Dr. H. A. INNIS IS LAST 150th. ANNIVERSARY SPEAKER

The last in the special series of lectures commemorating the 150th anniversary of the founding of the University of New Brunswick was delivered last Friday in the Memorial Hall. The guest speaker was Dr. H. A. Innis, Head of the Department of Political Science and Dean of Graduate Studies at the University of Toronto. Dr. Innis is widely known in Canadian economics and political science fields as an author of many books on the Canadian economic system and as a member of various Royal Commissions. At present he is serving on the Royal Commission of Transportation.

Dr. A. W. Trueman, President, introduced the speaker and referred to him as "one of the great scholars in the world in his subject and as a Canadian is one of the great Canadians of his time."

Dr. Innis traced the evolution of Common law and Roman law from their beginnings to their effect on present day government and politics. The place of the law student and lawyer were discussed. He traced present day Marxian theories to the Roman law basis rather than Common law, and denoted that the former is based on principles while the latter is formed through the presentation of facts.

An analysis of the Canadian Supreme Court and its relation to the various Provincial Supreme bodies was presented. Dr. Innis stated that the Provincial Supreme Courts were more attractive to prospective jurists than the federal Court. He also spoke of the introduction of social sciences into the field of law education, and the difficulties of this transfusion. The process is becoming more complete with the passing of time, and is accompanied by the increasing tendency for young lawyers never to appear in court but to link themselves with large corporations or firms instead.

The decrease of Roman law and substitution of Common law over a lengthy period was noted by the speaker except in certain parts of the world, notably the United States, where a form of imperial-

Flying Club Elects Next Year's Officers

The U.N.B. Flying Club held its final meeting of the year on Thursday, March 30, with Bud Perkins in the chair. After the business of the day had been conducted next years officers were elected. They are: Tim Kenny, President; Al Huggill, Vice-President; and Dick Elmer, Sec. Treas.

This year marked the transition period in the history of the Club with the leaving of the Veterans. It proved to be a very successful year with a majority of the members "soloing" and the others well on their way to obtaining their Private Pilots Licenses.

It is hoped that a larger proportion of the student body will join the Club and take advantage of the substantial Government grant offered to members of Flying Clubs across Canada.

NOTICE

It has been announced by Syd Forbes that applications are once more called for team managers for the coming year. Applications for all positions are still solicited and will be accepted indefinitely by Mr. Forbes. If you would like to manage one of next years teams you should hand your application in to Mr. Forbes immediately.

Bob Gander Elected Sr. Class Life Pres.

At the Senior Class Life Executive elections held on Thursday, Bob Gander, a Senior Civil, was elected to the position of life-president of this year's graduating class. Other members elected to office were Hugh Church, secretary-treasurer and Eleanor Wylie, as vice-president. Greg Hurley will be this year's valedictorian.

Mr. Gander who resides in Moncton, was opposed in the election by Syd Forbes and George Andrews, both Senior Foresters. Bob is probably best known to the student body for his appearances with the red n' black revue.

Hugh Church, a resident of Saint John, bested Ralph Hay at the polls to become Secretary-Treasurer. Hugh was formerly treasurer of the S. R. C.

Greg Hurley, a Senior Forester whose home is in Fredericton, will deliver the valedictory on the day on which the Foresters and Artsmen graduate. Because of the large size graduating class this year the graduation will be held on two days. A second valedictorian is yet to be chosen. The other candidate for valedictorian was Jim Chapman.

'BESTS JOBB, WARNER IN AIR-TIGHT CONTEST; 75% OF STUDENTS VOTE

Ron Stevenson, third year Arts student, of Edmundston, carried away the marbles in one of the most hotly contested S.R.C. presidential elections ever seen up the hill, by besting Stan Jobb, the foresters' champion, and Al "Dark-Horse" Warner in Friday's student elections. Vote counters were as unsure as the candidates for most of the way, although in the second count, after Mr. Warner had been dropped, Stevenson's edge over Stan Jobb was a more decisive one.

A 75% vote, one of the heaviest ever registered here was another high-point in the annual election which was thought to be the result of vigorous campaigning by factions supporting the three candidates. One observer nominated the race as a possible contender against the second Joe Louis-Billy Conn fight, for the honour of "most bally-hooded event of the era".

The results of the first count showed Stevenson leading with 262 votes, Jobb second with 255, and Warner third with 249. A redistribution of the second choices on Warner's ballots gave Stevenson a winning edge with 412 votes to Jobb's 347.

Other members of the S. R. C. executive chosen in Friday's balloting were Jim McAdam as vice-president, who polled 507 to Wally Bridcut's 264; and Don McPhail, who defeated Skip Anglin and Al Sewell for the position of Treasurer.

In the treasurer's race, Al Sewell led in the first choices with 314 votes to 303 for McPhail, but McPhail scored a decisive win on the second choices, getting 106 to 43. McPhail who had been billed as the man to "give you the most for your dollar" is a second year Arts-man from Sackville.

A fourth member of the S.R.C. executive is Barbara Bell who received the position of second vice-president by acclamation. The job of Secretary, which Miss Bell had held prior to this election will now be held by Bob Corbett who was also elected by acclamation.

Kelly A.A.A. President

Terry Kelly, contesting the A.A. A. Presidency with Les Dobson and John Currie polled a majority of the votes on the first count in Friday's election. Kelly, a third year Arts student from Oshawa, Ont., succeeds Bernie Biddiscombe in the position. Johnnie Currie was second in the one-sided race, trailing the successful candidate by approximately one hundred and fifty votes.

In the contest for Secretary-Treasurer, Marg Vermeeren bested Eric Garland in a two-way race. The final count in that contest was 400 votes to 367, which indicated a much closer contest than that for the presidency. Miss Vermeeren is a first year Science student.

The other member of the A.A.A. executive is Wally Fleet who became vice-president of the association by acclamation.

DON MCPHAIL

Ron Stevenson, Don McPhail and Jim McAdam, were the three members of the S.R.C. executive chosen at Friday's balloting. The other members of the executive, Barbara Bell, second vice president, and Bob Corbett, secretary, were elected by acclamation.

VETS' BURSARY FUND NOW TOTALS $21,000 PRESIDENT LAUDS CAMPAIGN

Fredericton, March 25 — A Veterans' Bursary and Loan Fund of almost $21,000, at the University of New Brunswick was disclosed today in the final report prepared by a committee on behalf of the veteran students who both conceived the plan and organized the campaign which has culminated so successfully.

The Veterans' Bursary and Loan Fund is the material expression of the desire of the veteran students to leave behind them a perpetual memorial of their appreciation to the University of New Brunswick for the higher educational opportunities which the university extended to them.

Under the plan both bursaries for students entering the university, and loans to students who need financial assistance in order to complete their education, will be available. The first two bursaries, each of the value of $100, were awarded to freshmen students in January of this year.

This was the first such plan to be drawn up in Canada, but veteran students at other Canadian universities have already started to emulate the U. N. B. project. As yet, however, the U.N.B. students are the only group which has been able actually to award bursaries.

Dr. A. W. Trueman, president, has congratulated the veteran students on his campus for a magnificent achievement. "I can think of nothing," he said, "which the veteran students could have done which would be more appropriate as a gesture of good will to the university, and as a means of offering practical assistance to the following generation of students."

"I want to assure you how deeply all members of the university appreciate this wise and generous action."

Pre-Meds Tour Saint John Hospitals

In the wee hours of Saturday morning the 25th of March, the "Blood 'n Guts" Special roared on its way to keep an appointment with four Saint John Hospitals. This was the annual tour made by the society of the hospitals in the Saint John area. This year was a highlight in that for the first time there was a representation of some sophmores; in past years the tour has been limited to Seniors only.

The future 'saw-bones' and 'tooth drillers' all made their last will and testament and said fond farewells to friends and relatives before entering the portals of the Provincial Mental Hospital. Nine staunch God-fearing souls entered, but when they came out there were only seven. Hey Midge! Mary! you still down there?

The group were greeted by Dr. Menzies who gave them an introductory talk concerning the hospital. Many of the weird ideas held of mental institutions were soon dispelled as the tour progressed. In the tour through the (Continued on page four)

Thirty . . .

This being the last issue of the Brunswickan this term and possibly my last issue as editor, the things which could be said fall into two categories: first, a parting note on the part of the paper and the staff to the readers, especially those of the graduating class, who will in all likelihood be going out of touch with us permanently; and secondly, a few observations, quite possibly to be considered as innovations, which I might advance with respect to the position of editor and the duties involved.

First then, to the leave-taking: Our Brunswickan year has been a good one . . . a bit stormy at times but in no manner distasteful or disinteresting. We changed horses in the middle of the stream and didn't get too wet. After a long year as editor of the Brunswickan, Mr. Hay decided that he had had enough and so I'm here. We trust that we have served the useful purpose for which we were intended on the campus.

You have been a most understanding and lenient reading public during the past year, and so, on saying so long we'd like to say it's been completely enjoyable work.

To the graduates we'd like to extend all our best, and wish you God-speed in the world which you're about to take over. We would like to have you stay with us, but since that can't be arranged too easily, we'll just say that to know that you got away before we did will be reassurance when we ourselves have to face the "brave, new world," of which you have become part.

As regards the position of Editor of the Brunswickan, I have this to say about it. It's a big job!

I think it could be made much more attractive by the introduction of a few remedial measures however. Under the present system, the onus rests too much on the editor. Due to the shortness of material which offers as possible staff, (which problem is occasioned, I believe, by the predominance of pure and applied science students on the campus) it becomes necessary for the editor, in many cases to concern himself with the problems of news coverage and writing which should not be his. It appears that we have already struggled too much with the problem of recruiting new staff members. With no actual realization of our problem in sight, the continuance of the editor's heavy burden has often had a deteriorating effect on the editing of the newspaper.

So that what I would propose is this (and the same alternative has many times been proposed to me): that we introduce a system of revolving editors, or that the editing of the paper be rotated among two or more capable men. This, I think, is the solution to our editor's problems.

Finally, concerning last Friday's election, we would like to extend our congratulations to the incoming student officers. Certainly, with the amount of interest which you, the public, have shown in this year's election, the student government which you have placed in office need never feel that your attention does not centre on them. This is almost an assurance of an effective administration on our campus.

Model United Nations Session Held; Stormy Debate Ensues

Reported by BOB CADMAN

Maybe it was fate --we dont know for sure, put the undeniable fact remains right in the middle of the speech by Russian delegate (Buzz Kerr). a large poster bearing the word "pax" (Latin for "peace") fell clashing to the floor.

The occasion was the session of the Model United Nations Economic and Social Council (UNESCO) that was held in the Memorial Hall on the night of Tuesday, March 28. Aply presided over the delegate from Panama (Stig Harvor)—first time we ever saw a Panamanian with a Norwegian accent, the Council battled its way through the agenda with heated argument and bitter insults, particularly from the delegates of the U.S.S.R. (Aulder Gerow and Buzz Kerr), the Ukraine Syd Forbes and Ralph Hay), and Nationalist China (Jackie Webster).

The agenda of the session consisted of discussion of the U. N. Universal Declaration of Human Rights, dealing with certain articles of it in particular. The session began with an introduction and explanation by Trygve Lie (Prof. David Corbett) who was followed by a "round-robin", in which each delegate had three minutes to give his country's stand on human rights.

Correction! — we should have said that was the way it was planned, but that wasn't the way it came off, for no sooner had the first delegate opened his mouth, when Soviet delegate Gerowski got up and demanded that the Nationalist China delegate be expelled and replaced by a representative of Communist China. The air was blue for a few minutes while the chairman tried to restore order, and finally a vote was taken as a result of which the Russian motion was defeated. The Red delegates, all except the Yugoslavian (Bob Cadman), then left toute de suite by the nearest exit. They returned a short time later, apparently so they'd be able to walk out again the next time they felt like it, which they did twice more during the session.

When the smoke of this battle had cleared away, the model UNESCO got on with the round-robin.

Following this, one of the United Kingdom delegates (Prof. William Smith) moved that an article be inserted in the Declaration of Human Rights stating that everyone has the right to work, and setting forth the rights of employees. A number of delegates spoke in favour of the article, including the American (Fred Allan)—no relation to you-know-who). Indian (Art Parks), Brazilian (Rod McLeod), and Australian (Derek Wiggs), representatives. The U.S.S.R. delegation introduced several amendments, including one which stated that everyone should have free choice of employment "only when it is in the interests concurrently of the worker and the state." This amendment was bitterly debated and then defeated, and the original motion was passed.

The Brazilian delegate (Rod McLeod) then moved the adoption of an article stating the right to freedom of religion: freedom to believe, change, teach, practice and worship one's religion in any way. The greatest controversy on this subject arose when the Red delegates introduced an amendment saying: "Everyone has the right to disseminate anti-religious propaganda." Mr. Gerowski referred to religion as "organized hypocrisy", and was immediately pounced upon by the fiery Australian, Mr. Wiggs, who demanded an explanation. The Russians in return hurled more insults, and bloodshed was only narrowly averted when the Yugoslavian delegate, Mr. Cadmanoff, called the whole dispute irrelevant, and the chairman brought the meeting to order. The amendment was defeated and the motion was passed.

An article on education was then discussed briefly and the session came to a close. In the course of the session both the audience and the "delegates" learned a lot about human rights, the viewpoints of the various countries on human rights and about what goes on in a U. N. meeting of that kind. It was agreed that holding the Model UNESCO had been well worth while, and more successful than some had expected.

Foresters Plan Hammerfest at Last Meeting

At the sparsely attended meeting on Monday last, plans for this year's Hammerfest were initiated. Lee (Parson) Fletcher was nominated Chairman of the Hammerfest Committee, while Larry McLeod was nominated to organize some form of entertainment. Two tentative dates were suggested; Tuesday, May 9th or Friday, May 12th.

The Sec.-Treas. presented a budget for the Hammerfest and suggested a levy of 25c-35. to supplement existing funds. It was decided after some discussion to impose a levy of 50c. per person.

Other items of business discussed were the 1950-51 U. C. M. mission at U.N.B. and the summer employment situation. President Len Barrett explained briefly the purposes of the U. C. M. mission and urged members to take an active interest in it. With regard to summer employment he said that the picture was a lot brighter than it was two months ago.

Following the business meeting an inter-class general knowledge quiz was conducted by Dave Messer and his committee. Due to the poor attendance 4 Sophomores combined with 1 Freshman and Prof. Joe Roberts to down the third team. The battle of wits raged furiously until 10 p.m. at which time a halt was called. However the Combined Team was tied with the seniors and it took nearly half an hour before the deadlock was broken with the seniors coming out victorious.

The next and final meeting for the year will be held on Monday, April 17th. Business - Election of Officers for 1950-51 and the finalizing of Hammerfest plans.

U.N.B.'s PRIZE WINNING ENTRY REVIEWED BY DR. PACEY

(Eds Note: Following is the concluding half of Dr. Desmond Pacey's review of "Golden Boy", the U.N.B. Dramatic Society's entry in the regional drama festival. The play, which was directed by Prof. Ralph Hicklin, won top honours. Due to the small size of our last two issues, it was necessary, in order to print the complete review, to print it in two sections.)

But if the play has defects—and these are all arguable—it has compensating merits which make it rewarding dramatic experience. It is sincere and, at moments, deeply moving; it is in touch with some of the important issues of our time, and it creates a gallery of interesting and vivid characters. The players, almost without exception, were successful in bringing these characters to life. George Andrews, as Tom Moody, was a convincing manager, though I thought that he might, particularly in the early scenes, have thrown himself into the role with a little more abandon. Much the same was true of Jean Pearson, as Lorna Moon: her voice and general appearance were good, and she spoke her lines well, but she was a little too stiff, a little too prim and proper for a "tramp from Newark. Julian Guntensperger and Wilma Sansom, on the other hand, did throw themselves with complete abandon into the parts of Siggle and Anna, and the moments when they were on stage were so full of vitality that one kept hoping for their reappearance. A similar effect was noticeable when Mr. Hicklin, as Rocky Gottlieb, was on stage: not only did he act with complete assurance himself, but he seemed to lend his vitality to the others with the result that the action was speeded and integrated.

Exceptionally fine performances were given by Greg Hurley, as Mr. Bonaparte. Bob Latta, as Joe, and Hubert Bartlett, as Eddie. Hurley was consistently in character from first to last: every word he spoke, every gesture he made, every step he took contributed its quota to the total effect at which he was aiming. Latta was almost as good, though he had a rather disconcerting tendency to tiptoe around the stage as if at the moment it might collapse beneath him. Latta made his lines sound like spontaneous speech, and he was really living the part in the dressing room scenes near the end of the play. Bartlett was perfectly cast as the gangster, and ruthlessness it demanded—no mean feat for a twenty year old youth!

The subordinate roles were all completely if not brilliantly handled. Irvin Orlov, as Mr. Carp, did well with a role that seemed to have crept into the play more or less by accident: he succeeded in assuming the tired air of a Schopenhauerian pessimist. Ted Cadenhead was a quiet but efficient Tokio; Don Rowan was an earnest but slightly too genteel and well-tailored Frank. Don Bell, as Pepper White, did a small role with zest and sincerity, as did Bob Merritt as his trainer. David Anglin and Dan MacArthur looked and talked like the sportswriters they were supposed to be, and Bob Abbott and Terry Rankine made brief but effective appearances as Barker and Driscoll respectively.

There is little fault to find with the production of the play. The pauses between the scenes were a little too long, but the only conceivable means of shortening them—a revolving stage—was presumably too difficult or too expensive to build, or would have been too awkward transport to Saint John for the Regional Drama festival. The grouping was usually good, though there was a slight tendency towards crowding occasionally. The lighting was effective, especially in the park bench scenes, and the background noises were well handled with the exception of the final bench scene, when they were so loud as almost to drown out the dialogue. The makeup deserves special mention: it was much the best job I have seen in a U.N.B. play.

Altogether, the effort was very worthwhile. A difficult play was done exceedingly well by amateur standards, and well by any standards. The whole production was a fitting climax to the first—we hope not the last—phase of Professor Hicklin's career as director of dramatics at this University. It was with very real pleasure that I presented to him, on the last night of the run, the parchment and gold pin of the Canadian Drama Award. All who have worked with him know how richly he has deserved this honour, and with what unflinching tact, good humor, patience and enthusiasm he has pursued his duties. We shall see him leave us for further study with regret, but with the firm hope that he will one day be back to renew his efforts with even greater zeal—if that be possible.

ALUMNI BALL HELD

The Alumni Ball, the first of what is intended to be an annual affair was introduced into U.N.B.'s Social calendar on Friday night, March 31. The dance was termed highly successful by organizers, and although not overly attended, was enjoyed highly by the dancers.

Admission for students was by S.R.C. pass. It has been stated that the proximity of Easter Holidays and examinations were probably responsible for the number of students attending, but officials expressed gratification with the crowd in the face of these obstacles.

The man responsible for this unique feature we learned was Dr. Menzies. The tour through the institution lasted about two and one-half hours.

After lunch the group went to the General Hospital. Here the boys were conducted about the premises by Doc "Jake" Jacobson, one of the boys of the class of '43. The group was taken through all the wards and while in the children's ward had the opportunity of seeing a blood transfusion being given a little child. This plasma we learned was the gift of the Red Cross's new free blood bank.

The boys went through the stork room and several operating rooms in the hospital as well as the Morgue or "House of Cadavers" as Doc "Jake" called it. The boys wound up the tour of the 'General' by having a gab session with Doc "Jake" and getting a load of gen on medical school.

VETS' BURSARY

the campaign on behalf of the Veterans' Bursary and Loan Fund, consisted of John Clark, of Scotland and Dartmouth, N. S., Geoffrey M. Kerrigan, of Montreal, G. Allison Hubert, of Dalousie, N. B., Cecil A. Charlton, of Halifax, and Harold V. Chapman, of Amherst, N. S. Clark, Kerrigan and Hubert graduated in 1949, and Charlton and Chapman are members of the senior class at the university this year. It is of interest that all five were students in applied science.

As a result of the campaign last year, $5,856.50 was solicited in contributions from the students, and $3,300. was voted to the fund Students' Representative Council. The campaign this year, was even more successful, and the contributions from the students totaled something more than $11,580.

The efficiency with which the campaign was conducted is indicated by the fact that this figure represents participation in the plan on the part of more than 90% of the veteran students at U. N. B.
