Canada Council Grants Aid Students In Fine Arts

By CAROLYN CURRAN

Applications are now being accepted from those who wish to receive aid from the Canada Council.

This council was recently set up to promote culture and the fine arts in Canada.

In general, the Canada Council Scholarships, fellowships and other grants apply to those who wish to further their education in the arts, humanities and social sciences, not including social work, theology and some studies at professional schools.

There are scholarships for those wishing to obtain a Master degree, further their education in the arts, aid in research; and fellowships for: secondary school teachers, librarians, journalists, broadcasters, arts teachers, and staff members of art galleries and museums.

These are open to both men and women and are awarded on merit and in competition.

The awards vary from $300 to $5,000 depending upon marital status, place of study, or unusual costs such as higher than average fee, etc. The sums quoted in the poster (to be found on various bulletin boards on the UNB campus) are usually averages.

Application forms may be sent on request to The Secretary, The Canada Council, 140 Wellington Street, Ottawa, Ont., and the deadline dates vary from December 1, 1958, to February 15, 1959. In certain categories late applications may be considered in exceptional cases and then the deadline may be extended to June 15, 1959.

Some of these fellowships may be awarded for study abroad or for non-residents of Canada but for the most part they are for education in Canada for Canadians.

Letters of recommendation based on recent, personal knowledge of the candidate's work and study must be sent directly to the Council by the referees, not by the applicant.

Only in certain categories are the grants renewable for further study and in the case of renewal, the applicant must again enter competition with other candidates.

Normally, the cost of travel will be provided for between the place of residence at the time the award is made and the place at which it is to be held. Only in special cases will the candidate's wife be included in the travel grant.

For those going outside of Canada, insurance is required against sickness or loss of effects and for those obtaining the grant to be used inside Canada, insurance is advised.

Two reports are expected on the candidate's work; one when the grant has half-expired and

Society To Vary Forms of Debating

The Debating Society held its first meeting of the year in the New Lounge of the Student Centre, Thursday, October 2.

Fifteen members were present. Plans for the year were outlined by the President, Pete Miles. At present it is anticipated that intra-club debates will be held twice monthly or more often during the first term. The Society intends to vary the form of debating in an attempt to create more interest and make for more variety in its programmes.

Interesting and informative talks were delivered on Debating Procedure and the judging of debates by Brian Kempster and Prof. Allan Donaldson respectively.

Following the main program refreshments were served and an informal discussion was held on debating in general.

The next meeting of the Society will be held on Thursday Oct. 16 in the Student Centre when the first debate of the year will take place.

UNB Introduces Proctor System

from JOHN DREW

UNB has introduced the proctor system to its men's residences.

In the Lady Beaverbrook residence, Dean A. G. Shaw has two assistant proctors, Al McLay (post-graduate - English) and Harold Austin (PG - economics).

In Alken House, Proctor Bill Reddin has two deputies, John Findlay (PG - chemistry) and John Williamson (B.Sc., now honoring in economics). Meanwhile, in Jones House, Proctor Don Nelson is assisted by Bob Wightman (PG - chemistry) and Sandy MacLean B.A., now trying for a B.Ed.).

The proctor arrangement fits into a university plan for a new constitution to govern all campus residences, present and future. The aim is to standardize residence life.

Residents of Alken and Jones Houses have already accepted the constitution proposed by the university. In the Lady-Beaverbrook,

LIFE PRESENTS A DISMAL ASPECT

by MAC

Unfortunately, not every aspect of college life is perfect. Some of the little imperfections become quite annoying, particularly those avoidable shortcomings found in many departments. Giving vent to one's frustrations may not be the most publicized method on "How to skin friends and influential people". However, published gripes may bring action — clear the air and make room for friends. Mac will attempt to do just this in a regular column aimed at ever present gripes.

Back at the Book store again. The present facilities seem sufficient for most of the college year — except the first few days which are expanding to weeks. How about temporary outlets? Or could it be regimented into faculties for instance? Speeding up procedure shouldn't be too difficult. At least with another cash register.

"Texts are on order and will be in in two weeks" is the frequent reward after hours in line-up. No fault of the book store. Texts are ordered by professors. Seems every prof anticipates a yearly increase in enrollment — why not in his class? A few weeks without text books can sure dampen a student's "new college year resolution" to start the year right with work.

Conflicts and more conflicts! That seems to be the cry of every Artsman in the first weeks of classes. With such an assortment of courses offered in the last three years of the arts course, is it any wonder that such conflicts exist?

Perhaps there is something that could be done about this mix-up, and soon. Could not the arts courses be divided into groups — humanities, social sciences or similar groupings, and then a more rigid choice offered to students? This is what happens in most large universities. Also elsewhere, the time table is made up, remains the same each year, and is included in the Calendar, allowing students to choose their courses, and set up their time table long before registration week. Such a system would certainly do away with much of the confusion prevalent at UNB in the opening days of the fall term.

Perhaps part of the answer to this problem lies in the hours available for lectures. This would be groaned at by student and professor alike, but it does seem a little difficult to get all the courses which are offered into only five days.

Conflicts are here, and, so it has seemed in the past few years, here to stay. Certainly this condition can be corrected and the time table can be worked out to the satisfaction of all. A change is definitely needed in the system and to this year's students, it is very evident.

Appointment

Janet Hunter has been appointed temporary chairman of WUSC until the fall elections which are to take place on October 29th. She has been named by WUSC as a delegate to the

JANET HUNTER

National Seminar in Vancouver next month.

WUSC is a world wide organization, whose objectives are to develop inter-university contacts, co-operation and understanding. There are no membership obligations and no fees. Funds are raised through voluntary contributions.

In Canada there are WUSC committees at twenty-nine universities and colleges. The National Assembly, held annually, determines policy and elects a National Committee to carry it out.

Dr. Bailey would like to ask this question of all the co-eds who contemplate wearing blue jeans around the campus: "Girls, does the end justify the jeans?"

HELP FOR MOTHER

In days gone by wouldn't everyone have liked to help poor Mother Hubbard?

The Brunswickan begins the year with an empty features shelf. We don't want it to stay like so. Contributions are welcome. Drop any articles or suggestions into the Brunswickan box or leave them at the Brunswickan office, addressed "Features Editor" and signed, please.

Football Coach

The Football Coach, Campus.

My Dear Coach:

We have a wonderfully talented student, Throckmorton Murgatroy, at our gates. His potential as an English student seems unlimited. However, he is badly in need of financial assistance and a scholarship seems the only answer. I am wondering if maybe you could place him on your team for that purpose. He will probably need a little extra tutoring as in previous years his athletic activities have been somewhat neglected in favour of ardent study of English and intensive research reading.

His size should present no problem. An abundance of voluminous pads should bring his total weight to approximately 120 pounds. It shouldn't be too difficult to have the necessary equipment scaled to his naturally slight build. Consider also the advantage against those huge monsters in opposition. With his five foot altitude he could pass almost unnoticed through any minute opening in their defensive lines.

Throckmorton is also extremely well versed in Ancient History. His knowledge in this field should prove immensely valuable during the barbaric combat of your game. I trust that when allotting him a position on your team you will so place him that he will not be in the centre of those congregations on the playground — I think they are properly referred to as "a huddle". He has a slight phobia in this area. He becomes quite disturbed when completely surrounded by people. The protective apparatus necessary for his bifocals will thus serve a double purpose as they will conceal the cheering masses from his view.

I am sure you will consider the necessity of his spending time in the library when the remainder of you boys are exercising in the out-of-doors. Being only half their size, it should be necessary for him to exercise only one half the normally required time.

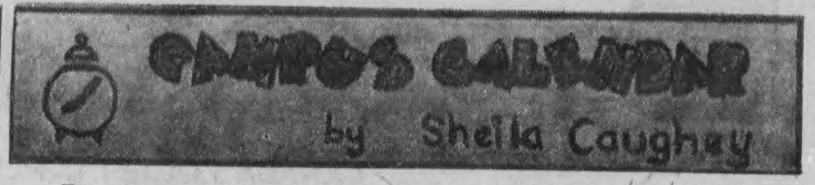

I sincerely thank you for your consideration. Mr. Murgatroy is the one bright intellectual spot in our student enrollment.

Sincerely,
English Professor

Comic Corner....

A little boy returned home from his first day at school with a huge shiner upon his eye. His mother immediately demanded the cause of this black eye.

"Another boy called me a sissy," replied the child.

"Well, what did you do?" replied his mother.

"I hit him with my purse," replied the boy.

A northern visitor in the State of Texas was astounded to find that the far-fetched tales about the size of anything there were not in truth far-fetched. Upon entering a large bar, he asked the bartender for a small glass of beer. To the northerner's amazement the bartender served him with a huge glass which held one gallon of beer. The gentleman from the north asked the bartender if that was supposed to represent a small beer. "Well, pardner," drawled the Texan, "everything down here is big".

Not wishing to offend the man the tourist said no more and proceeded to drink the beverage. Presently he became hungry and asked for a small sandwich, and was immediately served with four dozen huge sandwiches. This startled the man and he again asked the bartender if this was the Texan equivalent to a small snack. "Why, man," drawled the

Texan, "you should know by now that everything here is really gigantic."

This settled the tourist's doubts about the size of things down in the Lone Star State, and continued to sip the huge glass of beer. After a short while, however, the alcoholic beverage began to take some effect upon him and he inquired of the bartender where the lavatory was situated. "Right down the hall and turn to your left," answered the Texan.

The tipsy tourist walked down the hall, turned to the right, and fell into the swimming pool. Desperately the man summoned the bartender. "Help, help," he pleaded, "get me out of here before someone flushes this damn thing."

Engineer: "My dear, do you smoke?"

Artswoman: "No, I'm sorry I don't."

Engineer: "Well, do you drink?"

She: "No, I don't drink."

He: "Well, what do you do?"

She: "I tell lies."

Lawyer to Nurse: "I like taking experienced women home."

Nurse: "I'll have you know that I'm not experienced."

Lawyer: "You're not home yet, either."

Book Lists PG Awards

Information on how to obtain funds for postgraduate funds is now available in the second volume of the World-Wide Graduate Award Directory. Over 250 universities and foundations from most of the United States, and over 100 universities in other countries have sent information to be included in this new volume.

Many of the listed awards, which range from $200 to $10,000, have gone begging in former years because qualified applicants did not apply for them.

Current information about the fellowships, assistantships, scholarships, loans, prizes, and self-help programs includes candidates' pre-requisites, place of application and descriptions of the study programs. The present volume presents completely new and additional data from Volume I which was published in 1957.

Copies of both volumes may be ordered from the publishers, the Advancement and Placement Institute, Box 99H, Greenpoint Station, Brooklyn 22, N.Y. The price is $3.00 for each volume or $5.00 for the two volumes.

Rhodes Prizes Increased 25 p.c.

The value of the Rhodes Scholarship has been increased by 25 per cent from 600 to 750 Pounds a year. The Rhodes Trustees have announced that this increase will go into effect immediately, and it will apply to the eleven Canadian Rhodes Scholarships which are awarded annually. The competition for the 1959 awards closes on November 1, 1958.

Canadian students (men only) who are preferably in their third or final year of university work, and are unmarried and between 18 and 24 years of age, are invited to apply.

Application forms and particulars may be obtained from university registrars, the secretary of the selection committee in each province or the general secretary for the Rhodes Scholarships in Canada, 5 Rosedale Road, Toronto 5.

Established 1904

The Rhodes Scholarships, established in 1904 under the will of Cecil Rhodes, are among the earliest and best known of international scholarships. They are tenable at Oxford (for two years certain, with a possible third year) where unique opportunities exist for advanced work in both science and the humanities.

The scholarships are now sufficient to pay all expenses and to enable the scholar to benefit from the excellent opportunities of travel in Britain and on the Continent during the three long vacations of the Oxford academic year.

526 Named

To date 526 Canadians have enjoyed the advantages of study at Oxford as Rhodes Scholars. Applicants are not required to write an examination. Selection is made by provincial committees after personal interview, and on the basis of the candidate's record. Although scholastic ability is of prime importance, such factors as character, in-

Letters To The Editor

Sloppy Dress

Sir: One thing newcomers to UNB must unfortunately notice is the sloppy dress of most of the male students. Instead of making mature grooming a habit, the average student at this university appears as though he was attending an agricultural college — or worse, the local high school.

We feel that plaid shirts, bush boots and beards went out of style with the Klondike Gold Rush.

We advocate a complete revolution in the dress of the UNB male. We want to see him in a sport, or dress shirt, a neatly pressed suit or sports jacket and slacks. We want to see him grow up.

Sincerely,
 Doug Somerville

Who Are Jones Boys?

Sir: As you may have noticed, the campus has recently been "graced" with two new hospital-clean residences. We believe we are correct in saying that one of these buildings was christened "The Jones House", and that some of the inmates of this house have adopted the name of "Jones Boys" for themselves. Through the medium of your paper, we would like to appeal to all that is sacred and precious in the name of "tradition" and claim back the name that is rightfully ours.

Does not our clock tower home sing loud and clear that we and we alone are the Jones Boys of UNB? Has not your honorable paper used our humble words in the years gone by, and did not Scrapper Jones' nephew grace us with a visit but two years ago?

We can observe that there is a great deal of jealousy over our position in the favored residence by the fact that many of the "New Jones Boys" are using the crest of the Lady Beaverbrook Building, but surely this jealousy cannot continue to the extent of also using our hallowed name.

Yours truly,

Dief's Duty . . .

Prime Minister John Diefenbaker comes to UNB Thursday for two reasons: first, to receive an honorary degree; and second, to deliver the convocation address.

The presentation ceremony will hardly be memorable, but the speech should be, for Mr. Diefenbaker is honor-bound to deliver an address of importance.

Too many speeches at academic functions contain little more than platitudes and meaningless rhetoric. Too many speakers waste the time of an intelligent (but captive) audience.

They have no right to. If they have nothing to say, they should not agree to speak.

Last year, UNB was fortunate to have addresses of importance and interest at both convocation and encaenia. All things considered, Sen. John Kennedy of Massachusetts and Cartoonist David Low did their best to enlighten their audiences.

We hope Mr. Diefenbaker will, too. We hope that he will remember he is not here solely to win votes (surely he already has enough to satisfy any man's vanity), but that he is expected to give a clear, honest and straight-forward exposition on some matter of importance to Canada.

Dr. Colin B. Mackay, the university president, has urged all UNB students to attend convocation, and he has cancelled lectures and laboratory periods so they may have no reasonable excuse to be absent.

The students' duty is to attend the ceremony. But Mr. Diefenbaker has an obligation, to, and we hope that he fulfills it.—jos

Four Free Concerts For UNB Students

The UNB Creative Arts Committee inaugurates a series of free concerts for UNB students Oct. 15.

The first performance, in Memorial Hall at 8.30 p.m. will be by Marie Lister Cavaness, soprano, a former Fredericton resident and a graduate of UNB. She has studied music at the Oberlin, Ohio, Conservatory and has appeared in various parts of the United States as well as making several guest radio appearances.

Miss Cavaness will be accompanied by Allen Rodgers.

Prof. W. E. Hale, committee chairman, said that Miss Cavaness' recital is the first in a series of four free programs arranged for this year. He said the series is purely experimental, but that it is the hope of the Creative Arts Committee to be able to present such a series of concerts annually.

The committee received a grant from the university administration for one year and thus is able to waive the admission charge in the hope that the students will take an interest in the creative arts.

Also included in this year's series is the Baroque Trio which will perform near the end of October. In early February, M. Duthuit, a French artist, will lecture on art, and in March, the Bowdoin College Glee Club is scheduled to give a concert.

If little student interest is shown, the committee will open the concerts to the general public with an admission charge.

The Creative Arts Committee was set up to assist Miss Lucy Jarvis, campus art director, and Arthur Trythall, music director, in the promotion of creative arts on the campus. The committee consists primarily of faculty members, but two student representatives do serve with the group. At present the student representatives are Peg Colpitts and Ron Manzer.

UNB Offering New Degree

UNB has established a degree course for industrial teachers. Appealing especially as summer school work, the course is open to graduates of the New Brunswick Technical Institute, Moncton, who achieve an average of 65 per cent or higher.

The course will consist of instruction in the social sciences, humanities and education.

Previously, industrial teachers instincts to lead and interest in outdoor sports are carefully considered. Some definite quality of distinction, whether in intellect or character, or a combination of these, is the most important requirement, officials say.

Heading For A Fall . . .

CAPITALIZES ON UNB's MISCUES

By GORDON HOWSE & JACK SWEET

The Mount Allison Mounties battered their way to a surprising 17-7 upset victory over the University of New Brunswick Red Bombers at College Field last Saturday. Employing the onside kick late in the fourth quarter, speedy halfback Peter Smallman raced 85 yards for a major that wrapped up the Mount Allison win.

In a complete reversal of form, the Bombers showed little of the effectiveness that they displayed against the Saint John Wanderers the previous Saturday.

The Mounties scored early in the first quarter after Smallman recovered an onside kick on the UNB 43 yard line to set up the touchdown. Five rushing plays took the ball to the UNB 18 yard line. Mount A's quarterback Dave Cuthbertson passed to end Pryde in the end zone. The ball bounded off a UNB defender's fingers into Pryde's hands for a touchdown. Harry Haukkala's convert attempt was wide.

The Red Bombers evened up the score a minute and a half later. Stirling McLean ran the kickoff back 50 yards on a dazzling run to the Mount A 40 yard line. Carries by Bolitho, Ross and Arthur moved the ball to the Mountie's 6 yard line. Jim Ross went off tackle to score UNB's only touchdown.

Madorin's convert put UNB ahead 7-6.

Midway through the second quarter Brown booted a 53 yard ruge to tie the score at 7-7.

Late in the third quarter the Mounties, in a third down situation on the UNB 5 yard line with goal to go, elected to try for a field goal. Haukkala's boot from the 12 yard line was good and gave Mount A a 10-7 lead.

In the fourth quarter the Bombers started to move when Jim Forrest intercepted a pass on the UNB 35 yard line. Several rushing plays advanced the ball to centre field region. Rylander hoofed a 50 yard punt to the Mount A 2 yard line. After two rushing plays the Mounties were forced to kick from behind their own goal line. Brown's short kick went to the open side of the field where it was taken on the fly by Smallman, who had lined up onside. Smallman reversed his field and went down the sideline for the touchdown. Haukkala's convert was good, giving Mount A their 17-7 total.

The Mounties outrushed UNB, picking up 16 first downs, and 173 yards on the ground, to the Bomber's 10 first downs, and 149 yards on the ground. The Arts intramural softball team behind the brilliant pitching of Wayne Nightengale, and the Geologists behind the equally dazzling pitching of Cecil Kilburn each nailed down three victories without a defeat over the week-end in the Intramural softball league. In their three games the Artsmen compiled a total of 43 runs whereas the Geologists brought home 34 runs. Of the remaining eleven teams only one team, the Junior Civils, managed to achieve more than one victory. The Saturday afternoon games were cut short to five inning contests due to the football game. All of the scheduled games on Sunday were washed out. At present there are five softball diamonds which are being used, enabling a great many more games to be played this year compared with previous years. There are the Aitkens, Jones, Little League diamond on Waterloo Row, and two diamonds at Queen's Square in use.

UNB TAKES SOCCER 3-2

The Soccer team opened the season on Saturday with a 3-2 win over the Moncton Albions in the Sumner Cup and will advance to play Saint John in the next round this Saturday on College Field. A crowd of about 100 saw U.N.B. take an early lead through Drew, but Moncton equalized and by half time had taken the lead. UNB, however, had two goals disallowed for offside. In the second half U.N.B. attacked hard until Page scored. Both sides pressed for the deciding goal, and it was U.N.B.'s Foerstel who netted it. The forwards missed a number of chances and the squad needs to knit together more. Nonetheless they showed fine form for their opening game. Dave Cooke captained an XI including: Porter, Baker, McGuire, Josephs, Hollett, MacKay, Drew, DaCosta, Page and Foerstel.

U.N.B. is playing in the New Brunswick Intercollegiate League with Mount Allison University, defending Maritime champs. Mount A. plays here on October 8, and U.N.B. is at Sackville on October 25. The Maritime Intercollegiate finals are scheduled to be played at the home of the New Brunswick champions.

fine game from his fullback slot picked up 66 yards on 14 carries for the Bombers.

Don Goss was the defensive standout, and one of the few bright spots in the UNB play. Against his former team-mates, Goss broke through to nail Mountie backfielders for big losses, one a 14 yard setback. Goss also recovered one fumble.

A big thorn in the offensive attack of the Red Bombers was All-Star halfback and playing defensive halfback this year, Stan Hoisak, who came up with two interceptions that slowed the Bombers down considerably.

BENCH NOTES

GLOOM IN BOMBERVILLE

Contrary to reports, the Mounties have again built a contender — This was obvious after their initial outing here at College Field. The Bombers' defeat broke their two year spotless record at home. The Mounties are not as stary an aggregation as last year, but a strong nucleus still remains. Mountie Coach Gus MacFarlane, calling on a wealth of experience, came up with two seldom used tactics to baffle the Bombers: the onside kick, and a "spread formation", both of which were highly successful.

The trend of play changed greatly in the 3rd quarter with Mount A. picking up 7 first downs while holding the Bombers downless.

Don Goss threw Mount A backfielders for several long losses. Mount A's pass defense was one of their strong defensive points.
