Dominion Champions again! Hurrah! The honor was won in a grand final contest with the Argonauts on Saturday afternoon. The score was 14-7. The game was watched by one of the largest crowds that ever watched a rugby game in Canada. The evening papers estimate its size at from 16 to 20 thousand. The

Strong Appeal

Made to Students
By Dr. John R. Mott Before Large Congregations
IN CONVOCATION HALL
Great Need for Meditation and Challenge of Age to Stu dents were Subjects

Two very large audiences crowded Convocation Hall yesterday to hear that great Christian statesman, Dr. John R. Mott. The morning service was open to the public but that of the evening was for students only.
The sulbject of the morning sermon was the necessity of solitary communion for purposes of spiritual realization and renewal. Elaborating on this, the speaker said that in these days of materialism, with the exploitation of our sesoures and with our mania for applied science, and with our mania for applicd scilnce, is increasingly difficult to be alone, make the spiritual commanding in our lines. This continent's unccasing act vity, unless balanced by processes reflection and communion with God, must result in superficiality in life and work in no place was this more apparent, tha versities. We are inclined to say to the cast, "Your worship is your work," but hey are able to retort " and more your worship.
For various reasons must we have periods Cor spist himelf, tho' living a ection. Christ himself, tho hing a he frequent periods for solitary prayer. If we would preserve our consciences sensitive and educated, unburdened with sin and able to detect temptation afar of, tation. For our will power in the doing of our duty are they also necessary. For growth in faith and character must we draw apart and meditate-it is not by the sermons we hear, the books we read, but by our thoughts on these, that we are made better Christian workers need these times of quiet thought, or else they are apt to become formal and professional. Time, incleed, is required for periods of commumion for in these hurried days, it takes time to detach our minds from present affairs but this is the very reaso or so doing. "These solitary periods these busy, hurried times, try to put these busy, hurried times, try to put Evening Address.
"Jesus Christ stands here before each one of us tonight and brings us face to plans and if necessary, revise your life whork. Choose a calling in which you will not only be useful but most useful. You must not choose that life work in which but that in which you may utilise all the energies of not only your mind but also your hearts. It is good to go where you are needed but it is Christ-like to go where you are needed most. And above all we is to be either Lord of all or no Lord at all."
These were the closing words of a most strong and powerful address by John R. Mott, upon "The Challenge of the Age packed to its utmost capacity with students who listened with the greatest of attention to the able address of the speaker.
whicheadership," said Mr. Mott," is that which makes a nation truly great. True with purē religion. The forces of right eousness and unselfishness must be led by strong men, -strong in the sense which Christ meant when he said 'He who would be greatest among you shall be the servant of all.'
The great need for strong, able and consecrated men-in the handling of Canada's immigration problem was enlarged upon., Both the cities and rural districts are presenting problems which can be solved only by the best and highest of our manhood. It is in our Universities

FREE TRADE BILI PASSED

At Meeting of Women's Lit. on Saturday Evening
The Women's Literary Society met on Saturday night in the Student's Union. The meeting took the form of a debate and brought in a bill for the establishment of free trade between Great Britain and the various other parts of the Empire.
Miss Masson, leader of the Opposition, brought up several points to show that the policy of protection was a better physical, intellectual and moral standard than that of free trade, which. she asserted was an attempt of the strong to obtain mastery over the weak.
Miss McQueen stated that the free trade movement belongs to the nineteenth century, and that it is a tariff for revenue, not for protection.
There were four speakers on each side and the question was thoroughly discussed. On the vote of the House, the Bill for the establishment of Free Trade was passed.

and in the foreign field
The Hon. Justice Middleton gave referred to the fact that it was just a little over a third of a century since he was an undergraduate of the University but he still felt young. He was very glad of an opportunity to speak to the future rulers of the country and stated that it was generally expected that we would give back to the country in after years, what we were so fortunate in being able to ob tain now. Success in life depended solely upon the man himself. The man who lives for humanity will get far more out of life than the other fellow. True religion and true life are all the same. The Hon Justice advised each man to take some aim, and try to achieve that aim successfully. It is better to aim high and not quite reach it, than to aim so low that it does not require much work to attain the desired success. He hoped that each man who went into politics would stand for the right in every case. There are all kinds of lawyers, and few aims higher when the lawyer places the making of money second to the seeing of justice established in every case. The fundamental idea should be that each man should hope to leave the world better in some respects than when he came into it. The speaker advised everybody to specialize in something, to know something nobody else knows, if possible. A specialist can demand any money he wants and is generally considered a successful man. Apparent failure in attaining the object aimed at, was sometimes a great triumph, where the motive is right. Work ought to be, and is, a thing of joy, to the right man. In concluding he quoted a very appropriate statement, "God gives thee youth but once, keep thou the pure and child-like mind.'
Rev. E. C. Cayley, rector of St. Simmons church, next addressed the meeting Although somewhat advanced in years, he still liked to be considered a student. Filled with the football spirit possessed from mentioning that he has played thir teen annual rugby matches against the Toronto University team when the at College and just afterwards.'He was considered himself yery fortuns. He also a ticket for the game Saturday Cayley stated that every middle Mr. man envied youth, and emphasized what Justice Middleton had stated that are the architects of our own fortunes. Everybody realized that the present tury belonged to Canada and hould do his part in guiding the dean of the country, helping Canada de de triny to his ideals. Many a man through false humility, lives too long before finding out his talents, and a country sometimes has the same fault. It was "up to" us to do our best. The little petty questions beween the different churches he likened unto growing pains. Some people have funny ideas concerning a clergyman, but it's a position calling on all the resources of a man in organization, education statesmanship and business matters.
The sassion closed before eight to allow those present to attend the Mock Parliament.
Mr. Evans and his committee are to be congratulated on the success of the opening meeting

OUR COLOR EFFECTS
The crowd was not as highly spectacular as it would have been had there been less room; but that big solid mass of seeing. There were 7000 people in orderly iers with the students in a solid body in the centre and when the Varsity rooters spelled "U.T." in blue and white with their song sheets, the effect was certainly striking.
But the palm for color effect went to the Union Jack formation, in which reds were blended. This was sprung just before the game and was heartily cheered.

The Varsity Rooters' Club show ffect of the coaching the colored programmes in the hands of the intellectual boys formed the Union Jack the red, white and blue lines being Jack, defined. At a signal from their cher leaders the programmes were chanced in the wink of an eye, and a solid white sub stance was presented. Then another signal, a slight futtering of the programmes and the letters " U . of T " were shaw t was a pretty spectacle and the rah rah boys deserve credit.

MOCK TRIAL AT TRINITY

-The much-abused "Lit" of Trinity College has at last demonstrated that it intends to be an active factor in College life. The attendance reached a highlife. The attendance reached a high-

The mole But the great merit af this new feature was in unveiling a new-line of dramatic talent in the College.
As to the trial itself. The Rev. Mr. Herrington was charged with arson. The witnesses of the prosecution dwelt on the objectionable character of Ladies' Aid Society meetings, Revival Meetings, etc., held at the prisoner's house. One appeared to doubt his honesty, but his evidence -was somewhat discredited by the cross-examination of the defendant's counsel Mr. Snartt. The defendant's witnesses testified as to his, the (prisoner's) good character and gentle nature, and as to the vindictive character of the witness who had charged him with burning his house. The prosecution, Mr. Jackson, objected to one witness on the ground of insanity, but the court pronounced him sane. All the witnesses for the defendant were objected to as being low characters and living in Goose-neck lane, a slum district. The prisoner's own pathetic account of this ill-treatment by the first witness of the prosecution and his almost too smooth explanation of the accident, however, left little doubt as to the Jury's

The counsel for the defendant summed up his case laying stress on the gentle nature of the prisoner and the vindictive spirit of Mr. Burt, who instead of putting out the fire on his doorstep took vengeance first. The prosecution, summing up, tried to build a case on meagre circumstantial evidence. Both counsels showed a desire to instruct the jury for which they were quite properly fined by His Honor, the Judge, Mr. Justice Thompson. The latter, in charging the jury, said that the pleadings of each of the counsels had pleadings of each of the counsels had that remained to judge upon was the prisoner's own appearance. verdict of guilty. The jury retired and. in a few minutes brought in a verdict of 'not guilty.' The foreman in trying to instruct the judge was given the heaviest instruct the judge fine of the evening.
. Next to the disorder which prevailed at times the most noticeable feature of the proceedings was the disposition on the The counsels tried to charge the jury and even the witneses had the temerity to attempt to cross-question the counsels.
But withal it was an enjoyable and instructive evening and if taken a little structive evening and, if taken a little more seriously mock-trials would be a valuable help in carrying out the ideals of the "Lit."

STUDENTS" WORK APPRECIATED

University Settlement Directorate Express Thanks for Generous Response

President Falconer has written the following letter which will be of interest to the students:
"I am informed that as a result of the campaign among the students for the Settlement Fund $$ 1600$ will in all probability be realized. This report was made bability be realized. This report was rettlement Committee and received with greatest satisfaction. The Committee feel that to have raised such mittee feel that to have raised such an amount is eminently creditable both to the workers and to the students of the University.
'The following resolution moved by Mr . J. S. McLean and seconded by Mr. J. J. Kelso was unanimously adopted with a view to being presented to the students through "Varsity". through "Varsity":
"'That the Board of Directors of the University Settlement express to the students of the various eolleges its appreciation of the hearty and generous response made to the appeal to them for funds; and that the thanks of the Board be given to the many student workers who assisted in the campaign.'

CELEBRATION  AFTER GAME

Students Gave Full Vent to Their Joy in Huge Parade

Wet and cold, tired and huggry-it didn't matter-Varsity simply had to celebrate and the celebration was one of the real student kind. By means of some-40 marshalls the line of march was followed without any interference from either police or citizens and the students while making the heavens resound with their lusty yells and choruses did not commit any depredations on city property. They swayed and surged in an indiscrimate mass of waving hats and arms to the rythmic melodies of "Hurrah! Hurrah! we're champions again in the centre of the stadium, formed a ring for a war dance, then, wildly exuberated by the sight of the large score signs raised on high by the leaders, they formed spontaneously into a long line, four deep, and having marshalled the band to the fore, started around the stadium to the thrilling strains of "Togonto! Toronto!" The French revolutionists were strangely armed no doubt, but they weren't "a patch" on the militant array which the rooters displayed on every hand, everything from burning brooms hand, everything from burning brooms to the mortal remains of a pile of slightly disseminated chairs being used, including score signs, bleacher letters, flag poles, and After leaving the stadium the parade marched down Devonshire place to Queens Park, following University Avenue to Queen street, giving vent to their enthu siasm in vocal and recitations, from such classics, as "Where will you be to-night? to "Hail! Hail! the gang's all here. Reaching Queen Street, the route led to Yonge around Eatons. The handling of the men here was especially clever and the marshalls kept things going in a most approved way. Argonaut : pennants and colors yielded to the kleptomaniacal tendencies of the more enthusiastic students and were mixed in a waving mass with chairs, poles and burning brooms Continuing up Yonge they were cheered or cursed by lucky or unlucky betters but entirely disregarding the attitude of the "citizens."
