Lady Ethel's Rival

CHAPTER IV.
IN THE RUINS.

"I am very glad to hear it," is the reply, measured and deeply musical. "It was a dangerous situation, even for one so—"

Kitty looks up, with a flash in her eyes; but he goes on calmly: "So courageous."

"It was not dangerous," she says, sullenly. "Yes, there is no other word for it—sullenly. 'I don't think I should have fallen, at least,' she adds, for Kitty is truthful to the last—at least—yes, I should have fallen but for you."

"I am very happy to have been of some slight assistance," he says. "I must confess that when I caught sight of you up there I felt a little apprehensive."

"Have you been here long?" demands Kitty suspiciously.

"I came up scarcely a moment since," he replies, with perfect composure. "But I was here soon enough to witness the compulsory exchange which Lord Reginald effected—"

"You know Reg—Lord Reginald?" says Kitty quickly, as if she were accusing him of some piece of deception.

"I have that honor," he assents, with the shadow of a smile about his lips.

Kitty looks down.

"Perhaps—perhaps you know me?" she asks, in her unconventional, straightforward fashion.

"That is an honor and pleasure I have yet to experience," he says, raising his hat.

Kitty sets her lips tightly and looks across the meadow.

With a gesture, as if recollecting himself, this self-possessed gentleman looks across the meadow, also.

"I am afraid that Lord Reginald does not mean to return your cob. May I ask how you intend returning home?"

"I shall walk," says Kitty firmly.

"I am a stranger here," says the gentleman, "but I think—I am sure that I can procure a carriage in a few moments, if you will allow me."

"I shall walk," says Kitty, adding ungraciously—"thank you."

"It is some distance," he hints; "I can get you a carriage in a few minutes—"

Kitty shakes her head.

"No, thank you, I will not trouble you. I shall walk, unless Reg, my cousin, should meet me; he will be almost sure to do so."

Then she takes up her habit, puts on her gloves, and make him a stiff little bow.

"Thank you for—"

"Nothing," he says, with a smile, that somehow, perhaps because it is so rare, is peculiarly striking and taking.

"No," says Kitty hurriedly: "I should have fallen if you had not caught me. Then, as if moved by an impulse, she hurries on, with a scarlet face: "Perhaps you think I had no business there—"

"I should not dream of questioning a lady's right to do what seemeth best to her—"

"And that it was un ladylike—and—like a tomboy? Perhaps it was, but I didn't expect that any one would be anywhere near here to see me; no one ever is here!"

"I feel that I am trespassing," he murmurs.

"Not that I care, do not think that!" she says quickly, and with a sudden, sharp catching at her breath. "Indeed I do not! I am very much obliged to you. Good morning."

He lifts his hat—ay, removes it, and stands with his shapely head bare while he opens the little gate for her, and she passes through, hot, uncomfortable, red in the face, and fighting hard against a burst of tears.

That this—this man of all others the world contains, should have seen her in that odious window—should have caught her in his arms! Far

What are Peps

Peps are the new treatment for coughs, colds and lung troubles. They are little tablets made up from fine extracts and medicinal essences. When put into the mouth these medicinal ingredients turn into healing vapors, which are breathed down direct to the lungs, throat and bronchial tubes. The Peps treatment is direct. Swallowing cough mixtures into the stomach, to cure ailments and disorders in throat and lungs, is indirect. Peps are revolutionizing the treatment of colds and their price is within the reach of all. All dealers, 5c. box. Send 1c. stamp for FREE TRIAL PACKAGE.

rather, she thinks, a thousand times, would she have fallen and broken every bone in her body!

CHAPTER V.
THE WORLD OF FASHION.

"UPON my word, I don't see what you wanted me for," says Kitty, raising her dark brows. She is perched upon a bureau in her cousin Lady Ethel's rooms—perched upon a point of vantage that enables her to look through the window over the great park that glows all green and vernal in the spring sunset. The room, Lady Ethel's boudoir, is elegantly furnished, and supplied with the most luxurious chairs and the softest lounges that the most exacting of young ladies might desire, and on one of the said lounges Ethel herself reclines, fair, aristocratic, and sentimentally languid; it is safe to say, that never in her life has Ethel Rosedale climbed on top of a chest of drawers; that all that life through she has preferred the soft chairs and lounges; Kitty does not, and there is the difference.

The two girls, so nearly alike in age, so different in appearance and disposition, have just dressed for the dinner that is being put on in the great dining room, and are waiting for the bell that shall summon them to the drawing room. On a small Oriental table beside Lady Ethel's elbow stands an exquisite five-o'clock tea service of silver. Kitty's cup and saucer stand beside her, in imminent peril, on the top of the drawers. Lady Ethel matches the room, is elegantly dressed to a degree; her maid has left her satisfied. Kitty is clad in a white muslin, the proper "setting" of which has caused that same maid the greatest tribulation. Lady Ethel leans back in an attitude of passive repose and languor; Kitty swings her small feet to and fro with an air of pleasurable excitement and expectancy.

"What strange things you say, my dear Kitty!" murmurs Ethel, raising her arm to inspect, with critical satisfaction, the diamond bracelet that adorns that white and shapely limb.

"It seems true enough to me," says Kitty, with charming bluntness. "Of course I was glad enough to come; I'd leave the Lawn to go to a duck race."

Lady Ethel smiles.

"I'm sure of that; anything in the shape of a race, Kitty."

"Yes," says Kitty, not at all thrown back, "anything in the shape of a race, and I'm only too glad to get an outing like this. Why, Ethel, this is my first affair of any consequence; I don't reckon the small tea fights at the Pophams, or the juvenile parties at the rectory. This is my first introduction to what papa charmingly calls the 'great world,' and I'm looking forward to it. Fancy the dinner—"

"The dinner!" echoes Lady Ethel, with a delicious little shudder, "can you, can you really care for eating?"

"Can I care?" retorts Kitty, showing her dazzling teeth with the smile of a gamin—"can I care! My dear Ethel, I'm awfully fond of my dinner, and I think that man—the great French author, what's his name—who said that his dinner was the only solidly satisfactory thing in the whole of his life, was not far from the truth."

"What dreadful things you say," murmurs Lady Ethel, looking at her with mild deprecatory horror under lowered eyelids. "Have you no love for the beautiful—no feeling for poetry—"

"Sometimes I may have," says Kitty, but dubiously—"at the present moment all I possess is an acute sense of hunger, an awful, devastating appetite!"

And she throws up a pincushion in the air, as the nearest approach to a ball.

Lady Ethel sighs.

"Ah," she says, arranging a stray piece of lace that had got twisted, "I half envy you, Kitty—envy you your robust health, your high, animal spirits, your—"

"Not you," says Kitty, with a mellow laugh, "you don't envy me anything, Eth—you know that you are long chalks ahead of me in everything."

"Long chalks!" echoes Lady Ethel, looking both puzzled and horrified. "Where do you get such words, Kitty?"

"I knew it was a vulgar word!" exclaims Kitty, with emphasis—"I knew it directly I heard Regy say it, and I thought to myself, 'you shan't teach me that, anyhow!' and here I've got it. In my opinion, Eth, that slang is as catching as measles or the whooping-cough, and twice as hard to pull through and get rid of."

Reginald teaches you all these extraordinary phrases," says Ethel; "I take great care he doesn't infect me."

"Of course you do," assents Kitty promptly; "catch you learning anything you didn't want to! Now, my fault's just the other way—I never can learn what I do want to learn, and I always pick up what I don't want. Reg is as bad as that old white mare papa had—if you went and only looked at her, some of the hairs would come off her coat and stick to you; and if I am only five minutes in Reg's company, I catch some slang. Oh, Ethel! I do hope he is not to dine with us to-day—he makes such horrid faces over the table, and is sure to make me laugh."

Before Ethel can answer, there is a knock at the door, followed immediately after by the opening thereof, and the appearance of a boy's rough head and honest, mischievous face.

"Hello, you girls! where's Kitty? Oh, there you are!" And, with a grin at the prospect of a tease, he steps into the room.

"Keep off!" cries Kitty; "I'm only to be looked at."

"Visitors are respectfully requested not to touch the figures!" Eh, Kitty?"

"Just so, therefore don't come within three yards of me."

"What are you stuck up there for?" demands Lord Reginald. "My! what a stunning scarecrow you'd make; old Giles would give you a bob to sit on a stick and keep the spudgers off the peas!"

Kitty colors furiously, and regards the teacup wistfully—there remains about a quarter of a cup of tea in it; she could pay Master Reg for that remark in full weight—she will, too!

"Look, Reg," she says, pointing to the window, and the moment he turns his back, she empties the contents of the teacup upon his head.

The next moment she springs to her feet on the drawers, and, half defiant, half imploring, says:

"Reg! Reg! that only makes us quits—doesn't it, Eth? Didn't he tease me first? If you dare to come here, I'll ring the bell. Ethel, please send him away! Dare to lay a finger on this dress, and I'll never forgive you."

But defiance is the sure and certain road to onslaught. Lord Reginald snatches up a silk shawl, and approaches her.

"Kitty, I'll turn the chest of drawers over, as sure as you stand there, unless you wipe this mess off my head!"

"Indeed!"

"Here goes, then," says Lord Reginald.

And certainly over the chest of drawers would have gone, but for the timely intervention of Ethel, who, roused from her state of neutrality by the abuse of her Indian crepe, rises virginly indignant.

"Reginald! how can you be so rough? Kitty, Kitty! there's the bell."

"That's right!" gasps Kitty. "Here, give me the shawl!"

And, with a swift downward bend, she snatches it from him.

"Wipe it off," demands Lord Reginald.

"Oh, certainly," says Kitty mischievously.

And, instead of doing penance, she whips the shawl tightly round his head, enveloping him fore and aft to the neck, and then, with a bound like an antelope, springs from her post and darts for the door, very nearly upsetting the indignant Ethel, who has only just time to fall aside as Reginald, tugging and tearing at his muffs, dashes in pursuit.

Wedding Bells.

COURAGE—POLLOCK.
Saturday, the 9th inst., the Methodist Church of Catalina, was the scene of a very pretty and attractive wedding, when Miss Eliza May Snowden Courage, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Abel Courage, and Mr. John Pollock, of St. John's, who holds the prominent position of chief engineer of the S.S. Clyde, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. The wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. P. Ward. The bride was handsomely attired in white 'peau-de-soie' silk with pearl-trimmings, bridal veil of white embroidered silk net with wreath of orange blossoms, carried a bouquet of carnations and maiden hair fern, looked charming as she entered the church leaning on the arm of her father, whilst the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March were rendered by Miss Mary Pomeroy. She was attended by her cousin Miss Lona Courage, assisted by Miss Nellie House and the bride's sister, Miss Myrtle Courage, who wore white voile dresses and black picture hats, while the groom was ably supported by Mr. A. Northcott, the popular and efficient mail clerk of the Clyde. After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the home of the bride's parents where everything was nicely arranged for the reception and where bride and groom received many hearty congratulations. After about fifty guests had partaken of a sumptuous supper they retired to the drawing-room where an appropriate programme was got ready for the evening. The bride being an accomplished pianist and singer, everyone fully enjoyed her different renditions of marches, waltzes and solos. Many useful and valuable presents were received, showing the esteem in which both were held, among them being several pieces of gold, silverware, an upstated kid rocker and many other lovely articles. The groom's present to the bride was a gold wristlet watch, to the maid of honor a gold cameo pendant and chain, and to the bridesmaids five dollar gold pieces. After a week's stay with the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. Pollock left by Saturday's train for Lewisporte where they will make their future home.—Com.

The Flights of Kings.

New York, Nov. 15.—There is one who from his own experience could tell Wilhelm that "sad stories of the death of kings" are less sad than tales of their dreary exile. Past ninety, but able to take a woman's part in the war with gifts and prayers for the vengeance of justice, ex-Empress Eugenie recalls how, forty-eight years ago, she too boasted of "my war." With her will go that last personal link with the Napoleon of Chislehurst and the Napoleon of St. Helena. They are to have, it seems, a successor. The late Kaiser also has chosen exile. Aware that history will sift and treasure every scrap of evidence of his right, he posed for posterity, as all his life he has done, in the little frontier of Eysden. Legend is provided with materials. Since a day brings dispute even as to the number and style of his attendants, what controversies may not future students wage over the manner of his disappearance from "his" country? The seven Kings who share his downfall will bulk less large in the recital. Already too begin the problems of exile. Wilhelm's Dutch hosts are uneasy in their responsibility. He was a king; but he is indicted for murder, and in theory extraditable for trial, though no one may ask for him. He was an emperor; but if he crossed the boundary as one of an armed body he must by law be interned until the end of the war and then—Eysden is more than a hundred miles from Ypres, where the flight of Louis XVII, friend of America, less fortunately ended—Varennes, which Americans, friends of France, lately restored to her. Louis lost his life with his throne; automobiles are an improvement on carriages when revolutions smash behind the evaders of danger. Time will tell whether Wilhelm is more fortunate than past kings deposed, or will live to curse the resources of modern travel that saved him for long days and bitter memories.

Punish the Criminals.

(From the Ottawa Journal-Press.)
Sir George Cave's announcement that German military criminals will be brought to trial and punished, is welcome news for the democratic world. The French Government in a recent declaration told the German nation that "conduct which is equally contrary to international law and the fundamental principles of all human civilization will not go unpunished." Britain's Home Secretary shows that the British Government is in accord on this point with its great ally, and it may now be expected that its addition to the full repatriation and restoration (specified by President Wilson in his latest note to the German Government) Germany will be called upon for the peace conference to surrender for trial her great criminals of the war. Among these the following may be mentioned as typical of this class:

William II, author of the war and directly responsible for all its crimes.
General Von Kluck, for the outrages committed by his First Prussian Army.
Admiral Von Tirpitz, instigator of unrestricted submarine warfare.
General Von Bulow, for his general order of August 22nd, 1914:—"With my authorization the town of Andenne has been laid in ashes and 110 inhabitants have been shot."
General Stenger, for his order of August 26th, 1914, to shoot British wounded and prisoners.
General Von Boehn, for the Termonde murders.
Major Manteuffel, for the murder of the Falaba passengers.
These are but a few out of some 500 or more Germans who have vilely violated the laws of war and the Hague Convention. To them should be added the German commanders of the prison camps in which British prisoners have been done to death; submarine commanders still alive who have been guilty of murdering men, women and children in open boats upon the seas; officers who ordered Armenian massacres, and scores of others as vile. Last of all, Lenin, Trotsky and other Anarchist criminals turned loose upon Russia and supplied with money and arms, should not be forgotten where justice has to be done.

Presentation of Ciborium.

TO CAPT. (REV.) THOS. NANGLE, C.F., BY MOTHERS OF OUR CATHOLIC SOLDIERS.
The mothers of the Catholic soldiers in The Royal Newfoundland Regiment desiring to give Capt. (Rev.) T. Nangle, C. F., devotion to their boys "over there," formed a committee early in the Summer with this purpose in view. It was decided that each mother should be asked to subscribe not more than 25 cents towards the purchase of a Ciborium for use by the beloved Chaplain when ministering to the spiritual wants of the lads in the Regiment.
The Committee consisted of Mesdames Hiseock and Buckley and Miss Jessie Bulley.
In July an order was placed with the celebrated firm of silversmiths, Wm. Egan & Sons, of Cork, whose fame as designers and makers of ornamental Church vessels is world-wide.
By the recent English mail the following letter was received from Father Nangle acknowledging the receipt of the gift, and expressing his gratitude to the brave mothers of those gallant boys of "Ours" for their kind remembrance of him:—
87th Field Ambulance,
B. E. F.,
Sept. 10th, 1918.
"To the Catholic Women of Newfoundland:—
"I do not know to whom I should address this particularly, but I should like to convey to all you brave mothers who were so thoughtful and generous, my sincere thanks and heartfelt appreciation for the magnificent Ciborium you have sent me. It reached me here on August 30th.
"It is made of gold, beautifully erected and inscribed, and just the proper size. I used it the first time after it arrived to give Holy Communion to some two hundred Welsh and Scotch troops about to go in to battle, and it has been in use every Sunday since.
"Our own "Boys" are expected back to the line daily—when I shall immediately return to them. Every body in the Division, from the General down, is looking forward to having them with us again, but there will be none more pleased to see them and to minister to them than I.
Yours most sincerely,
T. NANGLE, C.F."
A Ciborium is the receptacle used by the priest in which to carry the sacred waters for administering Holy Communion. The one sent to "Padre" Nangle is made of solid silver with a gold cup, of a size and shape suitable for a Chaplain at the Front. It is surmounted by a Celtic cross, which, with the handle, is collapsible so as to make it compact for travelling purposes. The Ciborium is a masterpiece of the silversmith's art and is of pure Celtic design, being a replica of similar vessels made in Ireland in the 18th century. It is chased and embossed throughout by hand. Artistic work such as this has not been produced in Cork for upwards of 800 years. The following inscription is engraved on the base:—
To The Rev. Thomas Nangle, C. F.,
From the Mothers of the Catholic Soldiers of The Royal Newfoundland Regiment, 1918.

Fads & Fashions.

Something to Avoid.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Two young people came to me last spring and told me they were thinking of taking a summer cottage with another couple, and asked my advice as to this step. I suppose you can guess what my advice was. Perhaps you, can also surmise how much good it did. As it happened, however, they couldn't get the cottage and so the experiment was called off. Consequently they are as serenely sure as ever that only this unfortunate mischance kept them from showing the world that they really could have had a successful summer. I can't help wishing that someday they will get a chance to try it.

They Spoil Their Best Friendship.

Of course they may prove me a bad prophetess. But if they do, they will certainly be the first people I ever knew to make a real success of that sort of experiment. And I have known many attempts. One of the most interesting cases I ever heard of, was related to me recently by a man who played the part of arbitrator. The two couples had been unusually good friends before they started (that is the worst of it, people will persist in taking their best friendships and spoiling them this way), and they were cocksure.

One Hated Lamb, The Other Hated Beef.

The usual little differences both wanted to dress in the best when they came in from the city they had different ideas of the proper hour for breakfast time, one preferred roast lamb and the other beef, etc.) developed in about two weeks and, having reached a crescendo of unendurableness in six weeks, my friend was called in to mediate. They promised to do whatever he suggested and the next morning he drew lots for the cottage for the remainder of the season and then whoever lost was to pack up and get out that day. They were furious at the idea but eventually stuck by their promise. For a year or so they didn't speak either to each other or to their arbitrator, but in the course of time they have all become friends again.

Which is a much happier ending than such tales usually have.

Hard Enough For Members Of A Family To Get Along.

Everyone knows it is not easy for the members of a family, with their different tastes and desires, to get along in perfect harmony, and it is about ten times harder for two families—with all the well developed family habits on top of their individual differences.

I suppose there are cases where doubling up ought to be done, as for instance to save coal in this national emergency. For such cases may I make two suggestions. Let one couple run the house and the other board with them. And secondly do not take a couple with whom you are too intimate to begin with. Better someone whom you neither intensely like or dislike and to whom you are not bound by any previous closeness of intimacy.

THE CHANGE.

They'll bring us back the tender things they found in England; They'll weave into the songs they sing some sweet, old, English strains. Though England once seemed far away, and strange was Scotland's heather, We're one in hope and purpose now; our boys have marched together.

They'll catch a little of the mirth that lights the eyes of France. They'll learn from them the love of life, the splendor of romance. They've crossed the sea to live with them through every sort of weather. And France and we shall comrades be! Our boys have marched together.

Now England shall not be the same, nor France the France of old; Our children shall have left with them more precious gifts than gold. They'll know us as we really are, when war has gone its way. The parent lands shall find their boys have brought them all together.

Just as the little ones at home come romping from the street To tell about the parents of the children that they meet. So they will come and they will go when finished are their labors. And we shall love and they shall love, and all the lands be neighbors.

Milady's Boudoir

How can one get rid of disfiguring wrinkles satisfactorily? The remedy is so simple that few will believe in its efficacy and yet in many instances it is so difficult to apply that many women after a few trials will give up in despair. But it is the only real remedy and, what is more, anyone can apply it right in their own home. The secret is this: Think pleasant thoughts, drive out of your head all ideas of evil, jealousy, rage or discontent. Simple, isn't it, and yet very difficult, you will admit. The face reflects every emotion more faithfully even than the mirror. What you are what kind of thoughts you entertain can be no secret to the world. All your ideas, whether for good or evil are written on your face for all to read who gaze upon you. Don't deceive yourself by supposing that you can dissemble, for you can't. As you think, so is your face moulded.

Have you ever noticed how, even an ugly face, one that has few redeeming features, is made lovely to look upon by a pleasant expression, by a mouth that tells a tale of kindness, by eyes that look gladly upon the world? The beauty who has a dissatisfied expression cannot equal in attractiveness the girl who has less physical attractions but more mental and spiritual beauty. These things are lasting, physical good looks are only temporary.

If you are afflicted with deep lines which spread from nose to mouth you may know they come from discouraged thoughts, from a tendency to look on the black side of life. Freshening draws down the corners of the mouth, makes the cheek sag distantly and gives the whole face a disagreeable expression. Change your viewpoint, and note the difference in your face. In fact, cultivate optimism for six months or so and then you may laugh at wrinkles for you will find they have disappeared.

Mountain Guns.

Probably few people at home are aware even of the existence of British mountain artillery. This is hardly to be wondered at, for the real home of our mountain artillery is in India—away up in the fastnesses of the North West Frontier.

The first mountain gun in use was a ten-pounder. This, though used in action by a battery at Gallipoli, may now be regarded as obsolete. To-day we have two kinds of mountain guns—3.7 howitzer, firing a twenty-pound shell up to 6,000 yards; and a 2.75 field effective at 5,400 yards, and firing a shell of 12 pounds.

The feature of mountain artillery is its mobility. Transport is effected by means of pack-mules, each pack being dismantled, and each part loaded separately. This operation, in the hands of skilled gunners, may be performed in a very short space of time.

In each mountain battery there are four guns—one per sub-section—which, in a howitzer battery, consists of some fifty mules. In each sub-section there are four distinct mule-teams—gun, relief gun, baggage, and ammunition, the names of which explain their various functions. Eight mules are necessary to carry the 3.7 gun, and six to carry the 2.75. Each gun-pack saddle is designed to carry one part, while baggage and ammunition saddles conform to one standard.

Many weird tales can be told by mountain artillerymen of long days and weary nights spent in literally dragging worn-out mules over rock-strewn hills and tortuous "waddees" (or ravines) in search of the elusive Turk during that by now historical "stand," which, starting from behind Gaza, made Jerusalem ours. It may here be explained that when some stilly contested point was being assaulted, it was often necessary for the attacking mountain battery to travel from peak to peak in the vicinity, in an endeavour to shell the enemy from all vantage points, such spots, owing to the nature of the country being inaccessible to the other branches of artillery.

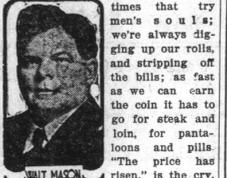

And if anyone happens to meet a member of the Anzac Cavalry, ask him who was first there in support when that last mad dash was made which resulted in the capture of Jericho.

STRENUOUS TIMES.

These be the times that try men's souls; we're always digging up our rolls, and stripping off the hills; as fast as we can earn the coin it has to go for steak and loin, for pantaloons and pills. "The price has risen," is the cry, whenever a fellow goes to buy a hymbook or a hen; the year has made of trade a botch, and so the prices rise a notch and they will rise again. These be the times that try men's souls; the doughnuts now are mostly holes, the pies are thin and pale; most things are made of substitutes, and there are worm-holes in the fruits for which we blow our kale. A pound of butter costs us now as much as would have bought a cow, in balmy times of peace; and when we buy it some one comes with muffled drums, and says, "Conserve the grease." These be the times that try men's souls; we cannot touch, with ten-foot poles, the price of things we need; the stand off at the store is banned, and all the wealth we have on hand is merely chicken feed. And yet, as I pursue my way, I do not see a grouch all day, or hear a plaintive wail; the boys seem glad to stand the gaff, and all the hard luck makes them laugh, instead of bringing brine. You cannot whip a bunch like us; in times of peace we rant and cuss and paw around like sin; but when we need to wear a yoke we view the blamed thing as a joke, and wear it with a grin.

Suit-cuffs are flaring and fasten with a single large button. Diamond-shaped pockets are unusual. The pilot-edge is still used for finishing sheer materials. Hats are often merely a matter of strapery. A huge bow in front is the only trimming of many a large velvet hat. Fawn-colored spots are attractive worn with mahogany pumps.

Private boats surrender. LONDON, Nov. 20. Thirty miles off Harwick this morning at sunrise, twenty German private boats were surrendered to the British. Twenty additional U-boats will be surrendered on Thursday and twenty more on Friday. The remainder will be surrendered on Saturday to be fixed later.

METZ RECLAIMED.

METZ, Nov. 20. Marshal Petain entered Metz at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon amid the wildest enthusiasm. The Marshal Petain entered the city to stand before the statue of Marshal Ney and reviewed his troops. The Municipality and local societies of the Marshal at the City and the Vicar-General greeted at the Cathedral. General Manu has issued a proclamation greeting the people of the city, saying: "The people of Metz, who have suffered with the German defeat and the Republican Army brings liberty and justice. France opens widely her arms to all her re-found children."

In the occasion gave rise to one of the picturesque demonstrations carried out by the people of Metz. The statues of the German Emperor William I. had toppled over one after another. The German Emperor III. had come down with a spear around his neck. Former Emperor III. had come down with a spear around his neck. Former Emperor III. had come down with a spear around his neck.

BRITISH BOATS SURRENDER.

LONDON, Nov. 20. Twenty miles off Harwich this morning at sunrise, twenty German motor boats were seen. They were surrounded by the British. Twenty additional U-boats will be surrendered on Thursday next.

METZ RECLAIMED.

METZ, Nov. 20. Marshal Petain entered Metz at 2 yesterday afternoon amid the wildest enthusiasm. When Marshal Petain entered the city he stood before the statue of Marshal Ney and reviewed his troops. The Municipality and local societies welcomed the Marshal at the City Hall and the Vicar-General greeted him as the Catholic savior of Metz. A proclamation greeted the people of the city, saying, "France in 1678 was decorated with flowers and bunting."

WARNS GERMANY.

LONDON, Nov. 20. In any question of provisioning Germany, the British Government will be obliged to take into account the condition under which British prisoners in Germany are being released, unless the cruel treatment which such prisoners are receiving is discontinued. The German Government was so warned in a wireless message to-day. The GERMAN CASUALTIES.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 20. Up to October 31st, 1,580,000 German soldiers were killed, and the fate of 240,000 was not known, says the Vorwarts of Berlin. Four million of soldiers had been wounded, some several times. The newspaper adds that there were 400,000 German prisoners in hostile countries.

QUEEN WILHELMINA PROTECTED.

LONDON, Nov. 20. Great crowds yesterday paraded the streets of the Hague, wearing orange ribbons. Loyal troops from the provinces forced the garrison, which had demanded the abdication of Queen Wilhelmina, to surrender.

ANOTHER BLOW TO BOLSHIEVISM.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 20. The Ukrainian Government has been overthrown and the capital of the State has been captured by troops from Astrakhan. The Ukrainian nominal assembly has fled and a provisional government has been formed, headed by an anti-Bolshievtiki General.

FIRE IN BRUSSELS.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 20. A fire caused by an explosion in the Miel district has been raging for the last eight hours, and all the streets in this quarter are in ruins. The Miel district covers an area of one mile.

UNITING WITH GERMANY.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 20. Delegates from Vienna have arrived at Berlin to negotiate a union of German-Austria with Germany.

HUNGARIAN PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Nov. 20. The Government has decided that the Red Guards to proclaim a Bolshievtiki Republic.

DOWNING THE RED GUARD.

LONDON, Nov. 20. Copenhagen advises say that several hundred persons have been arrested in Vienna, on charges of conspiring with the Red Guards to proclaim a Bolshievtiki Government.

VICTORIA CROSS AWARDED.

LONDON, Nov. 20. Details in the Official Gazette tell of acts for which naval officers and men were awarded the Victoria Cross for bravery in sinking an enemy submarine in a manner similar to that in which Lieut. Sanders of the Prize participated. Another case in which a patic party tured a German submarine to approach a vessel with disastrous results for the enemy, was that of H.M.S. Stockport, in command of Lieut. Harold Austen. Lieut. Austen was awarded the Cross on Sept. 14th, 1918. The Victoria Cross was also awarded posthumously to Skipper Crisp, of the smack Nelson, who, although terribly wounded, continued to engage a submarine until his ammunition was almost exhausted and his vessel sinking.

EXTREMISTS IN MAJORITY.

LONDON, Nov. 20. Copenhagen says the Berlin Soldiers' and Workmen's Council at a lively meeting passed a resolution against the summoning of a Constituent Assembly, but demands a general Soldiers' and Workmen's Congress to decide as to the future of Germany. Chancellor Ebert, and other moderates the advice add, desperately tried to change the opinion of the Council, but the extreme elements appeared to be in the great majority.

THE NAVAL SURRENDER.

LONDON, Nov. 20. The Admiralty's description of the Naval surrender mission shows that the Koenigsberg's arrival at the rendezvous was considerably delayed owing to her varying from the course previously indicated by the British. One such variation was in order to make a detour about the German mine field, which the British had long ago swept by. Some anxiety was felt lest the Koenigsberg in the mist might attempt to enter the Firth unscouted. The Koenigsberg flew Admiral Von Muever's flag at the topmast, the German ensign at the peak and the white flag at the main. After the Koenigsberg had anchored at Inchkeith in the evening of Nov. 14th, a motor launch cruised in the neighborhood to prevent communication with the shore. The conference began in the evening and was resumed at noon on the 16th. Admiral Beatty was assisted by Admiral Madden, second in command of the Grand Fleet, and Vice-Admiral Brock, Chief of Staff, while Vice-Admiral Browning and Rear-Admiral Tyrwhitt also participated. The Admiralty communique states that it may be taken for granted that the results of the conference satisfied Admiral Beatty's requirements.

CANADIANS COMING HOME.

OTTAWA, Nov. 20. Present indications are that approximately 5,000 Canadian soldiers will sail from England on the Aquitania about Nov. 20th, and 5,000 on the Olympic a few days later. These troops are being despatched in advance of general demobilization and are not within the classes described in the general policy respecting demobilization, nor will they be dealt with according to the procedure outlined. They will be handled through military districts in the same way as troops which have returned to Canada previously and not through the disposal areas which have been constituted to deal with the army as a whole. The present movement will also include a large number of wives and dependents of soldiers serving overseas.

No More Substitutes.

Washington, Nov. 13.—Regulations requiring householders, and bakers to purchase 20 per cent. of substitutes with each purchase of wheat flour were withdrawn to-day by the Food Administration, effective immediately.

Degree in the Second Degree

At the fall term of the circuit court in a rural county seat, a young man was on trial on a bigamy charge. The evidence showed that he had a wife in another state, from whom he had never been divorced and that he had married a second woman in the state where he was being tried. He had pleaded guilty, on the ground that the second marriage was merely a mock marriage.

The evidence, however, showed that a license had been applied for and issued in due legal form, and that a ceremony had been performed by a person legally authorized to do so. The Judge, in his instructions, reminded the jury of the fact, and instructed them to return a verdict of guilty.

The jury had a brief whispered conference, after which the foreman rose and addressed the court as follows: "Your honor, we, the jury, find the defendant guilty of matrimony in the second degree."—Cartoons Magazine.

"IN FREEDOM'S CAUSE"

Evening Telegram W. J. HERDER, Proprietor C. T. JAMES, Editor THURSDAY, Nov. 21, 1918.

What?

It is a capital sign of the times to witness the efforts of the department of Militia in the beginning which is being made by the officials there to cut down current expenses, and to exercise due economy over the future disbursements which may have to be made.

els in state. We shall be told, without doubt, that there is special work for the officers, who have but lately gone, to do in France and England, connected with the regiment. That is to be expected, because the inner workings of all Militia Departments, and our is no exception, are inscrutable. Military demands cover a multitude of expenses. And so this is the manner in which our ministry of Militia begins the practice of economy. In the mazes of the workings of that department, the meaning of curtailment has been lost. In the sister dominions plans for demobilization are under way and Committees have been formed for dealing with the problems that will arise out of putting so many men in competition with regular labor.

Resolution of Sympathy.

At the monthly meeting of St. Joseph's Society, held Nov. 18th, the following resolutions of condolence were passed unanimously: WHEREAS, Almighty God has been pleased through the channels of war to remove from our midst our late Brother member, Corporal Leo CroTTY;

Obstruction Removed.

We are pleased to notice that the obstruction that recently existed on the south side of Water Street east, has at last been removed, and the sidewalk is now "all clear." This obstruction was a rail that extended from the corner of a house across the sidewalk nearby, to the drain, necessitating passers-by to walk in the gutter to get around it.

Storm Ravages.

The great storm, accompanied by heavy tidal waves, which did so much damage at Channel on Thursday last, blew at first with a velocity of 100 miles an hour, the direction being South East; and all through averaged 95 miles. Never in the history of the place was there witnessed such a hurricane and tremendous sea. The damage done to the water front is estimated at $20,000. The light station on Channel Head, received the full force of the gale and sea which beat the windows of the keeper's residence into splinters, flooded the whistle house and carried away the plank walk leading from the beach to the top of the island, where the light and whistle house is situated, and smashed up three boats belonging to the light keeper. The wharf and store of the Keating property were washed away, as also were some premises belonging to the same estate, recently purchased from the Terra Nova Fish Co. The wharf, store and stage of Emanuel Bragg, was torn from its fastenings and utterly destroyed, and a skiff which he was building some distance from the shore floated off the stocks, but fortunately without serious injury. The premises of Clement and Co. were swept completely away and a schooner which was landing salt at the wharf of that firm broke adrift from her moorings and battered down the wharf, sustaining considerable damage thereby to her hull and breaking her rudder. Jacob Davis is the loser of a large store with all its contents. The sea hurled a huge boulder weighing some fifteen tons, on the top of Middle Island. As no person had ever seen this mass of rock before, the impression is that it came from the sea bed, the force of the great waves being sufficient to uplift it from the bottom and place it in its present position. It was very fortunate that the wind did not shift from S. W. Had it done so Channel would have been swept clean. The only premises practically undamaged, except those of James Baird, Ltd., which escaped the full force of the tidal bore.

The Epidemic.

No cases of Spanish Influenza have been reported during the last two days. Two patients at the Grenfell Hospital were removed to the convalescent ward yesterday. All the patients there are progressing favorably. A message to Dr. Fraser yesterday stated 42 cases had developed at Bonavista during the week and three deaths occurred. At St. George's a hospital has been opened, and assisted by Nurse Thistle and several other volunteers, Dr. Bethune will no doubt soon succeed in exterminating the disease. Dr. A. Tait returned to town yesterday from Alexander Bay, whither he had gone to attend to influenza patients. He found several persons ill, some of them seriously so, but only two deaths had occurred before his arrival, and at the time of his leaving all were doing as well as could be expected.

Burglary at Southside Rectory.

St. Mary's Rectory, Southside, was entered on Sunday night last and some money belonging to the Missionary Society taken. The midnight prowler was evidently up to the mark, having a key that opened all doors. He also had good taste, as he gathered all the silver possible but left the coppers being left (generously) undisturbed. The police are now working on the job, and expect to make a capture soon.

Hymeneal.

A very pretty ceremony was solemnized last evening at Torbay, when Miss Flossie Torrville, formerly of Fogo, was united in matrimonial bonds to Mr. James Eustace of Torbay. The ceremony was performed in the Church of England Edifice by Rev. Mr. Tulk. The bride was charmingly dressed in a suit of dark blue silk with hat to match and was attended by Miss Torrville, cousin of the bride, and Miss Codner, of Torbay. After the nuptial knot had been tied, they drove to the house of Mrs. Geo. Eustace, mother of the groom, where a most enjoyable entertainment was held. The many presents received testified to the esteem in which the young couple were held. They will make their future residence in Torbay.

Winning 1,000 V. C.'s.

The Victoria Cross was instituted on January 29th, 1856, only a few years before the outbreak of the present war. It is the highest award of honor which can be conferred on a British subject for gallantry in the face of the enemy. It is the only award of honor which has been conferred on a man more than once. The number of times, but the only records a man's name

Heroic Deeds

Both are Army doctors. Captain Arthur Martin Leake and Noel Godfrey Chavasse, second son of the Bishop of Liverpool. Captain Leake won his first V. C. in the Boer War and the second at the first battle of Ypres, 1914. Captain Chavasse gained his V. C. in the third year of the present war for heroism in rescuing and tending the wounded "beyond praise". He died of wounds in April, 1917, and in the following months he was posthumously awarded a bar to his cross.

Many very interesting comparisons and deductions can be made from a study of the V. C. list.

All branches of the fighting forces have earned the distinction, horse and foot, artillery and engineers, naval and army, and marine. Even three clergymen figure in the list—heroic chaplains, viz: Revs. W. R. F. Addison, Edward Noel Mellish, and Theodore Bayley Hardy. Of the occupations of the 481 heroes of the Great War, an equally wonderful array might be told, for among the recipients of the coveted cross were men who in civil life had been paper-hangers, a cinema attendant, miners,

Gallant Lancashire Lads.

Among line regiments, the palm for V. C. honours goes to the famous Lancashire Fusiliers, who top the list in the present war with thirteen awards. The Royal Fusiliers and the Rifle Brigade tie for the second and third place with ten each, and the Yorkshire Regiment comes fourth with nine. It may be added that regiments associated with Lancashire are always increasing their ascendancy, for by June 29th, 1918, the seven corps could claim forty-three cross-

Against twenty-eight won by their friendly rival and geographical neighbors—the Yorkshire units.

Another little interesting fact concerning the V. C. list is that there are actually three cases of father and son both with the distinction. Just as in the Boer War young Lieutenant Roberts repeated his famous parent's heroism by gaining the V. C. in the present war the late Major W. Le Touche Congreve won the V. C. about sixteen years after his father, the well-known Army Corps commander, Lieutenant-General Sir W. N. Congreve, K.C.B. The third Distinquished Families.

case is that of the late General Sir Charles Gough, who won the V.C. for exploits in India in 1857-8, and Brigadier-General Sir John Edmund Gough, who received the decoration for conspicuous bravery in Somalia in 1903, and lost his life in the present war in February, 1915. It should be noted that an uncle of Brigadier-General Gough also won the V.C. in India, three V.C.'s in one family constituting a record—Admiral.

Fads and Fashions.

White organdie ruffles finish the bottoms of pretty sleeves. Red velvet and gray angora make a pretty combination. Heavy tassels are attractive on the new silk handbags. The moon's collar is still seen on the smartest costumes. Velvet hats with large brims are inclined to have crushed crowns. The close-fitting bodice is a smart fashion. Circular metal buckles are used for the new cloth belts.

Save Coal!

Dissolve a handful of washing soda in a gallon of warm water. Sprinkle this with a watering can over a spread-out hundredweight of coal. Hundredweight can be roughly estimated by weighing two or three lumps, and calculating how many will make 112 lb. Draw the heap of coal to be treated to one side of the cellar or shed, and keep there, renewing when used. Soda-treated coal lasts thirty-five to fifty per cent longer, burns slower, but gives out more heat. That's coal economy!

Refuse as a Fuel. Small, slack, or dust coal gives out a great heat if burned wet. Mix with tea-leaves, potato-parings, etc. Practically all household refuse is a potential coal-saver. Waste paper has its own value; but if used to wrap refuse in for burning, the value is retained by coal being saved. Very little should go into dustbins now. adays. The saving and hygienic dustbin is the fire. Save Coal!

Clean flues mean a quickly-heated oven and less coal. Take the hint for cooking-days. If you can get chalk, use it and save coal. Chalk lumps give out a great heat, and can be used over and over again. Let your bed-time coincide with a nearly-out fire. And a great coal-saver this goes to bed earlier. An hour a night means at least 40 lb. of coal saved weekly with one fire. Finally, when you have a fire, use it. Joint-cooking day should be ironing day, too. Bath day for the children as well. Bacon-boiling day, also. Clothes-airing day, likewise. That's coal-economy.

King George's Message To President Wilson.

London, November 13—King George last night cabled President Wilson, thanking him for America's part in winning the war. The message said: "At this moment of universal gladness I send you, Mr. President, and the people of your great republic a message of congratulation and deep thanks in my own name and in that of the people of this Empire."

"It is indeed a matter of solemn thanksgiving that the people of our two countries, akin in spirit as in speech, should to-day be united in this greatest of democracy's achievements."

To Whom It May Concern.

My Dear Wagoner Friends:—

Controversy is an undesirable thing, it is an odious thing, but it is necessary sometimes. (N.B. For those who haven't a dictionary controversy is argument put through a refining process).—The why of the following:

Reading over that delightful dissertation on Prohibition and why it shouldn't be, over the initials "P.L.C." in the Telegram of the 18th, forced upon us the reasonable assertion that our just and wise government is a direct descendant of those agreeable gentlemen who were responsible for the Blue Laws of Connecticut. Horrified! Horrified! I take a glass of water and proceed.

Quoting P.L.C.—"Our free citizens are placed under an undesirable hardship by the deprivation of a harmless beverage." Really! P.L.C. would have us believe that this drinking business isn't half as bad as it looked two years ago, when one got thirty days for such a small thing as beating a wife. I wonder if P.L.C. ever observed the state of a free citizen under the influence of this "harmless beverage"; if he ever investigated the harmless pleasures indulged in while in this state. Or, perhaps, P.L.C.'s experience of its evil effects is limited to a headache after an after-dinner cocktail.

"Forbidden to drink certain things to which they have been accustomed all their lives." (I quote again). Some of these harmless pleasure seekers if they were to live through ten life times, residing in the interior of a whiskey barrel every day for ten times three-score and ten years, wouldn't have the end of it. "Their homes, the sacred citadels," etc. Did P.L.C. read the papers for the last two months, and reading them did he by any chance discover various articles relative to certain little secrets being exposed to the water-wagon public; or, perhaps, he closed one eye and with the other scanned an advertisement for vanilla favouring. Our wise and just government would be doing a wise and just act by searching a few more of our "citadels of citizenship"; an Englishman's house isn't his castle when it happens to contain a deposit of rhy whiskey.

"If anyone falls ill and needs a stimulant," etc. (You will really have to look it up yourself; quotations bore me). Here we are made aware of the vast medicinal properties of the harmless stimulant. If wonder if P.L.C. will inform me what sickness (besides sickness for the lack of it) H. S. will cure. He refers to our recent epidemic. Will some doctor tell me, Honest Injun, that whiskey is really a necessary remedy for influenza. That balmy liquor into a man's digestive tract will cure a disease of the lungs. Would this treatment of disease in a man be duplicated for the cure of a young child? Would he let those young lips have the taste of the poison, under the impression that it will ward off disease that is breathed in the air; will he let that young mind grow with the retention of this idea, to have it whispered back drunkenly to him in the years to come, with drizzling lips, that "It's good for sickness" when he reproaches him?

A Health Saving Reminder. Don't wait until you get the Spanish Influenza.

President Wilson's cablegram to King George follows:—

"Your generous and gracious message is most warmly appreciated, and you may rest assured that our hearts on this side of the Atlantic are the more completely filled with joy and satisfaction because we know the great partnership of interests and sentiments to which we belong."

"We are happy to be associated in this time of triumph with the government and people upon whom we are so sure we can count for co-operation in the delicate and difficult tasks which remain to be performed in order that the high purposes of the war may be realized and established in the reign of equitable justice and lasting peace."

"Are the habitual drunkards, at whom it was aimed, reformed," asks our friend. You can't expect one of P. L. C.'s harmless pleasure seekers who in his good humor enforces quick service at tea-time with the aid of a poker, and kicks his children as a matter of good-will, because they got in the way of father's drunken legs, to hit out for the Church with the family Bible, immediately the way up Johnny Walker's walk is barred. But you can bet your last two bits, if there isn't a hole in your pocket; and your best trousers if they are not represented by a pawn-ticket, that the former habitual drunkard's wife can put a better hat on her troubled head, and his children walk the streets without shamed faces, and he, himself, put more good Scotch on his back more solid food into his stomach, because he put less bad Scotch in the same place.

"Is the community any healthier?" P. L. C. becomes facetious! If a free citizen cuts off an island of ten years of his life from the mainland of 70 with a tide of the H. S.; P. L. C. innocently asks us if he is any the healthier if we divert that flood from swamping another half score years of an island, and covering him in a physical inundation.

Before P. L. C. reaches "yours truly" he takes a literary whack at a reliable hair tonic. If P. L. C.'s friends cannot do without that nightly saunter with Johnny Walker, when Johnny Walker's walk is over, without trying to raise a crop of a hair on the inside of their abdomens—well, they are not men, they are very fair representatives of the animal creation! Anyway, if we are to have Florida Water and Bay Rum, I don't see that they would not be better than J. W.'s product. More convenient anyway! Whereas, in the days of old, one had to waddle in the first-floor bath-room, and then proceed cautiously in his slippers to the basement to "Get some tonic, my dear," now he can shave, tonic the hair on his head, and tonic the inside of where his vest lies, and all in the same room, and nobody know it. Just you show me the man who would like to see J. W. walking the floor again—and ask him what colour casket he'd like.

"There now it's all over; and I've guzzled over two quarts of water in lubricating the machinery of my mind through the clogged channels of literary labour. Hush! What's that! Something that thrills me from my carpet slippers to the tassels on my smoking-cap! Is it a whisper of concurrence from the few thousand old reliables who balloted the famous X's, that exiled J. W.? I wonder. Such, my dear impartial Judge, and the twelve honourable men whom I see before me—such is my case, deliver your verdict, on which I can rely, knowing you to be honest and honourable men—but don't you bring Johnny Walker swanking around here again, in his monocle. Adios! Adios seniors! "RUBBLES IN THE WATER JUG." Nov. 21, 1918.

Resents It.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir.—An item in the Daily News, of to-day, re the recent robbery at St. Mary's Rectory says that it looked as if it had been done by people who had keys of the house. Now, sir, my name was handed in as a probable suspect. I don't know why, and although indignant, yet was amused when I was informed so by Tec. Byrne, as I never even knew the rectory had been broken into until so informed, and I resent being sent for as having anything to do with the affair, as I said before, I knew nothing about it.

Re the keys. Last Friday, Mrs. Uphill left the keys of the Parish room at my home. From this room access all over the house may be had, but I have been assured, by Tec. Byrne that the door leading up to the Rectory from this room was barred, and I was satisfied.

I am at a loss to understand why my name was given to the detective, and I say again I resent it in full, as I certainly did not know anything about it.

Hoping you will give above publication in your esteemed paper, I remain, yours sincerely, MAX COLTON.

P.S.—I have since handed those keys to Mrs. Uphill personally and refused to keep them in the house where I reside.—M. C. Nov. 21, 1918.

Pro Patria.

Word has been received by Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Rose of the Portugal Cove Road that their son Fred had been killed in action "Somewhere in France" while fighting with the Canadians. Deceased was a former pupil of St. Patrick's School and a member of the C. C. C. He was but 23 years of age and like numerous others of the world's best has given his all for duty's sake. This thought only can console the bereaved parents, to whom general sympathy is extended.

Ballonist Loops The Loop

In a Storm at Sea. Looping the loop is a little bit was the hair-raising feat performed some time since by a young ballonist when the government was using the use of captive balloons on ships doing convoy work, according to a story in the December Mechanics Magazine. The ballonist in question had been aloft a basket several hours despite rough weather when a 40-mph. gale struck the fleet. Instantly the ballonist made a spinning pose and, looping the basket and occupied a complete circle. He went one loop completed this another followed—15 in all.

Parcel Post for Mld. Expeditionary Forces!

The attention of the public is drawn to the very urgent necessity of strictly observing the regulations published by this Department from time to time concerning the despatch of parcels to members of the Expeditionary Forces and the following particulars should be strictly observed:

- (1) Parcels must not exceed eleven pounds.
- (2) Parcels should be addressed with the Regimental number, rank, name and surname of addressee, followed by the last known address of the Unit with which the individual was serving; for example:
No. 0978 Cpl. John J. Kent,
2nd Battalion
The Royal Newfoundland Regt.,
Hazeley Wood Camp,
Winchester,
Hant's Camp,
England.
- (3) Parcels should bear the name and address of a second addressee to whom the parcel may be delivered or forwarded, if it should prove impossible to deliver to the first. The Original address should be written on the FRONT of the parcel where the postage stamps and customs declaration are affixed, and the second or alternative address should be written on the BACK of the parcel.
- (4) If second address is not furnished at the time of posting and delivery cannot be effected,
the contents of the parcel, unless of exceptional value or of a personal nature, will be turned over to the Military Authorities for distribution.
- (5) Parcels containing articles of personal nature or of special value will be returned if request for their return, in case of non-delivery, is made by the sender, such request to be written on the cover of the parcel at the time of posting.
- (6) The procedure outlined in (4) and (5) is adopted at the suggestion of the British Post Office, to prevent the waste of a large quantity of perishable food stuffs which form the contents of 90 per cent. of parcels sent to soldiers.
- (7) Parcels should be packed securely.
- (8) Attention is drawn to the Notice concerning Christmas parcels recently published by the Postmaster General. All Christmas mail for B. E. F. should be posted in time to arrive at the Pay and Record Office, London, not later than the end of November.

Elizabeth of Belgium; and Prince Leopold, heir apparent to the throne of Belgium, will be awarded the War Cross and the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor.

TURKISH CAPTIVES HORRORS.
LONDON, Nov. 20.
A "white paper" on the treatment of British prisoners in Turkey issued to-day, says that of 16,583 prisoners taken by the Turks, 3,290 are reported to be dead, while no trace can be found of 3,227 others, and it is believed they have perished. These latter prisoners were all captured at Kutel-Amara, so it is certain they passed living into Turkish hands, but no word has been heard from them. The Kut-el-Amara prisoners were forced to march across the desert to Asia Minor without food or medical attention, as a result, the "white paper" says, "parts of the men were lying exhausted under any shelter they could find, in all stages of dysentery and starvation, some dying, some dead; half clothed and without boots, having sold everything to buy a little milk."

NEW EXPRESS RATES.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.
The U. S. Railway Administration has issued an order, effective Jan. 1st, increasing the rates on express packages by 16 cents and 17 cents on first and second-class packages in the Eastern States, and 12 cents elsewhere. This will raise about 24 million dollars additional revenue, about half of which will be distributed among the employees in higher wages.

MORE GERMAN HONOUR.
LONDON, Nov. 21.
(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—
In the House of Commons, Chancellor Bonar Law announced that the following message had been sent to the German Government, and to Field Marshal Haig, for communication to German Headquarters: "Information has reached His Majesty's Government of shirking and lack of organization in the release of British prisoners in Germany, and their being forced to return marching about, miserably clothed, without food, transport, escort or guide to the Allied lines, with the result that lamentable suffering and heavy mortality has ensued. His Majesty's Government cannot tolerate the continuance of this cruel treatment (loud cheers) and must insist that adequate arrangements be made in all the above respects by the German authorities, with whom the responsibility for such lies. Otherwise we shall be compelled to take this into account in any question of the revictualing of Germany, or in satisfying the requirements of the German people, by forwarding food, clothing and transport to prisoners' camps, where they are not otherwise forthcoming, and we are addressing Allied Commanders in this sense now. Field Marshal Haig has also been instructed to forward in the most expeditious way, food, clothing and means of conveyance for the use of our prisoners in Germany, and our Allies are being asked to co-operate in this." (Cheers.)

An Appreciation

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—It was my good fortune to attend the church service referred to by a correspondent "Patriot" in your paper yesterday. In my opinion the sermon delivered was one of the finest, most logical and comprehensive that could have been delivered on such an occasion. The preacher referred to is not, I understand, one who will cater to the majority, one who, having a will power of his own, uses it to the best of his ability and always in conformity with the doctrine of "Christ Crucified."

a better sermon could not be delivered. These are days when we require real Empire builders, men of vision, men who can look into the past and see its failures, and into the future with the object of correcting past mistakes and promoting good will towards men and faith in the Christian doctrine.

If we would have this old world made fit to live in, other and higher ideals will have to be lived up to. The present war with its ghastly record of millions of human beings slaughtered in the prime of life, will ever stand as a monument to nations, particularly Germany, who promote secret treaties, and diplomatic propaganda. If we are to have a lasting peace a change will have to be made in our present educational system, especially those relating to war propaganda amongst the children as outlined by the rev. speaker.

Do not be narrow-minded, Mr. Patriot! Wake up out of the old rut of the past, look ahead and prepare for the new era of peace which can only come if founded on the principles laid down by the Master Himself and so truly laid before you on Sunday evening last.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, ANOTHER PATRIOT. Nov. 20, 1918.

C.C.C. Grand Dance To-night.

The C.C.C. Band Dance takes place to-night in the C.C.C. new hall, beginning at 9.15. As this is the last C.C.C. Dance until the end of the year no doubt there will be a large attendance. The price of the tickets, Gents (Double) $1.00; Ladies' 50c. Ice Cream and drinks will be sold by the ladies and if at all possible a light supper may be served, but they cannot guarantee it as it is impossible just at this time to get donations of cakes, etc. But at future dances the ladies will be in a better position to serve a supper as all arrangements have been made to enlarge the supper room which at present is entirely too small, and when completed will measure 50 x 18. It will be ready for their next dance. The dance to-night starts at 9.15.—adv.11

Colinet Island Celebrates.

At Mosquito to-day we celebrated Victory; from 9 a.m. Tuesday until midnight by keeping holiday. Bunting was displayed in all directions. Amidst volleys of musketry and cheers, the parade started from Mosquito to the hall. Our oldest inhabitant, Mr. Patrick Linehan, carried the foremost banner, the Union Jack and Old Glory entwined. As our hall is situated between the two settlements the parade stopped by it, and Mr. Linehan called for cheers for King and Country, which was nobly responded to. We then proceeded to Regina where young and old met us with hearty cheers and light hearts glad to know this cruel war was over and our brave soldier boys soon returning home. We have lately heard that one of our gallant lads, Pte. Thomas Doody, is among the wounded, somewhere in France. We had a big dance in the hall to celebrate victory. The flag that always carried the way, is the flag combined with those of the Allies, that we honor to-day. God save the King. ONE OF THE NUMBER. Colinet, Nov. 14, 1918.

Obituary.

MISS CATHERINE GOFF.

A message was received in town yesterday from Harbor Grace, announcing the death of Miss Catherine Goff, one of the best known and most charitable ladies in this second city. Miss Goff was born in Harbor Grace about seventy years ago, being a daughter of the late David Goff, merchant tailor of that town. One sister, Mrs. Wm. Croke, predeceased her many years ago, also three brothers, Edward, lost in the brig Maggie, Capt. Kneft, with all hands about 1868; Michael, about thirty years ago, and Peter, about fifteen years ago. We think another brother David died in Canada some time ago.

Miss Goff was a most industrious and successful general business lady, and the fame of her products such as sweets, beer, etc., have not alone a local reputation, but it is a fact that they were sought after and shipped out of the country, the name being a household word. For about half a century, she conducted this business, and few were better known amongst the business people of St. John's, than was the deceased lady. Her sister and niece assisted her in her business, and are still in the employ.

For some months past Miss Goff has been in delicate health, and her passing did not come as a surprise. The fading moments of her illness were brightened by the presence at her bedside of her sister, nephews and niece, anxious right up to the last, she gave a continuous example of heroic patience and calm resignation. Long years of solid piety and a unique Christian faith developed a spirit of prayer that was manifested by a continual use of ejaculations; thus strengthened by her own devotions, and fortified by the Sacraments of the Holy Church, she breathed forth her soul most peacefully, a fitting close to a most edifying life. Requiescat in pace.

False Alarm.

For the first time in several years a false alarm was sent in from Box 224 last evening at 8.30, bringing the firemen of the Central and Western companies to the scene, the junction of Monkstown Road and Fleming Street. On arrival there they found the alarm to be a bogus one and enquiries failed to elicit who had been the guilty person. This is most deplorable as well as a dangerous custom, for in addition to bringing the firemen out needlessly, it also endangers the safety of the town, for if a conflagration in another section occurred while the firemen were absent on a wild goose chase, the result may easily be imagined.

Broken Promise.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—No doubt some of your readers can remember of seeing some space in your well known paper to record a few words from this prosperous and thriving settlement of Hermitage.

The fishery here this year has not been as good as usual, partly owing to poor weather conditions, as well as a general scarcity of bait; still with the high prices given, everyone and everything seem to be in a fairly prosperous condition, notwithstanding the high prices asked for fishery outfit, as well as for everything in general.

This year seems to be a year of disease and sickness throughout this Dominion of ours. Last Sunday there passed away at Gaultois (a little settlement two miles from here) four children, victims of that dread disease diphtheria, to the parents of whom we extend our heartfelt sympathy.

Klark-Urban Co.

Another crowded house greeted the Klark-Urban players at the Casino Theatre last night when the curtain rose on the repeated comedy-drama "The Misleading Lady." The cast appeared to have settled down in their places and the acting was greatly superior to that of the opening night. At the same time there was much room for improvement, particularly in Act I, the speaking parts being rather weak, the audience in the back of the theatre not hearing distinctly. In Acts 2 and 3 a great improvement was discernible, both in enunciation and acting which pleased the patrons greatly. Miss Cecil as Helen Steel, was exceptionally good, and the support given her by Mr. Klark in the portrayal of Jack Craigen, "the man from Patagonia," enhanced her exposition of the real woman. Mr. Billy Webb, the harmless lunatic, who imagined himself to be Napoleon Bonaparte, acted the part to perfection and kept the audience in constant roars of laughter. On the whole the play was very enjoyable and highly appreciated. The music by the C. C. C. band orchestra was of the usual class and excellence. The production for to-night is "Which one shall I marry?" a drama in Allegory, told in a modern way.

Fire Last Night.

A slight fire in the house of Mrs. P. Parrell, which was caused by her five year old son throwing a lighted match behind a trunk, thereby igniting a newspaper, called the firemen of the Central and Eastern companies to Cookstown, Road and Freshwater Road at 10.30 last night. The blaze was extinguished by a few pails of water and the damage done was insignificant. Grays run all the way from silver to Oxford.

Hermitage Notes

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly allow me space in your well known paper to record a few words from this prosperous and thriving settlement of Hermitage.

The fishery here this year has not been as good as usual, partly owing to poor weather conditions, as well as a general scarcity of bait; still with the high prices given, everyone and everything seem to be in a fairly prosperous condition, notwithstanding the high prices asked for fishery outfit, as well as for everything in general.

This year seems to be a year of disease and sickness throughout this Dominion of ours. Last Sunday there passed away at Gaultois (a little settlement two miles from here) four children, victims of that dread disease diphtheria, to the parents of whom we extend our heartfelt sympathy.

The Spanish Flu which has played such havoc at St. John's, and around the coast has so far escaped here and as it now seems to be on the decrease, we trust that we will escape it altogether. A few days ago we received the thrilling message that peace had been signed, and the great war which has been raging for more than four years, had at last been brought to a glorious and successful finish.

Elections Are Old.

There is very little doubt that there will be a general election this year. It will be an unique election as far as this country is concerned, for it will be the first election in Gt. Britain in which all the elections will be held on one day.

The origin of elections is lost in history, though the earlier one goes back in most countries, the more one finds that only certain very privileged classes had the right to vote. In England, for example before 1832 no one could vote who did not own a certain amount of land or lived in an expensive house.

Some of the earliest known records of elections are those of ancient Greece. An account has been preserved of voters being bribed, not singly but in batches of ten at a time, as long ago as 400 B.C., over two thousand years ago.

These ancient elections rather remind one of the war, for if the Greeks didn't like a politician, they "shelled" him out of his constituency in this way: When two politicians put up to represent a city, the Greeks voted, not which one should be elected, but which one should be banished from the precincts of the city for a certain number of years, usually ten.

Each Greek elector placed in a large metal urn a small shell upon which he had written the name of the man whom he wanted banished. The man who received the least votes was allowed to remain.

A Famous Irish Relic.

(From the London Times.) Many curious objects have found their way to Christie's, but among the strangest vicissitudes of fortune in its records is surely that of the "Clog an air" (bell of gold) being offered for sale at that famous mart—a renowned relic which for centuries have been venerated by the peasantry of the west of Ireland. From time immemorial the bell has been in the possession of a County Clare family, the O'Chahanes, now represented by Mr. Marcus Keane, of Bechpark and Dunghilla.

According to tradition, it descended from heaven, ringing loudly to St. Senna, the patron of the Seven Church of Scatteray, a holy island near the mouth of the river Shannon, opposite Killrush, in the earliest years of Christianity in Ireland. Hence it was originally known as "Clog na neal," or bell of the clouds. But the antiquaries are agreed that it is the work of human hands, not angelic, and from its decorations they date it from the eleventh century. The bell is known to have been used for a long period of time in the religious services at Scatteray (now a place of ecclesiastical remains of great antiquity).

It was given into the care of the O'Chahanes, the ancient protectors of the island. It attained to an extraordinary degree of fame and sanctity throughout Clare and Galway. No oath was held to be so sacred as one sworn on the Golden Bell. It was believed that anyone who told a lie after being sworn on the bell, would have his mouth twisted on one side; and down to about the middle of the nineteenth century it was used successfully for the discovery of information when all other means failed.

On one occasion a pair of saddlebags containing £340 in gold were stolen. Search and inquiries by the police were all to no purpose. At length the priest announced that he would have the bell at the chapel on the following Sunday to swear all his flock upon it. On the Saturday night a man came to the priest's house and said, "Father Golden Bell; here's the money, every bit of it, all safe and sound." Latterly the owner has refused to lend the bell for such purposes, as he did not wish to encourage this curious superstition. The relic is in the form of a shrine which probably once contained a bell and clapper. It is made of bronze and silver, and is decorated with the figures of two winged dragons and a quaint serpent interlacings.

The New Slogan.

It has been a common thing in the past for the politicians who work the strings to set up their catch cries on high wherewith to catch the simple and waytaring elector. It was "Bond's day is done," or "Let Morris finish his work"; or "Morris must go for Coaker's sake so"; just according to your particular fancy in styles of politicians. Methinks there is growing a change in the atmosphere, and the political barometer which at one time was "Set fair" for the present aggregation so-called the National Government, is pointing to "Stormy." Furthermore the people are tired of hearing the merits of particular politicians drummed into their ears and the cry at next election, no matter how far removed, for distance only lends enchantment to the view, will be "Coaker (and the rest) must go for the PEOPLE say so."—Twillingate Sun.
