CHAPTER XXIII.

Then he relapsed into his old attitude, and into the silence which had lately become habitual to him. Presently he rose and absently took two or three turns up and down the room. He was the shadow of his former self in bulk, but the stalwart frame was there still, and the marquis and Floyd watched him sadly.

"Going home, Blair?" said the colonel, in that tone of forced cheerfulness which we use toward a friend that has been stricken down by illness or a great sorrow.

"Home?" he said, with a little start and suppressed shudder. "Good heavens, no! What should I do with the rest of the night?"

"It's morning now," said the marquis with a yawn. "Why not go to bed?"

"No, thank you," said Blair with a grim smile. "Why should I go to bed?"

"Why, to sleep," replied the young lord.

"Yes, but I don't sleep," came the instant retort. "No, I think I'll go down to the Green Table."

"Oh, hang the Green Table!" exclaimed the colonel. "What's the use of going to that beastly place?"

"As for that, what's the use of going to any beastly place?" said Blair, and he rang the bell and asked for his overcoat.

"We'd better go with him, I suppose?" whispered the marquis; and when the footman had helped Blair on with his coat, they got theirs and followed him; Austin Ambrose walking by his side, his face calm and serene with its cool, set smile.

The tables at the gaming club seemed pretty well crowded, but Blair found a chair presently and began to play. The marquis and Colonel Floyd stood behind him with Austin Ambrose.

Neither of the men had spoken a word to him, beyond returning his greeting as he entered the club, but now impelled by his anxiety on Blair's account, the marquis addressed him.

"I say, Ambrose, you know," he interposed: "poor old Blair is going to the—de—devil, don't you know?"

Austin Ambrose shook his head.

"He was always very wild," he said in an undertone, without removing his eyes from Blair's cards.

"Wild! Yes; but not like this. What's come to him—what's happened to him? He's like a man half off his head, poor old chap. Look how he's playing now! Why, a child could beat him. And he plays so confounded high. I've heard there's a lot of money in the family; but, hang it all, a gold mine couldn't stand it!"

Austin Ambrose heaved a deep sigh.

"I quite understand your feelings, my dear marquis; but what am I to do? If you think my poor friend is a man to be coaxed or managed, well, try it."

The marquis swore under his breath.

"I will!" he said, and laying his hand on Blair's shoulder, he said, in an undertone: "Old fellow, the luck is dead against you to-night; throw the cards up and come away."

Blair turned as a man might turn from a dream, and looked up at him.

"Oh, is it you, Aldy? I beg your pardon. Want to go? All right, just wait till I have had another hand. The luck is against me, as you say, but what does it matter?" and he smiled.

"The next best thing to winning is losing, you know."

"You see!" said Austin Ambrose in a low voice. "What is to be done? I have tried everything, but it is of no use;" then he bent over Blair, and said:

"Are you coming my way, Blair? I am going now."

"No, I think not," was the listless reply. "Going? Good-night."

The marquis and Colonel Floyd walked out of the club.

"I wonder what that fellow's game is," said the latter, "for, mark my words, Aldy, he has a game, all these sort of men have. Did you see his face when poor Blair lost?"

"No, I was watching the cards," said the marquis.

"Well, I wasn't. I was watching our pale-faced friend, and if it was sorrow on his face, then I don't know joy when I see it. I don't know what his game is, and I can't even guess at it, but if he isn't winning it, then I'm a Dutchman."

"Blair played on until the daylight came in faint streaks through the Venetian blinds of the card room, and the hour of closing arrived. Then he rose as listless and weary, as unmoved and calm as when he sat down.

"You have lost," said Austin Ambrose, who still stood beside him.

"Yes, I think so. Oh, yes, heavily."

"Heavily!" echoed Austin Ambrose.

"My dear Blair! And you have had a run of bad luck all the week?"

"Yes, luck has been against me," assented Blair, and he beckoned to a footman who brought him some champagne.

"You don't know how much you have lost?" continued Austin Ambrose, watching him as he drank the wine.

"No, not exactly. I told them to send the IOU's to Tyler & Driver's. Are you going now? I am afraid I have kept you."

"To Tyler & Driver's!" said Austin Ambrose, as he strove to keep pace with Blair's long strides. "My dear fellow, Tyler told me only yesterday that you had overdrawn your account, and that he did not know how to arrange. And that was before this loss on Springtime. And there are those IOU's to-night! Good heavens, my dear Blair, you will be utterly ruined!"

Blair stopped and took out his cigar case.

"Got a light?" he said. "Never mind, I've found one. Ruined? Do they say that? Well, they ought to know," and he laughed grimly. "So they say I am ruined; well, what does it matter? If I am broke, I am the only person to whom it will signify. If I were a married man, now, and had got a wife—"

He stopped, and the hand that held his cigar quivered in the lamplight; "but I haven't, you see. Ruined! Well, perhaps it's as well. What do fellows do when they go under, Austin? Why, go abroad, don't they? I'll go abroad. I'll go to Boulogne, and be a billiard marker, or I'll work my way out to Australia and turn cattle runner." He stopped abruptly and looked up at the sky, now streaked with the red rays of the coming sun. "Oh, Austin, if I could only go to some place where I could forget her! She haunts me—haunts me day and night! Go where I will, do what I will, I see her before me, just as she looked as she stood on the hill waving her hand the last morning—his voice broke—"the last time I saw her. 'Oh, my darling, my darling!'"

He stepped with a great sob, and then hurried on, drawing his hat over his eyes.

Austin Ambrose watched him with keen scrutiny, such as a surgeon might watch the subject upon which he was experimenting with saw and knife.

"Blair," he said, panting a little, for his victim walked fast. "You should fight against this weakness. It is ruining you, body and soul. It is not fair to yourself, or to your best friends. To me, for instance, or to the earl."

"The earl!" said poor Blair, with a bitter laugh. "What does he care?"

"Or to Violet. Don't be angry now," for Blair had turned upon him almost savagely. "She is your friend, and you know it. Why don't you go and see her?"

"Why? Because I can go and see no one!" groaned the unhappy man. "I tell you my lost darling haunts me continually. I see her so plainly sometimes that I can scarcely believe she is really dead!"

Austin Ambrose started, then smiled reassuringly to himself.

"How can I mix with my fellow-men in the state I am in? You must give me time, man!" he cried almost savagely. "Give me time!"

They had reached Blair's chambers by this time, and with a nod he turned slowly mounted the stairs.

Austin Ambrose, left alone, leant against the lamp-post and, panting a little, lit a cigar, his cold, gray eyes fixed upon the light that shone in Blair's window.

"You fool," he muttered. "You simple fool! I've got you in my net—and her, too! Give you time! Yes, you shall have time, but whether you take long or come quickly I have got you!"

For a week after this Austin Ambrose saw nothing of him; he was missed at his club, and—very much missed at the Green Tables. No one could tell where he had gone, but in truth he was wandering with a knapsack on his back through an out-of-the-way part of the country, solitary

MOTHER OF FOUR CHILDREN
How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Kept Her Well and Strong.

Lincoln, Illinois.—"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for ten years with good results and I have four healthy children. This summer I was in a very run down condition and the very hot weather seemed more than I could stand, but I commenced taking your Compound in June and from then until September 25th, when my last baby was born, I got along much better than I had before. My baby was a girl and weighed 14 pounds at birth, and I recovered very rapidly which I am sure was due to your medicine. I am well and strong now, nurse my baby and do all my work. I had the same good results with your medicine when needed before my other children came and they are all healthy. My mother has taken your medicine with equal satisfaction. She had her last child when nearly 44 years old and feels confident she never would have carried him through without your help, as her health was very poor."—Mrs. T. F. CLOYD, 1365 North Gulick Ave., Decatur, Ill.

Expectant mothers should profit by Mrs. Cloyd's experience, and trust to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Listen for the Bronchial Wheeze When You Breathe Deeply.

It means that disease will soon attack the lungs. Wheezing is distressing to the sufferer and annoying to his friends. Nothing half so certain in bronchitis and throat trouble as "Catarrhazone"; it gives instant relief and cures even the worst cases. Bronchitis fairly flees under the magic influence of Catarrhazone which cures so thoroughly the disease never returns. Other remedies may relieve, but Catarrhazone cures bronchitis, catarrh, and throat trouble for all time to come.

Beware of dangerous substitute meant to deceive you for genuine Catarrhazone which is sold everywhere, large size containing two months treatment costs $1.00; small size, 50c.; sample size, 25c.

Girls' Friendly Society.

ANNUAL FESTIVAL.
The Annual Festival of the Girls' Friendly Society was observed yesterday by the members attending Holy Communion at 7 a.m. in the C. of E. Cathedral, a large number being present. In the evening at the Synod Hall the Lord Bishop of Newfoundland presided, and a very enjoyable concert was held. The programme which was of a high order, consisted of songs by Misses M. Mitchell, Mare and Gosling and a recitation by Mrs. H. Outerbridge. A short sketch presented by Mrs. Colville and Miss Agnes Hayward was very amusing, and was enjoyed by all present including Revs. Canon White and A. G. Stamp. The prizes were then presented by His Lordship Bishop Jones, and together with the names of the donors, are as follows:—
Attendance at meetings (not missed)—Viola Coaker, Frances Matthews, May Barnes, Grace Reid.
Answer to question "Why and How Should a Christian observe Sunday"—Viola Coaker, Ella Facey.
Best hand made shirts—Grace Reid, Elsie Stone, Georgie Verge, Sarah Duffett.
Socks—Millicent Fowler, Frances Matthews, Bertha Bryant.
Writing—Mary Woodfine, Florence Earle, Sadie Hiscock.
Application at the reading and writing class—Sadie Spurrell.
The longest member in one situation—Rebecca George, Annie Somerton.
Bonus on Savings—Ida Priddle.
Donors—Mrs. C. Bowring, England; Mrs. Bowring, England; Mrs. Job, New York; Mrs. R. B. Job, Mrs. White, Mrs. Bolt, Mrs. Barton, Mrs. LeMessurier, Mrs. Pye, Miss Branscombe, Miss Horwood, Mrs. H. Boudgell, Lady Horwood, Mrs. Clift, Mrs. F. W. Hayward, Lady Bowring, Mrs. F. Carter, Mrs. Gray, Mrs. Gosling.
The shirt and sock prizes were awarded for the best samples of these articles made in special competition. A large quantity of comforts for our soldiers and that of the Empire have been completed and forwarded to the W. P. A. Following the prize giving refreshments were served by members of the Society.

Shoulder to Shoulder!

The dark cloud of the Sinn Fein rebellion has its silver lining. It has brought as we ventured to say it should, Redmond and Carson shoulder to shoulder against the rebels. The Nationalist party has repudiated and denounced the Sinn Feiners who are responsible for the outbreak. It has also brought to John Redmond and his colleagues the sympathy and support of the Irish over the seas. It is an astounding circumstance that any person living under the British flag, should assail that flag and the free institution under which they live and accept aid from the Huns of civilization. These Huns are the enemies of free institutions and every other form of political freedom. They have brought up their people under their system of education to the belief that all other people are fit for nothing but servile positions and that all countries and their inhabitants should be heists of the Kaiser and the Prussian Junkers. It is had enough that the Sinn Feiners should have hindered recruiting for the flag, but that they should enlist volunteers, receive arms and other aid from Germany and keep back from the front soldiers into the hands of the enemy. But worst of all is the actual overt rebellion and the outbreak of fighting. All parts of the Empire are striving with might and main to bring the war to a successful conclusion by raising men and money, so far as their resources will permit. It is a disgrace that after 21 months of war, any body of men should be found within the confines of the Empire who should attempt to cripple or even hamper the fighting forces of the Empire at such a time and on such an occasion, when the Empire is struggling to protect the Enemy of Civilization to protect and insure the continuance of Freedom throughout the world. It was bad enough to have to fight the irreconcilable portion of the Boers, but that there should be rebellion at the heart

Vital Statistics and the Harp Seals.

Average Catch of Young Harps on the Front, 3 Year Periods. 1899-1901 . . . 254,000 1902-1904 . . . 242,360 1905-1907 . . . 206,230 1908-1910 . . . 197,858 1911-1913 . . . 164,202 Average catch declined about 90,000 in fifteen (15) years. The three following years would show a still greater decline but they are abnormal owing to the failure in 1915, when only 16,000 young harps were brought in. For 13 years prior to 1899 the average catch, old and young, was in the neighborhood of 500,000, and several times prior to 1880 it exceeded 650,000. The productive period of a Breeding Seal has been estimated at from 7 to 10 years. Taking it at 7 years and estimating, for purposes of approximate calculation, an average annual production of 275,000 young during the 7 years (1907 to 1915), the following analysis is submitted: YOUNG. Average Annual Production . . 275,000 Avg. Annual Catch (1907-1913) 185,000 Average Annual Survival . . 90,000 Required to produce 275,000 young . . . 550,000 Annual Loss from age on the basis of 7 years of breeding life . . . 79,000 Average number brought in by steamers annually . . . 19,000 Average annual loss of Old and Bedlamers . . . 98,000 Average annual survival of young as above . . . 90,000 Annual nett loss . . . 8,000 This would make an actual loss to the herd during the 7 years prior to 1914 (without other cause of wastage) of say 56,000 seals. The actual average reduction in the catch in this period as shown by Mr. Clarke's statistics, was about 42,000 seals, (although much more efficient ships were being used than had ever been engaged before.) If on the above calculation there had not been an average take of 19,000 old seals, there would have been an annual gain of 11,000 to be added to the breeding stock. During these 7 years there were actually brought in 133,000 old and bedlamers. Those seals had been preserved would have had a productive value of 60,000 young, and in actual fact (as it would appear that on the average nearly one-third of the young must annually escape), this figure of 133,000 would be very much increased by the resulting whitecoat survival. Further, the loss caused by the premature destruction of those old seals is a great matter, for the system appears from the above consideration because there is good reason to believe that an excessive proportion of the seals brought in, in any year, are females. On the above estimates we may calculate that the average number of bedlamers on the front of the coast that a seal becomes a regular breeder at the beginning of its fifth year (He), has been during the 7 years up to 1915 about 275,000. The situation to-day ought to be considerably better than this, owing to the fact that almost all the young escaped in 1915, and this survival of that year should ultimately add somewhere about 150,000 to 175,000 to the breeding harps. The Gulf Fishery shows (1) that from 1901 to 1908 an average of only 500 old were taken, and (2) that the subsequent average increase in the take of young has approximated as much as 150%. The above figures of course make no pretence to accuracy, but they do purport to show that the annual destruction of a relatively small number of old seals even on an estimated harp population of over 1,000,000 may be quite sufficient to upset the balance of nature and to turn a gain into a loss. They are sufficiently cogent to contravene such a proposition as that the time has not arrived when the old seals should be protected. On the contrary protection is needed, and particularly it is needed now when Nature has intervened to stop the debacle by giving the compulsory holiday of 1915. If no harps excepting whitecoats were killed hereafter, there would be at least some reasonable chance that the herd might increase by degrees, and if this result can be so attained it will be much cheaper for all concerned than the only other alternative, viz: a series of periodic close seasons at a cost of some three quarters of a million of dollars, or thereabouts, each. JOHN HARVEY.

No Norwegian Fish at Oporto

The Board of Trade are in receipt of the following letter from Lind & Coata at Oporto. "Since the date of our last report sales have been more animated, and if arrivals continue to be scarce we hope to see our market in fairly good position soon. There is no Norwegian fish in the market. The rate of exchange is 34 1/2d."

SIR ROGER CASEMENT.

LONDON, April 27. Casement, it is reported, has expressed his belief that the uprising in Ireland would be a failure on account of his capture. His leadership, he said, was necessary to the success of the movement. Several newspapers support the theory advanced by Sir Conan Doyle, a year ago, that Sir Roger is insane. The Westminster Gazette advocates that he be disposed of by placing him in a lunatic asylum.

SITUATION IN IRELAND STILL SERIOUS.

LONDON, April 27. Fighting is still going on in the streets of Dublin. Asquith announced in the Commons to-day that the rebels continue to hold important public buildings in Dublin, and that street encounters are still in progress. The Premier said there would be a searching investigation into the cause of and responsibility for the outbreak. Asquith said it was obviously necessary to exercise military censorship, while martial law prevailed in Ireland. This censorship, however, would be directed merely with regard to the essential military requirements of the situation. If possible, latitude in the transmission of news would be allowed. Carson and Redmond expressed their disapproval of the spread of the movement to other parts of Ireland, especially to the West. He stated that Major General Sir John Maxwell, who formerly commanded the British forces in Egypt, was leaving this afternoon for Ireland. The General has been given plenary powers, under martial law, over the whole country. The troops in Ireland have been and are being strongly reinforced. The rebels, Lord Lansdowne said, were driven from Stephen's Green with a certain number of casualties. On Tuesday they still occupied certain buildings and houses in Sackville and other streets. Dealing with the situation to-day and on Wednesday, Lansdowne said the commanding officer reported that there was a complete cordon of troops around the centre of Dublin, or the north side of the River, and two more battalions were arriving this afternoon from England. The situation, he declared, was undoubtedly well in hand, and he had no doubt of the ability of the Government to suppress the movement by most drastic measures. Although the situation in the province was not wholly satisfactory, information received was not sufficient to justify grave apprehension. There had been a small rising at Ardee and Louth, and a rather more serious one in Smurds and Lusk close to Dublin. Telegrams, he said, are now coming in more rapidly. They showed that Liberty Hall was partially destroyed and occupied by military. Referring to the attempted German landing in Ireland, Lansdowne said he did not know what Sir Roger Casement was led to expect in the way of assistance for his landing, but he added, I have been unable to find that extensive preparations were made for Casement's reception or for the distribution of material with which his ship was supposed to be laden. Replying to a suggestion from Lord Salisbury, that the Government had disregarded warnings of what was afoot in Ireland, Lansdowne said that if he were supplied with particulars of some of the warnings he would investigate them. On the conclusion of Lansdowne's statement the debate ended and the House adjourned.

LORD ROBERT CECIL'S DENIAL.

LONDON, April 27. Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of War Trade, denied in the Commons to-day that Britain was carrying on semi-official negotiations with Bulgaria. He reminded his questioner that Britain was precluded by the spirit of the agreement with her Allies, from entertaining any peace negotiations with any of their common enemies without the knowledge and consent of the other parties to the agreement.

MUCH DAMAGE DONE IN TUESDAY NIGHT'S AIR RAID.

LONDON, April 27. Much damage was done by four Zeppelins which visited Kent and Essex on Tuesday night. Although one hundred bombs were dropped by the raiders, there were no casualties. From the time they reached the British coast, the airships were kept under the beams of searchlights and subjected to very heavy bombardment.

GERMANS CLAIM TO HAVE SUNK BRITISH SUBMARINE.

BERLIN, April 27. An official announcement says: German naval forces on April 25th sank the British submarine E-22. The Germans rescued and captured two men. A German submarine on the same day hit with a torpedo a British cruiser of the Arethusa class.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, April 27. The French positions before Verdun were bombed heavily last night, but the Germans made no strong infantry attack. A small assault north of Fort Vaux was stopped immediately by French artillery, the War Office announced this afternoon. Several German patrols were encountered north of the Aisne and were repulsed. In fighting with hand grenades, a German reconnoitering party east of Lensuill, was dispersed. (For other early messages see 9th page.)

No Old Women.

RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"There are no old women nowadays," the head of a beauty parlor in a big city said to me not long ago. "They don't let themselves grow old. They keep themselves up, keep their skins clear, dress their hair becomingly and look after their nails." I looked about the beauty parlor and could well believe her. Of the dozen or so women who were having manicures several were not far from sixty. A woman between fifty and sixty had just come out of one of the booths with her white hair piled in graceful waves. At the appointment desk, a woman of sixty or thereabouts was making an appointment for a facial massage.

This is, indeed, the day when old as well as young believe in making the most of themselves.

Grooming Makes Young And Old Easy To Look At.

And I am glad to see it. There is no reason why youth should have a monopoly of the good grooming which helps make people easy to look at. In fact, youth could do without that grooming better than middle age and old age, for youth is beautiful in itself.

But there is another side to the medal. Let me tell you about a woman who came into the parlor while I sat there.

She was unquestionably a woman of sixty. She was dressed as if she were thirty-five. Her white hair was coiffed with a messy elaboration of pins. She was carefully corseted, but that could not conceal the fact that she was fat, with the gross fatness of those who lead lazy, useless overfed lives. Her eyes were roving and restless, her mouth discontented. There was an indescribably hard look about her whole face. One could not imagine a natural smile alighting on those lips, it seemed as if it would have broken into fragments against the hardness of the face.

She Forgets To Keep The Wrinkles Out of Her Heart.

That woman is the other side of the medal. She stands for the class of women who have got the realities and the surface things of life mixed up, women who are so anxious to keep their faces young that they forget to keep their hearts and minds young.

She represents the ugliness and abnormality of arrested development as compared with the beauty of normal healthy development.

She is the kind of woman who doesn't like to have people know she is a grandmother, the kind who is jealous of the youth of her own children, instead of enjoying it and entering into a second youth through it.

She Has Confused Pleasure And Happiness.

She has mistaken pleasure for happiness all her life. That is why her mouth is so discontented and her eyes so restless.

As I said before, it is good for a woman, whatever age she may be, to make the most of herself, but making the most of one's self means not only keeping one's body well groomed, it means letting the mind and heart grow; it means keeping pace with the years instead of hanging back; it means mellowing through and through instead of hiding under a simulation of surface bloom a heart of dry rot; it means all the difference between ap-

Your Boys and Girls.

The tent fever rages every summer among the youngsters, and the only balm is to pitch the old shawl once more and find the little old carpet for the summer camp floor. A more up to date outfit for the kiddies is this, however:

Buy seven yards of good unbleached muslin, cut it in two and sew the two pieces together lengthwise. Then stitch a hem on all four sides and run ropes through them to be fastened to pegs at the corners. Put up two poles about four feet high, connecting them by a cross piece, and over this frame spread the muslin, pegging it securely.

The tent is cooler and airier than the old shawl tent and it has the same advantage over the closed tent of wiggam shape. A flag at one end is a proper finishing touch and the tent should be under a tree if possible.

Some of the prettiest sports suits have coats of gay silk stockings trimmed with the same material as the skirt—striped Japanese crepe heavy weight.

Fishery News.

The latest reports received by the Board of Trade are, as follows:—

From R. Furieux (Rose Blanche to Hr. LeCoo)—The catch to date is 8590 qts. with 280 for last week. There is a very good sign of cod and plenty of herring for bait, left over from the winter and from different freezers. The local boats are getting a fair share of fish in what are termed night sets; they set the trawls in the evening and haul them next morning. From 4 to 6 qts. for each dory are being secured the last few days. Several of our small boats have gone to Connoir, a bay 12 miles west of Burgeo, and have secured lots of herring. Those that got these herring found cod fairly plentiful but those using the frozen bait did not do so well. All the schooners have left and gone down the Gulf, probably as far as Bonaville Bay. Our fishermen are very hopeful, now that they can get fresh herring, that they will secure an average catch.

From F. Curnew (Belmoram to Rencontre)—Prospects are fairly good and there is a plentiful supply of bait. The catch to date is 9530 qts. with 480 for last week.

WALLY MASCH

"My son" I heard the father say, "the boys are playing ball today, so, prithee, cease your round of toil, your delving in the fertile soil, desert the onion and the bean, and join the ladies upon the green. For springing boys should romp and play, and not plant squashes all the day." "Oh, father dear," the boy replied, "I take more pleasure and more pride in raising pumpkins which will wear blue ribbons at the county fair, than I would take in playing ball, which is but trifling, after all. What shall it profit any youth to make a three-base hit, forsooth? Let idlers all such games pursue, and entertain an idle crew, while I am raising things to eat, the prune, the nutmeg and the beet, the little early riser, the winner and the banyan tree." The father bubbled for a spell, and then he tottered to the well, with feeble, slow and halting tread, and there awhile he soaked his head.

At the House

THURSDAY, April 27

Mr. Devereaux presented a petition from the city publicans asking for extension of time of the Probation measure to give them sufficient time to sell out.

The Speaker gave rulings as to that they be obeyed, from May 1st. Parliamentary Practice that questions previously asked and answered are not to be repeated.

Mr. Lloyd asked what period was covered and the Speaker said that of the existing parliament.

The House then went into Committee on Ways and Means and discussion on the Budget Resolutions resumed. Mr. Parsons in the chair.

Mr. Coaker stated that the debt of the Colony was faced with a crisis in the neighbourhood of thirty-three millions of dollars, including war loans—and more than one-third of that amount was due on during the last seven or eight years and was still increasing in amount and bounds. The increased debt was largely and mainly due to the policy of the building of railways inaugurated by the present Government. He showed how Premier had promised the House the country to build five branch railways at a cost of four million dollars. Almost twice that sum had been expended. Parliamentary Practice that questions previously asked and answered are not to be repeated.

Mr. Coaker also showed that the still had an outstanding obligation of nearly two million dollars. Contractors that amount will have been exhausted by the time the construction work is completed and the branch lines are equipped and ready to be put in operation.

This indebtedness is met in part by war loans and a one million dollar loan on Railway Account on which debt must be augmented by millions of dollars. Twenty years ago the revenue of the country was $1,350,000 nearly three millions more than it is to-day, the public debt is much less increased annually. Estimated expenditure for this year he said, was $4,100,000, out of which there was no provision as to the deposits to give the fishermen of the country a chance to catch a quarter of a million quintals of fish monthly. They do not increase their capital power by a million and a half dollars; no reduction of taxation is made to enable fishermen to operate their motor boats cheaper, as the use of gasoline and kerosene had become considerably; no effort made to get agents abroad to get the business of Edward Morris in his Manifesto 1913 and no night schools started in the outports, which was another promise on the platform of the present Government and a promise that was broken.

He had no doubt the Premier would again try to work off his bill on the people and would use the same as a pretext for the non-fulfilment of numerous promises. Mr. Coaker asked whether at the Custom House Messrs. McGrath and H. W. Cashin were getting paid extra for the Treasury. Mr. Coaker then asked the question why $8 per ton of salt of $6 per ton in the way of bounty paid for a schooner registered in the name of Mr. P. Cashin.

Mr. Cashin then spoke concerning himself entirely to irrelevant matters to the subject before the House. He made reference to the solvency of the business people of Waterford and wondered what is going to happen when the war is over. A short off discussion on the Budget Resolutions he delayed the House over

THURSDAY, April 27, 16.

Mr. Devereaux presented a petition from the city publicans asking for an extension of time of the Prohibition measure to give them sufficient time to sell out.

The Speaker gave rulings asking that they be obeyed, from May's Parliamentary Practice that questions previously asked and answered cannot be repeated.

Mr. Lloyd asked what period that covered and the Speaker said the life of the existing parliament.

The House then went into Committee on Ways and Means and discussed the Budget Resolution of 1916.

Mr. Parsons in the chair. Mr. Coaker stated that the public debt of the Colony was faced with now was in the neighbourhood of over thirty-three millions of dollars—not including war loans—and more than one-third of that amount was piled on during the last seven or eight years and was still increasing by leaps and bounds.

The increased public debt was largely and mainly due to the policy of the building of branch railways inaugurated by the present Government. He showed how the Premier had promised the House and the country to build five branch railways at a cost of four million dollars.

Almost twice that sum had been spent in Parliamentary Practice, that questions and the railways were yet unfinished, million dollars out in his estimate.

Notwithstanding the huge expenditure, Mr. Coaker also showed that we still had an outstanding obligation of nearly two million dollars with the Contractors that amount will have been exhausted by the time the construction work is completed and all the branch lines are equipped and ready to be put in operation.

Again this indebtedness is met in addition to war loans and a further dollar loan on Railway Account our public debt must be augmented by six millions of dollars. Twenty years ago when the revenue of the country was $1,250,000 nearly three millions less than it is today, the public debt was much less increased annually.

The estimated expenditure for this year, he said, was $4,160,000, out of which there was no provision made for half depots to give the fishermen of the country a chance to catch a quarter of a million quintals of fish more than they do now and increase their carrying power by a million and a half of dollars; no reduction of taxation on oils to enable fishermen to operate their motor boats cheaper, as the prices of gasoline and kerosene had advanced considerably; no effort made to send agents abroad to open up new markets for our fish, as promised by Sir Edward Morris in his Manifesto in 1913 and no night schools started in the outports, which was another plank in the platform of the present Government and a promise that was broken.

He had no doubt the Premier would again try to work off his bluff in 1917 on the people and would use the war as a pretext for the non-fulfillment of numerous promises. Mr. Coaker asked whether at the Custom House Messrs. McGrath and H. W. LeMessurier were getting paid extra fees, which were supposed to go to the Treasury. Mr. Coaker then asked the question why $8 per ton instead of $5 per ton in the way of bonus was paid for a schooner registered in the name of Mr. P. Cashin.

Mr. Cashin then spoke confining himself entirely to irrelevant matters to the subject before the Chair. He made reference to the solvency of the business people of Water Street and wondered what is going to happen when the war is over. To choke off discussion on the Budget Resolutions he delayed the House over an hour reading extracts from articles some twenty months old, on public matters from the Mail. The articles did not appeal to him, who termed them unpatriotic. He continually applied what he was reading to a member of the Opposition and intimated that the response of recruits from the country was had as a consequence. In the same breath he paid a tribute to Dr. Lloyd, the Leader of the Opposition.

Mr. Lloyd rose to a point of order. He asked what the reading of extracts from a city newspaper had got to do with the Ways and Means Resolutions before the Chair and asked for a ruling, but did not seem to get the Chairman's ear.

Mr. Cashin interrupted that what he was saying was all right. Mr. Lloyd—I don't want your ruling. I want a ruling from the Chair and insisted vigorously for a ruling. The Chairman ruled that Mr. Cashin was not out of order.

Mr. Lloyd—Mr. Chairman, having made your ruling, please give me the rule of the House on which your ruling is based. The Chairman did not do so.

Mr. Cashin came to the rescue and said there was no necessity of giving your authority. You're not bound to give it.

Mr. Lloyd rejoined that the Speaker of the House in the opening part of the sitting had asked that the rules of the House be more strictly adhered to.

The Chairman endeavoured to get on to something else. Mr. Lloyd—You have failed, sir, to state the basis for the ruling you give.

Mr. Lloyd said there was nothing done in this country at any time calculated to do more harm to recruiting than this action of the member for Ferryland. For the past twelve months there had been absolute harmony on this question so far as men in public life were concerned and the Opposition had gone out of their way to aid the Government. Yet a responsible Minister of the Crown (Mr. Cashin) had thrown out a bomb to disrupt that unity of parties on war matters and to ruin efforts now being made to recruit. As to the charge made by a responsible Minister of the Crown that the Mail and Advocate had interfered with recruiting. Let me tell the Minister that he does not know what he is talking about. I regulate the accusation. No greater response has been made in outport districts than in those where the Mail and Advocate are read. "Trinity district is a case in point. When the figures of response to the Army and Navy were published a short time ago, Trinity was the banner outport district. These districts had shown the way and he hoped the district which Mr. Cashin represented would respond as generously. Mr. Lloyd asked how a Minister of the Crown dare talk patriots and in the same breath have a course calculated to destroy the efforts being made to stimulate recruiting. How dare he attempt to set up a division on such a vital matter. In plain, straight from the shoulder talk he drove home to Mr. Cashin that the District of Trinity, which he (Mr. Lloyd) had the honour to represent, had given far more recruits in proportion to population than the district of Ferryland (Hear, hear). He hoped that their friends outside would ignore the action of the Minister and treat it with the consideration it deserved. Unity must prevail, not dissunity. Patriotism demanded it.

Mr. Coaker was glad to know that he and the newspaper he represented were held in the highest importance and esteem and that it was very gratifying indeed to him that the member for Ferryland had spent an hour and a half reproducing the contents of that paper to the country. Referring to the disruption caused by the member for Ferryland, he emphasized that the northern districts could hold up their heads so far as recruiting was concerned, especially Trinity Bay the top-notch in the outports, but he was sorry to say that the response from Ferryland had been and is yet slack (Hear, hear). Mr. Coaker was glad to see Mr. Cashin blaming himself, as that would do him more good throughout the country and add to his popularity, because it was a recognized fact that Cashin was a great disturber of the peace.

Mr. Cashin—If that is all you can answer to my charge you're not worth answering.

Mr. Coaker—What charge. You lay any charge you like before the House and we'll defend it. We have heard enough of your charges and insinuations. You have been acting like a Jack-in-the-box all through this session and trying to turn the House into a beer garden or play house.

Mr. Cashin replied that there was no necessity for Mr. Coaker getting heated or angry over the debate.

Mr. Lloyd—I was one who spoke in a heat and am not ashamed of it. We are now at a grave crisis in the War and it was most deplorable that the Minister should take a course likely to destroy that harmony. The Minister had ample time to reply but any articles in the newspaper referred during the last three sessions of the House and not wait until the two parties are united on the question and disturb these relations and interfere with recruiting because of something that happened more than 18 months ago out of the House.

Mr. Clapp understood that it was the intention of the Government not to go ahead with the building of the Bonne Bay branch line railway and if that was correct it would come as a thunderbolt to the people of Bonne Bay, which was deserving of better treatment. Bonne Bay, the home of the lobster and herring, and with its tremendous area of woodland, should have been one of the first places touched by the iron horse. If he was a member of the Government of the day Bonne Bay would be one of the five branches of railways. Mr. Clapp said he had been assailed and accused of voting against all the railways. He voted for branches for Bonne Bay, Trinity and Fortune Bay but opposed the other two.

The Premier replied that it was not contemplated not to build the Bonne Bay branch, but that at present they were short of money and it was no time to borrow money. He denied that he was four million dollars out in his estimates in the building of the five branch railways and declared openly that he was not four cents out.

The Revenue Bill was then introduced and read a first time. The Moving Picture Censorship Bill was read a second time.

Notices of Loan and Death Duties Bills were given. The Premier moved for suspension of the rules, after which the House adjourned.

Miss Eitel Irish spent a few days in town lately with her sister, Mrs. A. J. Goodland.

Templeton's schooner Gertrude L., which was lately on dock receiving repairs, came off on Tuesday and sailed this forenoon for market with her cargo. But she ran on the Bar in the outer harbor and was forced to put back to ascertain the extent of the damage, if any.

TOPSAIL PATRIOTIC MEETING.
Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—On Tuesday, April 25th, at the S. U. F. Hall which was placed at the disposal of the W. P. A. free of charge, they held their tea meeting. It was a decided success, the ladies realized $60 with which they will purchase another stock of wool, in addition to two hundred pairs of socks already knitted by them this year.

Brief speeches were delivered by the following: Rev. Canon Nettles, P. Bancroft, Esq., and Mr. Jabez Butler; they were heartily applauded. The former in his address thanked all who in any way assisted, especially the ladies of the W. P. A., the members of the S. U. F., the bandmen of the L. O. A., who contributed appreciably to the enjoyment of the evening by surprisingly well rendered selections; Mr. Hollands who entertained the concert with his gramophone; Mr. Reg. Hibbs and others who helped in a lesser degree. After the refreshments were disposed of the National Anthem was sung, thus concluding the Patriotic Tea Meeting.

Yours sincerely,

It would be well if the lettering was removed from the window of the old post office. Some of the letters are faded and visitors are wondering the meaning of the skeleton words.

It is rumored that our young men are soon to have the advantage of another billiard room. The site spoken of is on Water Street, in a central locality.

One of our citizens received a novel electric shock a few days ago that he will not soon forget. A friend of his was going to St. John's on business and he gave him money to bring him a couple of bottles of that liquid refreshment generally used at weddings. Before leaving his friend, after making his arrangements, another happened along, and not wishing to let the third party into the secret, our citizen said to his friend, "Don't forget the batteries"; and sure enough 'twas batteries he brought him. He was indeed shocked.

It is said that our genial friend, P. Higgins, hairdresser, is soon going to fit-up the shop to the eastward of Mr. James Cross's shop for a hair dressing saloon. Well done, Paul!

The Supreme Court opened yesterday, Mr. Justice Kent presiding. The Grand Jury were sworn but there was no case calling for their attention. They however visited the jail and found everything in apple-pie order. The Court is sitting again to-day.

The proceeds of the Sock Sociable held in St. Paul's Hall last night amounted to $35.00. The young ladies of St. Paul's Girls' Guild are to be congratulated.

Templeton's schooner Gertrude L., which was lately on dock receiving repairs, came off on Tuesday and sailed this forenoon for market with her cargo. But she ran on the Bar in the outer harbor and was forced to put back to ascertain the extent of the damage, if any.

Private Jensen's lecture on Monday night was well attended, and as a result a number of volunteers left here this morning for St. John's.

Forced to Leave School, Had St. Vitus' Dance.

Astonishing Cure of This Nervous Trouble Effected by Use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Here is a case where life-long gratitude will be felt for Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. As a school girl and in later life Dr. Chase's Nerve Food came to the rescue when the nerves gave out. Now a healthy, robust woman happily gives the credit to this great food cure for restoring her to health and strength.

Miss Sadie M. White, 38 Waterloo Street, Fredericton, N.B., writes: "When ten years of age a friend of mine had St. Vitus' Dance and she had to leave school and go under a doctor's care. I was very interested by the treatment she appeared to get worse. Her tonsils and tongue became so swollen that she could scarcely take any nourishment. For two weeks she was this way and then took convulsions and nearly choked to death. She was ordered to the hospital, but soon got worse again. I recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to her and she used nine boxes, steadily growing better. Three years later a severe fright brought on the nervous trouble again, and she suffered everything a human being could endure. Her mother bought a dozen boxes of the Nerve Food, and with this treatment she was fully restored. I wish you could see her now, a strong, healthy, robust woman with two lovely babies. She still uses the Nerve Food when she feels out of sorts, but has had no return of the old nervous trouble.

"For weak, puny, nervous children there is nothing like Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to enrich the blood, restore the starved nerves and start them on the way to health. When they fail to get proper nourishment from the food they eat, this food cure presents the necessary ingredients in condensed and easily assimilated form, and strength and vigor is restored. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Limited, Toronto.

TO-DAY'S Messages.

10.00 A.M.

NORWEGIAN BLOWN UP.

COPENHAGEN, To-day. The Norwegian steamer Stormway, bound for Rubeck, with cargo of herring from Norway, was blown up and sunk off Geleiser, Denmark. The crew were landed at Wisemunde, Germany.

STRUCK MINE.

ROTTERDAM, To-day. The Dutch steamer Mashaven struck a mine yesterday morning while bound from London for this port, carrying the survivors arrived at Waterweg to-day. On April 1st she hit a mine on the English coast, but managed to reach the Thames when necessary repairs were made. On Tuesday of this week the vessel left for Rotterdam in tow of two tugs.

DUTY TO STAMP OUT REBELLION.

LONDON, To-day. Replying to a question whether the Government had been warned of the dangerous growth of sedition, Asquith said the first paramount duty of the Government is to restore order and stamp out rebellion with all possible vigor and promptitude. That we are doing behind there is undoubtedly an obligation which rests upon the Government of making searching investigation into the causes and responsibility for the events. That obligation we fully recognize and intend to discharge. Replying to a request from Sir Henry Balfour that the city and county of Dublin discuss the Dublin outbreak, Asquith said a debate on the question could only be mischievous.

CARSON AND REDMOND STAND TOGETHER AGAINST THE SIX FEINERS.

LONDON, To-day. The official admission yesterday that there were indications of the spread of the revolutionary movement in Dublin and other parts of Ireland, especially in the west, was accompanied by the proclamation of martial law throughout Ireland. Hitherto only the city and county of Dublin has been under military rule, because of the outbreak. The statement is regarded as indicating the spread of the revolutionary movement and in strong contrast with the reassuring statements yesterday made by Asquith in the Commons. To-day the Irish situation still presented serious features. The Premier admitted the Dublin fighting was still in progress in the streets, and that rebels hold important public buildings. He announced that in addition to troops already despatched to Ireland to cope with the situation, others were being sent and that the Government was satisfied the force assigned to this duty was adequate. Major General Maxwell, formerly in command of the British forces in Egypt, had gone to Ireland to take the situation in hand. It had been given plenary powers over the whole country under martial law. A searching investigation into the cause of the outbreak and responsibility for it was promised in the Commons by the Premier in his despatch. Sir Edward Carson said: "I am glad to see that the Government is doing its duty in this regard. I hope the newspapers will not try during a war of such a character as we are engaged in, bringing about dissensions of a political character in relation to the Irish question." Sir Edward's remarks were greeted with cheers. He was followed by Redmond who said: "May I say a word, although really I think it is scarcely necessary. Perhaps I ought to give expression on behalf of my colleagues of the Nationalist party here, and as I believe of the overwhelming majority of people of Ireland of the feeling of detestation and horror with which we have regarded these proceedings. I join most cordially with Sir Edward Carson in hoping that newspapers not public men of this country will refrain from any attack which has happened in Ireland as a political weapon against any party that may exist."

MILITARY SERVICE BILL WITHDRAWN.

LONDON, To-day. It was announced later that the Government had withdrawn the Military Service Bill owing to strong opposition in the House. It is understood that the Bill embodying certain aspects of the proposals outlined in the report of the secret session at which recruiting had been taken up had been approved by the Ministry and the Army Council. The Bill, which provided for bringing into service every unmarried man between 18 and 45 and the prolonging for the duration of the war of the services of all time-expired men and territorials, left the question of unattested married men to be dealt with later. A discussion followed the report of the Bill and showed the measure was opposed by all parties as unfair. Several members are urging that nothing but all round conscription would prove satisfactory. Being pressed to state what course the Government proposed to adopt, the Premier said he could not be expected to reply on the spur of the moment, but would consult his colleagues and announce his decision next week. It is understood two alternatives are before the Government, either to introduce a Bill bringing into operation the proposals concerning unattested married men given in the Premier's statement at the secret session, or to amend the Commons on Tuesday, or proceed at once with the adoption of universal service.

SPREAD OF REBELLION.

LONDON, To-day. Asquith said for obvious reasons he did not like to name other places to which the trouble had spread, but particularly in the west, places where there was a development movement, stringent precautions were being taken by military authorities to deal with these places. Replying to Redmond, who said he had been unable to communicate with Dublin, Asquith said he expected communication to be restored to-day or to-morrow.

LABOR MEMBER ADVOCATES GENERAL COMPULSION.

LONDON, To-day. The bill providing for the extension of military service was introduced in the Commons to-day, but aroused such opposition that the Government announced they would not press the measure. Walter Hume Long, President of the Local Government Board, placed the bill before the House, saying it was the intention of the Government to enlist every unmarried man between the ages of 18 and 41. He said one month would be allowed before the bill, if passed, went into effect. The measure met with severe criticism from all sections of the House. Asquith announced in view of this feeling, the Government would not press the bill. Sir Edward Carson denounced the bill, introduced by Long, as unfair. He was particularly opposed to the clause extending the service of men on the expiration of periods for which they were enlisted. Compulsion for all, he declared, was fairer. Stephen Walsh, Laborite, caused the House to break out in cheers by demanding the immediate introduction of a measure for general compulsion, if the military situation demands it. Compulsory military service for single men provided for by the bill passed in January, the application of the measure has been limited, however, by the existence of many classes of exemptions.

LONDONDERRY TRUE.

LONDONDERRY, To-day. During the past three days, the behavior of all classes in the community of Londonderry, has been absolutely orderly. Business is proceeding normally. Londonderry is a borough in the province of Ulster, North Ireland, situated 123 miles northwest of Dublin.

VIOLATION OF SWISS TERRITORY.

BERNE, To-day. As a result of violations of Swiss territory by German aeroplanes, the Federal Council, according to the Swiss telegraphic agency, has summoned to Berne the Swiss Minister at Berlin to discuss the situation arising from these incidents.

NEWSPAPER COMMENT.

LONDON, To-day. Newspapers commenting on the uprising in Ireland attach more significance to its political than its military aspect. The Daily News calls it one more tragic farce without intelligent aims, without any real driving power and continues the military situation no longer, if it ever was ever superficially serious. The real importance of the incident will be political, but it will be taken too seriously. The Times thinks the strict censorship and the air of mystery thrown over the early stages of the rebellion by the Government were unwise, that they likely will create a bad impression among neutrals, which the Government is anxious to prevent. The Express makes a violent attack on the administration in Ireland and demands the retirement of Baron Wimborne, Lord Lieutenant, and Birrell, adding in large type "And Kitchener to Ireland as Lord Lieutenant."

IRISH GALLANTRY.

LONDON, To-day. A British official communication issued last night is the longest ever sent out from the British headquarters to the extent of nearly five hundred words. It describes the great increase in activity on the British front where many observers have been predicting the Germans were about to launch an attack as determined as that against Verdun. New German activity show itself at more than a score of points with the principal fighting apparently around Hulloch and Loos. Irish regiments get special mention for bravery in a counter-attack which drove the Germans out of a section of the trenches where the British fought with great gallantry and an artillery curtain of fire. The communication closes with an account of aeroplane activity, including German attacks on British aeroplanes, resulting in the death of both German aviators and the destruction of the machine which fell from a height of 14,900 feet.

GERMANS REPULSED.

LONDON, To-day. Great activity at various points along the British front is reported in the latest official communication. The Bedfordshire Regiment carried on a successful raid near Carnoy. There has been artillery activity at La Boisselle, Hebuterne, Monchy au Bois, Neuville, St. Vaast, Armentieres, Frenghem. At Frenghem the Germans attacked the British trenches, but were driven out. Similar attacks on British trenches at Hill 60 at St. Eloi were repulsed.

OVERSEAS IRISH DENOUNCE REBELS.

LONDON, To-day. From Sydney, Melbourne, Adelaide and other parts of the Empire came a flood of cablegrams to Redmond to-day repudiating the action of the rebellious elements at Dublin, expressing scorn at what they did, while brave Irish soldiers were dying at the front that their country might prosper. Incidentally the messages express scorn at what they did, while brave Irish soldiers were dying at the front that their country might prosper. Incidentally the messages express scorn at what they did, while brave Irish soldiers were dying at the front that their country might prosper.

NEGRO SEAMAN Sentenced

For Seriously Wounding Shipmate With a Razor.

Robert Gibson, a negro seaman, of the s.s. Kassanga, was arraigned before Mr. Hutchings, J.P., K.C., last evening in the Magistrate's court, charged with cutting and wounding Alfonso Nebbett, another colored seaman of the same ship, and with intent to do grievous bodily harm. The evidence of Capt. Croker and Nebbett showed that an altercation had occurred in the stokehold of the ship and that a brick, a shovel and a razor, respectively, were used by the combatants. It was with the latter instrument that Nebbett was so severely cut about the jaw and neck. The wound several inches long, was dressed as best as possible by the captain and mate while the ship was at sea, but on account of the injured seaman eating food continually gangrene had set in. Dr. Campbell testified that a facial artery had been severed, though the victim's condition was not altogether dangerous, provided he stopped eating so as to avoid opening up and irritating the wound. Gibson, who did the cutting, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to four months' imprisonment, without the option of a fine; also he was fined 15s or an additional one month's imprisonment, out of which amount to pay the medical expenses of the complainant. The captain of the ship stated that there were 55s due to the convicted seaman and the 15s fine was paid out of that. We understand that to save Nebbett's life arrangements will be made for his admission to the General Hospital.

Muscle.

By GEORGE FITCH. Author of "Al Good Old Slivash."

Muscle is the power transmission plant of the human body. It is operated from the brain and enables man to move himself and other things from place to place and sometimes back again. Muscle is about the only thing which distinguishes some real men from the wooden imitations in front of the cigar stores. Muscle has been a great boon to the human race. By its help, men have tilled the soil, worked the mines, built their homes, and have brought up their sons to honor and respect them. For many centuries muscle did all the work of the world. It built the pyramids and smote the barbarians hip and thigh. But gradually in the last century steam, electricity and science have been displacing muscle on every hand. The farmer is more in need of double-seated overalls to-day than he is of muscle. The housewife washes, sews, and sweeps the floor by electricity. The miner uses powder and drill. Even trunks are being smashed by machinery and autos are being cranked by a push button and hypnotic suggestion. The average business man has no use for muscle except in getting into a street car at night, and in another century a man who has muscles will be operated on for them.

War News.

Messages Received Previous to 9 A.M.

ADMIRALTY ORDERS DELIVERED.
 WASHINGTON, April 27. Copies of the British Admiralty's orders to merchant captains, which the German government contends provide for attacks on submarines, was delivered at the State Department today by the British Ambassador, Sir Cecil Spring-Rice. They are said to correspond with those announced recently in London, and will be published later, with a statement from the State Department.

TIGHTENING THE BLOCKADE.

LONDON, April 27. A report that Britain intends to tighten the commercial blockade, is reiterated in a despatch from a Copenhagen correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company, who says that there are persistent rumors to that effect in circulation there. It is stated, he added, that Britain desires Danish merchants to pay in advance through London for goods purchased in America with the object of gaining a thorough control over the commercial connection of neutrals.

SPY ARRESTED.

NEW YORK, April 27. Conrad Wilhelm Aufmaesser, a reserve officer of the German regiment was arrested by the United States Secret Service officers on his arrival here to-day on board the steamer Colson from Cristobal, on suspicion that he had been spying upon the Panama Canal fortifications.

War Sayings We Should Scrap.

AN INTERVIEW WITH VISCOUNT PEEL.

A considerable number of more or less popular phrases have arisen in connection with the war. These phrases may sound very well, but very few of them can stand examination. When one analyses the majority of the phrases many of them are found to be quite futile, others to be possibly pernicious. I feel very strongly that a great deal of harm has been done through some of these phrases; they have given people false ideas of things and comfortable excuses for their sins of both commission and omission. Here are some of the war phrases I most object to as being of national detriment and some brief reasons why, in my opinion, they should be "scraped."

Time is on Our Side.—This is now merely an excuse for national laziness. The war is costing us almost untold millions in money, it is sacrificing tens of thousands of the best men we have, and it has very seriously disorganised practically all our national work. Surely it will pay us to get it finished as quickly as possible? To talk about time being on our side when we are fighting a self-supporting nation like Germany, and when every day the problem of importing the necessities of life for ourselves presents new difficulties, is absurd. In war the thing is to get your job done as quickly as possible.

Business as Usual is a phrase that was born out of experience of small wars. A gigantic war such as this demands the united effort of the whole nation, as the Germans have taught us by their books and their example. This war is not an amusing sort of side-show for those who read newspaper headlines and "leave it to the Army and Navy," but a grim struggle for life in which we must all take a hand if we want to save ourselves. It is no time for business as usual, nor is there time for business as usual.

We Shall Muddle Through.—It should be made a penal offence for anyone to say this. The phrase is the doctrine of mental inertia and self-satisfied complacency. Why should Providence for some mysterious reason be on our side if we don't strive our very utmost in every way for victory? It is the most irritating and dangerous phrase of the war.

We Must Humiliate Germany.—We must; to humiliate her is precisely what we must do. To give Germany a slight knock and put her in the corner till she promises to turn over a new leaf is not enough; we must give her such a bang, such a blow to her military might and pride, that there will be no necessity to ask if she will behave herself in future. We must feel she has no alternative but to behave.

This is the War that Will End War.—We all hope there will not be another war for a very long time, but to be positive on the point means going to sleep. The Germans have shown us how ambitions aided by science can give an aggressively-inclined nation a tremendous start if it sets out to make war. To say that the path shown by the Germans will never be followed by any other people is to risk a very unpleasant surprise.

"GOOD CLOTHES."

We all like to wear what we call "Good Clothes." Now good clothes are costly—not dear—but they become dear if they have to be discarded practically unworn. The French Dry Cleaning Process meets the difficulty. We can afford to buy the best and most beautiful fabrics without being extravagant, because of their quality we can rely on being able to have them restored by this process to their original beauty quite often enough to enable them to be eventually discarded without a lament.

We can give you a Remington No. 7 at $50.00. We can give you a No. 10 Remington with eleven inch carriage, slightly used, for $50.00. A number 10 Remington, ordinary carriage, slightly used, for $30.00. We can give you an I. C. Smith at $60.00. We can give you an Underwood at $80.00, and an Underwood at $95.00. We can give you the IMPERIAL Typewriter for $80.00, the standard, low-priced, high grade Typewriter of the World, the strongest and most durable writing machine ever produced; manufactured in England—entirely of Sheffield Steel.

If you are in any way interested in buying a Typewriter, see what we have to offer. Get our prices, then try the town if you will, you will come back to buy.

Every Machine we sell carries with it a double guarantee—the Factory's guarantee and our guarantee. We sold one firm in town four machines. A few weeks ago our Typewriter sales averaged a machine a day for over a week. The secret of our success in selling Typewriters is due to our saving the purchaser from FIFTY to SIXTY dollars. Let us show you how we do it.
