SUMMER ZEPHYRS

Fuddy "Are you in favor of a single tax?" "Daddy, I go further than that? I would have no tax at all."

"What is a crank?" "She: Why, a person with one idea? Would you call me a crank? Why, no, I never gave you credit for having one idea."

"In the very danger" of the boat "contributor hitting me," asked a lady "villain at the zoological garden." "Not the least, ma'am," cried the showman. "He never bites, he swallows his victim whole."

"Between Two Fires—Right." "The editor seems to have the usual run of enemies," Scrib. "Yes, if he publishes anything anonymously, while, should he sign an article, they laugh at his vanity."

"The Foolish Advice Given—"I hate to see a man who has sense enough to give good advice," said Mr. Biffrly. "But not sense or strength enough to follow and profit by it himself; but it is a fact that many a man has got rich on a hint from somebody else who has 'gave' poor."

"Easily Misjudged—Scene: Editor's Sanctum. Printer (grating in excitedly): 'Here's a job for you, Johnson, the murderer, has just been found, and the Government has telegraphed a pardon. We've got the whole account of the hanging set up, with illustrations, and the form is on the press.' Editor (coolly): 'Don't get excited, man. Just put over the account in large capitals: 'Johnson Pardoned. Full Account of What He Escaped.'"

"An Editor in Nebraska visited a certain school-mistress and spoke of her as follows: 'She is the pride of the town, the star of invention and a jewel of brilliancy. She drew a picture of an iceberg on the blackboard. It was so natural that the thermometer froze up solid. With rare presence of mind she seized a crayon and drew a fire-triangle on the opposite wall. The prompt action saved the school, but nearly all the pupils caught a severe cold from the sudden changes.'"

"Why He Failed.—A Wellington Chinese trader known as William Joe Gett, formerly a Chinese interpreter, failed some time ago. Here is an extract from his 'statement of the affairs of bankruptcy, which, written in red ink, covers four pages of foolscap. After detailing his trading experiences, the Celestial writes: 'I see my troubles endless to come. I can't get my money to pay. I am helpless. During last three years over 36 creditors support my business. During last two months not a one let me see a penny on tick. Fish never can live in a dry pond without water. Engine can't move along without supply of coal. Boy can't fly his kite without talk on M. Housekeeper pour out all tea to the cup or refilled water—how else give you more tea you require? All empty out just the way like my business.'"

"It was a Pretty Man.—A young lady of the East-end had just received several boxes of different styles of photographs of herself, and had kept them until the usual semi-annual trading hour of her best gentleman friend. He was punctual in arriving that night, but he never imagined that it was to be his last call for an indefinite period. He had no sooner seated himself in the parlour than the young lady inquired in the photographs for his image. He looked them over very carefully, and finally selected the only one of the several pictures showing a fat on the subject. It was a pretty big fat, and beautifully trimmed piece of millinery caught his eye at first glance, and he most innocently remarked: "I think this is the best photograph." "The fat is so pretty. It is a very fine picture of the fat." The young man did not notice his fatal error until too late. His visit was short and uninteresting that evening, and now he wishes that the art of photography had never been discovered.

Story of a Hat.—A number of literary men were at one time gathered in a well-known chop-house in New York. The conversation was of course, brilliant and witty, and finally sparkled with mirth and wit. During a lull in the talk the door suddenly opened with a loud Southern drawl, and a man with a big hat, and beautifully trimmed piece of millinery caught his eye at first glance, and he most innocently remarked: "I think this is the best photograph." "The fat is so pretty. It is a very fine picture of the fat." The young man did not notice his fatal error until too late. His visit was short and uninteresting that evening, and now he wishes that the art of photography had never been discovered.

Women's Worst Enemy

Some hesitate before giving an answer, but these who know best will immediately say HEADACHE. Thousands of women live in misery day after day, and suffer most severely from these dreadful headaches. Headaches are disconcerted, children neglected, and happy days are lost. It is a terrible affliction, and the patient the suffering which they consider part of life without looking into the cause or searching for a relief. We cannot suggest without the risk of keeping the liver in good working order. To cure the headache you must cure the liver and thus remove the cause of the headache.

Chats with the Children

Don't cry, my dear, don't cry,
You are misunderstanding I know,
But you may depend
That you will not be
Don't fret, my dear, don't fret,
The world wasn't made in a day
Don't get in a pet,
There's time enough yet
If none of it's thrown away.

Don't scold, my dear, don't scold,
You are misunderstanding I know,
But you may depend
That you will not be
Don't fret, my dear, don't fret,
The world wasn't made in a day
Don't get in a pet,
There's time enough yet
If none of it's thrown away.

Just smile, my dear, just smile,
Though you may be sure the sun
Thou art in your smile so bright,
For the lonely, sorrowing one
Thou art, O smile on, though the world is sad!
Your smile is helping to make it glad.

USEFUL TREES—THE CORN-TREE.

Among the useful trees which are found scattered over the earth, there is one which we would find it difficult now-a-days to do without—it is the cork-tree of the south of Europe.

Cork is the outer bark of a kind of oak which grows abundantly in Spain, Portugal, and the south of France. Its removal does not injure the tree; on the contrary, the tree lives much longer if the outer bark is regularly taken off. After the tree is thirty years old, its cork may be removed at intervals of from six to ten years. The first crop is generally inferior in quality, and is especially used for making floats for stepping-stones. The better kind, as every one knows, is used to make stoppers for bottles, the lining of shoes, and other similar things.

The crops are usually gathered in the months of July and August.

A DAVE ACT.

Mr. Edison, who is known all over the world as a great electrician, was a poor boy. He sold papers, he ran errands, he did everything an honest boy could do to support himself. The following story, relating to an event in his boyhood, shows that he was a brave boy.

One summer forenoon, while the train was being taken apart and made up anew, a car was uncoupled and sent down the track with no brakeman to control it. Edison, who had been looking at the fowls in the poultry yard, turned just in time to see little Jimmie on the main track throwing pebbles over his head, utterly unconscious of danger. He dropped his papers on the platform, seized the child in his arms, and threw himself off the track, face downward, in sharp fresh ballast, without a moment to spare. As it was, the wheel of the car struck the heel of his boot.

"I was in the ticket office," says the child's father, "wearing a shawl, ran out in time to see the train hands bringing the two boys to the platform."

Having no other way of showing his gratitude, the agent said, "All if you will stop off here four days in the week, and keep Jimmie out of harm's way until the mixed train returns from Detroit, I will teach you telegraphing."

"Will you?" said Edison.

"I will."

He extended his hand and said, "It's a bargain," and so Edison became a telegrapher.

"HUNGRY AS A BEAR!"

In this happy land no famine comes nigh the Sierra bear, says John Muir in The November Atlantic. All the year round his bread is sure, for some of the thousand kinds that he likes are always in season and accessible, ranged on the shelves of the mountain-like stores in the pantry. From one to the other, from climate to climate, up and down he climbs, feasting on each in turn, enjoying as great variety as if he traveled to far-off countries north and south. To him, almost everything is food except granite. Every tree brings to feed him, and every bush and herb, with fruits and flowers, leaves and bark, and almost everything living or dead within reach, such as insects, badgers, gophers, ground squirrels, lizards, snakes, etc., and ants, bees, wasps, old and young, together with their eggs and larvae; and their moss, grass, and paper nests. Oranched and hatched, down all go into his marvelous stomach, and he is as fit as a fiddle. When digestion! A sheep or wounded deer or a pig he eats wain about as quickly as a boy eats a buttered muffin; or should the meat be a mouthful, it still is welcomed with tremendous relish. After he gorges a meal as the porcupine the next will be strawberries and clover, or raspberries with mushrooms and nuts, or puckyria acorns and chokecherries. And, as if fearing that anything eatable in all his domain should escape from being eaten, he breaks into the oaks to look after sugar, dried apples, haws, etc., and if still hungry, he eats the mountain's bed, but when he has had a full meal of more tempting dainties he usually leaves it undisturbed, though he may have been there for a long time. He is in the oaks, carry it to the foot of a tree and lie down on it to enjoy a siesta. Eating everything, never is he himself caught except by man, and man alone is an enemy to be feared. "But meat," said a hunter from whom I was seeking information, "but meat is the best meat in the mountains; their skins make the best beds and their grease the best butter. But cut shorted with her grease goes as fat as bacon, a man will walk all day on a couple of those biscuits."

A LEGEND.

Story of the Penitent Thief.

According to a popular legend in Spain, when St. Joseph, the angel's command arose and led into Egypt with Mary and her Child, their road led through the dark and solitary wood. For some time they followed the narrow path. St. Joseph carefully guiding the way, on which was seated our Lady, holding in her arms the infant Jesus in her arms. Of a sudden they heard a noise as if of approaching footsteps, and presently found themselves surrounded by a band of savage looking men. One of these, the chief, advancing as if to throw the Virgin from her saddle, but just then her Baby opened its eyes and looked into the eyes of the chief.

Discomfited was the man's name, stepping back at a sight so strange, and gazing again upon mother and Child, an unknown softness came over him.

"Whoever touches this woman or her Infant," he said to himself, "shall answer for it to me!" Then turning to St. Joseph he added in a subdued voice: "The night is dark and stormy; my den can afford you shelter, and he led the way into a smoky cave, lighted only by a fire, which sat a young woman, a baby in her arms, and a dog, who called. The woman, rose and came forward. There was no need of saying more; she was used to her master's way, and silently conducted the Holy Family to their evening quarters. That night after Mary had nursed the infant, the robber's wife contrived to wash her sickly little one in the same water. The legend says, that from that day it was cured and grew to be a strong man like his father, like him, too, a famous robber; but the infant Jesus' blessing hung over him through all the mutations of his criminal career. And when, after thirty-three years the world again met it, was on the Cross of Golgotha the one as Redeemer of the world, the other as the Repentant Thief.

THE BISHOP'S RING.

Its Beautiful Significance and the Reason Why One is Worn

The bishop is the only Catholic clergyman who wears a ring. Its significance is very beautiful. This is the pledge of his faith with which Christ wedded the Church his spouse. As the young man puts a ring on the finger of his spouse so the bishop receives a ring at his consecration to show that he is wedded to the Church and his diocese and he wears it as a pledge of his faith with the Church, that he may love it like himself.

When the prelate places the ring on his finger, he says the following prayer, "Beautify the fingers of my body and soul, O Lord, and surround me with the comfort of holiness in this spirit." In the oldest times letters were always sealed with a ring, and their genuineness was known by the bishop's seal. Such was the origin of the episcopal ring and of the large stone set in it. There is an indulgence of 40 days for kissing the ring of a bishop.

Blessed the Bell.

Campbellford Herald says the Roman Catholic congregation of Campbellford now pride themselves on being in possession of the oldest organ and bells that swing between Toronto and Montreal.

The bell is 40 inches in diameter, it weighs 2,048 pounds and was purchased at a cost of $500. It is beautifully polished on the outer surface, and has a soft, sweet tone in "F" natural. It is set on a strong wooden frame 5 feet 8 inches square, and is swung on a large grooved wheel 7 feet in diameter, upon which hangs a rope.

This bell, "Mary" was solemnly blessed and dedicated to the honor and glory of God at Campbellford, Oct. 1898, by the Right Reverend R. A. O'Connor, D. D., Bishop of Peterborough. Rev. William J. McCloskey, pastor.

His Excellency gave an address to a large number of people who had assembled inside the sacred edifice, his subject being an exposition of the meaning of blessing of bells. He then proceeded to pronounce the blessing upon the bell and dedicates it to the honor and glory of God. Bishop O'Connor was assisted by Rev. Father Brown, V. G., of Peterborough, Rev. Father Maguire, of Hastings, Rev. Father Maguire, of Wooler, and Rev. Father McCloskey, the pastor.

EMPEROR MAY LIVE.

THOUGH HIS PHYSICIAN PRO- NOUNCES HIS DISEASE INCURABLE.

Bright's Disease is not incurable, for Dodd's Kidney Pills have cured it Thousands of Times, and will Cure it Thousands of Times Again

Toronto, Nov. 7.—Newspaper despatches from Pekin, China, bring information to the effect that the Emperor is dying of Bright's Disease. He is under the care of a famous French physician, who asserts that the Emperor's complaint is "an incurable kidney disease."

That is where the famous French physician is mistaken.

There is no incurable kidney disease. Every disease of the kidneys is curable. They, like all other diseases, yield readily to the proper treatment.

The experience of the past eight years has shown conclusively, beyond the shadow of doubt, that there is one remedy that will cure any case of kidney disease, no matter how severe, no matter how long it has run.

This remedy is known throughout the English-speaking world, to physicians and laymen alike, by the name of Dodd's Kidney Pills

Dr. Dodd's Kidney Pills were first introduced, medicine men and sceptics regarding their power to cure Bright's Disease. Experiments were made, in cases that had defied the skill of the most eminent medical men on the American Continent, cases that had been given up as hopeless—fatal.

To the astonishment of the medical men, Dodd's Kidney Pills worked a complete cure in every case. Therefore they were recognized as the only known cure for Bright's Disease and Diabets.

It is a fact that no other cure for these diseases has ever been discovered, although many worthless imitations of Dodd's Kidney Pills have been placed on the market.

A famous French physician, under whose care the Chinese Emperor is, would use Dodd's Kidney Pills in the case of his imperial patient, his recovery would be rapid and certain.

British Aristocracy and Its Market Prices.

Mr. Ernest Terah Hooley continues to work havoc upon aristocratic reputations in the United Kingdom. In court on Thursday last Mr. Hooley added these names and amounts to his list of gains:—The Marquis of Salisbury, £1,000 for an introduction to the Club; the Marquis of Abergheny, £10,000, ostensibly for the Conservative party fund; Mr. Frank Harris, editor of the Saturday Review, £1,000 to square his private account; Lord Blake, who is threatened to be introduced to the Club; Mr. Harry Marks, editor of The Financial News, £22,000; "to invest" in purchasing the London Sun; O. D. Rose, of the Daily Mail, £200 on general principles; Mr. Joseph Stansfeld, ex-Lord Mayor of London, £3,000 on a board of directors; and Lord Ashburton £10,000 for an introduction to solicitors; who were willing to lend £100,000 at 8 1/2 per cent.

Loyola College Games

The Montreal Gazette, reporting the Loyola College Games on October 26, says: The interest taken this year in schoolboy sports is more marked than ever before. Every school of any prominence now has its annual athletic meeting, which is productive of good, not only from the mere interest it creates among the boys for healthy recreation, but for the spirit of emulation which is inspired by competition. It is a good sign of the times to see no heartiness in which the young ones enter into these sports, and the pluck that most of them display in a hard race to the finish shows that there is good stuff behind, which, under judicious training now makes for the sort of men that the future will require.

Somebody wrote some time ago that famous British battles were first won on the football field. This may be even truer now than in the past, and if there is any way in which to encourage the schoolboy to athletic efforts in the athletic way it should be taken.

Perhaps no better method could be devised at the present time than the annual field days. How thoroughly these events are appreciated both by parents and the public, has been well illustrated recently at the different school meets, none of which more successfully than yesterday's gathering of the Loyola College Athletic Association, which took place on the M. A. A. grounds.

The weather was almost perfect, and the huge grand stand was comfortably crowded. The school colors, orange and dark blue, were everywhere in evidence. It was a striking combination and set off the fifty costumes of the ladies, of whom there were many hundreds present, and they seemed just as enthusiastic as the boys themselves, and if the weather got at all chilly there was a sort of warmth in the exercise of applauding.

The management of the games was everything that could be desired; and great credit is due to the committee who had the management of the games in hand. The very lengthy program was completed at a comfortable hour that left plenty of time for early dinner, and an appetite that cried out—the earlier the better.

The showing made by some of the younger boys, especially those who were remarkable for such little fellows, the intermediates ranged from 18 to 17, and among that class, there are some very promising athletes, while in the senior section there is some material which it would be very hard to put under the knife.

A feature of the meeting was the tie in the aggregate score for the handsome gold medal presented by D. Monk. In this competition J. Meagher and T. Corbett broke even with 17 points each. The tie was broken by a schoolboy, C. Cowan, of McGill, took first place, with Sullivan, of Loyola, a close second. The date for the distribution of prizes has not been definitely decided on, but it will take place at the college some time next week.

The Fleets of Europe.

Calculations as to the respective strengths of the English, the French, and the Russian and French fleets combined, are of the order of the day. In the matter of Standard battleships, England has 59, France 40, and Russia 28, giving the two latter combined, 68; of armored cruisers, England has 17, France 10, and Russia 4; France and Russia combined, 20. Of older ironclads and coast defence ships, England has 24, France 15, and Russia 15, giving the combination 54. Of modern cruisers, England has 70, France 60, and Russia 3, giving the combination 133. Of torpedo craft, England has 311, France 200, Russia 276, giving the combination 887. According to the Naval Manual of 1888, under the different conditions which obtain, and the development of attack by locomotive torpedoes, it will not be found practicable to maintain an effective blockade of an enemy's equatorial in strongly fortified ports without the blocking of at least five or three, to allow a sufficient margin for casualties. Since then, however, the Spanish American War has greatly changed the opinion of naval experts as to the value of port blockades, so that the excess of France and Russia in these craft is regarded as being less serious than it would have been without that experience. In addition to that, it is believed here that the best part of the Russian fleet, the Black Sea fleet, could be bottled up, while over in the Far East the French and Russian combination would be out-classed by the English.

Premier Brewery of Canada

One of the most complete breweries on the continent—capacity 165,000 barrels annually—equipped with the most modern plant, including a De La Vergne refrigerating machine, 70 horse-power, with water tower in connection—a 35 horse power electric dynamo for lighting brewery and running several motors—a large water filter, capacity 2000 gallons per hour, through which water, after passing, is absolutely pure, and is used in all brewings, and our improved facilities enable us to guarantee our products. European and American exports have pronounced our establishment and products equal to the best in their respective countries. Large malt house and storage in connection.

BALLAGHADERIN, MAYO, Nov. 1st, 1898.

The United Irish Land League meeting yesterday at Castlereagh, the headquarters of Parnellite in Connought, was the most important event in recent years. Mr. John Fitzgibbon, the chief Parnellite in the province, presided. The meeting was three-fourths Parnellite, and all the speakers, except myself, were Parnellites.

Mr. William Keenan, Member of Parliament for Clare, and Mr. John P. Hayden, Member of Parliament for Roscommon, and Pierce Mahoney, ex-Member of Parliament for North Meath, spoke.

As the Government was so denuded by this significant Nationalist combination that it made no attempt at violent suppression, as it did last week.

Mr. Hayden announced himself ready to face jail or bullets in defence of Irish freedom.

In his speech Mr. Keenan declared that he took "greater pleasure in fighting the common enemy than in fighting brother Irishman."

Mr. Mahoney made a powerful appeal for union, urging the members of Irishmen to forget bitter memories and unkind feelings.

Mr. Fitzgibbon predicted that the United Irish League would sweep Roscommon.

Five branches of the United Irish were established yesterday.

Mr. John Roche, Member of Parliament for East Galway, and Mr. Lyman, his former Parnellite opponent for the same place, joined heartily in establishing the branch at Ballagaderin.

The American flag, which was torn and trampled by the police, has been replaced by public subscription.

Three hundred extra police have been drafted here to the west. But the law of the United Irish League is now the law of Connought.

The Queen and Divorce.

The Queen has again taken a stand against divorce and divorced persons. T. P. O'Connor, in his newspaper, "Mainly About People," has written a most interesting article on the subject. He states that the Queen's decision is a most remarkable one, in that it is a declaration that she will not be a party to the divorce of any of her subjects; nevertheless, her belief is that an infinitely more satisfactory state would arise were marriage made indissoluble by Church and State. The Queen adds that she has objected to judicial separation, her strong disapproval of divorce being due to the liberty which it imparts to divorced people to marry again, and to the remarriage of divorced persons no matter what the grounds of divorce, she is "unalterable and strongly opposed." This is the first official expression Her Majesty has given to her views on the subject.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF LAUGHTER

Oh! never was a brow of care... For with the child of wisdom, and good-humour is the twin.

WARRINGTON, V.G.

(From the Harmaworth Magazine).

(1) ON THE FIELD.

A pitch-black night in a rocky valley of Afghanistan, a few stars in the heavy, black, moonless sky only indicating the almost palpable darkness.

THE SECOND DAY OUT FROM KIL WAT LAM.

Warrington looked up at the sky. "That was my first taste of the walk-up-and-downward-target business," said Vicary solemnly.

(2) AT HOME.

An afternoon in early November, a cosy room, bright fire, big armchairs, piano, pipes, photographs, and decanters; a male figure extended to prominence.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF LAUGHTER

Warrington laughed nervously. "I gave you the right sort of a dressing-down," he said.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF LAUGHTER

Warrington looked up at the sky. "That was my first taste of the walk-up-and-downward-target business," said Vicary solemnly.

Warrington. "I'd rather go through a week of Chukundras than speak; but I'd go through a lifetime of them with her at the far end."

NO-I SAY-HALF A MINUTE, VICARY.

Vicary. "I ought to have changed my collar. Hang it—all right I'm coming. Wait for us, baby—we shan't be five minutes. Vicary, don't ring. I—I don't think I'll call to-day, after all—it's a bit late, don't you think? You have rung? Dash it! I—I—let me ask." The door was opened.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH SOUTH.

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church South, which met recently, received a fraternal greeting by telegraph from another religious body, the members concluding as follows:—See Act twenty-three two.

THE DOMAIN OF WOMAN

How far are we justified in allowing circumstances and surroundings to warp our natural character?

We often hear it said, "I was very different once, but circumstances have changed me." People of sunny disposition allow themselves to become sour and morose and then put the blame on circumstances...

I am reminded of the passage in "Forn Oligivers" wherein Ruskin supposes himself to be answering the ridicule of the wisecracks who taunt him with quoting the Book of Genesis on account of the flaws they have discovered in it...

Just so, and you know your friend before you know his flaws, then remember only the better part of him, don't take his conduct, however thoughtless, as an excuse for becoming morose and cynical and losing faith in human nature...

The Progressive Eucliro Party in Richmond Hall on Friday evening was a great success. Over a hundred couples sat down, and the scene was one of the greatest merriment from start to finish.

Besides the members of St. Paul's Commandery and Auxiliary there were many delegates from other divisions in the city, and not a few non-members of the order.

The scratch for the tables to which the players had been allotted, caused a great deal of fun, various luckless individuals being called by anxious friends who wanted them at their especial table, only to find that they were booked for another night at the other end of the room.

Whether the adage: "Lucky at cards unlucky in love," is true or not, I cannot say, but certainly some people seem to have all the luck there is going. On the other hand, there are some who never, by any chance get a good hand, fate seeming to have a positive grudge against them.

Playing was over about 11:25, and refreshments in the shape of tea, coffee and cake were dispensed by the officers of St. Paul's Commandery assisted by friends from other divisions, who were all indefatigable in looking after the wants of the guests.

The Annual Christmas Sale in aid of the Sisters of the Precious Blood commences on Monday, Nov. 21. The occurrence this year will be even better than in previous years; they are under the management of a lady well known in musical circles in the city and her name is a guarantee of the excellence of the entertainment.

The usual features will distinguish the Soiree, and various new attractions will be added. The ladies in charge of the luncheon will, as usual, spare no pains to make their department a watchword for excellence in culinary matters, and gentlemen will find a lunch in these rooms furnish a pleasant rest from business worries as well as a gastronomic delight.

The beautiful and unostentatious lives of those Sisters, which are passed in a perpetual adoration of the Precious Blood in separation or in the forgetfulness, should make us ready, may we endeavor to do everything in our power to provide for their temporal welfare, and relieve them of the anxiety which doubt always imposes. It is easy enough for us to speak of them, but it is not so easy to do so for a few days of our time to assist them; and if we all work together with a will, each doing his or her share, no matter how small, we may soon rejoice the hearts of those saintly religious by freeing them from their home from the debt which presses upon us.

It is little enough to do for them, who do so much for us. Fasts, vigils, mortifications, constant and unceasing prayer; who shall measure the blessings that they lay down upon the city when they kneel by their practice of those heroic virtues so hard and so often distasteful to us of less saintly mould, who prefer too often, the good things of this world which these wise and virtuous women have renounced for, they have seen the King in His Glory, and to them all else is nothing; the rich of the world are vain and its pleasures destruction. But, for the souls in the world their hearts yearn. They who have found the true riches and the true greatness, who are rich with the treasures of God, that alone are worth possessing, can pity our poverty; pity it and relieve it, for out of their abundance they bestow upon us their spiritual goods and graces, not grudgingly but abundantly and gladly. We cannot purchase their prayers and sacrifices, they are priceless as the treasures of Heaven itself, yet they are ours, without money or hope of reward for themselves.

Let us, then, show our gratitude in the only way that is open to us. Each one of us who does anything, however small, to help in paying the debt on the Monastery of the Precious Blood has laid a stone in the walls of this House of prayer, and merit, and the abundant graces which God always showers upon those who succour His chosen souls.

General Kitchener and the Freedom of London.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The streets were crowded all morning, an immense number of people seeking to witness Gen. Kitchener's triumphal progress to the Guildhall, to receive the freedom of the City of London, and the award of honor presented to him in recognition of his defeat of the Boers at Omdurman.

IMPOVERISHED BLOOD.

A CONDITION THAT FREQUENTLY CAUSES MUCH SUFFERING

Mrs. Henry Gifford, of Kentville, Proves the Value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in This Condition.

From the Acaden, Nov. 11, '98. The case of Mrs. Henry Gifford, of Kentville, who some time ago was cured of a distressing malady through the medium of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, is of peculiar value as illustrating the rapidity with which the medicine in question operates. A representative of the Acaden who called upon Mrs. Gifford the other day to find information concerning her cure, found her to be a very intelligent lady, and a hearty advocate of the medicine which she had used.

Upon learning the object of his call Mrs. Gifford expressed herself as pleased at the prospect of having an opportunity to give publicity to her remarkable cure. "I have tried all my friends about it," she said, "but have often felt that it was my duty to have a statement of my case published in the papers. Three years ago this spring my system was in a bad way run down state. In this condition I was attacked by a heavy cold and an enlarged tonsil of great size and extreme painfulness was the result. For nine weary months I was unable to turn my head and my health became such that I could not exert myself in the least. Several physicians were consulted, but without the slightest benefit. The swelling was finally lanced but the operation only aggravated the matter as my blood was so impoverished that the incision did not heal but developed into a running sore which was very painful and at times I almost wished I was dead. At last by a happy chance I was advised to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After using a few boxes the swelling disappeared and perfect health was restored to me. Since that time Mrs. Gifford has had implicit confidence in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and has used them for any physical disorder of herself or children with the same happy results. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills create new blood, build up the nerves, and thus drive disease from the system. In hundreds of cases they have cured after all other medicines had failed, thus establishing the claim that they are a marvel among the remedies of modern medical science. The genuine Pink Pills are sold only in boxes, bearing the full trade mark, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People." Protect yourself from imposition by refusing any pill that does not bear the registered trade mark around the box. If in doubt send direct to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brookville, Ont., and they will do us to you post paid at 60c. a box, or six boxes for $2.00.
