Twenty-third Annual Dinner Last Night a Big Success
"One of the most successful dinners ever held, and, you know, this is the twentythird for me" said Dean Galbraith. And the five hundred men who sat down to the repast in Convocation Hall last night, and listened to the inspiring addresses from some of Canadas prominent men heartily concur with the Dean. The big event was a remarkable successinevery the arrangements, which were thought out with a degree of care that reflects immense credit upon

It was just about twice as good as any musical organization since Sousa was in his prime. President, W. B. McPherson, called on Mr. E. R. Grey to propose the toast to the Conservation Commission, to which Mr. M. J. Patton, the official represent ative of the Commission replied.
"Conservation," said Mr. Patton, "the economic use of natural resources. It is a constant search after efficiency. It has rested with engineers to do a great deal in forwarding the work of the Conservation Commission. The recent volume published by the Conservation Commission was made possible only by the hearty co-operation of engineers. The engineer is a man who can speak with authority, his words have great weight with the public. The enthusiasm which the movement provokes is sometimes its own enemy, the effervescence of public opinion often reacts against its continuous development." Mr. Patton then went on to show how

We hope to give the rest of this touch ing ballad in prose form in Monday's issue. In the interim, to be exact at 8.30, on Friday night, in Ravina Rink, West Toronto, certain gentlemen who West Toronto, certain gentlemen who names of Parker, Frith, Derman, Strome Blakely, Webster, Hanley, and Caldwell will try to bring about a happy fulfilment of the foregoing prophecy and incidentally show their superiority over the Red and White aggregation of stellar phenomena McGill has defeated Queen's in Montreal by a close score but Queen's had not had much practice so that that game is not a fair criterion. Varsity has had some rattling good practices. The men are all in first class shape and will show the benefit of their arduous endeavours and competent coaching.
All that is necessary to complete the enjoyment of the evening and to enliven the inhabitants of our newly adopted little sister is a big, gay, good-humored crowd of healthy, happy fair-minded students, to say nothing of their friends.
There is a section of the Ravina rink reserved for rooters who promise to be as entertaining a feature as ever. ake five minutes gent exercise till the rink heaves in sight. Yo know what to do then.

Mrs. Woods Tells of Acquain anceship with Noted Authors

On the evening of Tuestay, Mictoria college was the scenc of an unusually interesting event. A splendid lecture delivered by Mrs. Margaret L. Woods wife of Rev. Henry George Woods of Trinity College, Oxford, and daughter of the well-known Dean Bradley of Westminster. Her handling of her subjects,

With regard to the carly, midtle, and later Victorian development of thought, Mrs. Woods pointed out that Tennyson in his, "In Memoriam," fore-shadowed the thoughts of Darwin's theory and pre ceeded his discussions.
Nothing has been more marked in nineteenth century movements of thought than the change in the general attitude to woman.
Talking on this strain the speaker compared the respective attitudes of Tennyson and Browning, Tennysun's was the typical Mid-Victorian point of view, and in his poem, "The Princess," he (lescribes the other hand, was endowed with the happy faculty of surveying the world from the point of view of a woman or in other

He emphasized the fact that the success of the British forces, composed partly of regulars, but mostly of Canadian volunteers, was largely due to the system of universal training which was then in force -a system which made every able-bodied

FORMAL DISCUSSION

It is quite natural that in the course of four years of academic life we should meet with a host of facts and ideas which it is quite impossible to assimilate immediate ly, or even in two or threc years time. Thoroughly appropriating a sequence of thought to one's self is a slow process, even in the most brilliant minds. Were it not so, should we not all be patterns of it not so, should we not all be patterns of virtue-assuming that we lean towards the commonly-accepted standards of con-duct,-because of the firm grasp which our mental and moral natures would have of the good books and the uplifting addresses which constantly come before us? We never-ending change in one's mental attitude, which costs the shadow of doubt upon conceptions but recently formed. As in the forest, where there must be decay as rapid as the growth, else there would be as rapid as the growth, else there would be an absolutely impenetrable mass of vegetation, so in the mind, old ideas are constantly giving place to new, and the young growth of to-day feeds upon the fallen structures of a decade or two ago. The young members, in order to live, must perform that peculiarly intricate function known as assimilation. No mere absorption of food matter will produce the sorption of food matter will produce the ultimate structure.

So too the knowledge which is placed before us from day to day must not only be sucked into our brains. It will never become an integral part of our make-up until it has passed a second modification. Essays, and these are very good digestion stimulants, but for everyday purposes they have not the power which comes with ordinary conversation and contact with our fellows.
The English, and to a certain extent, the Canadian and United States universities have recognized this and have instituted the tutorial system, where questions, answers, and discussions flow freely between pupil and instructor and among the pupils themselves.
The efforts put forth in the departments of History and of Physics, to mention two cases from our own University, to strengthen the grasp of the student, are indeed admirable. But there is other work to be done by the students themselves.
The women of the University are in the ascendency, if not the lead, at the present lege alone there are four "Discussion Clubs" which, members of the Staff assert, have performed a remarkable work in making the ladies more confident of their views and more ready to express opinions. There are very few men's clubs, comparatively speaking, which are doing such lative Club and the Iconoclast Club as undergraduate organizations, there was considerable more discussion of problems temporarly and external than there is at present. At that time, anything from National Policy of Sir John A. Macdonald was ardently debated.
A few congenial spirits from any year or faculty can greatly improve their opportun:ties in college by transferring the definite question. Sanitary engineering astronomy and music are quite as fertile and increased interest in'all life'sproblems will certainly accrue to those who definitely set themselves to laying bare their ideas on any subject.

POLITENESS

Once upon a time, a Youth was going home late one cold winter's night. He wondered what the time was, but he couldn't be bothered fishing his watch out of his waistcoat pocket. On turning the corner, he met a Gentleman, and said jauntily "Do you know the time?" The Gentleman took off his gloves, buttoned his waistcoat, unbuttoned his buttoned his waistcoat, unbuttoned his coat, drew forth his watch, and looked at it; said "Yes", and buttoning up his it; said "Yes", and buttoning up his various garments, walked on. It was a lesson in Politeness. "Do you know the time? '" Typically Canadian-or American. Your Engl'shman would have sa:d "Ex cuse me," poss'bly with "sir" added. He case me, poss'bly w'th "s'r" added. He is conscious of h's manhood, th's sturdy over-seas brother of ours; he knows, from long centures of tra'ning, that $t$ detracts not at all from h's manhood-adds to 't rather,-to shew respect for other men.
When speaking to an older man, nvar ably address h 'm as "s sir." When speak'ng to a super'or-he 's too much of a man to try to persuade h'mself that he has no superior-whether he be superior socino super or-whether he be superior soci ally or in any other way, he addresses him as "sir." He says "please," and he will thank you for a courtesy.
Isn't it a pity that we in Canada choose to follow the Yankee who is so busy think ing about his own rights that he has no time to think of what is due to others? It is certainly no credit to us. We have two examples before us-the Englishman, and the American. Look at the difference Why should we follow the worse? We are not in such a hurry that an "excuse me, sir" would render us timeyou" would seriously handicap us. We, with our republican neighbours, are noted not only in Europe, but in Japan, as the rudest people in the world. Isn't it rather too bad?

CORRESPONDENCE

THE MODERN LANGUAGE COURSE

To the Editor of The Varsity

What should be aimed at in a moder language course in a University? This is the question that many a student turns over and over in her mind. The mastery spoken of as the appreciation of the delicate shades of meaning in word and idium, the acquiring of correctness an fluency in speaking, are these the important things?
A teacher in one of our large collegiates once said to a pupil who was coming to study modern languages in the University of Toronto: " Do not be discouraged if you find at the end of a year or two that you have lost the hold you now have on French and German. At the University they do not try to perfect your mastery of the languages; they read the literature. If you can only learn the spirit of the Germans and the French, your course will have been well worth while; proficiency in the language can be gained later."
Is this a wise view to take of an art' course in modern languages. Certainly the understanding, through their literthe understanding, through their literature, of the thought, the life, the very spirit of the peoples-Italian, French, or spirit of the peoples-Italian, French, or whomsoever they be-that is indeed worth while. But the question remains as puzzling as ever, at which of the two are we aiming in our University? It if is the aiming in our University? It, if is the latter of the two suggestions, why are only disconnected selections from such only disconnected selections from such important writers as Diderot and Rousseau prescribed? Why do we read so little of Racine and Corneille?
Racine and Corneille?
The course may be fairly representative of French style, but is that the most important thing? Perhaps it is. Indeed in portant thing? Perhaps it is. Indeed in that very selection of texts may be the solution of our puzzle. Who can say but that the department intends to include that the department intends to include both the ams we speak of . Nevertheless, whether th's is true or not, it seems a fair criticism of the course to say, that it should not be possible that scores of stuversity still puzzled as to what we are versity still puzzled as to what we are

DENTS DEFEAT SCHOOL
In a very fast game of basket ball Sr . Dents put a crimp in Sr. School's cham pionship aspirations. From the first whistle the game was a fast one, and every one worked hard. Robertson starred for Dents, while Chadwick and Storey were the leading lights on the School team The game was important because besides putting the Dents in the running it also gives Sr. Arts another chance. ## THE DOPE SHEET

The Varsity Senior O.H.A. team journey to Kingston to-day to play the Fronten latter cleaned up on the Argonauts in easy fashion on Saturday last and with the added advantage of home grounds and rooters are confident of taking Varsity into camp.
However, they have not done so yet Never has any team wearing the blue and white afforded a walk-over for anybody And that forward in just about a practioc on Wednesday and Thursday, practioe on wednesday and Thursday, intermediates, fairly waded through the intermediates, fairly waded through the Intercollegiate, Spratt, Jupp, Aird and Kern combining time and again or rush Of this quartette, Spratt, Jupp and Aird are freshmen, and of course incligible fo the first team. Laird will guard the nets but it was onfy bcause of his greater the Intercollegiates. Cuzner and Smith will hold down the defence positions rounding out what looks like a might sweet Bas Frith and Gordon McLaren have had a hard time picking the Firsts from among the numerous candidates. There never was much doubt about the defence, and "Rat" Hanley and Strome have a stranglehold on the centre-ice positions. Blakely and Caldwell will play th wings, for the first game at least. Blakewell played with the Argonauts two years ago and was considered one of the best forwards in the city. Caldwell was given a great race by Webster, Cousiner and Smith.

Smith's speed is neutralized to some xtent by his unreliable knee and Webste due to catch a place before the season is The Juniors have had a walk-over in their group so far. 36 goals to 4 scored against them in three games indicates the right kind of scoring forwards with a tough defence behind them. They play simcoes on Tuesday and another victory will make their group absolutely safe Turn out to these Junior games and see just as fast hockey as is funshed. They are Juniors in age only. Not in hocke ability

SUCCESSFUL RE-UNION Old Lit Party Hold Gathering -Songs and Speeches
The Grand Old Lit Partee had a reunion in the Dining Hall Wednesday evening to stir up enthusiasm generally but more particularly to impress upon the gentlemen of the first year the undoubted fact that the only way to save the Literary Society From certain destruction was to turn out Friday (Budget) night and cast their votes in defence of the Government.
Cigarettes, sandwiches, coffee and apples were relied on to drive home the arguments previously advanced by many of the party stalwarts. Lantern slides, depicting the Unionist leaders in various were presented at intervals.
The facile pen of Hal Gordon and Greg Clarke were responsible for these offences ic.
And of course there was speech-making of all kinds. "Bob" Fraser presided in his usual easy-going manner and his speaking reminded us of the style of voting at the Lit elections in the good old days, "early and often." Tommy Dean's recollections were like those of a ward politician.
Jack Deyell was also in a humorously reminiscent mood. Stan Kerr said (in part) that he "wouldn't know the old place now." Mr. "Ben" Gray and Mr. Geo. Wilkie gave entertaining talks on the getting out of the down town vote. Campaign songs enlivened the dull spots and at the usual hour, thoroughly satisfied, the bewildered freshmen sough their boarding houses.
