shortly by wireless, however, to the effect that some 150 of the Arabic were rescued and had been picked up and

RUTH CAMERON

"I don't believe dogs really bury their bones." The woman who made that astonishing statement never owned a dog. More over, she has (as you can well imagine) no acquaintance with dogs or their habits. And yet she calmly asserted that sweeping asse-

I quote it not for its value as a contribution to natural history, but because it is an excellent illustration of the habit of mind and speech of a certain type.

Proof Doesn't Bother Them At All.

You know the type I mean don't you—the kind of person who is continually making dogmatic assertions on various subjects of which he knows nothing or next to nothing, with a calm finality that no argument, no, nor proof either, can ever shake.

A man whose mind is of this type was told by another man of a government report on white-slavery that the latter had read. The first man had not read it, nor any other matter on the subject. He didn't need to, you see, because he knew all about it without reading.

Men as Well as Women in This Class.

"I don't believe there is any such thing as white-slavery," was his summing up of the situation. That was his decision, made with a calm finality that seemed to put the facts in the case out of court.

Some of the people dogmatize about matters that cannot be settled either one way or the other, because they are matters of individual opinion. Of these is a woman who when the question of separation comes up, says, "There are no possible conditions under which separation is desirable." Not "I don't think there are," which would be a fairly broad statement, but simply, "There are none."

There is something absolutely maddening about this type of person.

Why Do These People Exasperate Us So? Theoretically one should recognize the fact that they are hopeless and simply let them alone. But somehow this does not seem to be entirely satisfactory.

I have been trying to analyze the peculiar exasperation they cause, and I have decided that it is because they fill us with a sense of their inaccessibility and our own impotence. One ought to be able to reach a human being with reason, and one cannot reach them that way. Now nothing is so exasperating as a sense of impotence.

Reason is that faculty which distinguishes man from the beast. How can anyone refuse to use it?

"Don't Worry."

Don't worry about things that you can't help. Worry kills success, some people are worrying all the time about some things that have happened or might happen. Drive out of your mind completely your past troubles and misfortunes, they cannot be helped now.

Usually the coming events that you worry so much about are not really so bad as they actually happen, and many times the thing most dreaded and worried about never happens. You will get a lot of undesirable things passed out to you in your life which you can't help, and all the worrying you do over them is simply a waste of energy, which might be better employed in the solution of problems of real help to your present and future.

A better preparation is not to be found for helping you to get over all your unnecessary worries than:—

Vessel Leaking Badly

AND IS BEACHED AT COW HEAD, (Western Star.)

The schr. Alice Lake, Capt. Granly, of Fortune, has been abandoned at Cow Head. She was fishing on the banks of the river, when she was struck by a leak, and the pumps were unable to keep her from sinking. The vessel was headed for Cow Head, and by the time she reached there the water was up over the cabin floor. In order to save the cargo, the crew, under the command of the captain, decided to beach her on the reef. Capt. Granly is standing by the craft, but her crew came to the aid of the vessel, and will be sent to their homes to-day.

Meigle's Report.

(Western Star.)

The s.s. Meigle returned from north yesterday afternoon, after making a fairly good run to and from Battle Harbor, and calling at intermediate ports. On the Labrador side of the Straits there is not much doing with fish at present, except at one or two places where there is a little cod to be had with jiggers. The trapping season is over, and fishermen have to resort to gill net and hook and line. Job's crews at Blanc Sablon, have taken about 8,000 qts. of cod for the season, and they are now busy trying to get it cured. Penny's, at Isle au Bois, have done fairly well; yet there are a number of crews with not more than thirty quintals of fish each. About Port aux Chênes, on the Newfoundland coast, there is a fair sign of cod yet, and boats do well when they can get on the grounds. The Meigle brought down a great many passengers, among whom were several fishing crews and a number of tourists.

To keep a pet palm in order, the leaves should be sponged carefully every week. Don't water palms too often; let the earth become dry, then soak it liberally.

THE TORPEDING OF THE ARABIC.

LONDON, To-day. The big White Star Line steamer Arabic, formerly a favorite ship in the Liverpool and Boston service, but which on the present trip was on the way to New York, was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine at 9.15 o'clock on Thursday morning, S.E. of the Fastnet. The steamer, according to a statement of the White Star Line, was attacked without warning, and went down in ten minutes. Four hundred and twenty-three persons were on board, 181 passengers, and 242 members of the crew; 22 are missing and are believed to have perished. Most of those who have not been accounted for are believed to have been on board, but there were only 26 citizens of the United States on board, 22 being in the second cabin and four in the stateroom. The Arabic carried no first class passengers, having lately been turned into a two-class liner. Survivors who left the steamer in the ship's boats were picked up later by passing vessels and arrived in Queenstown last night, they are being accommodated by the White Star Line hotels and boarding houses in the little town which no short time ago cared for the survivors of the dead Lusitania. Details of the sinking of the Arabic are lacking, but it is doubtless due to the fact that the weather was fine and that the steamers plying in German submarine zone now keep the boats swung out and otherwise prepared for emergencies. The torpedo which sank the Arabic struck her on the starboard side, one hundred feet from her stern. The vessel left Liverpool on Wednesday afternoon, and taking a southerly course well off the Irish coast, doubtless with a view of avoiding submarines, when she was struck by the torpedo. The marksmanship of the German, as in the case of the Lusitania, was deadly accurate. Like the Lusitania the big liner quickly settled, and shortly disappeared from view. Some survivors, according to reports received here, say that they had just witnessed the torpedoing of a British steamer, presumably the Dundsey and that this caused a great alarm on board the Arabic. In their fright the passengers who had rushed for life preservers and had barely adjusted them when the German submarine had turned its torpedo against the vessel's side. Ten life boats and a number of life rafts were cast over the side of the steamer. Into these a large number of passengers and members of the crew scrambled. Many passengers however fell into the water but they got hold of rafts and clung to them and later were rescued. One woman fell into the sea and screamed pitifully for help. Weather and tidal conditions being favorable, the sailors swam to her assistance and succeeded in lifting her up on a raft. Among those who were rescued were Capt. Will Finch, commander of the Arabic, and the chief engineer, surgeon, purser, assist purser, chief steward and third class steward. Third engineer Lagon is among the missing. One of the passengers on board was Kenneth Douglas, the well known English actor, Douglas was on the Lusitania when she was sent to the bottom. His good luck followed him again today, for he is among the survivors. When the news of the sinking reached London late this afternoon, it caused a tremendous sensation. First reports stated it was feared that a large number of passengers had been lost. Crowds soon gathered at the White Star office making enquiries of friends and relatives who had taken passage on board. Reassuring news came shortly by wireless, however, it was to the effect that some 15 or 16 boats and life rafts left the steamer safely and had been picked up and were being towed into Queenstown. Later private telegrams brought news from most passengers that they were safe, although some of them were injured. Capt. Finch was formerly of the Pacific Mail Service, but for some years has been commander of the Arabic, the largest steamer yet sunk by the Germans with the exception of the Lusitania.

"DELIBERATELY UNFRIENDLY."

NEW YORK, To-day. Under the caption of "Deliberately Unfriendly," the New York Tribune says: In every detail the German attack upon the Arabic fulfills President Wilson's definition of an act deliberately unfriendly to the United States. Since this is the case only one road remains open to Mr. Wilson. There is only one course that he can follow with dignity and with honor, without delay of any further diplomatic exchange whatsoever. The German Ambassador in Washington should receive his passports. The American Ambassador in Berlin should be recalled. It is time to have done with a nation which has repeatedly every scrap of international law. It is time to have done with a State which has adopted a policy which is alike a challenge to humanity and the negation of all that civilization means. The time has now come to act. To talk further is to encourage, not to avoid murder. It is to compound with infamy and continue relations with savagery. It is to write ourselves down as willing observance of neutral rights in this official matter, and was frankly told that the repetition by the commanders of German naval vessels of acts in contravention of those rights must be regarded by the Government of the United States as deliberately unfriendly. The New York Sun says: Facts more than adjectives are important. In considering yesterday's culminating achievement of the Von Tirpitz policy, supposing the worst, and Heaven grant that the worst be not true, we have Germany's answer not in words, but in a trifling deed, a friendly relations between the two countries cannot continue to be maintained if these wrongs continue to be perpetrated. The Herald says: exact thirty days ago the Government of the United States sent to the Government of Germany a friendly but firm note setting forth for the third time its unalterable attitude towards acts of German submarines which had previously characterized as so absolutely contrary to the rules, practices and spirit of modern warfare. To the note Germany has sent no reply through channels of diplomacy. Is the torpedoing of the Arabic, Germany's reply? Is Germany's answer one of open defiance?

LIST OF SURVIVORS.

QUEENSTOWN, To-day. United States Consul Thompson stated this morning that there were 21 American citizens in the cabin and stateroom passengers on the Arabic; sixteen of these have been accounted for thus far. Capt. Finch gave a detailed account of the loss of the liner: "We were forty-seven miles South of Galley Head at 9.30 o'clock a.m., said he, when I perceived the steamer Dundsey in difficulty. Going towards here, I observed a torpedo coming for my ship, but could not discover the submarine. The torpedo struck one hundred feet from the vessel's stern, making a terrible havoc of the hull. The vessel began to settle immediately, and sunk in about eight minutes. My order from the bridge about getting the boats launched was promptly obeyed, but two boats capsized. We had taken every precaution while in the danger zone, there were plenty of life belts on deck, and the boats were ready for immediate launching. My officers and crew all behaved excellently, and did everything possible in their circumstances, getting people into boats and picking up those in the sea. It was the last to leave, taking a plunge into the sea as the ship was going down. After being in the water for some time I got on board a raft to which I also assisted two men and a woman. Captain Finch paid tribute to the heroic conduct of several engineers and firemen, who remained at their post to the last and sacrificed their lives to execute the orders from the bridge thus insuring the safety of passengers. Among those lost was the captain's nephew, but I had been given a little more time by the submarine," he said regretfully. "I am satisfied I could have saved everybody."

THE LONDON BUDGET.

LONDON, To-day. The sinking of the White Star liner Arabic with the loss, it is feared, of some fifty lives and valuable cargo completely overshadowed all other news of the war, in spite of the continued German advance on the eastern front, seriously endangering a portion of the Russian army, which must soon have its effect on other fronts. Berlin reports to-day claim the fortress of Kovno has fallen, compelling the Russians in the Kalwarya and Suwalki districts on the East Prussian frontier to fall back. In fact the Russians now appear to be able to hold their own only in the Baltic Provinces, where they are preventing the Germans from advancing. Besides the capture of Kovno, the Germans have taken additional Novo Georgievsk forts and according to their account have penetrated the outer positions of Brest Litovsk, the great fortress which is the mainstay of what was expected to be the Russians' new line of defence. There is no evidence yet of Grand Duke Nicholas' intentions, but military writers are of opinion that the swiftness of the German advance rendered it impossible for him to make a stand in the Brest Litovsk line which already has virtually been turned by Field Marshal Von Mackensen in the south and by his colleagues in the north. The French have scored two successes in the West taking a portion of the German trench in RUSSIA MAY MOVE CAPITAL TO MOSCOW - BALKAN DIFFICULTIES BEING SOLVED.

LONDON, To-day. The possibility of the removal of the Russian seat of government to Moscow is discussed by the Post's Petrograd correspondent, who says the Russians are calmly considering the enormous advantages to the permanent well-being of the Empire, if forthcoming events should compel the removal of the capital inland to Moscow. The premier capital still is the nerve centre of the Empire upon which all railways converge. A Paris dispatch to the Havas Agency from Berné says according to information from semi-official Serbian sources here, Serbia has accepted the conditions of the Allies and will consent to the occupation of Macedonia by the Allies in exchange for the section of the Balkanian coast and adjacent lands and the participation of Albania with Greece, except Avlona, which will remain Italian. When this is accomplished the Allies will transfer Macedonia to Bulgaria. The plan only waits the decision of Italy.

SWISS WILL SUPPLY MUNITIONS.

GENEVA, To-day. The Luzerne Gazette says that the English Government has recently placed a large order for ammunition and especially shells with Swiss factories, supplying the raw material to the Swiss through France.

VENIZELOS' NEGOTIATING.

PARIS, To-day. The chief purpose of Eleutherios Venizelos' delay in accepting the Greek premiership according to an Athens despatch to the Temps, is to learn the disposition of the quadruple entente. Upon this final decision will largely depend. Venizelos has had long conferences with the British and Russian Ministers and the French Charge d'Affaires and the chief of the Green General staff.

Maniac With Axe Terrorizes Ferry. Just after the Edgewater, a Fort Lee ferry boat, left her New Jersey slip for 129th street last evening a man who became insane suddenly seized an axe from the cabinet of the fire fighting tools in the men's cabin and attacked the passengers.

Fursuing the frightened passengers to the stern the maniac cornered Stephen Mahoney, of No. 148 East Thirty-fifth street, and brought the axe down on his head. Mahoney lost his right ear and his shoulder was cut. Mahoney seized the maniac and in the struggle it developed that he was no match for the strength of the crazed man. He went down to the deck and the axe was being raised for another smash at his head when several men seized the mad man and overpowered him.

He was held down on the deck by half a dozen men until the ferry boat reached her 129th street slip. There Sergeant Hammel and policeman Ford put handcuffs and shackles on the prisoner, and Dr. Padula, of the Knickerbocker Hospital, sent him to Bellevue. Dr. Padula said the man had become insane suddenly. He said his name was Luke Malloy.

Mahoney was sent to the Knickerbocker Hospital. Besides losing an ear, his face was cut, there was a gash in his shoulder and two ribs were broken. Mahoney said he never had seen his assailant before.—N.Y. Herald, August 12.

LONDON GOSSIP.

LONDON, July 27th, 1915.

QUEEN MARY'S HOLIDAY.
Queen Mary has decided to leave London shortly for a summer vacation, and will stay for some time at Frogmore, which is now being prepared for her reception. It is expected that her Majesty will be accompanied by Princess Mary and Prince John, her youngest son. Since the war began several of the Royal residences have been closed, and will not be used either by the King or Queen until hostilities are over. Among these are Balmoral, York Cottage, Sandringham and Barton Manor in the Isle of Wight. Windsor is being kept open with a very reduced staff, and it is expected that the Court will be at the Castle occasionally during the autumn and early winter, especially when the shooting season begins. For the most part, however, the King and Queen will continue to stay in London at Buckingham Palace, while Queen Alexandra will remain at Marlborough House for the greater portion of the present year.

THE PRINCE AND THE THISTLE.
The bestowal upon the Prince of Wales of the Italian Order of the Annunziata, one of the oldest and rarest of Continental distinctions, has resulted in a suggestion that His Royal Highness should be made a Knight of the Thistle. It should be remembered, however, that while King Edward—the last Heir-Apparent who celebrated his majority while Prince of Wales—was given the Garter very early in his career, he did not receive the Thistle until he was about 26 years of age, while he had to wait another year before he became a Knight of St. Patrick. It is probable, therefore, that the Prince will not be made a Knight of either the Scottish or the Irish Orders for another few years. That His Royal Highness will in due course become both a K.T. and a K.P. is certain, and he will then equal the record of the Duke of Connaught, the only member of the three leading orders of chivalry in addition to the King, who, of course, is Sovereign of each. Another honor that will shortly be offered to the Prince is the freedom of the City of London, which was given to King Edward a few months after he had entered his twenty-second year.

PARLIAMENTARY INDISCRETIONS.
These are the days when in matters relating to the war the current information is composed of one part news in the papers and three parts gossip at the clubs. It does not follow of any means that the club gossip is incorrect or unreliable. The papers must not print it, however. Just why the press censor moves in his mysterious way we do not know, but we imagine the best reasons. Certainly if one half of the authoritative club gossip were printed, the British public would feel a great deal more cheerful about the war than it does. Still, publication would be indiscreet and certainly helpful to the enemy. The Prime Minister's very pointed snub to indiscreet questioners in the that his wife may nurse him back to strength, is not common in real life. When a wounded man marries before returning to the front he usually waits until he is quite convalescent. Nor does he marry his nurse. It seems to be the doctor who has that privilege, and within a few days the doctor and his wife return to their work in the hospitals.

GERMAN SECRET STORES AT CORFU.

Circumstantial reports have been received in authoritative quarters here from Athens and Rome that with the knowledge of the German Emperor, large quantities of war material, including supplies for submarines, were stored near his castle at Corfu at least six months before the war began. Steps have been taken by his agents in Athens and Corfu to prevent the fact becoming known, these having been largely dictated by the immediate prospect of the return to the Greek Premiership of Venizelos. The suspicions entertained concerning the movements of Dr. Carl Peters and some "archaeological" associates in Corfu early last year, therefore, have been justified. Peters, who, after being deprived of all his German honors because of his infamous adventures in East Africa, had settled down in a house at Barnes, a Thames-side suburb, when these were restored to him, just before his departure for Egypt and Corfu on what was at the time announced to be an archaeological expedition. His activities in Cairo and Alexandria, and later at Port Said and Suez, at all of which places he delivered lectures, were closely followed by the Egyptian authorities, and his subsequent arrival in Constantinople was well advertised by the Germanic press. His mission to Corfu, where he remained for nearly two months, was reported to have been undertaken at the Emperor's request, and during this period there were many shipments of "specimens" to and from the island of Corfu, some by way of the Dardanelles and others by the Mediterranean. After this pleasant stay in the East, he returned to Barnes, where he remained for two months after the war broke out, and then was given by our authorities special leave to return to Berlin.

MARRIED MEN IN THE ARMY.

Though the attention of the Government has been repeatedly directed to the larger proportion of married men among those who have been enlisted in the new armies, no official information on the subject has been forthcoming until July 21st, when Lord Newton, in the House of Lords, furnished a few figures. While these disproved some rather wild exaggerations that have been heard in debates in both Chambers, they are sufficiently striking to support arguments that were built upon the more extravagant estimates. It appears that in the regular army the number of men drawing separation allowances is 606,000 and in the Territorial Force 237,000, making a total of 843,000. The annual cost of these separation allowances is $125,000,000. Critics of the Government and the War Office find in the heavy burden thus imposed on the National Exchequer a reason for condemning our existing "haphazard methods" of raising an army. A great many soldiers nowadays are being married by special license, and never since the first days of the war, when marriages were rushed through, have the officials at Doctors' Commons been so busy as they are now. The difficulty of arranging the ordinary preliminaries led to many tragedies in those weeks when men were sent abroad at a few hours' notice. Though it was in October that the two Archbishops arranged that special marriage licenses should be issued to soldiers and sailors of limited means, and a few days' leave, it has taken time for the men to realize the value of that concession. Now every week sees more use made of it. The commanding officer is appealed to, he gives permission for the three days' or four days' marriage leave, and the soldier hurries home, knowing that even if the girl has not meanwhile got the license—and she usually has—he can get it himself and be married within a few hours of landing. Sometimes the bridegroom appears with one of his arms in splints or with a bandaged wound, but apparently the device so popular in fiction of the hurried marriage to a wounded man so

By the adoption of modern gas appliances you may abolish drugery from your home.

GAS COOKERS eliminate the drugery of lighting fires, the handling of coal and ashes, and enable you to prepare meals in half the time required with old-fashioned appliances.

GAS WATER HEATERS are indispensable in every well-regulated household.

GAS LIGHTING is "best for the eyes and the pocket."

THE PERFECTION GAS IRON is a recent addition to labour, time, and money saving appliances. This Nickel-plated Gas Iron may be had complete with stand and a length of metallic tubing for the small sum of $3.00 and should be in every household.

With the "PERFECTION GAS IRON" a whole day's ironing may be done at a cost of five cents, give better results, and do more work in half the usual time. It is always hot and ready, clean and smooth. Send post card, or phone 97, and the Gas Company will send a man to give practical demonstration of any or all up-to-date household appliances.

have come over to live with their husbands' people. Many English-born Canadians are now making their first acquaintance with their husbands' people. Some of the Canadian cities where regiments were raised are helping wives to come to England with contributions from local patriotic funds. About 75 per cent. of the Canadian contingent are English-born, but in very many cases the relatives of the Canadian-born have by this time come to London to be as near as possible to their men-folk, and have settled down until it is all over. They are for the most part fairly well-to-do people. Officers' wives are finding it easier to live on the Canadian separation allowances over here, even at war prices, than it would be at home. Many Canadian families are living in the neighborhood of Shoreline, where the second contingent are in training and where there is a Canadian hospital. Now that men of the rank and file are allowed to come over from the front on short leave, they naturally appreciate very much having their own people over here. The nucleus of the permanent Canadian contingent in London is the very large number of military officials connected with the Record and Pay Offices, and hundreds of Canadian nurses have made their homes among us for the period of the war.

FABRICS FROM ALSACE, FRANCE.

Materials bearing the label "Manufactured in Alsace, France," will make their appearance in the shops this autumn, and for the first time for forty years. A consignment of delaines and flannels with this history-making label has just reached one of the leading wholesale firms in the city which has long had business relations with France. The fabrics were made, of course, in the portion of the lost provinces which has been recaptured by our French Allies, and the French manufacturers there are to be congratulated on the enterprise they have shown in so quickly emancipating themselves from the "Made in Germany" yoke.

SWEAR WORDS.

When things go wrong, the man with a strong avoids all futile fussing; "It doesn't pay," you hear him say; "there's nothing gained by cursing. Though I may know all kinds of woe, I'm not saddled. I won't despair, or rant and swear, or hand out language adlib. The children near, my words would hear, and then, of course, repeat them, with frills galore and parents sore would round them up and beat them. And women, too, would hear me chew the rag profane, unpriestly, and they would sigh, as they went by, 'That blink-blacked guy is beastly!' Let troubles rise and black my eyes, I'll bear them all with meekness; wrath never helps—the whites and yelps betray a spineless weakness. I may say 'damn' if some one's barn falls down and pins me under; I may say 'gosh' if with a squash you knock my dome asunder; but I won't try the words that fry, and smoke and smell of sulphur; 'tis using these, go-as-you-please, we reach the brimstone gulf for."

Within the next few weeks you are going to buy a new Spring Suit—that's certain. Perhaps to-day, perhaps to-morrow, perhaps in a month—but you're going to buy it.

We think you ought to know why it's wise to "Do it now." The best reason is that our stocks are complete—you're bound to get more style satisfaction out of a broad choice than a narrow one—you get the broad choice now—you may not get it later.

This is why we invite your inspection of the stylish patterns now on hand.

Lessen Your Living Expenses!

"Be economical," is the cry in England, and this slogan has the same significance in Canada. We all must economize. There is more actual waste in our dress expenses than any other item. When a garment becomes soiled we throw it aside, when for a few cents it could be restored to original freshness and beauty by Dry Cleaning. A saving of at least 35 per cent. in the expense of dressing is possible by using the processes of Dry Cleaning and Dyeing.

Our agents will gladly give you full particulars.
