The Ontarian Genealogist and Family Historian.

NO. 7.

JANUARY, 1900.

A Canadian Peerage.

IN these history-making times it may be said that nothing surprises; people are apt to take momentous occurrences as if they were merely matters of course. It was our purpose some months ago, but delayed at that time by lack of space, to note in the pages of the GENEALOGIST a development which seems to be coming about, and is indeed but a natural, though to most people unlooked for, sequence upon many events which have happened of late years and continue to occur with such a rapidity of succession, compared with the experience of our fathers and grandfathers, that we have ceased to feel surprise if we take up the morning paper and find an announcement of the occurring of some great event, such for example, as the addition of another broad state or important possession to Her Majesty's dominions, an announcement too which is not unlikely to be marked with a less conspicuous heading than the result of a local bye-election or a meeting of the city council. The development to which we refer is the gradual arising of a Canadian peerage—to be more correct we should perhaps say an Imperial peerage. On taking up the Canadian Almanac for 1900 we find that this has attracted the attention of others as well as ourselves, for here we find a list of "Titled Canadians," in which besides an array of titled commoners, of whom we have long had with us at least a few, no less than seven peers are named, a fairly good list for our very democratic Dominion of less than thirty-three years of age.

Of these, however, there is but one strictly Canadian peerage, that of Longueuil, created by the French King Louis XIV., and the only French Canadian title which has been recognized by the Queen. The French kings, in establishing a feudal system in Canada, created several territorial titles, and the possessor of any of these is entitled (by the Treaty of Paris) to recognition by the British Crown whenever he sees fit to make application for it, and proves his right as the proper representative of the original grantee.

The present Baron de Longueuil is Reginald-D'Iberville-Charles Grant, who succeeded on the death of the late Baron Charles-Colmore Grant in December 1898.

Of the other six four are Canadian by name, viz. :
Macdonald of Earnscliffe.

Mount-Stephen.

Mount-Royal (Strathcona and Mount-Royal).

Haliburton of Windsor in Nova Scotia.

The remaining two are Canadians by residence or birth of the possessors, viz.:

Aylmer, resident at Melbourne, Prov. Quebec.

DeBlaquiere, late of Woodstock, Co. Oxford.

Besides these it may be observed that the Earls of Albemarle and Carnwath are maternally of Canadian descent.

There are some other members of the peerage who are connected with Canada in other respects, as the Earl of Aberdeen, who has an estate in British Columbia, the Earl of Carnarvon, a land owner of Toronto, and Lord Brassey, who has a ranch in the Northwest.

Mr. George-Marshall Graham, of Toronto, is asserted by some to be de jure 15th Earl of Monteith and 9th Earl of Airth, but this title has been the subject of warm controversy between genealogists in Scotland for some time past.

Mr. Alexander of Montreal claims to be de jure Earl of Stirling.

To the list of Baronets in the Canadian Almanac must be added Sir William-Charles Forrest (see post p. 113).

To the list of Knights also is to be added the Hon. Sir Malachy-Baines Daly, Lieut.-Govr. of Nova Scotia, created K.C.M.G. 1st January 1900.

Crests.

THE crest, as an armorial bearing, is in theory of a military character, and is therefore not borne by Anglican or Roman Catholic clergymen, who are accounted as precluded by their orders from liability for military service, and therefore bear a shield of arms only. Women also bear no crests, as military service is not expected of them. The latter rule, however, is proved in the customary manner by its exceptions, of which four may be mentioned, namely Her Majesty the Queen, the Queen of Holland, the Queen Regent of Spain, and Her Highness the Begum of Bhopal in India, each of whom has a military command. The last named lady, who maintains a force (stated five years ago as) of 2,800 men and 69 guns, is the second Princess to rule in Bhopal, having succeeded her mother, and as the heir apparent is her daughter, it is probable that three women in succession will have governed an important principality within the limits of that part of the world where women are not generally supposed to be of any account.
