The Orphan of the Wreck.

CHAPTER XII.
WHICH INDICATES CHANGES, INTRODUCES
NEW ACTORS, AND OPENS UP
NEW SCENES.

It was a Glasgow paper, nearly twenty years old—a fact, which caught George's eye at the first glance.
"Why, Carrey," he cried, "this paper is only a year younger than you. What a tiny little thing you were when it was printed, and I must have been a rogue of three years or so—Harry likewise."
"Wandering in petticoats," suggested Harry, with a sly look at Caroline, which the latter was too excited at the moment to notice, her attention being also intensely fixed on George, as his eye wandered over the sheet in search of the paragraph.
"Here it is," he suddenly cried; "and what a long affair, to be sure—more than two columns. There, Harry, I have been speaking a deal, to-day and you haven't; do you read it?"
Harry of course assented to this at once, and, taking the paper from George's hand, plunged at once into the narrative.

The reader does not require to be told what that narrative embraced. It was a full and very graphic account published at the time of the shipwreck, the particulars of which we detailed in the opening of this tale. As Harry went on, and as George and Caroline listened, they were greatly interested. The raging storm—the ship driving through the darkness to the fatal rocks—the burning of the blue light which revealed the awful scene on her deck to those on shore—the striking of the vessel, and the coming ashore of the spare and cargo, all related with vivid minuteness. Then followed the coming ashore of the dead body of George Morrar, and its identification by Kenneth Bruce and Lucy.

At this point Harry suddenly paused, turned as pale as death, and uttered the ejaculation—
"Good God!"
"Oh, Harry, what is it?" gasped Caroline, while George regarded him with silent astonishment.
"N—nothing—nothing," he stammered. "I—I have heard of the 'drowning of the West Indian planter.' He was on his way from Jamaica to take possession of an estate in the north. I come from the north you know, and it—it made a sensation there. The story was not forgotten for many years, and I—I heard it when I was young."

"How singular that Mr. and Mrs. Bruce should have been there at the time," remarked Carrey. "Does the paper say Mr. Morrar was their cousin?"
"He was Mrs. Bruce's cousin," replied Harry in a strange tone. "Yes," he added, "it was singular."

"Go on," cried George. "The account grows interesting."
Harry went on, but in a different manner from before. He was now like one who took a deep personal interest in the matter, yet wished to suppress it. His mind was divided—it was occupied between what he was reading and a private subject which the reading had called up. Therefore, he was but half conscious of both, and read in a strange dreamy manner.

The others did not notice this particularity, their sympathy and interest being now thoroughly roused in the romantic and pathetic narrative of the shipwreck—the voyage of the artist and the fisherman to the rocks—the finding there of the maniac, the child, and the dead body of the little orphan by Kenneth and his wife.
"How generous—how noble—how Christian of them," burst out George. "What admiration I feel for these true-hearted people!"
"But would the friends of the poor child not claim him?" said Caroline.
"Who knows?" returned Harry absent-mindedly.

"Go on," said George, "pray go on."
The rest of the narrative was taken up with an account of the funerals; then followed what seemed to be a slip out from a different and more recent newspaper, the purport of which turned their interest into a channel which flowed toward themselves.

Have you inflammatory sore throat, stiff joints, or lameness from any cause whatever? Have you rheumatic or other pains in any part of the body? If so, use Johnson's Ausdigne Liniment. Our word for it, it is the best pain killer in this country.

Many persons suffer with sick headache and nervous headache, usually induced by costiveness, indigestion, &c. Such persons will find relief if not cured by keeping the bowels open with small doses of Parsons' Purgative Pills.

Any organ of the human structure unduly exercised is taxed at the expense of the rest. The brain burdened with care, grief or hard study, will withdraw a portion of the nervous element, which may be required to promote healthy muscular action, from the heart, lungs, stomach, etc., and thus cause them to degenerate and to become incompetent to perform their duties, so that disease follows. Consequently, although Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites will surely cure many diseases of these organs, patients must abstain from excessive indulgence or such habits as cause or perpetuate the malady, if they would remain healthy after discontinuing its use.

A Chemical Food and Nutritive Tonic.

Without Phosphorus no thought, say the Germans, and they are right, and no Phosphorus and the Compounds are known to be the motive power of the nervous and muscular system. They constitute more than half the material of the human body, being found in every tissue, and their presence is absolutely essential to nutrition, as they promote the conversion of albumen in the food into fibrine, which is the vitalizing agent of pure, healthy blood. They are now coming into universal use in Europe and America in the treatment of Scrofulous, Consumptive and Venereal diseases, which are caused by impoverished or poisoned blood; and in diseases of women suffering from irregularities of the menses and extending discharges, in pale, puny children, and that condition of nervous and physical prostration resulting from bad habits, excessive use of stimulants and tobacco, and all that train of evils known as fast life. The great reliability and promptness in its action, immediately and permanently restoring the debilitated constitution has made DR. WHEELER'S COMBINED PHOSPHATE OF POTASHES and CALISAVA a great favorite with the Physicians and Public. Sold at $1.00.
