

- XALAC, 89.
 Xbalanque, hero-god of Kiches, 211.
 Xicapoyan, the bath of Quetzalcoatl, 97, n.
 Xilotzin, son of Quetzalcoatl, 129, n.
 Xin, Maya family of, 165.
 Xmukane, in Kiche myth, 74.
 Xochitl, the maiden, 94.
 Xochitlyecan, the rose garden, 95.
 Xochiquetzal, an Aztec deity, 73, 74.
 YACACOLIHQUI, Aztec deity, 131.
 Yacatecztli, Aztec deity, 131.
 Yahualli Ehecatl, a name of Quetzalcoatl, 121.
 Yalahan, deity of Tzendals, 215.
 Yale, deity of the Dènè, 228.
 Yamquesupa, lake of, 184.
 Yaotlnecoc, a name of Tezcatlipoca, 70.
 Ynotzin, a name of Tezcatlipoca, 70.
 Yuqui, derivation of, 85, n.
 Yax-coc-nhmüt, a name of Itzamna, 153.
 Yêl, deity of Dènè, 228.
 Ymamana Viracocha, 173, 181.
 Yoalli Ehecatl, a name of Tezcatlipoca, 70.
 Yoamxxtli, a name of Tezcatlipoca, 90.
 Yoel of the winds, 121.
 Yoleunt Quetzalcoatl, 85.
 Yucatan, 96, 143, 144.
 Yunea language, 169.
 Yupanqui, Inca, 236.
 ZACUAN, 101.
 Zapala, epithet of Viracocha, 174.
 Zapotecs, tribe, 218, 220.
 Zens, the Greek, 32, 51.
 Zipacn, a Kiche deity, 77.
 Zitaacuarenuaro, a festival, 208.
 Zivena vitzcatl, 85.
 Zoques, tribe, 218, 220.
 Zuhe, name of Bochica, 223.
 Zume, a hero-god, 223.
 Zuyva, Tollan in, 85.

LIBRARY OF ABORIGINAL AMERICAN LITERATURE.

General Editor and Publisher:

DANIEL G. BRINTON, M. D.,

115 S. Seventh St., Philadelphia.

The aim of this publication is to put within the reach of scholars authentic materials for the study of the languages and culture of the native races of America. Each work will be printed in the original tongue, with an English translation and notes. Each is the production of a native, and will have some intrinsic importance, either historical or ethnological, in addition to its value as a linguistic monument. Most of them will be from unpublished manuscripts, and every effort will be made to secure purity of text and competent editorship.

The works contemplated in the series are such as will be indispensable to the future student of American archaeology, ethnology, or linguistics. They will embrace the material for the genuine ancient (pre-Columbian) history of the Continent, as well as what may properly be called the literature—the poetry, drama, calendars, scientific and imaginative productions—of the native mind.

The first number of the series is now ready.

No. I.

THE CHRONICLES OF THE MAYAS.

Edited by D. G. BRINTON, M. D.

Price $3.00.

This volume contains five brief chronicles in the Maya language of Yucatan, written shortly after the conquest, and carrying the history of that people back many centuries. Four of these have never been published, nor even translated into any European tongue. To these is added a history of the conquest, written in his native tongue by a Maya chief, in 1562. This also is from an unpublished MS. The texts are preceded by an introduction on the history of the Mayas, their language, calendar, numeral system, etc., and a vocabulary is added at the close.

This will shortly be followed by other volumes, under the editorship of Mr. ALBERT S. GATSCHE, HORATIO HALE, AD. F. BANDELIER, and other equally distinguished scholars in the languages and archaeology of America.

The editions of these works will be strictly limited, and all interested in securing them will do well to subscribe early. They are printed from type, and the edition once exhausted no further copies can be obtained.

