Quebec's Lieutenant-Governor
appointed to "Spencerwood."

Sir Louis Amable Jetté practised at the Bar for twenty-two years and then occupied a seat on the Bench for exactly the same length of time before being appointed to "Spencerwood." He was a successful lawyer, a dignified judge, and has made a Governor who combines tact with wisdom.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF THE MONTH

President Roosevelt, speaking on Tuesday last at the laying of the corner stone of the Cape Cod Memorial to the Pilgrim Fathers, reiterated his determination to fight the corporations. It was, he said, a contest to determine which should rule, the people through the Government or a few ruthless and determined men whose wealth makes them particularly formidable because they hide behind the breastworks of corporate organization. I wish there to be no mistake on this point,' he said, 'it is idle to ask me not to prosecute criminals, rich or poor. But I desire no less emphatically to have it understood that we have undertaken and will undertake no action of a vindictive type, and above all no action which shall inflict great or unmerited suffering upon the innocent stockholders and upon the public as a whole. Our purpose is to act with the minimum of harshness compatible with obtaining our ends. In the man of great wealth who has earned his wealth honestly, and used it wisely, we recognize a good citizen worthy of all praise and respect. Business can only be done under modern conditions through corporations and our purpose is to heartily favor the corporations that do well.'

The Belfast shipping strike ended on August 15. The agreement was in the nature of a compromise. The men returned to work on the 16th at a slight increase in wages and with fixed hours, while employers were left entirely free to employ either unionists or non-unionists.

The corner stone of the new Carnegie Peace-Palace at The Hague has been laid with imposing ceremonies.

The Hon. Edward Blake has returned from England and will make his home in Toronto. Mentally he is said to be as vigorous as ever but his left side is completely paralyzed.

Northern Nigeria is to have 400 miles of railway running in a great semicircle from Bari, in the north-west of Sokoto province, south-east to Bida, and north-east to Kano. The construction is in charge of Sir Percy Girouard K.C.M.G., son of Mr. Justice Girouard, of the Supreme Court of Canada.

Reports from the Tonga (Friendly) Islands received at Sydney, N.S.W., on July 25, say that seven columns of volcanic eruptions were visible at sea for two weeks recently from the Island of Tongatabu, within an area of two miles. The eruption has been accompanied by a continuous roaring noise and frequent explosions. Black pumice-stone in large quantities was thrown as far as Mukualofa, the capital of Tongatabu, a distance of thirty miles. The Tongan 'Government Gazette' states that land is forming around the scene of the eruption, and it is believed that a new island is in the process of formation. The Tongo, or Friendly, Islands are in the South Pacific Ocean, lying south-east of Fiji. In October, 1885, a violent submarine volcanic eruption took place about forty-eight miles north-west of Mukualofa, resulting in the emergence of an island nearly three miles in length by one in width.

Two great meteors fell in the United States recently. One in Bristol Notch, Vt., shook the surrounding country and damaged houses for miles around. Another fell into the sea a mile off the life-saving station at Amagansett, L.I., with a roar like a mighty boiler letting off steam. Great waves were rolling up the beach, which washed away part of the bathing pavilion, and several fishermen's huts and hundreds of dead fish were scattered over the shore. So great was the fear that many thought the end of the world had come.

The Legislative Council of New Zealand on August 20 rejected a bill giving women the right to sit in the Upper House.

The Swettenham-Davis incident has again been brought before the world in a letter to the London 'Times' by Sir Frank Swettenham, the brother of Sir Alexander Swettenham, the ex-Governor of Jamaica. In this is published the reply of Admiral Davis to the Mayor of Kingston, who hastened to offer to the Admiral his apologies for what he considered the Governor's wrong action. In this letter Admiral Davis said, 'I am particularly anxious to remove the impression that there has been any misunderstanding between myself and the constituted authority of Jamaica.' This letter of Admiral Davis is here published for the first time. Summing up the whole incident, Sir Frank Swettenham says: 'Finally, the Secretary of State for the Colonies wired to the Governor ordering him to withdraw the whole of his letter to Admiral Davis and to apologize to the American Government. All this without any complaint from the American Government, which, apparently, saw a little cause to complain as Admiral Davis did when he wrote his reply to the Mayor of Kingston. The Governor did as he was commanded, withdrew his whole letter, apologized and resigned his post. He could not do otherwise. The net result is that, a foreign Admiral having twice landed armed men in a British colony, (the second time in direct opposition to the expressed wishes of the Governor), and having, under the circumstances described, been requested to re-embark them, the writer of that request has been compelled to withdraw it and to apologize for making it. He was not directed to withdraw any words, or sentences in the letter, but the whole letter. It would, therefore, appear that in future there is nothing to prevent a foreign power from landing armed men in a British colony, even though the colony is garrisoned by British troops, and the chief British authority declares that he is not in need of foreign assistance. This is a sufficiently serious situation, which might easily be complicated by the landing of armed parties from the vessels of several foreign powers, to be brought in contact with each other, and with a native population excited by the strain of very unusual circumstances. The facts of the Jamaica case seem to show that the English officials of the Foreign and Colonial Offices were entirely ignorant of the King's Regulations in regard to the landing of armed foreign troops in a British possession, and the man who knew the regulations and upheld them, was compelled to apologize for doing his obvious and necessary duty not for any supposed error of form in a letter which he was driven to write by reason of the outrageous disregard of his expressed wishes. No wonder the American Government was much gratified that the British Government had hastened to disavow the action of the Governor "without waiting for official advices."

In Ecuador, on July 29, a court-martial sentenced fifteen soldiers implicated in the recent political plot against the President of the Republic, General Alfaro, to death by shooting. Eight of the men were executed in the same forenoon, and the remainder were to have been shot in the afternoon. Nine other soldiers were sentenced to penal servitude for life, on the same charges. The Government has discovered a new conspiracy at Quito, and the leaders of this movement, fleeing from the capital, have arrived at Guayaquil.

The trial of Haywood, of the Western Federation of Miners, for complicity in the murder of the late Governor Steunenberg, of Idaho, which has excited such keen interest in the United States, for months past, has resulted in a verdict of not guilty. Moyer, one of the other two arrested with him, has been released on $25,000 bail, but Pettibone is still held.

The British House of Commons, on Aug. 16, adopted the Pure Food Bill introduced by Mr. John Burns. The bill enables the Board of Trade to institute stringent regulations for the 'Prevention of the danger arising to the public health from the importation, preparation, storage and distribution of articles of food.' The bill, Mr. Burns said, was absolutely necessary, especially as some of the colonies which had made such a fuss about sending Great Britain only the best food, were already withdrawing the regulations which ensure wholesomeness. He had heard also, Mr. Burns continued, 'from countries, not colonies,' that the 'so-called vigorous regulations already had been relaxed, and that things were drifting to the lax conditions the revelation of which a year ago had shown that Great Britain was in danger.'

The Deceased Wife's Sister Bill passed its second reading in the House of Lords on August 20 by a vote of 111 to 790. The minority included every one of the seventeen bishops members of the House.

In Cuba since the withdrawal of the United States authorities there has been a woeful neglect of sanitary precautions, and the result is the old filth disease, yellow fever.

Joseph Joachim the celebrated violinist, and conductor of the Royal Academy of Music in Berlin, died on August 15, after a long illness, at the age of 76 years.

It was announced in London by the Marconi Company, on August 15, that wireless messages to and from Canada have been accurately transmitted at an average rate of twenty-four words a minute.

"BUSY BEE" COMPETITION

The following verses by William R. Wood, Dunbarton, Ont., won the second prize of two dollars in this competition, as announced in August issue.

Speirin'

"O I wad like tae ken" to the beggar-wife says I,
"What fashions are in Timbuctoo, and eke in auld Shanghai,
And what the Eskimo are like, fur-clad from toe to crown."
"It's gey an' easy speirin'," brief she answered with a frown.
"O I wad like tae see," to the beggar-wife says I,
"The looks o' seals and porpoises and whales a' sailin' by,
An' a' the warks o' God an' man in lands beyond the sea."
"Ye're haverin'—dreamin'—dotin'," says the beggar-wife tae me.
"O I wad like tae see,"—"Yes, ye wad, and by my life There's forty million o' yer tribe," replied the beggar-wife.
"An' what's the reason o' the cause, the wherefore o' the why That everybody's speirin'?" "Humanity" says I.
"We want to ken o' a' mankind, for a' mankind are one,
An' for their viewn' a' things are, that bide aneath the sun;
If only some great kodak king would send his men around,
And photograph the world for us, our hearts with joy would bound."
"Hae then yer wush," to this my plaint, replied the beggar-wife,
"For over a' the mighty world 'Pictorial' agents rife
Are 'kodaking the world' for you, yer speirin' to suffice,
As busily as bees, and as silently as mice
The 'Canady Pictorial' is answer to yer speirin',
It sets the world afore ye, yer mental picters clearin'.
So noo when ye wad like tae ken o' things beyond the sea,
Consult the 'Pictor Paper'," says the beggar-wife tae me.

The Explosion at Essex

The town of Essex, Ont., was startled by a terrific explosion on August 10th. A car-load of cartridges was blown up and a large part of the town was wrecked. The station was a handsome stone structure.

The Explosion at Essex

The engine which was shunting the car that exploded is shown here. Two brakemen were killed and a score of people injured. On the left is a large granary.

Old Orchard during the Fire

On the evening of August 15th nearly half-a-mile of the beach at Old Orchard, Me., was fire-swept. Half the big summer hotels of the place were destroyed, the damage being estimated at $800,000. Hundreds of guests were temporarily homeless and spent the night on the open beach. Two lives were lost. This picture was taken by night when the fire was burning fiercely.

Pilgrim Doukhobors

A party of Doukhobors whose lands were taken away from them for failure to fulfill the conditions of settlement, is marching from the west to the Atlantic, whence they hope to sail for Southern Europe. They are penniless and while in Winnipeg their wants were supplied, as far as they would permit, by Christian workers. This picture shows a party near Ralph Connor's Church. They seek the Messiah and a warmer climate where they can live without violating any of their religious principles. They have now got as far east as Kenora.

Pilgrim Doukhobors

The dress of men and women alike consisted of a single garment and thick rough socks. Much suffering has been experienced by the less robust, and a child was born to one of the party before Winnipeg was reached.

Canadian Mountain-Climbers

Nearly two hundred people took part in the outing of the Canadian Alpine Club this year. The camp arrangements were admirable, and the ladies of the party found their wants anticipated. Swiss guides and Chinese cooks were not the least important members of the expedition. A great deal of the success of the expedition is due to the forethought of the President, Mr. Arthur O. Wheeler, F.R.G.S., of Calgary.

Canadian Mountain-Climbers

A typical party of the Canadian Alpine Club ready for a hard day's work. The dresses of the ladies were designed to impede the wearers as little as possible. While some of the party wore short skirts others wore a bloomer costume which was not unpicturesque.

Canadian Mountain-Climbers

The pictures on either side represent one of this year's parties at work. In one they are doing some deep snow tramping, in the other they are nearing the summit of one of the peaks of the Rockies. In the centre is a fair member of the party who is equipped to do her full share of climbing.

A Distinguished Chorister

Lord Alverstone, Lord Chief Justice of England, is an enthusiastic singer, and possesses a fine voice. For many years his Lordship has been a great acquisition to the choir of St. Mary Abbot's, Kensington. Lord Alverstone, as Sir Richard Webster, visited Canada some ten years ago. He was then Attorney-General. His Lordship is sixty-five years of age and is a native of Lincolnshire.

FASHIONS FOR AUTUMN

THE first week in September sees the opening of the large wholesale millinery establishments at which modistes from all over the country gather to copy, with or without variations, models, imported from Paris and London, and to glean ideas which will a little later take the material form of delectable feminine headgear for the autumn and early winter months. The 'Pictorial' has been privileged to receive a few hints from some of the experienced European buyers, to give in advance to its readers. It appears that this is to be a season of elaboration in millinery, of rich materials and much trimming. The handsomest of velvets and fine French felts are much used in constructing the foundation of the new chapeaux, and taffeta silk is used in combination with both felts and velvet to a greater extent than for several seasons past, being employed as facing of brims, pipings and shirred bands, bindings, etc. On some of the new models, notably those with rolling or upturned brim, the facing, of different color or material from the upper surface, is a feature capable of being developed to add to the becomingness of the hat to its wearer. The high crown is notable on many handsome models, and with it goes the wide brim manipulated in various ways, picturesque or on simpler lines. The ostrich feather, which has been growing longer and more abundant each season, has reached a stage of development that makes it an exceedingly rich and elegant adornment. Plumage will be much in evidence on the hats of the coming season, and wings are shown in all colors, a smart decorative scheme for the sailor and other of the wide-brimmed models being a pair of very large wings placed outspread on either side. Wings are also used on some of the new toques, the size of the wing at times being quite disproportionately large as compared with the shape it adorns. Huge bows of ribbon decorate a number of youthful models, the new ribbons being really exquisite in coloring and finish. Buckles, pins, and ornaments, which give the desired finishing touch, are brought out in a variety of handsome designs. It is rather early to say with any certainty what colors will lead, but it is predicted that the richer shades of blue, moss green, and all the browns from tan to tabac, and the wine shades, will be favored.

The advance models in tailored suits for autumn give the impression that comparative simplicity will prevail. The new materials have a beauty of finish and design that suggests self-trimmings, or those that set off the fabric without rivalling it. Among the autumn dress materials, broadcloth, as usual, occupies a place in the first rank for 'dressy' costumes. While the plain weaves appeal most to the exclusive taste, the striped and barred effects remain in vogue for less formal occasions, some designed with clear, bold lines, others in shadowy patterns blending two or more colors in several tones. The plaited skirt prevails in the cloth costumes being made up for wear out-of-doors through the autumn, the side plaits being most favored. Bias bands, outlined by piping or stitching, are the usual form of trimming of such skirts, except where the material has a design woven in to serve as trimming bands, an effective novelty which has been introduced. The plaited skirt, properly made, is a comfort and a pleasure to its wearer; it escapes the ground without giving undue prominence to the feet, and allows perfect freedom of movement, yet its fullness is never awkwardly voluminous. The question of coats is still unsettled, but it is said that the long coat will have precedence over other models. At present, however, the jaunty little box coat is considered smartest accompanying the kilted skirt. Tailored suits of serge and cheviot have semi-fitting coats of what is described as twenty-eight inch length, single-breasted and equipped with two or three pockets. For mid-season wear, the separate coat is a very useful garment, among the new models for which is the cut-away jacket, made with back and side seams which fit the garment snugly to the figure. The fronts, which are not quite close-fitting, lap somewhat and are fastened with buttons to the point where they begin to slope. Tan cloth makes a serviceable jacket, to wear with a separate skirt or a dress of checked or striped material. The new coats almost invariably show the full length sleeves. Fashion has likewise decreed that the sleeves of blouses and morning gowns must also be lengthened quite to the hand, and even down upon it, but women nowadays are slow to give up a really comfortable fashion, and whether the short sleeve, half or three-quarter length, in lingerie blouses and house frocks, will really go or not remains to be seen. Whether so pronounced and somewhat eccentric a mode as that having the sleeve borrowed from the Orient will continue much longer, or not, is likewise problematic. However, a very pretty wedding frock ordered for a September bride has the wide armhole of the Mikado sleeve, outlined with a band of filet lace widening into an epaulet. A band of similar lace outlines the V-shaped neck portion. The gown is of white messaline silk, having the skirt gathered at the waist so as to fall in soft folds, while from hem to knee is a conventional design applied in the filet. The puffed elbow sleeves have two bands of lace, one forming the cuff, and the other midway between elbow and shoulder, and the bodice is a simple affair, with fullness adjusted at belt and neck portion, and lace motifs set into front and back.

Garments for the girls' school wear claim a share of attention this month. Here, again, the kilted skirt, especially for the small girl, is an excellent mode. A practical little dress for autumn is of cashmere or serge, made with kilted skirt trimmed with rows of narrow braid. The over-b blouse comes up well on the shoulders, and is attached to the skirt under a trimmed belt. The advantage of such a dress is that the gümpe can be changed frequently. A useful school coat is of tan and brown novelty cloth, completely covering the little frock, with brown velvet collar and cuffs, and shaped epaulets giving width at the shoulders and extending to a point below the waist line. For the larger girl the shirt-waist suit remains in high favor. A good model for a suit of invisible check material, has the seven-gored skirt trimmed with bias bands outlined with piping of the dominant color, and a blouse tucked to yoke depth in front and to the waist line at the back. A soft linen collar with small bow tie and leather belt of the same color as the piping complete the suit. The coat and skirt costume is also very serviceable for misses' school wear, a double-breasted, semi-fitting coat, coming well over the knees, being chosen. When the costume is of serge, or other plain woollen goods, a collar and cuffs of bright plaid give a pretty finish.

FOREVER AND A DAY.

I little know or care
If the blackbird on the bough
Is filling all the air
With his soft crescendo now ;
For she is gone away,
And when she went she took
The springtime in her look,
The peachblow on her cheek,
The laughter from the brook,
The blue from out the May—
And what she calls a week
Is forever and a day!

It's little that I mind
How the blossoms, pink, or white,
At every touch of wind
Fall a-trembling with delight;
For in the leafy lane,
Beneath the garden-boughs,
And through the silent house
One thing alone I seek.
Until she come again
The May is not the May,
And what she calls a week
Is forever and a day!

THE DOMINION UNION

THE oldest National organization of Canadian women, and one that is represented in hundreds of places throughout the Dominion, is the Women's Christian Temperance Union. The first Union in Canada was organized at Owen Sound in the summer of 1874. There are now Unions in every province, the Provincial Unions being auxiliary to the Dominion organization. The number of local Unions is now 376, with an active membership of 9,712, and 1,510 (male) honorary members. Of the organizations of young women, or 'Y's,' there are 25 Unions, with 1,072 'Y' members; also juvenile societies with a membership of 4,739.

The Dominion Union was formed on October 20, 1883, the year in which Miss Frances E. Willard organized the World's Union, and the first Dominion president was Mrs. Letitia Youmans. The first convention was held in Ottawa, in February, 1885. The fifteenth biennial convention meets in Winnipeg during this month, September 13 to 17 inclusive.

The great purpose of the Union is the protection of the home, by individual pledges to total abstinence, by educating the young, by creating and fostering temperance sentiment, and by securing the total prohibition of the liquor traffic throughout the Dominion. In order to obtain more thorough and systematic co-operation in the advancement of the aims of the Society, the work is divided into departments, at the head of each of which is a superintendent, who is expected to specialize in that particular branch of the work and to devise plans and means for carrying it on, with the co-operation of the superintendents of similar departments in the Provincial and Local Unions. There is thus preserved a close unity of purpose throughout the organization.

One of the departments of work to which the society has devoted much time and energy is the promotion of scientific temperance instruction. Believing that a knowledge of the nature of alcohol and its effects on the human organism would be a means of deterring many of the rising generation from beginning its use, the Union has advocated, and continues to advocate, that this subject shall receive its due share of attention from properly qualified teachers in the public schools throughout the country.

The Department of Moral Education, formerly called Social Purity, seeks to arouse a strong public sentiment against everything that makes for impurity in thought or conduct. It comes within the province of this department to call the attention of the authorities to any demoralizing literature in circulation, or questionable pictures exhibited in the windows of lower-class shops, on bill-boards, at places of public resort, or elsewhere, with a view to having the offence removed. Some Unions arrange for addresses on the subject of purity to both boys and girls; and others make this a feature of the Mothers' meetings, urging that girls and boys be taught at home a true appreciation of their womanhood and manhood, instead of being left to have vital truths revealed to them by chance, or injudicious, even demoralizing, companions.

The Union finds a field for effectual work among soldiers' encampments, by supplying cooling drinks and wholesome light refreshments. At two encampments, the experiment was made of keeping a regular canteen store, where 'Tommy' could obtain anything he would be likely to require, from summer drinks, buns, and fruits, to needles, thread, polish, brushes, and stamps,—and this unusual 'canteen' also distributed temperance literature and pledge cards. The efforts of the Union have been appreciated to such an extent, that at two or three large encampments the Government provided a marquee for their use. Much work is also done among fishermen and sailors, by the Unions in the Provinces near the sea. The supplying of 'comfort bags' is a part of the work which is very acceptable to the men. These bags are furnished with needles—some of them threaded—and sewing cotton, buttons, pieces of stout cloth for mending, sticking plaster, soap, etc., the little articles for which Jack at sea has frequent use, and which add materially to his comfort, marked Bibles and temperance literature. Something is also done towards keeping sailors out of the way of temptation while on shore. Special work is done by some of the Unions in the Maritime Provinces, in the way of contributing clothing, literature, and hospital supplies, for the Labrador mission among fishermen. Another department works for the lumber camps and raftsmen. In some of the Provinces, where lumbering is carried on in the newer portions, one or more missionaries are sustained who travel thousands of miles visiting the men and holding meetings.

The anti-narcotic department is concentrating most of its attention against the cigarette habit, and is resolved on keeping the question of legislation against the sale of cigarettes, before the Dominion Parliament. The department on Fairs and Exhibitions has in view the supplying people who come to the fairs with anti-cigarette leaflets to use among their boys, and the distribution of other literature; also, serving temperance drinks and other refreshments on the fair grounds. Non-alcoholic medication has recently engaged the attention of a number of Unions, who have been distributing literature and otherwise seeking to enlighten the public on the alcoholic nature of certain patent medicines. The Hochelaga County Union has been specially active in this department, distributing in one season ten thousand copies of a leaflet printed at their request by the Quebec Branch of the Dominion Alliance. This leaflet gave a list of 75 different widely advertised nostrums with the percentage of alcohol in each, this percentage ranging from six to forty-five per cent. So effective was their agitation that a well known patent medicine firm in the Western States sent its Dominion agent to try to convince them that his medicine had 'absolutely' not a drop of alcohol in it. As the ladies were armed with letters from public analysts, showing that his medicine contained as much alcohol as the 'best whiskey,' the agent left them in disgust.

Equal franchise, as might be expected, is a subject in which the Union is strongly interested. A resolution before the last Convention was, 'That, whereas the political disability of woman in regard to the ballot retards the progress of the legal reforms in which we are interested, therefore, Resolved,—That we recognize with deep conviction that women should be armed with this weapon for the destruction of the liquor traffic, cigarette evil, and other evils that threaten the highest interests of our homes; that we urge our women to study the subject of equal suffrage, and be able to demonstrate that in the State as well as in the home, men and women should govern together as God intended they should, with equal responsibility.'

Other departments are those on health and heredity, foreign work, evangelistic, unfermented wine, flower and fruit mission, parlor meetings, prison reform, Sunday observance, work among colored people, curfew bell, medal contests, work among railway employees, and so on. It is hardly necessary to say that not every local Union takes up all the different branches of work. Some never seem to get much beyond the holding of parlor meetings; others, perhaps no stronger numerically, help on the work along several lines, while here and there is a county union that can report 'something attempted, something done,' in almost every department. The work taken up by each local union depends chiefly, of course, on local conditions, and on the capabilities and zeal of the members of which it is composed.

The Dominion officers for 1905-07 are:

President, Mrs. Gordon Wright, London, Ont.; Vice-President, Mrs. O. C. Whitman, Canso, N.S.; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Annie M. Bascom, Toronto; Recording Secretary, Mrs. R. W. Care of the Teeth.

EVERYONE nowadays understands that the proper care of the mouth and teeth is of the utmost importance, both from the hygienic point of view, and that of daintiness and beauty. A leading dentist, who treats a great many people in the course of each year, keeps in his office a set of natural-looking teeth upon which to demonstrate to his patients the correct method of using the tooth-brush, because, he says, he finds that there are many really fastidious persons who do not go about this oft-repeated operation in exactly the right way. Too often that part close to the gums is missed, however long the brush may be kept moving over the more exposed portions. This is likely to be the case if only a crosswise movement of the brush is made; to complete the cleansing, the brush should be placed close to the gum and used with a downward or upward movement, as the case may be. It need hardly be mentioned that the inner side of the teeth requires fully as much attention as the outer surface.

Something by way of improvement in brushes is one having a pointed tuft of longer bristles at the end for the purpose of penetrating between the teeth and reaching parts of the back teeth not easily reached with the rest of the brush. This one is made with tiny holes in the back which, it is claimed, drain the moisture off and make the brush more hygienic. The best shape of brush to use depends somewhat on the form of the teeth, and each one must decide for herself. It is advisable to keep two brushes, and use them alternately, so that each has a chance to dry thoroughly before it is used again. To be perfectly hygienic, the brush should be scalded frequently by holding it under the tap and letting the water at boiling temperature run over it, or by dipping it into hot water in which a little boracic acid has been dissolved. If a new brush is soaked in cold water for a few hours before it is used, the bristles will not come out, as they sometimes do.

Great care should be exercised in the choice of dentifrice. Anything in the least gritty should be avoided as the enamel is easily scratched, and, once the outer coating is broken, decay is almost sure to follow. Grown people will warn children not to break nuts with their teeth, or bite hard substances, yet they sometimes forget and bite off thread instead of cutting it, or untie obstinate knots with their teeth—a not very elegant proceeding. Hot food followed by a frozen dessert, or ice-cold beverage, is not good for the teeth, however it may be for the digestive organs.

If possible one should visit a good dentist every six months—at the furthest, once a year—in order to have the teeth examined and any slightest cavity filled before it has had time to grow any larger. In spite of every precaution, it seems that flaws will appear, but they can be kept from making any appreciable progress. Tartar, too, is bound to form, and must be removed periodically. It is a mistake to think that the teeth cannot possibly be brushed too much. 'Constant dropping will wear a stone,' and too frequent scrubbing, especially if the brush is rather hard, tends, so a dentist says, to make the surface of the teeth ridged and uneven. A thorough brushing at night and again in the morning, using a good dentifrice, is almost all the rubbing required. After each meal, the spaces between the teeth should be cleared out by means of dental floss or silk thread, which

It is now positively known that falling hair is caused by a germ, hence is a regular germ disease. Hall's Hair Renewer promptly stops falling hair because it destroys the germs which produce this trouble. It also destroys the dandruff germs, and restores the scalp to a healthy condition.

penetrates where the brush cannot. The brush can then be used, with a light touch, and the mouth rinsed out with fresh water, when the cleansing is more complete than it would be by harder brushing alone.

DON'T BE DECEIVED, or led to believe by either unscrupulous merchants or misleading advertisements that Wool and Silk (animal materials); Cotton and Linen (vegetable materials); and Mixed Goods (in which vegetable material generally predominates) can be dyed equally well with the same dye.

Of course, it sounds easy to trust to chance and use one dye for all materials; but, for success, if you are dyeing Cotton, Linen or Mixed Goods, ask for DIAMOND DYES for COTTON. If you are dyeing Wool or Silk, ask for DIAMOND DYES for WOOL.

NO. 5848—A GARDENING APRON.

All women who have little duties to perform about the house know the advantage of a large apron. Here is one that will be found equally serviceable for the busy housekeeper, the artist, and the home gardener. It is shaped to the figure in the front. The skirt flares prettily and, as it meets in the back, the whole skirt is protected. Generous sized pockets adds greatly to its usefulness. Linens, gingham, Holland and percale are all used in the making. The medium size will require 5 1-8 yards of 36-inch material.

NO. 5852—LADIES' OVERBLOUSE.

The illustration shows one of the most popular of the season's fancies in waists. A blouse of this description is almost universally becoming. A group of tucks in the front gives graceful fullness, and the deep pleat carried over the shoulder adds to the style. It may be made up in taffeta, peau de cygne, pongee, broadcloth and voile, and is to be worn over a guimpe or under blouse. For 36-inch bust measure 2 7-8 yards of 27-inch material will be required. Sizes for 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure.

Old Scotch Farmer (having spent sixpence on a raffle ticket for a pony and trap, value £50, and having won it, is shown the prize. After gazing critically at it for some minutes), "But whaur's the whup?"—Punch.

WHERE THE ACCENT LAY.

'Now, sir,' said Sir James Scarlet to the musical expert witness, T. Cooke, 'you say the two melodies are the same, but different. What do you mean by that, sir?' 'I meant the notes were the same, but the accent different.' 'Accent! What is musical accent?' 'My terms are a guinea a lesson.' 'Don't mind your terms here, sir. Come, sir, tell me what is musical accent. Can you see it?' 'No.' 'Can you feel it?' 'Yes.' 'Come, sir, none of this beating about the bush, but tell the court and jury the meaning of what you call accent.' 'Accent in music is the same as emphasis in speech. If I were to say "You are an ASS," the accent rests on ass. But if I were to say, "YOU are an ass," it rests on you, Sir James.' When the laughter of the court had died down, Lord Denman, the judge, asked gravely, 'Are you satisfied, Sir James?'—T. P.'s Weekly, London.

SANDY GOT THE PRIZE.

Towards the end of an examination in music at a school to the north of the Tweed the inspector, wishing to leave a good impression behind him, offered a prize of sixpence to the boy who gave the best answer to the following question:—"Which is the sweetest instrument?" Among the many eager faces the inspector particularly noticed one boy waving his hand and muttering, 'Please, sir! please, sir!' as he excitedly endeavored to attract his attention first. 'Well, Sandy, what is it?' he asked. 'Please, sir, a toffy whistle,' was the reply. The inspector, much amused, awarded Sandy the prize.

WELL AND TRULY LAID.

During his three days' visit to Glasgow the Prince of Wales laid three memorial stones, opened new buildings at the University, and received, along with the Princess, the freedom of the city, an LL.D degree, and three caskets, to say nothing of trowels, gold keys, and the seven bouquets specified in the official programme. We understand, however, that there is no truth in the rumor that at breakfast, on the morning of his departure, the Prince remarked, with sheer force of habit, as he tapped the shell of an egg, 'I declare this egg to be well and truly laid. Please pass the pepper castor.'—Punch.

SOMETHING REALLY WONDERFUL.

The teacher was giving an object-lesson on the chicken.
'Now, tell me something very wonderful about chickens,' said she.
'How they get out of the shells,' exclaimed one boy.
'Well,' said the teacher, 'that is wonderful, but I mean something more wonderful still.'
No one spoke for a little, and then one little boy held up his hand.

'Well, Johnny!' said the teacher.
'How they ever got into them, ma'am' was the reply.

THE MONTREAL STORE

Montreal, Que., July 3rd, 1907

Messrs. The Dolly Varden Shoe Co.
Montreal, Que.

Gentlemen :—

Where a business shows an increase of $1,200 in one month as compared with the same month a year ago, I am sure that there is some reason for congratulation. Should the present increase continue I shall soon capture the whole high-class shoe trade of Montreal.

I enclose you a report of the sales of June, with the analysis of the various prices, the number of each price sold, and the comparison with the sales during the month of June, 1906.

Had I placed a larger order for Tan Oxfords earlier in the season, I believe my sales would have been 20 per cent greater.

Yours truly,
THOMAS HICKEY,
440 St. Catherine Street West.

THE WINNIPEG STORE

The Dolly Varden Shoe Company
Montreal

Gentlemen :—

On closing up the first half year of our business on Portage Avenue, I desire to express to you my satisfaction with the results. Thus far the volume of business has exceeded my anticipations. I expect to do a business the first year of $40,000.

The Dolly Varden Shoe is the best known ladies' shoe in Winnipeg, and every indication points to a large business, as the store becomes better known. As you know Portage Avenue is a new shopping thoroughfare, but it will eventually become the leading retail street.

My customers are all delighted with the shoe, with its dainty lines, and its permanency of shape, and I have been pleased this last few months with the return of many customers who bought from me during the opening months of the store, last fall.

Yours truly,
H. W. STARK,
273 Portage Avenue, Winnipeg.

THE TORONTO STORE

Toronto, July 25th, 1907

The Dolly Varden Shoe Co.
Montreal, Can.

Dear Sirs :—

In comparing the amount of business done during June 1907, with that of June 1906, I find that of last month double that of a year ago and I am confident that the sales for next year will exceed $50,000.00. For a young business the success which the store has met with since I purchased it has far exceeded my expectations.

The increase during the past three months I attribute largely to the staunch friends which the character of the Dolly Varden Shoe makes for itself. I think there are not two other shoe stores in Toronto doing a larger business than mine, and should the present volume of business continue to show the same relative increase for another year, there will not be more than one other store doing as large a business.

I feel justified in writing you to express my satisfaction with the enclosed report.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) FRANK MERCER
