CHAPTER XXXII.
CHAPTER XXXIII.

In her intense anxiety on Carrie's account, Maida almost forgot that the man riding beside her was Robert Broseley, and that only a short time ago he had avowed his passionate love for her; and, indeed, if she had remembered it, she would not have been deterred from accompanying him; for it need not be said that Carrie was dearer to Maida than her own life or safety. She scarcely glanced at him, but looked forward, her brow knit with care, her lips set tightly.

But Robert glanced at her now and again, and, every time he did so, her beauty and grace fired his passion and hardened his resolution. For days he had been restraining himself, playing a part and pretending that he had given up all hope of winning her; and all that time his love-hunger had increased so that he was dominated by it as a man is dominated by some terrible and mastering emotion of the soul. As he covertly watched her now, it seemed to him that a new Maida had taken the place of the old listless and absorbed one; she sat erect, held her horse in hand with quiet self-possession—in fact, displayed that alertness and courage which nearly every woman shows when she is called to the help and rescue of those she loves. This phase of her character came as a revelation to Robert, and, of course, heightened the spell which she had all unconsciously and unwillingly cast over him.

Hitherto he had regarded her as just a thing of beauty, a frail and lovely flower, to be loved and cherished and protected; he would have been content to encircle her in luxury, to treat her as a "fine lady," to show her off, with a glowing pride, to his friends in Melbourne; he would have asked no more of her than to be a splendid, dazzling ornament, a dainty conquest of his bow and spear. But this new Maida, with the new light in her eyes, the new expression of firmness and self-reliance in her set lips, opened up fresh vistas to him; she would be something more than a mere picture, a mere do-nothing fine lady; she would be a companion to him, a true mate; she would ride and drive beside him, share his life, not only in the luxuries of Melbourne—perhaps of England—but in the daily routine of his work.

His admiration for her increased at every glance he stole, and if, during the construction of his plot, any scruples had arisen, he thrust them from him now. He felt that she was necessary to his very existence, that he could not and would not live without her. He was outwardly calm, but the blood was surging hotly through his veins, and every now and then the strong hand that held his reins shook so that the horse, with its quick sympathy for its master's mood, pricked its ears and sometimes started nervously, as if it understood and shared something of the electric emotions which were agitating its rider.

They were passing through scenery of the most beautiful description, and, for the first time, perhaps, Robert was sensible of its loveliness; but he only felt it because Maida was riding by his side, because, by stretching out his hand he could touch her and feel that mystic, overwhelming thrill which the mere touching of her—her skirt or the sleeve of her blouse—always sent through him.

Maida was blind to the beauty around her; all her thoughts were fixed on Carrie; she pictured her lying in the hut, helpless and half-fainting with pain—and alone!

"How did it happen?" she asked, at last, and after they had ridden some miles in silence.

Robert started and looked at her blankly; he had been picturing her—his wife!—presiding at a big dinner to all the swells in Melbourne; picturing her the mistress of a great house, in England; for yes, he would take her there; he would be rich when his father died, would be able to afford to live in England, at any rate for some months in the year. He had been so rapt in his dream that he had actually forgotten all about Carrie's fictitious accident.

"How did it happen?" he said, vacantly. "Oh, I beg your pardon! She was gathering some flowers—she always does, you know—and her foot slipped. I carried her into the hut and made her as comfortable as I could. She wasn't in much pain, but she couldn't ride. She told me to tell you not to worry about her, that she would get on very well until you came. You are not worrying, are you?"

"No; at least, as little as I can help," said Maida. "I have brought some lint and some strapping plaster in my pocket. I know exactly what to do for a strain or a sprain. And I know how painful it is. If we were only there! It seems so strange to me, Carrie being ill. She has never been ill since I can remember; it has always been I who have been sick or sorry and Carrie has always nursed me. As she says, she smiled faintly, "she has always been a mother to me. I realise that now. I feel now that it is I who ought to have taken the place of a mother to her; for I am the elder. But my work has absorbed me. And sorrow makes some of us selfish, I am afraid."

As she sighed, he looked at her sharply. Everything connected with her past was of absorbing interest to him.

"What sorrow have you had?" he asked.

"My father—" said Maida, blushing guiltily as she thought that her father's death was not the only sorrow which had been in her mind when she had spoken.

"Oh, ah, yes," he said, with a breath of relief. "I had forgotten that. There hasn't been any other?"

The colour faded from Maida's face for a moment and she turned her face away.

"We all have our sorrows," she said, sadly; and in the tone of coldness and reserve which checks further questioning.

"You are right," he said, with a touch of bitterness. "And we don't think of others. For instance, you don't think of mine, you don't care."

Maida looked at him with a rather startled glance, and fearing that he had alarmed her, he went on, quickly:

"Oh, I haven't many sorrows; I'm no worse off than most men; in fact, I'm a deuced sight better off than most. My father's a rich man; and of course I shall have it all, or nearly all, when he dies. Oh, I don't want him to die; but I'm only stating the case. I shall be something of a big man then. I can buy a place in England, be of some importance there; and my wife, if I ever have one, can swagger around with the best. Here, I'm only Robert Broseley of Milda Wolda and Melbourne; over there I could be a big-wig if I liked. I suppose I could go into your House of Commons; perhaps I could buy a baronetcy—they tell me they are bought and sold like everything else—anyway, my wife would be a regular swell."

Maida coloured faintly; but she did not apply his words to herself.

"Why do you not go to England?" she said. "Yes; a man can do so much there. I have always thought at least ever since I saw something of society, that a man has a better chance of rising in England than anywhere else; for though it is a monarchy and people are supposed to be so exclusive and conservative, a man of genius or talent—especially if he be a rich man—can reach any height. The House of Lords is three parts of it composed of men who were either working men themselves or whose fathers were of quite humble origin. You should go to England, Mr. Robert, and follow your career there."

"Perhaps I will," he said; "but I should feel lonely. I should want someone—a wife to help me."

"You would find plenty to choose from there," said Maida, a trifle nervously. "I suppose Carrie has everything she wants at the hut?"

"Oh, yes," he said, biting his lip. "The hut is well provisioned. She could stay there a week, a month, and be fairly comfortable."

They rode on in silence for some time. Robert was drawing a beautiful picture for himself; he saw himself the master of a great house, a big estate in England; a member of Parliament; perhaps a baronet, with Maida by his side as Lady Broseley. The picture warmed him to the heart's core; not that it needed such an ambitious dream to form his happiness; he would be content to remain plain Robert Broseley, content to remain at Milda Wolda for the rest of his life, if only he could have Maida for his wife. And she would be his wife; he had got her in a toil from which she could not escape. She might at first resent the trick he had played upon her, might overwhelm him with indignant reproaches, but she, who was so quick, so acute, would see that there was only one course open for her to follow, and she would yield.

As the sun's heat began to diminish the way became more rugged, they were forced to go slowly.

GERMAN ARTILLERY BOMBARD BRITISH FRONT.

LONDON, Aug. 8. German artillery last night began an active bombardment of the British front in Belgium to the east and north of Ypres. The British troops in the course of the night raided the German trenches near Lombartzelle, and returned with some prisoners and machine guns. German artillery was particularly active in the neighborhood of Westhoek and the Forest-Staden railway.

TROOPS OF CROWN PRINCE LAUNCH ATTACK.

PARIS, Aug. 8. Troops of the German Crown Prince last night launched attacks on the French positions east of Auxailen and west of the Charny Plateau, in the Alsace region. The official statement issued to-day by the French War Office says that the attacks were repulsed. German raids north of St. Mihiel in the Vosges sector and in Upper Alsace were checked by the French fire. On the greater part of the Alsace front, the statement adds, there was a heavy mutual artillery fire.

TALK WITH GEN. KORNHOFF.

LONDON, Aug. 8. The correspondent of the Times at the headquarters of the Seventh Army talked with General Kornhoff on the eve of his departure to take over the supreme command. General Kornhoff said: "The first stage of the war is over; the second phase begins to-day." The correspondent says the Russian Commander repudiates the possibility of the Russians surrendering. He holds that if Russia concludes a dishonorable peace, to which traitors have been driving her, she will become a German colony forever; the Germans would serve her foodstuffs, enroll her youth, and treat her as a conquered country. There could be no choice between the evil of war and the evil of surrender. The new Government must realize the necessity of inviting its Allies to help in reorganising the railway ser-

DISORDERS IN BRAZIL.

BAHIA, Brazil, Aug. 8. Disorders have been caused here by the high cost of living. Two persons were killed and a number wounded in conflicts with the police.

JAPANESE LOAN TO CHINA.

PEKIN, Aug. 8 (Delayed.) A group of Japanese bankers has completely agreed to advance to China ten million yen with the understanding that the Allies may participate if they desire. The loan will probably be secured by surplus revenue on the Salt monopoly, the terms of which are to be agreed upon by the Allies. The loan temporarily relieves the financial pressure of the Peking Government.

READY TO GO

I've seen a 11 things a man may see, I've known all things a man may know; a d when Death's summons comes to me, I'll say, "All right," and gladly go. But ere I climb the sunset hill, and leave this world of tears and toil, I'd like to see old Kaiser Bill fried in some cheap grade of oil. Long years I've lived and done my work as best I could, with talents few; a couch beside the old gray kirk will seem inviting when I'm through. But ere I pass through Jordan's chill, to roam in Eden's groves afar, I'd like to see old Kaiser Bill adorned with feathers and with fur. I do not understand the men who hang to life when life's a bore, who must be called and called again, before they'll start for 'tother shore. I do not understand the dread with which men view a couch of clay; it's far more pleasant to be dead when sticking round in people's way. I'll gladly go when, loud and shrill, ring out grim Aesop's commands; but first I'd see old Kaiser Bill placed in the taxidermist's hands.

Your Boys and Girls.

Your baby spends most of its indoor life in a nursery free from damp, exposed to sunshine and with "free ventilation." There must also be freedom from dust, gathering carpets and furniture and with harboring cracks in the floor. There must be absolute cleanliness in every condition surrounding the child's life. It's bed must be far enough away at night from that of the adult's to avoid breathing their breath, avoidance of currents of air to avoid rheumatism, painted toys on account of possible poisoning, the avoidance of woolen or feather toys. You should weigh the infant carefully each week on a correct standing scale, to determine if its gain is what it should be if properly fed. Unless there is some definite contrary indication a child should be bathed every morning in water adapted to its vitality, never so cold as to cause bluesness or cold extremities, or so hot as to prove injurious.

When taken off garments they should never be thrown down carelessly but hung up.

ROAD MAKING. Since the advent of an Elective Road Board here the good friends of this settlement are excelling in the art of good road-making. The chairman of the Board here, Mr. George Strong, is a first class man for the position and the residents are very capable workmen, only needing the necessary instructions to put work out of hand that will bear the scrutinizing eye of the ubiquitous inspector.

The Inspector, Mr. William Tilley, who oversees the work in one section of the harbour, is a very capable person. It would be hard to jam Mr. Tilley in any kind of employment and he manages to get through his work with an entire absence of hard words and vain-glorious boast.

Mr. Zebedee Stanley is the inspector for the northern portion of the settlement and, in speaking of Mr. Stanley, nothing more need be said than to transfer to him Mr. Tilley's good qualities with some little extra ROAD MAKING. Since the advent of an Elective Road Board here the good friends of this settlement are excelling in the art of good road-making. THE NEW BRIDGE. Lumber for the new bridge, so badly needed, is assorted and packed near the site, under Mr. Tilley's supervision. The old bridge is in a very bad and perilously unsafe condition and it is very earnestly hoped that it will be replaced by the new one in time to prevent the occurrence of a serious accident.

DEATHS INROADS. Death has recently been making inroads among the good people here. Mrs. Johnson, who was at the General Hospital in St. John's, a few weeks ago, seeking for relief from a very serious malady, was put in her grave here a few days ago and there are others lingering here now for whom restoration is almost vainly hoped.

The oldest man in this place is Mr. Levi Stanley, who has passed the ninety-seventh milestone in life's rough journey, and is yet apparently hale and hearty as a young man. He has always been a vigorous worker and is even now, in his advanced years, using the carpenter's implements with surprising ability and usefulness.

Drowned While Boarding Wreck.
Yesterday the Deputy Minister of Justice received the following message from Magistrate Giovannetti, of Trepassey—"Patrick D. Curtis was climbing with Silas Perry a steel line hanging over the stern of the Kristianiafjord yesterday, when he was drowned. People at the scene say the line was let go from the Kristianiafjord. Curtis went to bottom and did not rise. The body has been recovered."

Thetis From the North.

The s.s. Thetis reached port yesterday afternoon from the Labrador mail service having got as far north as Nain. The round trip was made in 19 days under very favorable weather conditions. The Thetis brings the following fishery report:

From Sandy Islands to Indian Tickle all the crews have taken big fares but were obliged to discontinue operations for more than a week owing to the want of salt.

Over 60 schooners are now at Battle with the prospects of good trips; nine others have left for home loaded.

From Indian Tickle to Black Island very little has been done.

From George's Island to Indian Island, fishery poor.

From Smokey to Indian Hr. doing a little. Three crews have 400, 500 and 300 qts. respectively.

At Horse Harbor a little doing with hook and line; traps poor.

At Cape Harrison, fishing poor.

Ragged Island to Long Tickle, doing a little.

From Bound Island, doing well.

Macovic to Illic, very little being done.

East Turnavic to West Turnavic, a little with hook and line; traps doing poorly.

Up the shore from Square Islands to Battle Hr. very little being done.

At Queen's Lakes and at Nain there was no fish a fortnight ago. The prospects of a good Labrador fishery as a whole is none too bright.

The Gas Range!

The Gas Range means comfort for the housewife; shorter kitchen hours for her, and a cleaner kitchen. It is a great mistake to think that cooking with gas is expensive.

Whenever a woman becomes used to gas for cooking, thoughts of a coal or wood stove fill her with gloom. A Gas Range is so much easier to operate, so efficient for all kinds of cooking, and so much cleaner, that the idea of going back to the old style methods is decidedly unpleasant. Yet in winter many housewives think they must use a coal or wood stove, because there is no other way of heating the kitchen. THERE IS ANOTHER WAY AND IT IS FAR BETTER THAN THE OLD. Wedding Bells.

PIDGEON-BRADSHAW.

At three o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Chapel of Our Lady of Good Counsel the marriage of Miss Alice Bradshaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Bradshaw, and Roydon Pidgeon, Manager of the Imperial Oil Company, took place, Rev. Fr. Sheehan officiating in the presence of the immediate friends of the contracting parties. The bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in a dress of white duchesse satin with veil and orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of white carnations. She was attended by Miss Jessie Bulley, who was also prettily costumed; Miss Ruth Hickman acted as flower girl. The groom was supported by Mr. McGoff. After the ceremony was performed a reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents where Mr. C. H. Hutton rendered the wedding march. The newly wedded couple then motored to Holyrood on their honeymoon tour. The bride is one of our most popular young ladies and the presents she received were numerous. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Pidgeon many years of conjugal happiness.

The Candy Stall at the Orphanage Garden Party on Wednesday will be one of its most attractive features, and will show a splendid collection of Novelties. Misses Frances Gosling and Miss Cicely Rendell in charge.—aug 7/21

GERMAN ARTILLERY BOMBARD BRITISH FRONT.

LONDON, Aug. 8. German artillery last night began an active bombardment of the British front in Belgium to the east and north of Ypres. The British troops in the course of the night raided the Teuton trenches near Lombartzyde, and returned with some prisoners and machine guns. German artillery was particularly active in the neighborhood of Westhoek and the Ypres-Strated railway.

TROOPS OF CROWN PRINCE LAUNCH ATTACK.

PARIS, Aug. 8. Troops of the German Crown Prince last night launched attacks on the French positions east of Vauxaillen and west of the California Plateau, in the Aisne region. The official statement issued to-day by the French War Office says that all the attacks were repulsed. German raids north of St. Mihiel in the Verdun sector and in Upper Alsace were checked by the French fire. On the greater part of the Aisne front, the statement adds, there was a heavy mutual artillery fire.

TALK WITH GEN. KORNILOFF.

LONDON, Aug. 8. The correspondent of the Times at the headquarters of the Seventh Army talked with General Korniloff on the eve of his departure to take over the supreme command. General Korniloff said: "The first stage of the war is over; the second phase begins to-day." The correspondent says the Russian Commander repudiates the possibility of the Russians surrendering. He holds that if Russia concludes a dishonorable peace, to which traitors have been driving her, she will become a German colony forever; the Germans would serve her foodstuffs, enroll her men, and treat her as a conquered country. There could be no choice between the evil of war and the evil of surrender. The new Government must realize the necessity of inviting its Allies to help in reorganising the railway service for warfare. If Germany decides, as all signs indicate, to transfer the main pressure to the Russian front, it would be hopeless to rely on methods that avail against the inferior Austrian troops. Russia is full of splendid fighting men; ten millions have already been enrolled, but they are scarcely trained. They are too busy attending meetings instead of drill. These millions must be helped by British and French officers, as the Serbians, Roumanians and Greeks have been.

CHIOS BOMBARDED BY TURKS.

ATHENS, Aug. 8. Official advices from Chios say the Turks have bombarded the Island from Tchesse, a seaport of Asia Minor, forty miles from Smyrna, sinking four sailing vessels and slightly damaging the town and aviation grounds.

NEW GOVERNMENT MEETS.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 8. The first meeting of the new Government was held to-day. Premier Kerensky presided, and said the Cabinet must concentrate all its attention on national defence and organization of the country, principally in connection with financial and economic affairs. He appealed to the members of the Cabinet to redouble their efforts towards organization and consolidating the Government.

NOT VERY ENCOURAGING.

LONDON, Aug. 8. The newspaper Novoe Vremya, of Petrograd, reports that the Russians have evacuated Prosekorov, in Poliovia, on the Bug River, as well as Kamenz. Podolsk is 53 miles south.

GERMAN AIRMEN INTERNED.

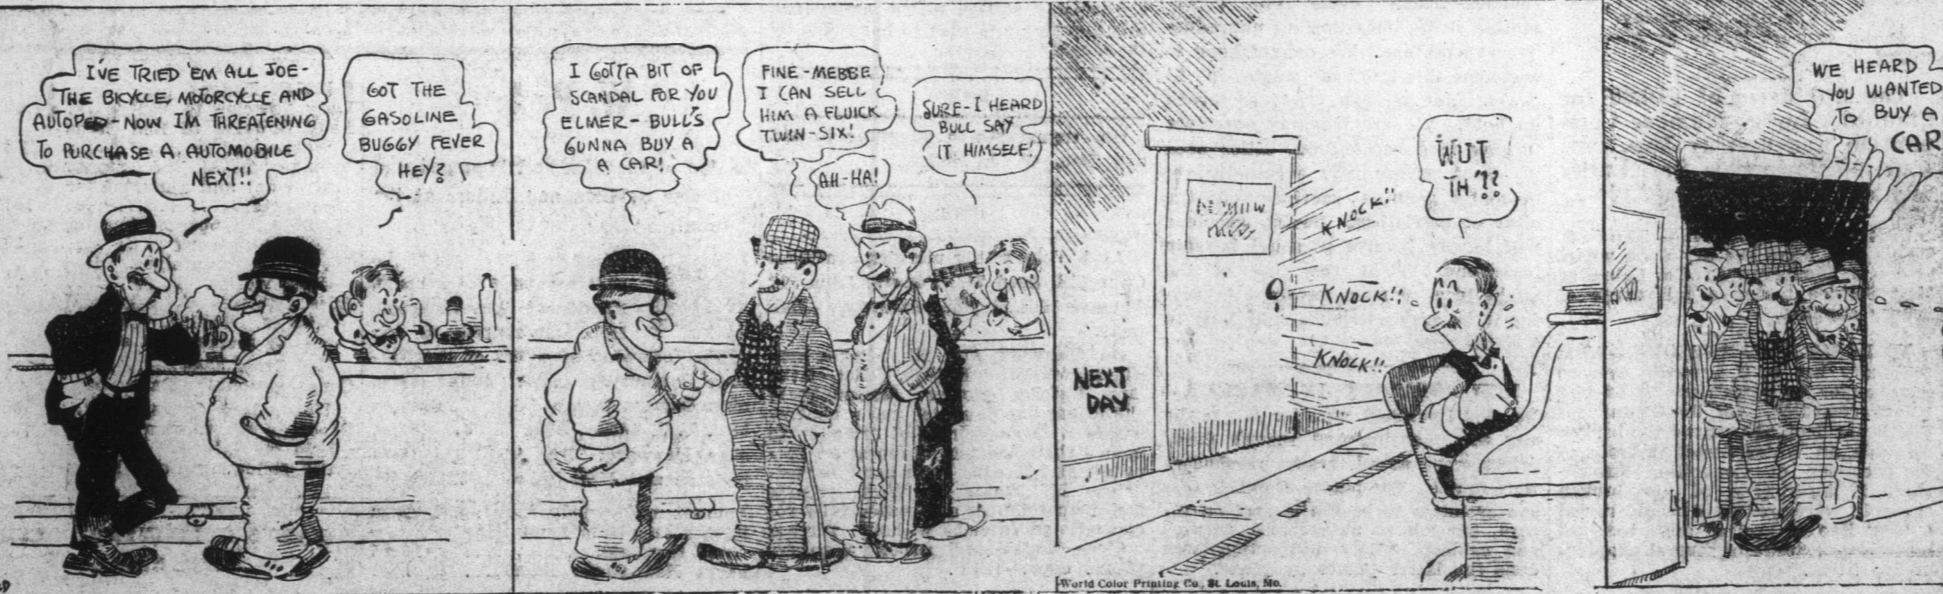

FLUSHING, Holland, Aug. 8. A German seaplane stopped a Dutch fishing boat near West Kappell. One of the airmen went aboard and ordered the boat to Zebrugge. While still in territorial waters a Dutch patrol vessel met and brought the boat to Flushing. The German airmen were interned.

FODDER SHORTAGE.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 8. A shortage in fodder has compelled the Germans to undertake a sweeping slaughter of home cattle. German buyers in Denmark who last week cut prices 15 per cent. are, according to a despatch to-day from the interior, discontinuing the purchase altogether until the surplus at home is utilized.

THE AD THAT GETS INTO THE HOMES IS THE EVENING TELEGRAM

W. J. HERDER, Proprietor H. A. WINTER, B.A., Editor

THURSDAY, Aug. 9th, 1917.

Eloquence or Rant?

Yesterday afternoon the House was prorogued until next Thursday. There was no reason for the proceeding, save the justification of the sole purpose of it was to give the Government time to carry out a trick, a gross abuse of parliamentary privilege, which would enable it to impose its arbitrary will upon the country. We shall have more to say upon that subject in proper place. A present subject is furnished us by the extraordinary speech which the Premier saw fit to deliver before the House retired. We observe that this fine piece of rhetoric has called forth the usual unctuous encomiums of the News. The Telegram at least is no exception and we shall give the speech the notice it not merely deserves but demands. So far from finding in it a single sentence to admire, we see in the whole composition a plain attempt to create a bitter class feeling, an appeal to the worst and basest emotions, a playing to a gallery which does not exist, a cheap electioneering ruse. The speaker has not troubled to use the most sacred associations of this terrible time, the bitter sacrifices shared by all classes and all sections of the country, to pit one of them against the rest. Beaten in a fair fight, he cannot take his beating. By a clumsy device, familiar in German politics, he will endeavour to turn it into a victory. Spoken from the footlights of a lurid melodrama, the speech would have been merely amusing; we could not believe it was delivered by the Prime Minister of a British Colony if we did not have it in cold print before our eyes.

Naturally, little reference is made to the real cause of it all, the Profits Tax, advocates do not touch upon the weakest point of their case. There is merely the assertion that "no fairer tax was ever conceived or proposed. Of course not! It is a mere trifle that omits the one provision common to every foreign act of the same nature. It is a greater trifle than by a business man making $4,000, which may not be enough to ward off bankruptcy, must pay $200, while a lawyer making $3,000 and risking no capital at all pays nothing. The quintessence of fairness! There is a short allusion to the constitutional position, containing terrible threats. We shall inform our readers upon that point also in the proper place, and our information will differ from the Premier's sweeping statements merely because they will be the simple truth. Great emphasis is laid upon the "safe and independent" upon which representation is based. We were under the impression that one of the first of these principles was the representation of the minority in the Commons, giving it a voice. Who elected the P. E. and Liberal members of the House and for what purpose? Was it to form this unholy alliance of the two parties, mixing as easily as oil and water? Reference to the columns of the Advocate up to the date of the corrupt deal will supply a sufficient answer. The course of the session just closed is eloquent testimony of the way in which the people of the country are "represented."

But the most contemptible feature of the speech is the general tone of it, expressed in some sentences which we shall quote. It appears that the action of the Council was unpatriotic in the last degree. We are sensible of the cause which members of the House of the Assembly have to praise given and what they have done. Not one of them opened his lips, unless in incidental reference, to speak of the Regiment during the whole session; they now speak of it incessantly. We know ourselves what the boys at the front want. They want to do their duty, and if they fall doing it to have their places filled. Whose duty is it to fill them if not the Government? What have the Government done? How many of them, so far from compelling the slackers to do their duty, have had the courage to go to their districts and ASK them to come forward? Let these men prattle about patriotism when they show a single spark of it themselves. If the country wants money, let them begin now, in the fourth year of the war, by contributing some of the money. Let them mouth the word "patriotism" when their combined offerings in men, money and labor amount to one-tenth of those given by the Allies. Let them speak that we could name. Let them speak then if they will, and meantime, out of ordinary self-respect, keep silence.

The Premier asks, "Is one section of the country to do all and sacrifice all whilst the other stands idly by, fattening on the misfortunes of their neighbours, growing rich by profiteering, and in a position to avail of the certain profits born of the war?" In this utterly despicable sentence the issue which the Premier wishes is fairly joined. Will Sir Edward Morris have the goodness to inform us which one section of the country has done all and sacrificed all? Will he indicate which one has stood idly by? He knows himself the utter falsity, the contemptible hypocrisy, the vote-catching purpose of the insinuations he makes. Like any ranting Thersites he makes war upon one class, the merchants—the class which towers head and shoulders above all the rest together in the total of the country's effort in the war. What would that effort be worth without the part which it has contributed? Three-quarters of it would disappear. How many men would the Regiment have boasted? And as to that, let it never be forgotten that the voluntary offering and sacrifice of the soldier and sailor is a thing apart, the honour and credit of the individual and the class. Where would the Patriotic Fund be, the Red Cross Fund, the aeroplane Fund, any of the other funds which have established a name for Newfoundland generosity, without the contributions of the "unpatriotic" merchants? What portion of the work of the Patriotic Association and its many Committees consists of the ungrudging labor of the merchants? We will pursue no further a subject distasteful to the most ordinary delicacy. We ask our readers to bear in mind that we do not create this contemptible distinction of classes. It is the Government that have done that. We would not stoop so low. If the cowardly and baseless attacks upon a few worthy and respected gentlemen continue, we shall do our best to defend them; when the time comes for action, as come it will, it will be for them to act. The Premier speaks menacingly of the ultimate outcome of it all. He will have reason to remember his own words. For the present he should have the grace to be ashamed of a speech, delivered from the most responsible post in the country, which the most rabid and unprincipled socialist would have hesitated to utter.

Supreme Court on Circuit.

The Supreme Court on Circuit left by to-day's express for Bay of Islands, whence they will proceed to Bonne Bay on the s.s. Fiona. Accompanying the judge will be the officials of the Court, Mr. W. J. Carroll, Sheriff; Mr. Simon Butler, Clerk; Mr. Fred Emerson, Official Reporter; Mr. John Cahill, Crier. Messrs. C. E. Hunt, L. E. Emerson and Leo Carter represent the bar; Mr. Hunt will be Crown prosecutor. Mr. W. J. Higgins will connect with the circuit at St. George's. NO LONGER AN EYESORE.—What for years has been a public eyesore and danger to pedestrians is at last being removed. For the Municipality Board has decided to mend the broken sidewalk on Water Street in front of the premises of Councillor Brownrigg. If history of this broken sidewalk were written it would reveal a long line of bruised and battered noses not to speak of several chapters of epithets.

Our Baseball Column. PLAGIARISED AND OTHERWISE.

TO-NIGHT'S GAME.

To-night's baseball game between the Wanderers and Cubs is the cause of much excitement among the fans, as the relative position of both will be greatly affected by the outcome. As it stands at present the Cubs, Wanderers and Red Lions are tied in points, with the B.L.S. slightly leading, so that to-night's winners will be in the race for the pennant. Ted Berteau has developed into a twirler, having a very fast ball with a vicious break, and will be used as an assist to Punky Brown. Despite his strenuous efforts in Tuesday night's clash, Hall is in fine fettle and is confident of victory. Chief Chessman will be in charge, with Mr. Outerbridge scoring.

THE LINE UPS.

Table showing line ups for Wanderers and Cubs, listing players like Pitcher, Catcher, etc.

STANDING OF THE TEAMS.

CORRECTION.

We beg leave to hedge on our statement yesterday that Carew hung up a new record for the St. John's League when he blanked the Cubs. Our memory should have told us that in 1915 Bill Cooney held the B.L.S. hitless by a score of 19 to 0.

BATTING AVERAGES.

We will publish in Saturday's column the revised list of batting averages, showing the standing of the players up to and including to-night's Cubs-Wanderers game.

YOU SAID IT, BO!

Having viewed the recent work of the Irishmen, we refuse to be startled any more. It wouldn't cause us the slightest surprise if Uruguay rose up and beat the world.

THE ANCIENT EXCUSE.

(Cubs declare that their team are victims of rotten umpiring.) When the mighty Julius Caesar got that wallop on the breeches? He was quoted in the Roman Daily News: "I was jolted as sure as shooting. I would never get that booting 'if the umpires hadn't framed to have me lose!"

When the shifty boy named Abel hit the operating table After flopping from his brother's nifty club.

He declared with some derision "That was sure a bum decision: 'Why, the umpire had no right to call me out.'"

When Napoleon, with a shiver, Turned around and cranked his divver And he turned his bus away from any search through every lining.

As the little auto spluttered On his way Napoleon muttered "It was due to rotten umpires that I blew!"

It's the howl of all the ages And a blot on history's pages, And there isn't any outrage you can name From the poor old world's beginning, If you search through every lining, Where the umpire doesn't shoulder all the blame.

War and the Pleasure Car.

(From the New York Tribune.) Gasoline is one of the necessities of war. Yet no one would think it was, witnessing from day to day the lavish use in our streets and highways as an instrument of personal luxury. There has been no appreciable diminution since war was declared of pleasure or other needless riding in automobiles. That is one of the first signs of the non-existence here of war conditions and a war consciousness which strike the eye of every visitor from Europe. The Advisory Commission of the Council of National Defence has just warned the country that our present gasoline stocks are inadequate. We are using 35,000 barrels of crude oil in excess of our production. The consumption of oil for military purposes is going to increase amazingly. Therefore, even if we speed up our production, we shall have to cut down our oil consumption for non-military purposes. It is not the "joy-rides" alone to whom the Government's warning is directed. "Joy riding" is nearly as much of an abomination in peace time as it is in war time. But there are thousands of other users of gasoline who are indulging in pleasure excursions and other form of ordinarily harmless but now wasteful travel. It should be made a case of conscience with each of these whether the travel is justified under existing conditions. From every street news stand war scare heads clamor at the passerby. But once he turns his gaze from the sidewalk and watches the endless procession of pleasure vehicles, most of them on superfluous service, all sense of the reality of the war which we are engaged in fades away. The habit of unnecessary travel is necessarily hard to overcome. There has been an orgy of it for several years past. New York at night, and far into the night, is a panorama of speeding pleasure vehicles—nearly every one representing in its operation an unproductive expenditure. We cannot hope to overcome this habit of waste in 24 hours. But we can gradually break its hold. We are teaching ourselves to save food because our allies need it for several years past. Scholarship for Bishop Feild College.

$5,000 Presented by the Will of T. R. Job, Esq. Education in general, and Bishop Feild College in particular, benefit by the generosity of the late T. R. Job, who died recently in England and by whose will the sum of $5,000 is left to the school for the purpose of providing a scholarship. We understand that the conditions of the scholarship will be entirely in the discretion of the directors. The stimulus and encouragement of the munificent gift will be a splendid assistance to the College, whose sons have played so striking a part in the war and enabled it to maintain its high standard. The announcement follows at a short interval the gift by Mr. R. B. Job of his residence "Exton" to the C. E. Orphans and is further proof of the generosity of the Job family.

A Poetess Speaks.

ONE WOMAN'S BELIEF IN UNIVERSAL MILITARY TRAINING.

A Member of the Vigilantes, a Committee Composed of Well Known Authors and Literary Folk, States Her War Litany—extract from Poem.

Following is the patriotic creed of the well known poetess Marion Crouthou Smith:

ing and service for the following reasons:
First.—Because I believe in democracy, and I cannot honorably have the privileges of a free government unless I am willing to fulfill its obligations. Equal rights imply equal responsibilities.

Second.—Because I believe in a citizen soldiery rather than a large standing army. The latter is essentially an autocratic institution and is the only form of service that may degenerate into that sort of predominance and has been conducive to peace rather than war.

Fifth.—Because a woman must raise her son to be a man, and that implies, when he is full grown, his own control over his own destiny and his individual fulfilment of his duties and obligations. If his duty calls him to be a soldier he is in less danger, if he is physically and mentally trained from boyhood, than if he were left unprepared and unfit. The potential soldier is the better man in any position.
Sixth.—Because, if it is the part of every man to hold his life at stake for protective duty to the state, it is the part of every woman to hold her life's treasures at stake for the same duty. She has no right in time of peril to live under the protection of other women's sons. She must give active help and personal sacrifice. To shirk individual obligation is to incur an individual penalty in the loss of self respect and spiritual force.
Here is one of Miss Smith's latest poems:

TO THE MOTHERS.
Mothers of men, do you not know What you gave to the world in your hour of woe?
Born of courage, and doomed to stress,
A man for the tasks of men—no less!
Mothers of women, can you not feel

What all the signs of your life reveal?
You have brought forth love, with its sword and fire,
And love's high crown is the lost desire.
Mothers of men, have you not known
That the soul of the child is not your own?
If God has sealed him for pain and cross,
To hold him close were your bitter loss.
Mothers, mothers, will you not see
All that your gift to the world may be?
These who must fight a wrong unhorrred
Are Michael's angels, who bear the sword.

Mothers of men, then loose your hold!
Love grants more than your arms in fold.
Under the cross you stand apart,
With Mary's sword in your daughter's heart.

Marshall Bros

A Pair of Silk Stockings.

By RUTH CAMERON.

The Author-
man's Wife was
most indignant.
"No wonder," she said, "that you can't get a good old-fashioned servant when people
like her spoil them
so."

"What do you
think the 'spoiling' was? Her neighbor had given her maid a pair
of silk stockings
for a birthday
present."

"No wonder they 'put on airs,' fussed the Authorman's Wife, "when they are encouraged to like that.
Such an unsuitable present! Half a dozen cotton ones or a good apron
would have been much more suitable."

The Authorman's Wife has many good qualities but there are three when she makes me very cross. And this is one of them.

She Doesn't Like to See the Maid
Have Nice Things.

She loves silk stockings and wears
them as often as she can afford it.
Why shouldn't the maid do the same? And anyhow it is not a question of affording when a thing is a birthday present.

I am afraid the Authorman's Wife simply resents the maid's having the same sort of pretty things she has herself. And there are few things that exasperate me more than this attitude.

Many people seem to think that because folks are poor they ought not to care what they wear if only it is clean and whole. Their ideal poor person is "poorly but neatly" dressed,
and thankful for any garment they graciously choose to donate to her,
however old and ugly it be.

One of these "gracious givers" told me one day that she was through with a certain family forever. It is a family in which there are two pretty young girls who have to turn most of their earnings in to the family purse on account of their father's illness. The gracious giver had donated an old coat of hers which she expected the younger girl to wear. "And do you know, I don't think she ever put that coat on! I saw her going to town in a thin cheap little suit all winter. Of course that coat was a little out of style but it was warm and of good material. The pride of these people! Well I shan't bother myself with them any more."

I knew that coat when it was Young

If the coat was any sample of her bothering I don't think they will greatly grieve. I know that coat. It began to go out of style three years ago and she practically stopped wearing it. Since then she has kept it in the attic "in case I should want it some day." She might just as well have given it away while it had some semblance of style, but she wouldn't give while there was even a remote chance of her using it.

And yet she calls her giving charity!

Truly such charity is a cloak for a multitude of sins!

Rann-dom Reels.

THE SUCKER.

The sucker is a simple-minded,
open-mouthed citizen who will bite
on anything from perpetual motion
to a self-stopping corn razor.

The sucker was devised by a thoughtful and beneficent nature to provide sustenance for people who have cultivated the habit of looking before they leap. In every community there is quite a collection of guileless people who would rather take the personal guarantee of a total stranger than do business with the bank, and as there is nothing in law or morals to prevent them from doing so they are plucked and pin-feathered in a neat and tasty manner. One of the strongest proofs of man's intellectual progress and keen, discriminating nature is when he draws out of the bank money which is collecting 4 per cent. semi-annually and invests it in the patent rights for a hog cholera cure.

It is very difficult for the average sucker to learn anything from experience. This is because the voice of reason is drowned out by the hypo-
notic and silver-throated promoter,
who doesn't allow his victim to get set
long enough to think twice in succession. The sucker is always animated by the hope of making 22 per cent
a month and building a rubble-stone
bungalow in California with the proceeds thereof, but unless called to a halt by a shrewd and far-seeing wife
the chances are he will wind up by tending the furnace for some plutocratic relative with a stack of first farm mortgages four feet high.

The New York stock market furnishes more suckers to the square inch than any other locality, unless it is the shell game at the country fair. For every little investor who pulls out of the market with ready money there are nine thousand who are torpedoed and thrown up on the shore. There is something unjust in the arrangement which permits the corn crop and the cotton crop and the potato crop to go short, and yet allows the sucker crop to flourish
like the green bay tree.

Legislature Prorogued by the Governor.

Premier Resents Attitude of Upper House in Rejecting Profits Tax Bill.

Unique in many aspects, the present session of the Legislature was temporarily closed by His Excellency the Governor, Sir Walter Davidson, yesterday afternoon in the presence of a large and distinguished gathering, including squads from both branches of His Majesty's forces. After the usual formality associated with such ceremony, was gone through, His Excellency delivered the following Speech
in the Legislative Council Room:

Mr. President and Honourable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council:
Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Honourable House of Assembly:
It affords me much satisfaction to be able to relieve you from the arduous duties which have devolved on you during a somewhat protracted session, at this period of the year,
and I desire to express my appreciation of the zeal and assiduity with which you have devoted yourselves to the discharge of your legislative in-dues.

I rejoice that it has been found possible, during the session, to constitute a National Ministry, with the object of ensuring the co-operation of all parties in the working out of the very serious domestic and imperial problems to which the war is giving rise, and the equally serious problems, with which we seem destined to be confronted in the reconstruction period which will follow after the war. I sincerely trust that the expectations entertained with regard to the results to flow from this union of parties will be fully realized.

Many of the measures which have engaged your attention may be regarded as of outstanding importance to the future of the Colony. The War Pensions Bill is a measure of justice
for our representatives in the Navy and Army of the Empire, which will,
I feel sure, commend itself to everybody. The Food Control Bill will provide the machinery for coping with what may prove a serious situation during the ensuing stages of the war. The liberal provision you have made for Education should be warmly received, not alone by the teachers, but by the general public,
as the stimulus it will impart to the teaching organization cannot but be reflected in increased efficiency. The equally generous addition made for the marine and public works ought to be materially helpful in the betterment of these agencies, which count for so much in the industrial life of the Colony.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Honourable House of Assembly:
I thank you for the appropriations which you have made for the several departments of the public service,
and I assure you they will be expended with due regard to efficiency
and economy.

Mr. President and Honourable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council:
Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Honourable House of Assembly:
In now relieving you from your sessional duties I am glad to be able to note that the industrial operations of the Colony contain an assurance of continued prosperity for it, and I assure you of my sincere desire for your well-being and advancement.
His Excellency then presented the Bar to the Distinguished Conduct Medal won by Lieut. C. Gardner, of Trinity, to his sister, Mrs. T. Jenkins.

Since winning the distinction the gallant soldier has been reported missing.

The President of the Legislative Council then announced that His Excellency the Governor had been pleased to prorogue the Legislature until Thursday next, Aug. 16th.

In the Assembly Chamber the Premier, Sir Edward Morris, said:
"One of the most important measures passed by this House, namely,
a Tax on Business Profits, was thrown out yesterday by the Legislative Council. I exceedingly regret the action of the Members of the Council in this respect. There are gentlemen in that Chamber from whom I had hoped and expected better things. The measure was a War measure, designed in the interests of the Empire, a measure to obtain the funds to pay our soldiers, their wives and children and dependents, while they are defending our King and Country; to keep the home fires burning while they are away fighting for us in the trenches and on the seas.
Nothing could be fairer or more just than the principles of the Bill. In effect it provided that every business carried on in Newfoundland, where the annual profits were over $3,000,
should pay into the Revenue one-fifth of the excess profits, after the owner
had first charged all the cost and expenses and salaries of running the business. That is to say, if a firm made and cleared say $23,000, over and above all expenses, the owner would pay one-fifth of $20,000 into the revenue, or a tax of $4,000. I think it will be admitted that no fairer tax was ever conceived or proposed. I repeat that I am sorry that the Members of the Legislative Council did not rise
to the occasion of this great war,
which is devastating the Empire, robbing the homes, even in far-off Newfoundland, of their most prized treasures, and write themselves down in history forever as a band of patriotic citizens, thinking only of King and Country. How can any of us, after this declaration by the monied interests of Newfoundland, ask a father for his son to go forth to fight for us while, those at home, who are in a position to do so, refuse to contribute a reasonable allowance towards the sineas of war? Must there be only a conscription of blood and not of wealth? Is one section of the country to do all and sacrifice
all whilst the other stands idly by, fattening on the misfortunes of their neighbors, growing rich by profiteering, and in a position to avail of the certain profits born of the war?
Fighting the German Emperor by proxy? Most certainly not. No tax, no assessment, not even a complete confiscation of property, would be equal to or equivalent to the tax we have levied on the blood and manhood of this country. The richest man in Newfoundland has not treasure enough to pay the value of one of the Newfoundlanders who have died for their country. The true test would be to ask any parent what he would give to have his boy restored,

the light, the life, who has gone out of his home for ever. The loss is common to the entire community. In my own district I have many such cases. One woman has given four sons to the cause, three of whom have been killed and one is still fighting.
What share of his profits and his wealth should the well-to-do man
give to measure up to the toll paid
by this woman?

But there is another, and an important principle involved in this action of the Legislative Council, and that is the constitutional one. The power of taxation, as well as its remission, rests with this Chamber and with this Chamber alone. Technically, the Legislative Council may have the power to throw out the bill as they have done. But they are living in a fool's paradise if they imagine for a moment that public opinion throughout the country will tamely submit to a body such as they are, irresponsible to the people, throwing out a measure calculated to provide the means of carrying on the war. Such a right as that now claimed by the Legislative Council to refuse to pass money bills proposed by the representatives of the people must be settled once and for ever, and the Legislative Council will learn in good time that the powers they exercise under the Constitution are clearly defined, and that any attempt on their part to overstep the boundary will be prevented. They in no way represent the opinion of the country, and their action is a deliberate challenge to the people outside this House. The safety and independence of the constitutional principles upon which representation is based are involved in their act. Their present action, at most, will only prove a temporary satisfaction, the ultimate outcome is as certain as that to-mor-row's sun will rise. This Chamber is the place where the will of the people is expressed and assumes form and life by legislation, and any attempt to interfere with these supreme and unchangeable prerogatives will only serve to add another to those constitutional wrecks which strew the shores of history from the days of Magna Charta to the present time.

I repeat, I am sincerely sorry for the action of the Council, because there are gentlemen in that Chamber from whom I had expected more liberal and broad-minded treatment for the people."

The fact that the Legislature is to meet again next week is understood to mean that the Government will increase the membership of the Upper House.

The Windsor Draft.

A Statement of the Facts From the Official Records.

In view of the discussion now going on in re the above we have been asked to publish the following statements from the official records.

1. Replies of Standing Committee tabled by Hon. R. K. Bishop in the Legislative Council in reply to questions asked by Hon. J. Harvey, on July 5th in relation to statements made by Hon. P. T. McGrath.

Question 1.—Report upon the circumstances attending the sending forward of Volunteers known as the Windsor Draft, and particularly as to why they were not sent to connect with the S. S. Southland?

The history of the circumstances in connection with the draft of 120 men intended to have been sent by the Southland, and the subsequent addition thereto, which afterwards made up the draft known as the "Windsor Draft," is summarized in the following extracts from the Minutes of the Standing Committee on Military Organization, of the Patriotic Association of Newfoundland, and Notes:

October 4th, 1916.—"It was agreed that the Transport Committee be authorized to make arrangements for the despatch of a detachment of troops after consultation with the military authorities."

NOTE.—In accordance with this decision the Transport Committee arranged for a draft of 120 men to go by S. S. Florizel to Halifax, and thence by S. S. Southland to England early in December.

October 31st, 1916.—The Officer Commanding at Headquarters "drew the attention of the Committee to some sickness which prevailed among the men of the Regiment, and it was ordered that the Officer Commanding be empowered to board the men at Donovan's, or elsewhere, as might be required in this connection."

November 22nd, 1916.—The Officer Commanding at Headquarters "reported that measles had broken out among the men under his command. Both Majors Macpherson and Paterson (of the Medical Staff) were of the opinion that it would be risky for the men to go forward at present on account of this outbreak of measles, and they thought it advisable that the precedent which had already been established, of a delay of three weeks, be adhered to."

November 25th, 1916.—"The Chairman (Sir Joseph Outerbridge) reported that a draft of about 120 men was now ready to go overseas. After some discussion it was decided that the Chairman send a cable to the Agents at Halifax that there was some doubt about the men going next week, and that final arrangements with regard to same would not be made until the 27th inst."

"Major Montgomerie (Officer Commanding at Headquarters) suggested that Major Carry be requested to take command of the draft as far as Halifax, and see that the men were comfortably and safely placed on the S.S. Southland for passage across the Atlantic."

At the request of His Excellency the Governor, the Rt. Hon. the Prime Minister, Sir Joseph Outerbridge, Hon. Mr. P. Cashin, Messrs. J. A. Clift, T. J. Edens, J. W. N. Johnston, J. McKay, J. Peters, V. P. Burke, Major Montgomerie, Paterson, Macpherson and Capt. Abraham, Intelligence Officer.

The Governor presided and informed those present that the object of the meeting was to consider the advisability of sending or not sending a draft of men by Florizel to Halifax to connect with the Southland sailing for the Old Country on December 7th, in view of the fact that the Admiralty had given out information that two submarines were on this side of the water.

At the request of His Excellency the Governor, the Rt. Hon. the Prime Minister, Sir Joseph Outerbridge, Hon. Mr. P. Cashin, Messrs. J. A. Clift, T. J. Edens, J. W. N. Johnston, J. McKay, J. Peters, V. P. Burke, Major Montgomerie, Paterson, Macpherson and Capt. Abraham, Intelligence Officer.

The Governor presided and informed those present that the object of the meeting was to consider the advisability of sending or not sending a draft of men by Florizel to Halifax to connect with the Southland sailing for the Old Country on December 7th, in view of the fact that the Admiralty had given out information that two submarines were on this side of the water.

Note.—The reason for the doubt above expressed as to the men going was, that owing to the outbreak of measles referred to in the last Minutes, the Committee would not make a definite decision as to the date of sailing until the Medical Officers decided the number of men which would be available for the draft.

In the meantime His Excellency the Governor had received information to the effect that enemy craft were operating in the Atlantic, and he decided to confer with the Standing Committee. He, therefore, requested the Chairman to call an emergency meeting of the committee at the C. L. B. Armoury for the purpose of discussing with him, and the Prime Minister, with Capt. Abraham, Intelligence Officer, the advisability of sending, or not sending, the draft forward by the Florizel to connect with the Southland as arranged, in view of the altered conditions.

(The meeting above referred to was held in the C. L. B. Armoury on November 25th, 1916, and the Minutes of same are given in full on the next page.)

The following are the Minutes of the meeting which was held on November 25th, 1916:—

STANDING COMMITTEE OF THE PATRIOTIC ASSOCIATION, MEETING, NOV. 25TH, 1916.

The members of the Committee were summoned for the purpose of meeting His Excellency the Governor Sir W. E. Davidson, K.C.M.G., and the Rt. Hon. the Premier, Sir E. P. Morris, P.C., K.C.M.G.

A meeting was held in the C. L. B. Armoury, Harvey Road, at 4 p.m. PRESENT.—His Excellency the Governor, the Rt. Hon. the Prime Minister, Sir Joseph Outerbridge, Hon. Mr. P. Cashin, Messrs. J. A. Clift, T. J. Edens, J. W. N. Johnston, J. McKay, J. Peters, V. P. Burke, Major Montgomerie, Paterson, Macpherson and Capt. Abraham, Intelligence Officer.

The Governor presided and informed those present that the object of the meeting was to consider the advisability of sending or not sending a draft of men by Florizel to Halifax to connect with the Southland sailing for the Old Country on December 7th, in view of the fact that the Admiralty had given out information that two submarines were on this side of the water.

At the request of His Excellency the Governor, the Rt. Hon. the Prime Minister, Sir Joseph Outerbridge, Hon. Mr. P. Cashin, Messrs. J. A. Clift, T. J. Edens, J. W. N. Johnston, J. McKay, J. Peters, V. P. Burke, Major Montgomerie, Paterson, Macpherson and Capt. Abraham, Intelligence Officer.

The Governor presided and informed those present that the object of the meeting was to consider the advisability of sending or not sending a draft of men by Florizel to Halifax to connect with the Southland sailing for the Old Country on December 7th, in view of the fact that the Admiralty had given out information that two submarines were on this side of the water.

A general discussion then ensued in which all those present took part. In reply to a question, Capt. Abraham further stated that in his opinion the

We have the statement by the President, a statement which is based on private information of his own which may or may not be correct, as to the influence of some individual in connection with the forwarding of the men who were going to join the Southland to sail from Halifax December 7th. Before the question of submarines was ever raised at all we may note from that reply that in October more than one meeting was called in which the medical officers referred to at length to the question of infectious diseases, and a doubt whether on that ground alone these men should have been allowed to go. But the committee did not decide on that.

The next thing we find on November 25th, the Colonel of the Regiment acting on information officially received called a meeting of the committee to consider whether the men should then be sent on their way. It had then at that time the information in regard to the existence of submarines on this side of the water, and all through these minutes no reference is made to the person who is referred to as having influenced the committee for personal motives. It is stated that the Prime Minister urged that the draft should not be sent, and the doctors had already urged against it on the ground of measles. A motion was put that the draft be sent forward and was lost. There is nothing whatever on the face of it to show the existence of anything but an honest desire on the part of the committee to do what was right. I do not see anything which would indicate but that the desire of the Committee was to do what was quite right in view of the information by the Governor as to submarines, and that of the doctors as regards measles, and there is nothing to show that the committee was definitely influenced and prejudiced so to speak by one gentleman who had a son going and who I think has several sons in the ranks of the regiment.

Comments made by Hon. R. K. Bishop in the Legislative Council on the same occasion.

I just wish to refer in a brief way to the remarks which have been made to the hon. gentlemen who have just spoken. Regarding the reason for the delay in sending forward the Windsor draft, there was for the consideration of that committee an intimation by the Medical Board that there was disease apparent. There was another strong reason and that was the further intimation that there was to be no convoy and that the "Southland" was anything but a fast ship, and further there was the very material reason that at the meeting held the members were informed by Capt. Abraham that there was an intimation by the Admiralty that submarines were operating in the North Atlantic and also an armed cruiser.

The charge of the hon. President that that Committee was influenced by one member who had a son going is, I am compelled to repeat, without foundation, as apart from the report of the Committee, I am informed that the transport of troops from Halifax at this season of the year was safer from attack by enemy submarines than in the summer.

Mr. MacKay then moved and Hon. M. P. Cashin seconded that we cancel any arrangements made with regard to forwarding the troops by R. M. S. Florizel and that we send them by rail to Halifax to connect with the S. S. Southland sailing on December 7th.

After some further discussion the motion was put to the meeting and lost. It was then agreed that the transportation of the draft under consideration be postponed indefinitely.

On the suggestion of Sir E. P. Morris and Sir Joseph Outerbridge it was decided that His Excellency the Governor be requested to communicate with the Canadian authorities with a view of ascertaining whether it could be arranged that our troops be despatched with the Canadian troops, and conveyed across the Atlantic in company with them.

The meeting then adjourned sine die. December 8th, and December 15th, 1916.—Telegrams which passed between His Excellency the Governor and the Governor General of Canada bearing upon the transport of troops, were read at these meetings, but as these telegrams are marked "Secret," the Committee has no authority to disclose their contents.

December 12th, 1916.—"In reply to the Hon. M. P. Cashin, Major Montgomerie, (Officer Commanding Headquarters) intimated to the Committee, "there are at present 300 men available for transport, i.e., provided that 100 men were not retained for Home Defence."

January 5th, 1917.—"Cipher telegrams No. 328 to the Governor General of Canada were read at this meeting, but as these telegrams were marked "Secret," the Committee has no authority to disclose their contents.

January 12th, 1917.—"Cipher telegram No. 337 to Governor General of Canada was read at the meeting of this date, but as it was marked "Secret," the committee has no authority to disclose its contents.

January 19th, 1917.—"Cipher telegram No. 300 from the Governor General of Canada was read at this meeting.

After the reading of this telegram it was resolved:

That the transport Committee be instructed to proceed with the enquiries as to the availability of the transport of a draft at as early a date as possible, and that in view of a decision made at the meeting in the C. L. B. Armoury with the Governor and the Prime Minister were present, they be informed of the intentions of the Committee, with certainifying if they have any objections."

January 26th, 1917.—"The Chairman reported that he had consulted with the Governor and the Prime Minister with regard to the draft of the Regiment going via Halifax, and that both of them thought the draft should be dispatched as soon as possible, via Halifax.

Arrangements were made by Transport Committee for draft to sail by S. S. Florizel, leaving 31st January, to connect with the S. S. Saxonia, leaving Halifax for the Old Country on January 30th, 1917.—The Chairman explained the object of the meeting, which was to consider the advisability of the information received by the Admiralty, after general discussion it was decided that the draft leave by the Florizel as arranged, and that the troops await the arrangements for their transportation from there.

Note.—This meeting was called on account of a dispatch to His Excellency the Governor from the Admiralty advising that on account of inability to proceed for the Government, the troops were not to be dispatched from Halifax by that steamer.

February 1st, 1917.—"Cipher telegram No. 357 to Governor General of Canada. Cipher telegram No. 256 to Secretary of State. Cipher telegram No. 351 from the Governor General of Canada. Cipher telegram No. 373 to Secretary of State. Cipher telegram No. 374 from the Governor General of Canada; and Cipher telegram No. 359 from Secretary of State, were read at this date. These telegrams are all marked "Secret," and the Committee has no authority to disclose their contents. At this meeting copy of telegram from Major Montgomerie to the Governor, was read, saying "the troops had arrived at Halifax, all well, at midday February 3rd."

Note.—This draft (afterwards known as the Windsor draft), consisted of 120 men all ranks. The draft intended to be sent by the Southland was 120 all ranks.

It terminates the connection of the Committee with this draft as far as transportation was concerned. Arrangements thereafter were in the hands of the Canadian Government. The troops arrived at Halifax on Feb. 3rd and reached Windsor (a town of about forty-five miles from Halifax) on the same date. Shortly after arrival a number of infectious diseases developed in the Regiment, and though several attempts were made by the Canadian authorities to get the draft away, a clean Bill of Health was not received until the middle of April. The draft sailed from Halifax on April 18th, 1917.

Comments made by Hon. John Harney in Legislative Council when these replies were tabled.

The Windsor Draft.

charges were entirely without warrant. There is but one member of the Committee who had a son going forward in that draft and the Committee aver that he did not use any argument to influence that Committee. The Committee was swayed in its decision primarily by the words of the Premier, who said: "We have information here that there are submarines at present in the North Atlantic. This draft may be sent forward in the 'Southland' and reach Britain in safety, but if an accident should happen, if by any chance she should be met and sent to bottom and a number of the men go down with the ship, the Government of this country will never be washed clear of that offence if they allowed the men to go forward with the knowledge it now has." The reason was good and sound in my opinion and if such an accident had happened the Premier was perfectly correct when he said that nothing would ever relieve the Committee of the blame which would be attached to them. As regards the 100 Naval Reservists going in that ship, my hon. friend knows that the Committee had no control of those men nor any person here, other than Commander MacDermott of the Briton. They went forward, it is true, and were landed safely. Our men would also have landed equally as safely unless the disease had spread on the voyage. But the general impression as far as I can find from things which have been published in the Herald is that the Committee was influenced by the report of the submarine danger and that they acted wisely and well in not sending the draft over.

Report of the Standing Committee to the Patriotic Association.

The report also drew attention to the criticisms on the Standing Committee's work, which appeared in the published official reports of the Legislative Council, and in the editorial columns of the Herald as being made by the Hon. Dr. McGrath. The report in part reads:

Fair criticism is in every way desirable, and indeed would be welcomed by this Committee, but we must respectfully point out that statements conveyed to the public through the channels indicated and emanating from a member of this Association, must of necessity, when untrue, do infinite harm to the work of both this Committee and the Association to which it is responsible.

The statements are all the more regrettable because they come from a member of the Association who has done such excellent service in other and important avenues of its work. We submit it is the duty of every member of this body who believes he has cause for complaint as to the manner in which its affairs are being administered, to bring the matter first before the Association, rather than raise a ferment in the public mind by statements through the public press or otherwise.

This latter course has, unfortunately, been adopted in the instances to which we invite the attention of the Association, namely: The statements and comments which have been made with regard to the despatch of what is known as the "Windsor Draft," and the already much discussed question of the granting of commissions.

With regard to the Windsor Draft, the Hon. Dr. McGrath has stated in the Legislative Council as follows: "It was to leave here by the 'Florizel' and join the steamer 'Southland' at Halifax, but the day before it left the Governor attended to make the usual farewell address to the lads and so did a number of members of the Standing Committee. One of these had protested against the despatch of the draft on the ground that 'Southland' was a slow ship and that she might be torpedoed, and an emergency meeting was held and this point was discussed. This gentleman, who had a son in the draft, was strong in his views, and although the Governor and Capt. Abraham, who was also present, and whose views were invited, expressed the opinion that there was no danger, the Committee decided to hold the draft back."

He has further stated editorially in the Evening Herald that "Possibly many a man now lying dead in France would be alive if the reinforcements which that draft would have furnished had been available."

Your Committee most emphatically deny that there was the slightest foundation in fact for any such statements as made by Hon. Dr. McGrath in his speech in the Legislative Council or for the account given by him of the circumstances under which the meeting referred to was convened and held. These circumstances are fully stated in the extracts from the minutes of the Committee already published in the official debates in the Legislative Council, and it will be seen that there was nothing to warrant the painful reference contained in the editorial suggestion or to justify the charge that any member of this Committee was responsible for the meeting being held with a view to delaying the despatch of the draft for any other reason.

In the light of all the circumstances

now detailed, the Standing Committee has no option but to submit all the facts, and having done so they confidently look to the Patriotic Association to vindicate them in the eyes of the public.

Mr. CHIT. in moving the adoption of the report, stated that statements had been made that the draft was delayed because a certain man's son was going, but that Reservists had been allowed to go. The inference was that discrimination had been shown in the matter. The Committee had nothing to do with the Reservists or knowledge of their going. As to the granting of commissions, these were given by the Commanding officers on the other side. Some had been granted with regard to the despatch of what was required, and they were nominated by the Selecting Committee. No reply to the statements had been made through the Press, as it was felt no good purpose could be served by so doing, but the Committee had felt themselves held up to ridicule and contempt, and asked vindication by the Association. Notice had also been taken of the charge that men were now lying dead in France because of the delay in reinforcements.

Mr. R. G. Rendell referred to the matter of commissions, and pointed out that all the men of fair education and good character had been given a chance. Messrs. Burke, McDougall, Picot and Hanning were mentioned. He spoke to the motion, after which the report was adopted without a contrary vote. Dr. McGrath was not present.

To-Day's Messages.

1.00 P.M.

SERBIAN PREMIER IN LONDON.
LONDON (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency), To-Day. At a luncheon given to-day in the Savoy Hotel in honor of the Premier of Serbia, M. Pastich, Lloyd George said: "We owe more to M. Pastich and Premier Venizelos of Greece than he could possibly reveal at present. Serbia, he said, which had been covered by the dirt of Turkish barbarism was about to be cleansed and would yet appear fresh and wonderful. The first condition of peace was complete restoration without reservation. However long the war may last, added Lloyd George, British honor was involved in seeing Serbia freed. Serbia and Belgium are the guardians of the gates and bravely have they defended them. The Serbian troops, although overwhelmed, were never disheartened and are still guarding the gate. We extend again the hand of friendship to Serbia. We will go through the war together to the end. In the course of his speech Lord Robert Cecil declared he was convinced there was no inconsistency between the aims of Italy and those of Serbia. Premier Pastich, whom Lord Cecil described as the grand old man of Serbia, after expressing the deepest thanks for what Britain had done for small nations, said Germany now spoke of an honorable peace. Such a peace could only be secured if the peoples under the Austro-German rule were set free. If he said, France gets back Alsace Lorraine, if the Italians accomplish unity with their still unredeemed brethren, if the unity of Serbs, Croates and Slovaks is achieved, if the Poles and Slovaks are united and the independence of Polish and Rutenian questions are solved, then only will an honorable peace be assured.

SLIGHT INCREASE IN SHIPPING LOSSES.
LONDON, To-Day. There was a slight increase in the loss of British merchant vessels by submarines or mines during the last week, according to the official summary issued to-night. Twenty-one British vessels of more than 1000 tons and two vessels of less than 1000 tons were sunk last week, and thirteen ships attacked unsuccessfully. No fishing boats were lost. The number of vessels over 1000 tons lost during the last week is an increase of three over the number sunk in the previous week, when eighteen were lost through submarines or mines. There is a decrease of one in vessels less than 1000 tons, three having been reported lost the previous week. The total for the present report, 23, is an increase of two over the previous report and is one less than the number reported lost for the week ending July 22, which was the highest since the week ending June 24 when 26 were lost.

RUSSIA WILL FIGHT.

WASHINGTON, To-Day. Russia, newest of democracies, grows stronger of heart and purpose daily, and with aid from the United States can be depended on to do her part in the great war and emerge a powerful state. This was the message brought to President Wilson and Secretary of State Lansing to-day by Elliot Root and his fellow members of the American Mission sent to Russia three months ago. Unqualified encouragement from the United States, moral and financial, when necessary is absolutely essential to keeping life in the new Government. The Commissioners agreed that a separate peace with Germany obviously is the gravest fear. Left to fight along with her present Government control, the President was told, Russia will emerge triumphant and strong, but if either by great masses of troops or clever propaganda Germany should accomplish the overthrow of the Kerensky Government, the outlook would be dark indeed.

In Milady's Boudoir.

We could learn much from our little stoe eyed sisters of Chrysanthemum land if we really need her teachings.

The peach glow complexion of the Japanese woman is greatly aided by the application of hot cleansing cloths, which she uses after having been in the dust of outdoors.

You may go through the same steaming process in your American bathroom. Run a quantity of hot water into the stationary basin, take a large soft cloth or a small soft towel, make a pad of it by folding, dip it in the water (hot not scalding hot) and then, after pressing the water out of it slightly hold it to the face for about two minutes.

Repeat the process three times and then proceed to douse the face vigorously with cold water for about five minutes, so that the pores will not become enlarged from the steaming. This would be preferably before retiring.

Never fail to put cold cream upon the face after the cold water douch. If done before retiring the cream need not be washed off, but if the steaming and cold water douch are used before going out, cream may be wiped off gently from the surface with a soft handkerchief and powder applied.

If your complexion is "off color" this steaming and cold water bath will brighten it up beautifully. Be sure and do not forget the cream if the weather is cold.

Garden Party

At Government House Grounds a Splendid Success.
Yesterday's Garden Party in aid of the C. of E. Orphanage, held at Government House Grounds, was run off under excellent weather conditions, the attendance being exceptionally large. Included in those present were His Lordship Bishop Jones, Revs. Canons White and Bolt, Dr. Jones, H. Uphill and H. M. Stewart; Rt. Hon. Sir E. P. Morris, Mayor Gosling, members of both branches of the Legislature.
At the different stalls plain and fancy work, candles, ices, flowers, etc. were sold. Teas were also served while refreshments of all kinds could be obtained. Among the numerous attractions were fortune telling, goat and donkey rides and swings for the little folks. The exhibition of war trophies held in Government House was in itself worth the admission fee.
A concert was held before tea in the ballroom where a stage had been constructed. Those taking part were: Mr. Arthur Gosling, Mrs. Job, Misses Gladys Job and Ryan, Mr. Fred. Emerson, Messrs. Landry, Macklin and Burley, of the Briton's Band, and Mr. Wheeler, ventriloquist. Another concert was held at 8 o'clock when the following took part: Mesdames Foster, Hutton, Colville and Job, Misses Orr, Johnson, Macpherson, Windeler and Mitchell; Messrs. Griffiths, Devereaux, Hutton, Williams and Wheeler.
The concert, which was a grand success, was arranged by Miss Ababel LeMessurier who is to be congratulated on her efforts. Mr. Fred. Emerson in his usual manner acted as accompanist. The C. L. B. and C. C. C. Bands were present during the afternoon and night, and supplied a programme of music to the delight of all present.
During the past three years the bandmen of both brigades have given much of their time and talent in efforts to help such worthy objects as yesterday's Garden Party, and are to be commended for their services.
At the Pansy Stall, presided over by the Misses Diana and Daphne Davidson, the little daughters of His Excellency the Governor, the handsome sum of $250 was taken.
The lady managers of the Orphanage who conducted the plain work tables realized about $600.
The gate receipts were in the neighbourhood of $350, and it is expected the total proceeds will exceed $2,500. The total amount together with other sums will be used in repairs and alterations to the new home at Exton formerly the residence of Mr. Bert Job, near Smithville.
The Garden Party, while not conducted on so large a scale as last year, was indeed a great success and those who worked so hard to achieve that end are to be congratulated on their efforts.
