PAGES MISSING

New Friends Every Day

Grocers tell us Blue Ribbon Tea makes new friends every day. Customers who bought other tea before now ask for Blue Ribbon. They hear from friends how good it is and decide to try it. And in any case if it is not found fully satisfactory the packet can be returned and the money refunded.

It Is For You To Say

Try Blue Ribbon once. Then it is for you to say if you will use it after that. If you find that it is not superior to the tea you have been using you may take the packet back and your money will be refunded. But we know you will like it.

Blue Ribbon Products are Pure Food Products

Be a Bit Curious

You have tried other brands of tea. Now try Blue Ribbon. Only in this way can you find out just how rich, strong and delicious Blue Ribbon is. No other tea compares with it. And if you don't find it superior to other tea, take back the packet—the grocer will refund your money. Winnip

WAR

erthe

1978

Year

DONS

For to the Full Exce

grou

WRITE

AT YOU

B The Far F

It is the Home Tea of the West

There are good reasons why Blue Ribbon is the home tea of the West. It is guaranteed satisfactory. A small amount of Blue Ribbon makes more tea than a much larger quantity of other teas. The superior flavor of Blue Ribbon is noticeable at once. Buy a packet. If you don't find it satisfactory, return the balance to your grocer and he will refund your money.

All are Guaranteed

Whether you buy Blue Ribbon Tea, Blue Ribbon Coffee

Purity in food, so much desired by every housewife, is the absolute standard of Blue Ribbon goods. Buy Blue Ribbon Baking Powder, Coffee, Jelly Powders or Spices. They are all of the same high quality. If you are not satisfied, take back the packet or tin and your money will be refunded. or Blue Ribbon Baking Powder, our refund offer is just the same. If you are not fully satisfied after a fair trial you may return what is left and receive your money from the grocer. We could not afford to make this general offer if we did not know that Blue Ribbon goods are pure, wholesome and superior to other brands.

BLUE RIBBON, LIMITED WINNIPEG, MAN.

Foronto Conservatory A Music

WARD FISHER. MUS. DOC., MUSICAL

RE-OPENS er the Summer Holidays, Friday, Sep. 1

1978 students enrolled last season WOMEN'S RESIDENCE

Year Book (160 Pages) Mailed on Application

CONSERVATORY SCHOOL OF

SPECIAL CALENDAR.

. H. KIRKPATRICK, Ph. D., Principal. Public Reading, Oratory, Physical and Vocal sture, Dramatic Art, and Literature.

Rev. Oswald Rigby, M.A. (Cambridge), L.L.D., Port Hope, Ontario

OSHAWA. ONTARIO. Visitor, The Lord Bishop of Toronto. Preparation for the University and for the examinations of the Toronto Conservatory of Music. Young children also received. Fine location. Outdoor games and physical training. SCHOOL RE-OPENS SEPT. 13th. The Musical Department (piano Theory and Harmony) will be under the direction of a Master, and of a sister who for tweive years tanght in the School with marked success.

The Western Home Monthly.

THE WESTERN HOME MONTHLY

blished Monthly No. 9 Vol. XII. By the Home Publishing Co., McDermot and Arthur Sts., Winnipeg, Canada

THE SUBSCRIPTION PRICE of the Western Home Monthly is $1 per annum to any address in Canada, or British les. The subscription price to foreign countries is $1.50 a year, and within the City of Winnipeg limits and in the nited States $1.25 s year. REMITTANCES of small sums may be made with safety in ordinary letters. Sums of one dollar or more it would be ell to send by registered letter or Money Order. PORTAGE STANPS will be received the same as each for the fractional parts or a dollar, and in any amount when it impossible for pairons to produce bills. We prefer those of the one cent of noninstion. We atways more subscriptions have expired must not expect to continue to receive the paper unless they send incirced. Those whose subscriptions have expired must not expect to continue to receive the paper unless they send REMITTANCES well to send by re ived. These whose subscriptions have expired must not expect to continue to receive the paper unless they send money to pay for it another year. CHANGE OF ADDRESS.—Subscribers wishing their addresses changed must state their former as well as new address, communications relative to change of address must be received by us not later than the 20th of the preceding month. WHEN YOU RENEW is sure to sign your name exactly the same as it appears on the label of your paper. If this is done it have to contain the sure to sign your name exactly the same as its appears on the label of your paper. If this is done it is not at the contain. If you have recently changed your address and the paper has been forwarded to you, be to let us know the address on your label.

A Chat with our Readers.

In nearly every community there are dozens, in many there are scores, and in others there are hundreds of peo-ple who would gladly subscribe for the Western Home Monthly if they were shown one issue. Everybody should get up a club this year. It will be the greatest year for club raisers in the history of the Western Home Monthly, and all who make an effort in this direction will be successful and secure direction will be successful and secure a premium which will be well worth the time and trouble involved in getting a premium which will be well worth the time and trouble involved in getting the subscriptions. Tell all your friends and neighbors that by joining a club, the enlarged, improved and beautified Western Home Monthly may be had for only 62½ cents. Make up your clubs of both renewals and new subscriptions — it makes no difference — both are taken upon the same terms. Clubs may be made up now in less time and less effort than ever before, therefore, you should "make hay while the sun shines" and get as many subscribers as you possibly can, and thereby secure for yourself a valuable premium — the finest ever given by a Canadian periodical. In conclusion, you will, therefore, note that while single subscriptions for the Western Home Monthly cannot be ac-cepted for less than $1.00; $2.00 will pay for three yearly subscriptions; $2.50 for four yearly subscriptions. Club raisers in addition to securing a premium should be able to make a little hard cash. The Western Home Monthly is mighty good value at $1.00 a year and many of our subscribers are netting a nice little nest egg by mak-ing nearly 40 cents on each of a big batch of subscriptions.

OUR IMPROVED PLAN OF CLUB RAISING.

In order to make it very easy for our readers to get up clubs and to over-come the objections of many who would like to get up a club and secure a premium, but who have a constitutional dislike of or prejudice against what is usually known as canvassing, we have instituted an original system, as fol-lows: We will send you on application, free, ten sample copies of The Western Home Monthly to distribute among such of your neighbors and friends as free, ten sample copies of The Western Home Monthly to distribute among such of your neighbors and friends as you think would be most likely to sub-scribe for such a publication. All you have to do is to go out and leave one of these sample copies at the house of each person whom you think would be most likely to subscribe, or if you have a child or anyone else you can send, let him (or her) take the samples out for you. Leave the samples there for two or three days — long enough for them to read the magazine and get in-terested in it—then go around and take the subscriptions. You will find that by giving the people a chance to read the magazine in this way you will get five times as many subscriptions as you would by simply showing it—in fact, if you give the sample copies to the right people, and you, of course, know who in your neighborhood would be most likely to take such a magazine as this, you ought to get a subscrip-tion at nearly every house. The sample copy will do all the canvassing for you —all you have to do is to distribute the samples and call for the subscrip-tions_you need not do any talking at tions—you need not do any talking at all. 'As you call for the subscriptions you can take up the sample copies and afterwards distribue them among ten other people, thus using them over and the samples and call for the subscrip over again until, you have a large club. We send only ten copies at the outset, but if you continue the work for some time and your samples be-come worn, we will send you more. Now, we hope that you, reader, will try this plan of club raising, no matter whether you have ever tried to get up a club for a magazine before or not, for we know that if you do you will succeed in getting up a nice club in your neighborhood without the least difficulty or trouble, and thus become the happy possessor of a nice little sum in cash and a valuable premium in to the bargain. Just send us a post card and we will mail you ten sample copies by return mail, and you will be ready to begin at once. It will cost you, therefore, only one cent for a post card to give our improved plan of club raising a itral. This is all we ask you to do-try it and we know that you will never regret it if you do so; on the contrary, your success will he so great that you will be both surprised and delighted.

A FEW THINGS FOR CLUB RAISERS TO REMEMBER.

- 1.—Your own subscription can be counted as one towards your club.
- 2.—Clubs may be made up of both re-newals and new subscriptions all count alike.
- 3.-Subscribers may be sent from any number of different post offices
- 4.—Remit by post office money order, express money order, postal note registered letter.

5.—Read your order very carefully af-ter you have written it and be sure that you have made no mis-takes, have imitted nothing, and that you have every name and address plainly written. Be brief and to the point; write only that which is a necessary next of your order, and write

The wonderful Sloan-Duploysn System is written by experts and you can teach yourself in TWELVE SIMPLE LESSONS from "Self-Instancian" Self-

Instruction' books. Price only $2:00 for two hand-somely bound books, "Instructor' and "Reporter." SPECIAL OFFER : Send Two Dollars now and we will send you the books by return and also trial lesson which we will collect free of charge. Why go to great expense when for $2.00 you can secure these wonderful books? Free Booklet. Instruction by MAIL. Send at once.

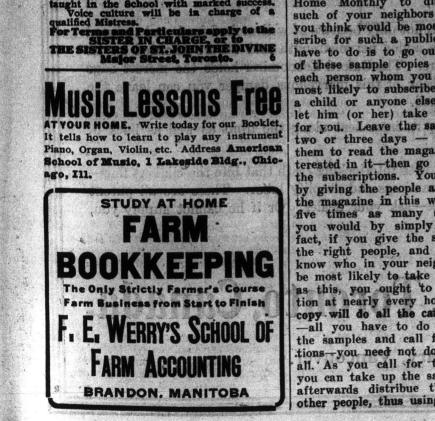

Metropolitan Shorthand School 273 Machroy Ave., Winnipog

FOR INFANTS. INVALIDS and the (eldo)

120[0]] assists nature

It is used mixed with resh new milk and forms a delicate and nutrie tive cream which is enjoyed and assimilated when other loods dis agree. It is entirely free from rough and indigestible particles which produce

| | cverything that you need to say on the blank. If possible mail the letter yourself. 6.—In the case of renewals, please put down the name exactly as it was sent in last year; do not vary it in the least. If there is any variation of the name as compared with the previous year, we are unable to connect the two, and, therefore, the subscriber receives circulars concerning renewals, which are more or less of an annoyance. | ITTITATION IN Cate stom "The Lancet" describe Benger's admirable Mothers and interested p quested to write for Boo Tod and How to Use it." a "Concise Guide to the Infants" and practical info are of Invalids, Convales Aged, Post free on applicat Food Ltd., Otter Works, M Benger's Food to sold Drangrists, ste., sold |
|-----------------------|--|--|
| and the second second | 7.—Send the correct amount of money with every order. | PEACH'S DAGE C |
| | 8.—Keep a copy of the list of names of every club you send us, so that you may go to the same people next year and get their renewals. | From Looms Direct. Noney Ini Offerings. GIVEN AV with Catalogue & Buyer's (Window Draperles and Fo shipping: Household Lin Gents' Tailoring, Underv 54 Years known Reputation. |
| íl e le | In conclusion, we again assure our readers that club raising work is both easy and profitable if you have read carefully the foreging passages, every- thing is in favor of your venture be- ing a success. | S6.60 Curtain Participation of the second se |
| t | Rev. Dr. Clifford: Religion in all its bearings is one of the elemental forces | 1 pair cartains, Floral Fee by 45 in. 1 Ductense Toll Covers, Postage & Duty Pa Beru Great Saving, Buy dire SAML, PEACH & SONS, 7 |

The Western Home Monthly?

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

Winnipe

We are enough to Garry. in with a hes and much visiting his and free fr his faithfu burdens w Ask him w at you win not find it oil, it wa

he nature rst right lains. How di

the care a What co

more equi

Old In

Thou are

descenda Garry ha

not forgo

clad in fin

lackeys f

thou in t people! S toiler. I ease. I

Two th

ages. T

neat phra is "consp

than nec in luxuri

dred dol a cloak f

Two Ways to a Man's Heart One Way The Other Way

One way is through his Stomach, a way that most women try three times every day in the year. And a good way, too, and an easy one if you have a Gurney-Oxford.

You don't watch anxiously every time John puts the carver into a fowl or joint. You know it's not only done Brown, but the Gurney-Oxford heat is so controlled and steady that the flesh is tender and juicy, and the man at the platter beams with good humour.

and induat in the second a produce and the defici

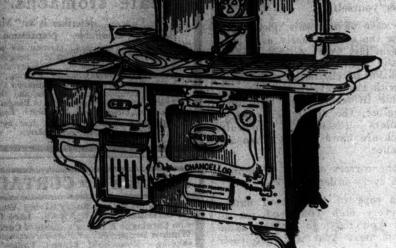

HC

The other way to his heart is through his pocketbook. Again a sure and easy road if you have a Gurney-Oxford.

The wonderful saving in fuel effected by the Oxford Econmizer is guarantee of good nature, and when you go over the grocery accounts together it warms the cockles of his heart to see how much you have saved.

Besides fuel nothing is burnt or wasted. A pot will simmer all day over the low fire, with a gain in food value, as well as health and pocket.

promote peace and quiet, not only because of well-cooked food and reduced bills, but because of the added nerve-strength and leisure afforded by its ease of operation and care. The Oxford Economizer holds the merest edge of draft, and with the check of this marvellous damper you can leave the fire for hours unreplenished.

The Divided Flue-Strip radiates heat along the front as well as back of oven.

The Reversible Grate, with interlocking teeth that bite the clinkers fineall these points secure cleanliness and simplify labor. These are all patent and patented advantages—ask your dealer. Or if he cannot supply you, write our nearest branch

The Gurney Foundry Co. Ltd. Toronto, Canada.

Montreal, Hamilton, Winnipeg, Calgary, Vancouver.

ON IWICO

cience co a retinue equipage gets the Leisured Wastel What is for waste whist? I By no m live with they are play the opportun of time heroine religion modesty waste of of earth Let thos

The Leisure Class.

LOI THE POOR INDIAN

States Western - Sould Store Intering on

We are told that thirty years ago it was common enough to see the red man walk the streets of old Fort Garry, in all his pomp and glory. Dressed in red, with a head dress of feathers, and smoking his long and much used pipe, he marched from post to post visiting his favorite haunts. Empty-handed he was and free from care, for did there not walk behind him his faithful squaw and all her daughters bearing the burdens which represented his whole material wealth. Ask him what he did for a living and he would gaze at you with wondering contempt. A Chieftain did not find it necessary, and it certainly was not becoming to work in order to live. Others might labor and he would enter into their labors. He was not of those who toll and indeed he might be the human likeness of those lilies of the field of which it was written. "They toil not neither do they spin, yet Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these." He belonged to The Leisure Class. The red man had his code of honor, and his etiquette was most pronounced. One good old rule stood out above the rest: "The chieftain shall not work." In times of war he mounted his pony and with sharpened

The red man had his code of honor, and his etiquette was most pronounced. One good old rule stood out above the rest: "The chieftain shall not work." In times of war he mounted his pony and with sharpened tomahawk proceeded to the scene of carnage. It was allowable for him to seek glory—but what glory is there in menial work? When the roaming buffalo herd was opportunity for distinction—but, the animals slain, it was not for him to save the hides, and strip the carcass or make the permican. This was work, and work is the portion of wives and daughters—the slaves always in primitive times, both here and elsewhere. There were other things possible, also, to leaders of the tribe. If he did not make his weapons and his cances he added the aesthetic features. A whole forenoon employed in oiling a new bow, a whole day spent on the meagre trappings of his little steed. This was not toil, it was not necessary labor, but partook more of the nature of play, and play in any of its forms was the first right and the first necessity of the red man of the plains.

plains. How did the Indian brave get this ascendency in his household? Need one ask? In the end it was a question of physical force. In the good old days "Might was right," and the only standard of might was physical prowess. To the victor belong the spoils, to his wife the care and hardship involved in preserving the spoils. What could be more beautiful and simple! What more equitable division of duties!

THE LEISURED SISTERHOOD

Old Indian brave first of your type, we salute thee Thou art progenitor of a mighty tribe. Truly thy descendants are as the sands of the sea. That old Fort Garry has given way to a great city and yet thou art not forgotten. The members of The Leisure Class, clad in fine linen and adorned with feathers and with gew gaws worthy of their class, parade the streets, with lackeys following in their train, and they say just as thou in the early days-"Behold me all you common people! See my splendor! See my smoke! I am not a toiler. I have won my way to physical and mental ease. I belong to The Leisure Class." Two things have distinguished the leisure class in all ages. The first is "conspicious consumption," to use a ages. The first is "conspicious consumption," to use a neat phrase invented by a Chicago writer, and the second is "conspicuous waste." How much more we consume than necessity demands,—in food, in clothing, in shelter in luxuries and comforts. A banquet costing five hun-dred dollars when fifty would have provided a feast; a cloak for seven hundred, when comfort and magnifi-tience could have been secured for one fourth the sum, a retinue of servants for the sake of show, a brilliant equipage, a costly place of worship. The highest bidder gets the prize—the red ticket for first place in The Leisured Fraternity. Wastel—Time, money, opportunity how they gol Leisured Fraternity. Wastel—Time, money, opportunity how they gol What is evidence of preeminence if it is not capacity for waste? Why the afternoons given up to bridge-whist? Is it because the participants enjoy the game? By no means. Much would many of them prefer to live with their children in quietness and comfort, but they are in the running for the prize and they must play the game. As for the little stakes it is another opportunity for waste. Why not seize it? But want of time and money, what of that? She is the real heroine who can throw away her principles. The religion of childhood, the old fashioned virtues of modesty, clean speech and motherliness, will not a waste of these make a better showing than the waste waste of these make a better showing than the waste of earthly substance? Is the picture overdrawn? Let those who know things answer.

A TIRADE AGAINST WOMANK ND!

Nothing of the kind. These are not women any longer. They are but blind followers of custom. True women are as common to day as ever they were they are as hard working, as patient, as gentle and as good, but with the growth of civilization they have a status that was formerly unknown, and as first to enter into their newly acquired freedom a few of them are bound to emulate the example of the red man of the plain and to show to the world at all costs that they belong to "The Leisure Sorority." Yet the majority delighted to emulate their mothers in work and worships.

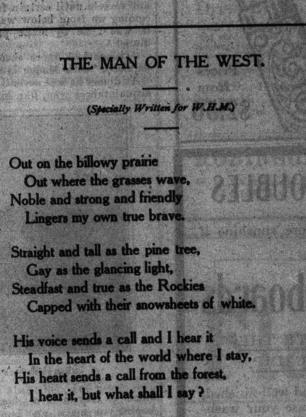

THE WOMEN WHO SERVE.

Asson Line . Manif

4. 1. 1

childen femilian

It was work for mothers in those olden days too. You can recall the family of almost a dozen children how the mother cooked for them, and clothed them not only making the clothes, but spinning the yarn. You remember how she did this and all the mending

Though I know he'd be tender and loving, My dearest, my darling, my best, Yet the sea rolls between us, the Heart of the World, And my hero, "The Man of the West."

-By May Heward

seat in the parquette but in the boxes, not the home made cheese—the best in the world—but some English. Dutch, or German manufacture. And when it comes to education, Good Lordi preserve us from the nasty common public schools. There is the odor of sweat, and grime and axle grease. Give us the things that costs, at any price. And let our children learn the useless things, for they can afford to waste their time. Give them Latin—Nol by all that is holy! Latin us of some practical value—Give them Coptic and Syriac; let them study Logic which they never use, and Philosophy which pretands to wisdom but which makes no bread.

TELES SHARD DESIGN

Not we have not yet completely escaped inclusions avagery. We have not all chosen the quiet simple life, the life of work combined with play, the life of service and of song. Yet it is the life replete with all that unites man to his fellows and his God.

A VOICE FROM THE FIELD'S.

Have you read David Grayson's "Adventures in Contentment?" If not get it. There is no book so copyrighted, but we shall take the risk of making a quotation and claim that it is free advertising. Grayson had given up the city rush. He had failed in health, and was down and out. Then it was he went to the farm and for eight years lived the simple unpretentious life-a life which had little leisure, but which was replete with joy. Here what he says "When I first came to this farm I came empty handed I was the veritable pattern of the city made failure. I believed that life had nothing in store for me. I was digently planned for Success; and I had randed and here without plans. I plowed and hardware to reap. And it had been a growing marvel to me, the diverse and unexpected crops that I have produce to reap. And it had been a growing marvel to me, the diverse and unexpected crops that I have produce within the uneven acres of earth. With sweat I planted corn, and I have here a crop not only of oon but on happiness and hope. My tilled fields have minimum work, and when, after supper, I could not keep minihappiness and hope. My tilled fields have minimum work, and when, after supper, I could not keep minfield and looked up. And it seemed as if I had neve happiness and hope. My tilled fields have minimum work, and when, after supper, I could not keep minfield and looked up. And it seemed as if I had neve hooked up before. I discovered another world. If has been there before for long and long but I had neve hooked up before for long and long but I had neve here may color nor sweet sounds or that the work height nor color nor sweet sounds or that the work height nor color nor sweet sounds or that the work height nor color nor sweet sounds or that the work height nor color nor sweet sounds or that the

THE CALL TO WORK

Aye, there is something better than a life of leisure: It is the call to work-and all work is worship. When a

A CONTRACTOR AND A CONT

which followed, how she looked after the calves and hogs and poultry, how in addition she had time to to help her husband in the fields at times, and even give an occasional hour to visit her neighbors, when they needed help most sorely. And she had no maid. How did she do it? Because the life was simple in those days, and because—listen, a few of you who need the word—She did not feel it necessary to prove that she belonged to The Leisure Class.

THE LEISURED FRATERNITY.

Still hard on womankind! Oh' No! Are there not men to day who are trading in the footsteps of the red chieftain? Never in the history of the world was there greater parade of wealth and possession than in this twentieth century of which we boast. Wagner has preached to us "The Simple Life." We read it and applaud, but go forth to show that we can afford to consume and waste in greater measure than our neighbors. Not a motor but the best motor, not a lady is busy let her thank God, but when she is so busy let her borrow a few children from the orphan's home and begin to do things. When a man is busy and knows what body-sweat and brain-sweat means, let him too thank God; but if he is only a common sucker living on other men by his cunning and deceit, and parading his ill-gotten gains with a vulgarity that disgusts, let him study the red man of the prairies—the first true representative of "The Leisure Class."

- 代表成于超承 在限的资源

gusts, let him study the red man of the prairies—the first true representative of "The Leisure Class." We have written there words so that a great mass of our readers—the farming community—might take courage. They need not enoy the class described. There is a growth in the number of representatives of that class in Western Canada just now because wealth has been made rapidly. It is the next generation that is in danget.

danger. Parents beware of leaving your children too great a legacy. It will be their undoing. Give them rather that possession which cannot be taken away— See that they are fortified in soul so that they can resist all temptation and be strong in power to serve. It is for this they live. You remember the good Knight Sir Gareth who was urged by his mother to keep away from the court and join in the chase, and you remember too his noble reply. "Follow the deer? Follow the Christ, the King.

"Follow the deer? Follow the Christ, the King. Speak truth, live pure, right wrong, follow the King. Else wherefore born?"

The second state of the second beautions

Prices

$2.50

from

These Toasted Corn Flakes by analysis test high in grape sugars. Each package contains one of the above photographed dishes. Order from your grocer to-day a package of

Maize

FOUNTAIN

PEN

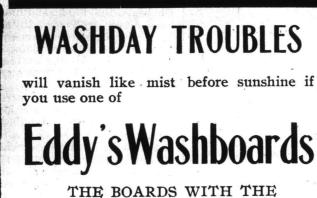

Pleases the Impatient Exacting Writer

We like pen cranks-those who expect more out of a pen than others have given. We can satisfy such and win their enthusiastic recommendation.

Smoothest Gold Nib—Sure Feed Sold by all High Class Stationers and Jewellers ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE FREE

MABIE TODD & CO 124 York Street, Toronto New York

Chicago, etc.

LABOR SAVING CRIMP

Sister Madge.

By S. Jean Walker, Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario.

Jack Lennox whistled in a mechanical, pre-occupied way, as he unpacked his trunks, and arranged his various belongings in a room in a new boarding house. He was hot, tired and lonely. With these feelings finally controlling him, he jerked at a stubborn dresser drawer so impatiently that it fell out on the floor. His whistling changed to a prolonged note of surprise, then suddenly ceased. After a few minutes of peculiar stillness he replaced the drawer, and began humming a few bars of a cheerful melody while he arranged some photos on a little table that stood in a prominent corner of the room. He placed and replaced them, and seemed to be in a most critical mood. One claimed more of his attention than the others. He stopped humming and smiled back at the pretty, laughing, pictured face, say-ing wistfully, "Well, Madge, I'd love to see you." There was a peculiar inflection in his voice that might suggest varying degrees of intimacy. Its intonation was certainly puzzling, when considered with his manner of looking at the picture. He appeared lost in pleasant reverie until certain familiar sounds coming up from below warned him that it was time to make preparation for dinner.

"Things look more cheerful," he soli-loquised, "with Madge laughing at me." At dinner he met several old university acquaintances who, like himself, had de-does he place her photo in such a conspicuous place ?"

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

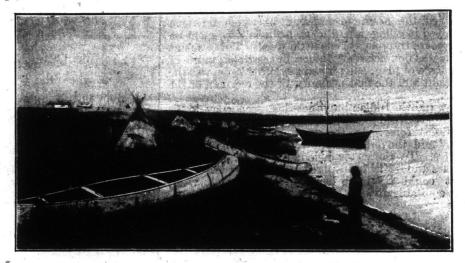

"Don't know, Tom answered. "Perhaps she was a summer girl who did not care enough to marry him, but would be a sister. You know the kind. This graceful, friendly way of covering a matriomonial retreat with colors flying under cover of sisterly regard. He may, however, have had more than a brotherly feeling for her and so keeps the photo."

"Maybe," drawled Archie, sleepily. "But your explanation does not fit, Jack, neither does the half-sister story for that matter. Jack's not the one to moon over the photo of such a girl, or else he's changed mightly during vacation."

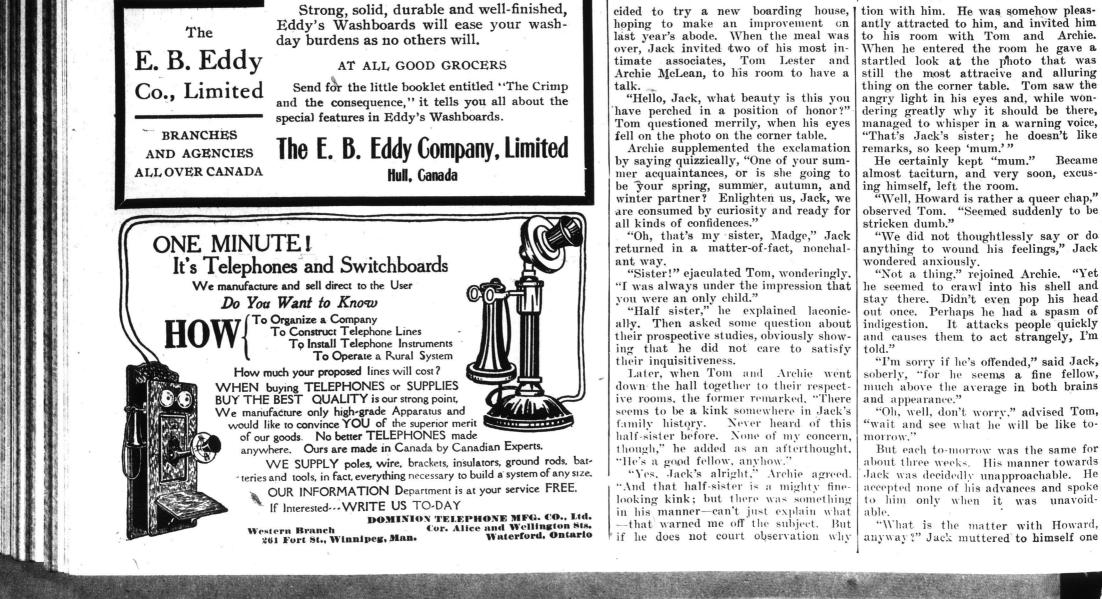

"You can never tell what a man will do when a woman gets him in tow,' Tom philosophized. "I expect to play the fool myself some day. I have an uncanny premonition of it now."

"Not very complimentary to the future Mrs. Lester," laughed Archie as he turned to his room.

A few days later there was a new boarder. He was given a place at the table almost opposite Jack. Something in the new comer's face puzzled Jack, and gave him an indefinable feeling of a former acquaintance. When intro-duced he knew that they had never met before. Yet he could not rid himself of some intangible association in connec-

Indian birch bark tents and canoes and Inland boat, of Oxford House.

t., 1911

ch a coned. "Per-

o did not ut would d. This vering a ors flying He may, brother-eeps the

sleepily. not fit. ter story he one to a girl, or ing vacaman will in tow." t to play ve an unto the Archie as is a new ce at the Something led Jack, feeling of en intronever met nimself of n connecworrying him greatly, and he could form no reason for its cause. "I did nothing to him; hang it all I wish I knew what is the matter with him." He looked up and the laughing face of the photo caused an answering smile to some to his own. "Well, sister Madge, what would you do in a case like Jack often talked to the photo. this?" "Laugh at him and torment him half to death; that's what you would do. No one could frown long in your presence you mischievous saucy sprite. ______ A knock at his door interrupted his soliloquy. He was surprised on opening it to find Keith Howard smilingly awaiting admittance. Jack invited him in, wondering greatly why he had come and what had wrought the change. " I though I heard you talking," Howard observed, as he entered the room and sat down in the chair Jack had drawn forward for him.

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

"Yes, I was talking to my sister."

"Your sister!" looking round the room evidently wondering where she had hidden herself.

Jack laughed at his look of bewilder-ment, and explained, "To my sister's photo, I should have said," looking towards it. "We hold many one-sided con-versations. It helps me, too; when I feel gloomy she always laughs at me."

"Is she your only sister?" "Yes," Jack, answered in a tone that plainly evinced that he did not wish to continue this subject. Apparently oblivious of the note in Jack's voice, Howard questioned again, "Is she married?" "No."

evening in his room. The affair was happen if she were here," Keith rejoined with a laugh.

The Western Home Monthly.

"Sister Madge isn't a scold; she's just splendid at undertsanding a fellow. The very best kind of sister a brother could have," Jack championed hotly.

"The right kind of sister is a fine thing to have," Keith answered thoughtfully.

"She will round off one's crudities, break one in, so to speak, for the matrimonial harness. My eldest sister is married: I---"

"I'd feel like shooting a fellow that would take my sister Madge from me," Jack interrupted, savagely, while his eyes glowed with a tender light as they rested upon the photo.

"It's inevitable, though; judging from her looks," Keith replied in a matter-offact way. "Most fellows like to see their sisters married to good men, but you seem to be a very exceptional exception."

"And I mean to remain so," Jack answered, rather shortly.

"But suppose you met some girl that you like better than your sister, what then?" Keith questioned.

"But I have no intention of doing so: Madge is first yet," Jack answered, with a finality in his voice that allowed no room for further supposing.

"Well your case is rare. Now, I am very fond of my sisters, especially the younger one; but I certainly hope to meet a girl that I will love in a dearer way than I do even her." "I hope you may," was all Jack said in answer. And neither that evening nor on any subsequent evening could Keith lead him to speak again about his sister. Tom and Archie sometimes talked

ROBINSON & CLEAVER LTP IRISH LINEN

WORLD RENOWNED FOR QUALITY & VALUE

Established in 1870 at Belfast, the centre of the Irish linen trade, we have developed our business on the lines of supplying genuine Linen goods direct to the public at the lowest nett prices. For manufacturing purposes we have a large fully-equipped power-loom linen factory at Banbridge, Co. Down, hand looms in many cottages for the finest work and extensive making-up factories at Belfast. We have held Royal Warrants o Appointment since the year 1878, and have furnished Mansions, Cottages, Villas, Hotels, Clubs, Institutions, Yachts and Steamships with [complete linen outfits in almost every country in the world.

SOME OF OUR LEADING SPECIALITIES:

Household Linen.

Dinner Napkins, $×$ yd. $1.42 doz. Table-cloths, 23 ×3 yds., $1.42 ca. Linen Sheets, $3.24 pair. Linen Pillow Cases, frilled, .33c each. Linen Huckaback Towels, $1.18 doz. Giass Cloths, $1.18 doz. Kitchen Towels, $1.32 doz.

Embroidered Linen.

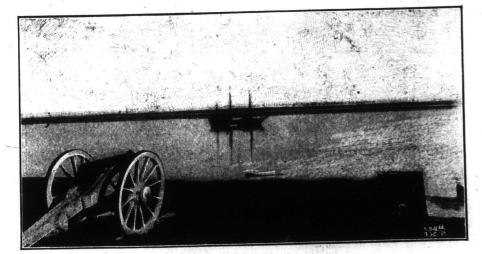

Afternoon Teacloths, from .90c ca. Sideboard Cloths from .90c ca. Cushion Covers from .48c ca. Bedspreads for double .beds, from $3.30 ca. Linen Robes, unmade, from $3.00 cash.

Dress Linen.

White Dress Linen, 44in. wide. soft finish, 48c yard. Coloured Linen, 44 in. wide, 50 shades, 48c yard. Heavy Canvas Linen, in soloure, 48 in. wide, 42c yard.

N.B.—Illustrated Price Lists and samples sent post free to any part of the world. Special care and personal attention devoted to orders from Colonial and Foreign customers.

Hudson Bay Barque in river at York Factory.

"Is she tall like you, or small?" Rather tall and "Are her eyes like yours?" "No; hers are dark brown." "Have you any brothers?" "No."

to themselves about her; but never even a hint of their talk reached Jack. The Ladies' Nightdresses from .94e ea. Chemises trimmed embroidery. .56e ea. Combinations, $1.08 each. Bridal Trousseaux, $32.04. Lay-ettes, $15.00. Irish Lace goods direct from workers at very moderate prices.

Collars & Shirts. entiemen's Collars, made from on en, from $1.18 doz. Dress Shirts, "I a "quality, $1.42 each. Zephyr, Oxfor annel Shirts, with soft or stiff outs a Ladies' All Linen Hemstitched Handker chiefs, ‡ & ‡ in. hems, .84e doz. Ladies' Lines Handkershiefs, hemstitched with drawn thread border, $1.08 doz. Gent's Linen Hem-stitched Handkerchiefs, ‡ in. hem, $1.66 doz. Underclothing & Laces.

Handkerchiefs.

vited him d Archie. ne gave a that was alluring m saw the while wonbe there, ning voice, esn't like

Became on, excus-ieer chap," enly to be say or do ngs," Jack chie. "Yet shell and his head spasm of le quickly ngely, I'm said Jack, ne fellow, oth brains

vised Tom, be like toe same for er towards hable. He and spoke unavoid-

Howard, imself one

"I have three brothers and two sisters; so I am richer than you in family rela-tions anyway," Howard laughed. Then continued his questions.

"Where is your home?" "About one hundred miles from here; my parents are in Europe at present."

"Is your sister with them?"

"My sister?" Jack repeated with a start. Then, bringing himself together, he replied carlessly, "Oh, Madge; yes, of course

"Having a sort of superficial finish to her education, I suppose," Keith Howard remarked drily, watching Jack closely. "Superficial!" Jack echoed, indignantly. "There is nothing superficial about Madge; she goes right to the heart of things.

"Her trip will be very beneficial to her then. Is she a very good observer?"

"Excellent," Jack returned, emphatically. "Can you imagine any one with eves like those missing anything?" "Well, no, hardly," Keith admitted. Then added, "You seem to be very proud of her."

"You're right, I am. I would not part with that picture for a fortune." "The picture!" queried Keith. "I'm talking about your sister."

"Oh, well, it's all the same. Her picture is an inspiration when I cannot you made any engagements for Christsee her. I tell her all my woes and mas. Lennox?" roubles; she listens and never talks back."

photo still remained in its first position. In fact, Tom declared that he would feel quite lonely were it removed, for it seemed as if he were meeting an old friend every time he went into Jack's room. He still peristed in his first surmise that sister Madge was some girl that Jack had fallen deeply in love with, and to prove the correctness of his surmise, said that Jack would not so much as look the second time at any other girl, whereas he used to be quite an admirer of female beauty.

Archie declared that he still was judging from the photo, advised Tom to give up surmising about it, adding philo-sophically, that his own love affairs were all that he could manage, and that all girls were puzzles, more or less.

As Chrsitmas drew near, Jack became rather more lonely. He still whistled, but in a dreary, comfortless way. He often talked to Madge, confiding all his lonely feelings to her.

"He misses sister Madge," Keith Howard observed to himself, after spending the evening with Jack, and finding him very dull and quiet. "I believe I'll ·do it, and sift this thing to the bottom; yes, I will let the consequences be what they may."

A few evenings after this decision he sauntered into Jack's room. It had grown habitual for him now to do so. After a short time of desultory conversation, he asked quite abruptly, "Have "No," Jack answered, unconsciously betraying his loneliness in his voice.

"That's probably more than would "Then I'm glad, Keith returned geni-

If purchasers of this useful material for underwear all the year round would buy the best English make, which can be obtained from all leading Drapers, they would avoid the risks they undoubtedly run with the inferior qualities of Flannelette.

Horrockses' Flannelettes

Made by the Manuacturers of the celebrat ed Longcloths, Twills and Sheetings are the best

"HORROCKSES'" stamped on selvedge every five yards

Awarded the highest prize-The Grand Prix-at Brussels Exhibition, 1910

The Western Home Monthly.

she-

ally. "I have a letter from mother today, telling me to invite you home for Christmas; I wrote her about you, and

"It's a godsend, Keith," Jack interrupted joyously. "I have been dreading facing a Christmas alone. I have been as nearly homesick as a fellow cares to be. Tell your mother that I am delighted to accept her invitation. At Christmas one misses one's folks, you know. I never appreciated father and mother as I do now when the ocean separates us."

"And your sister; surely you miss her?" Keith questioned.

"My sister; oh, yes, Madge," Jack stammered, quite confused.

"Of course I'd give a great deal to see her."

The day before Christmas they arrived at Keith's home.

Jack was delighted with Keith's mother. She was such a loving, comfortable, sunshiny woman, that no one could feel lonely in her presence. The rest of the family were out shopping, she informed her son, then she bade him take his friend to his room.

When they had removed all traces of their journey, Keith conducted Jack downstairs to the den, saying, "They'll all be home by dinner time, any way, so we can amuse ourselves till then. Hello, there's someone, now we are not going to be long alone. Then they heard a merry voice asking, "Where's Keith, mother?"

"My youngest sister," he explained as they heard her coming towards them. Keith went forward to meet her, and that it was meant for me. I had to lie considerably about it, but the joy I had was worth it. And to think of your listening to me, and seeing her photo there all the time—how in the world could you keep silent?"

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

"Well, I did feel angry and indignant that first night I went to your room and saw her photo there. Tom told me in an undertone that she was your sister, that you did not like remarks, and to keep 'mum.' He saw my look, I suppose. I felt like catching you by the throat and demanding an explanation there and then. Then I thought that possibly you had met Madge, and for her sake concluded that discretion and patience was my wisest plan. At length when I got over my feeling about it, I sought your society, determined to solve the matter. You know with what results."

"Then you invited me here simply to bring your investigations to a climax," Jack broke in hoarsely.

"No, Jack," explained Keith earnestly. "I grew to like you immensely, old fellow, even though I could not under-stand things. The more I grew to like you, the more indignant I became with Madge. I felt sure you must have met and become quite intimate. I often mentioned your name in my letters to her and wondered why she was so secretive over the affair, for she is a most ingenious girl. Then I conjectured that you and she had quarreled, and that's why you called her your sister and why she was silent. I wondered why you did not confide in me. My wonder reached a climax when you accepted my invitation with such alacrity. In short, I have been in a series of wonders ever

View of Oxford House.

Jack watched him enviously as he bent since I saw her photo in your room, so his tall form to kiss her. He rose to I determined to invite you here, and, if

Caretu

the construction

against loss of tone.

In the manufacture of every Courlas Piano

nothing but the best

an exact knowledge of how and where to use it, and a vigilant supervision

over every detail of construction

produces a sympathetic

richness of tone, and insures

that the tone will last.

Bourlay, Winter & Leeming 188 Yonge St. Coronto.

determination to use

Complete Catalogue and prices mailed free on application. Easy terms of payments arranged.

When writing advertisers please mention The Western Home Monthly.

wait an introduction. As Keith stepped p back and Jack caught sight of her face, his own flushed with confusion and his self-possession was temporarily lost in embarrassment, while he murmured something incoherently indistinct.

She smiled piquantly up at him, and gave him a pleasant greeting, for he was her brother's friend. But she could not understand the burning glow in his eyes as they met hers, nor the close carresing, lingering hand-clasp. She remained only a few minutes, then excused herself to make ready for dinner. His eyes followed her as she left the room. He was unconscious of the hunger of possession and longing that deepened in them till he felt Keith's scrutinizing look fixed on him. Then pulling himself up he said with a tense voice, "You must think me a cad."

"No; not that," Keith smiled. "But I wish you would solve the riddle how is it that your sister and mine look so much alike? I see that you have never met."

Jack laughed mirthlessly as he explained, "The photo was stuck behind one of my dresser drawers; I jerked the drawer out and the photo came with it."

"Don't look so lugubrious, Jack," said Keith, laughing. "I see it all now. My brother Harry boarded in the same house last year, and must have had your room. That's how the photo got there."

"I always wanted a sister," Jack continued in a mechanical way, unheeding the explanation, "And so I appropriated your's it seems. On the back of the photo was written, "With love from sister Madge." So I just made believe possible, settle the matter. If Madge were to blame, I intended standing by you and giving her some sound brotherly advice and admonition."

The anger in Jack's face was replaced by the reflection of a merry light that twinkled in his eyes. Then, catching an answering gleam of merriment in Keith's, they burst into a roar of laughter that reached Madge upstairs where she was hiding some Christmas gifts. "I like his laugh," she remarked to herself, while she smiled in sympathy. "I like his looks, too, and I believe I am going to like him some, too. Keith wrote so much about him that I seem to know him. I wonder why he looked at me so?"

When their laughter had subsided, Jack asked pleadingly, "You'll keep my secret, Keith, and give me a chance, for I cannot give Madge up without doing all in my power to win her; there is no one else, is there," he added, in a jealous afterthought.

Keith noted the omission of the word "sister." He laughed suggestively, as he answered "She is worth winning; there's nothing superficial about Madge. I'd pity the other fellow, if there were one, for I remember your savage threat of shooting anyone that would try to take 'sister' Madge' from you."

The greater the irritation in the throat the more distressing the cough becomes. Coughing is the effort of Nature to expel this irritating substance from the air passages. Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup will heal the inflamed parts, which exude mucuos, and restore them to a healthy state, the cough disappearing under the curative effects of the medicine. It is pleasant to the taste and the price 25 cents is within the reach o all.

The Western Home Monthly.

"Apple-Blossoms."

By F. J. Banman, Lowe Farm, Man.

street and the car filled with officeworkers and early-morning shoppers had stood motionless on the track twenty minutes waiting the signal to go ahead. The passengers, nervously impatient of the long delay, fidgeted uneasily in their seats and craned their necks in futile attempts to see if the way was clear.

Reyburn, though seemingly indiffer-

There was a block on Twenty-third | ent, to the rapid flight of time, was inwardly fuming with impatience. He was due at an important meeting at his office at nine o'clock sharp, and it was now ten minutes after. An im-mense deal was to be considered, which, if carried through successfully, would add several thousands to his already large fortune.

To some men, the old-fashioned and conservative kind, the enterprise might seem a trifle "shady"; but to Reyburn and his friends, all young and enthusiastic like himself, it seemed a splendid thing, with just risk enough about it to add zest to its successful accomplishment.

Suddenly the bell rang-the way was clear at last, and a wave of relief swept over the weary occupants of the car; but it ended in a nervous twitchthe car did not start. The motorman leaned, with exasperating carelessness, against the brake-handle waiting for a passenger, a girl who came running across the street and sprang up the steps, assisted by the friendly hand of the motorman. A man in the corner pushed back the doors and she entered, flushed and breathless, from her run, and bringing with her a breath of

SMASHING WATCH OFFER! Our great fight against the Watch Trust is Now on. We are determined to maintain our independent Burlington line. And so we are making this offer—the most startling, the most over-whelming offer ever known in the whole history of the watch industry. A more liberal offer to you, the consumer, than any other concern would dare to make to the biggest wholesalers. Frust Prices Smashed

This is the Genuine Burlington Special.

Our very finest watch and the absolute peer of any watch made in the world today. It is, of course, impos-sible to give a full description here, but we submit this short outline so that you may have some idea of how this perfect masterpiece is constructed.

ADJUSTED TO TEMPERATURE The watch is frigerator and run for 24 hours, then it is put into a re-oven of 100 degrees temperature and run for 24 hours. Then it is run in normal temperature for 24 hours. This process is continued until the watch runs the same in all temperatures. Not 10 per cent of all watches made are adjusted to temperature.

ADJUSTED TO ISOCHRONISM A careful adjust-ment so that the as when it is almost run down. Not more than four watches out of every one hundred watches made in the United States have this adjustment.

ADJUSTED TO POSITION Adjusting a watch to position is adjusting it so it runs the same in various positions. You can easily see is a watch is to run absolutely accurate the friction of the bearings must be exactly the same for different positions. This adjustment is never at-tempted on more than a very, very minute percentage of all watches made in the United States.

THE JEWELS used are the finest grade of selected jewels, absolutely flawless. Nineteen of these chosen gems protect every point. It is well understood in the railroad business that 19 jewels is the proper number for maximum efficiency. Nineteen jewels is regarded by experts as the best number for a perfect watch, more jewels often being a source of complication rather than service. The smaller size ladies' watch has 17 jewels, giving this watch the protection needed for a lifetime of service. of service.

At last! An absolutely perfect watch, the magnificent Burlington Special, at a price and on terms within the reach of all. For we are waging the flercest battle against trust methods ever known in the history of this country. We will NOT be bound by any system, no matter how powerful. We call the great factories a trust because they have perfected a system of contracts and agreements with dealers every-where, which enables them to fix prices and control trade. We do not say that the Watch Trust is illegal. But we do insist that their system of "quiet" agreements and price-boosting contracts is very, very unfair. 'quiet'' agreements and price-boosting contracts is very, very unfair.

The Watch Trust has cornered the dealers, but we are determined to win this fight no matter what it costs. So we have decided to offer our very finest watch, the unparalleled Burlington Special, direct to the public on a staggering offer which must simply annihilate unfair competition.

Here Is Our Offer You may get our finest watch besides, if you act at once, you may secure the splendid Burlington Special at the no-dealer price, without profits added—exactly the same price which the wholesale jeweler himself must pay. Think—the quality watch, the world's masterpiece of watch manufacture, for less than half the price usually asked for watches even approaching this one in quality. this one in quality.

fresh country air laden with the perfume of blossoming trees. Just a little country girl she was, with eyes as blue as the April skies above, and soft, sunny hair shaded, but not concealed, by the drooping white hat. Across one arm she carried a great spray of lovely pink and white apple-blossoms, whose fragrance, faint and delicious, fell upon the tired, irritated nerves of the passengers like a sweet and soothing incense, For a moment she stood looking hesitatingly down the lines of closely filled seats; not a place was vacant. But it was only for moment: A fierce, elderly man and a dapper young man on the opposite side sprang to their feet simultaneously, With shy smile and a quaint, little school-girl bow, she accepted the seat of the older man, while the younger one returned man, while the younger one returned to his place, where he sat and stared at the girl with open admiration that Reyburn longed to kick him. But she seemed utterly oblivious of the existence of the dapper young man. Setting herself comfortable in her seat, with the branch of annie-blossoms restwith the branch of apple-blossoms restwith the branch of apple-blossons rest-ing across her knees, she began an in-teresting survey of the advertisements decorating the side of the car, while the other passengers looked admiring-ly and a little enviously at the picture of sweet, innocent girlhood.

7

As for Reyburn, cool-headed business man though he was, he felt irresistibly attracted by the girl from the moment she entered the car, and he gazed with almost reverent admiration of the lovely flower-like face. The fresh, sweet scent of the apple-blossoms brought back to him memories of the old coun-try home where his boyhood had been passed, and as he recalled the old scenes to his mind there rose within him a bitter distaste for his present life, for the ceaseless grind and fret of moneymaking. The thought of what his mother would have said could she have known that the boy, of whom she had always been proud, was fast developing into a grasping money-lover, made him wince and brought the tears to his eyes. A sudden home sick longing for his old home and a sight of his mother's face came over him, and he would have given all his wealth, just to be at home again and to hear his mother's voice once more.

With an effort he roused himself from his dream and became aware that a pair of wonderful blue eyes were regarding him with pitying earnestness. As his eyes met hers she smiled, the frank, innocent smile of a child with the tender sympathy of a woman.

And to him that smile was an angel's blessing, and he vowed to himself that henceforth he would be a better man and would have nothing more to de

had to he joy

ink of

ng her

in the

lignant

room

old me

your marks,

y look,

you by xplana-

ht that nd for on and length

out it, ned to

h what

aply to limax," rnestly. old felunderto like

e with ve met [often ters to secreta most ed that that's nd why ny you wonder

ted my 1 short,

rs ever

Maage ding by rotherly

oom, so

and, if replaced ht that hing an ent in f laughs where s gifts. to herthy. "I ve I am Keith seem to

r.,

looked ubsided. ceep my nce, forit doing

re is no a jeal-

he word vely, as vinning; Madge. ere were e threat try to t the more ing is the substance nsumptive ich exude state, the fects of the and the DOUBLE JEWELS—that is, bearings with two jew-els each are used in the Burling-ton. A watch so jeweled requires very much less attention than watches jeweled in any other way.

MAIN SPRING The two points in which Americans have yet to compete with the Swiss are mainspring and hairspring. Although watch springs are made now in almost all parts of the world, no one has ever been able to equal these Swiss springs. The strain is almost absolutely constant, no matter whether the watch is fully wound or is nearly run down. The Swiss springs used in the Burlington Watch do not crystalize with usage and breakage is very rare. These springs will run a watch from 32 to 36 hours.

SWISS BREGUET HAIRSPRING are imported for the same reason as the important mainspring. They are far bet-ter than any other hairspring made.

THE U SPRING REGULATOR allows adjustments to the smallest fraction of a second.

FACTORY FITTED Every Burlington Special move-ment is fitted into the case right at the factory where the movement was made — into a case made for that watch. No looseness or wearing of parts against the sides of the case. No rattle or jar.

parts against the sides of the case. No rattle or jar. OUR DIRECT GUARANTEE means that we will complaint either as to workmanship or material, in either watch or case, at any time, without red tape or formality. Note, we do not say within ten or twenty years, but at any time. Our guarantee, of course, does not include cleaning or breakages caused by careless-ness or accidents, or tinkering with the watch; but, if anything is found wrong with the watch in any way, we will replace the part complained of, or we will re-part the watch free of charge, or we will give you a new watch absolutely free, as you may elect Note: This years, for any length of time if anything is found wrong with the material – absolutely without restric-tion

WRITE TODAY for our Free Watch Book explain-ing every detail of the Burlingtor Watch.

AND WITHOUT MONEY DOWN — We will send the watch to any responsi-ble person without asking you for a single cent in advance. There are no formali-ties. There is not the slightest obligation on your part of any kind or nature except to compare it carefully with any watch you ever saw, no matter what the price. Then, if not satisfactory, you may return it to us at our expense. But if you find this watch the most stupendous bargain you ever dreamed of, just slip the watch into your pocket and pay us the Rock-Bottom price, either in cash or on terms of $2.50 a month, just as you prefer.

Address

You pay exactly the same price whether you buy for cash or on time. We allow the public the advantage of these $2.50 a month terms, in order to quickly attract national at-tention to our great anti-trust fight. So that every-body can afford to get a Burlington watch at once.

tention to our great anti-trust fight. So that eve body can afford to get a Burlington watch at one Watch Book Free Our remarkable Watch Book now sent free on request. We are determined that the public shall be posted on the startling conditions existing in the watch industry throughout the entire country. We want the pub-lic to know the real truth, the inside truth about watch prices and watch values. The Secret selling methods, price-boosting contracts, "quiet" agreements to uphold prices—all are completely explained in this book. Besides, we tell you the whole story of our greatanti-trust fight and our $1,000 challenge to giant competitors. Write NOW for the Free Watch Book at once. If you ever expect to own one, you should send for this great book without an instant's delay. You ought to know the facts about these inside prices. Tou ought to be able to judge watch values for yourself. Be-sides, we also explain our wonderful anti-trust offer direct to the consumer. No obligations. Just send us a postal or letter, or your name and address on this cou-you at once, FREE, prepald.

Street Street ON THE LIPPING OF THE STREET

BURLINGTON WATCH CO. Dept. 7516 Western Office: 28 Carlton Street WINNIPEG, CANADA

Eastern Office: 12 Wellington St., East TORONTO, CANADA

with questionable enterprises, but would stick to the old methods, as his father before him had.

Just then the girl rang the bell and arose to leave the car. As she moved down the aisle, Reyburn looked at her almost imploringly, hoping for one last look from those tender blue eyes. But she did not glance toward him and his heart sank at the thought that he his heart sank at the thought that he might never see her again.

Yes, it had come to that John Reyburn, who had been given up by mothers with marriageable daughters as a hardenede bachelor had fallen hopelessly in love with a little country lassie of whose existence he did not dream half an hour before.

She was close to him now, and as she passed he felt something touch his hand like a caress, and then she was gone.

Looking down he saw a tiny cluster of apple-blossoms lying on his knee where she had dropped it-was it an accident or intention? His heart thrilled with delight at the latter thought. Glancing hastily around to see that no one was looking he pressed the fragrant blossoms to his lips, and pocket.

then placed them carefully in his breast-The three men who had waited long and impatiently for Reyburn's arrival at his office were astonished and disgusted at his positive refusal to enter into their plans. What could have come over him? they indignantly in quired. He had been the keenest one

The Western Home Monthly.

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

Mi

.lister

of al

a tir

falls.

float

abou

the 1

of h

the

a bo

extra

pock

sleev

ofs was on pant

sid da

gei bri

he

as

wi

an ha

ja

W

ot

yo

st

de

Sh

inspires confidence. To be well-dressed is not to be over-dressed but to be attired in suitable clothing.

The Curzon tailoring is something more than ordinary workmanship, just as the Curzon cut is something outside the realm of mere draftsmanship. It means Distinction and Character. That is why well-dressed men, not only in Canada, but all over the World, wear Curzon clothes.

Overcoat to Measure (Carriage and Duty Paid) FROM $8.60 (Valued by clients at $29).

Most Wonderful Tailoring Creation of the Century. Perfect Style, Perfect Cut, Perfect Finish, Perfectly Trimmed.

MADE FROM REAL BRITISH MATERIALS.

It will pay you to write for our explanatory booklet and free patterns of cloth, fashion-plates and unique list of testimonials. With these will be found our registered system of self-measurement and tape measure, so that you may with perfect accuracy and a degree of certitude equal to that of a local tailor, take your own measurements in the privacy of your own home. Complete satis-faction or we refund money. Will your own tailor guarantee this?

One Silver and Two Gold Medal Awards. Read our unique list of unsolicited testimonials. $25,000 forfeited if not absolutely genuine.

of all of them to put the deal through, and now to fail them like this.

They had always thought that back of all his brilliant business abilty there was a streak of old fashioned sentiment ality and over-scrupulousness, but they were sorry that it should crop out like this particular time. Well, fortunately there were other men with no such conscientious scruples, who would jump at the chance of being let in on such a good thing.

But John Reyburn did not care for their reproaches. He went to his work that morning with a lighter heart and cleaner conscience than he had known for years.

The red-headed office boy looked somewhat surprised when his employer told him to bring a glass of water to his desk, and he was still more surprised when that usually matter-of-fact gentleman took a faded cluster of appleblossoms from his pocket and placed it tenderly and carefully in the water.

"Gee! The old man's got it bad for certain!" exclaimed the boy, with a knowing wink at the stenographer. Miss Phelps tossed her head in disdain. She didn't think much of anybody who would make such a fuss over a tiny little bunch of apple-blooms, and withered at that. She had presented Mr. Reyburn with a gorgeous American beauty just the other morning and later in the day, she found it reposing in the waste basket. Well, to be sure, there was no accounting for tastes!

For a month Reyburn haunted the Twenty-third Street cars in the hope of Day who acted as your good angel.

that I can scarcely realize she is 18. I am very proud of that picture, she continued after a pause, for I was the cause of its being taken. She came to see me one day last April and brought me that beautiful branch of apple-blossoms from her favorite tree at home. She looked so sweet in her white dress and hat with the blossoms in her arms, that I persuaded her to go with me to a studio and and have some photographs taken. Is it not a charming pose.?"

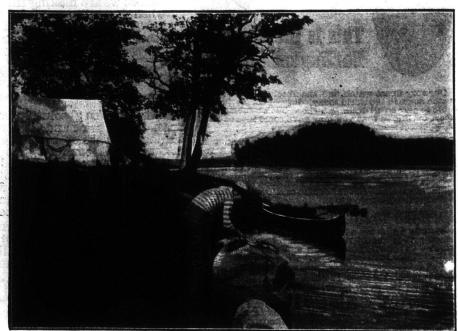

"It is, indeed," replied Reyburn; "she was standing just in that position when I first saw her."

"You saw her!" ejaculated Mrs. Caswell, "When did you see her?"

"One morning last April on the cars." It must have been the very day she came to see you. Of course, I did not know who she was and have ridden daily on the Twenty-third street cars in the hope of seeing her again and had about become[#] discouraged when something led me here to-day, and I find to my great joy that my little apple-blossom girl is the granddaughter of my dearest friend."

And then he told her how he had been on the point of entering into a doubtful business venture and had been saved by one glance from those lovely trustful eyes.

When he finished his old friend took both his hands in hers. "My dear boy," she said with tears in her eyes, "I am so glad you were saved from an act you would ever after regretted, and I am proud that it was my little April

When writing advertisers please mention The Western Home Monthly.

Camping at Fort Frances

once again seeing his little girl, as he fondly called her to himself, but he was doomed to disappointment. And then just as he had given up in despair of ever seeing her again, the unexpected

One evening he went to call upon an elderly lady, a friend of his mother's, and with whom he had always been a favorite. While he was waiting for his hostess to appear, his glance wandered idly around the room, and finally rested upon a photogragh in a handsome silver frame on the mantel. With an exclamation of surprise and joy, he hastily crossed the room for a closer No, he was not mistaken; it was his apple-blossom girl standing just as she had stood in the car that April morning, with the branch of appleblossoms across one arm and the lovely face lit by a half-tender, half-amusing

Was there ever such an adorable So absorbed was he in the contemplation of the picture that he was not aware of Mrs. Caswell's presence until her voice at his elbow arous-

So you are admiring my little granddaughter's picture are you? "she asked with a smile. I find most people do." "Your granddaughter!" exclaimed Reyburn in amazement. "I had no idea your granddaughter was a young lady. I thought she was a child."

"Ah, that is because I have always spoken of her as my little granddaughter, and, indeed, it as been such a short time since she was a little girl than ever."

"April Day?" he asked eagerly "Is that her name?" "Yes; rather an absurd little name is it not? As you know, my daughter's married name is Dayton, and when her little girl was born she named her for that month. Naturally, her schoolmates took to calling her April Day as a nickname, and we have all fallen into the same habit. The name suits her so well." "Does she come to see you often?" asked Reyburn with his eyes on the photograph.

"Not very. You see, she is such a thorough little country-girl and devoted to her home that she very seldom comes to see me here, but she insists upon my spending a great deal of my time with I am going there next week," her. she added in a kindly tone, seeing his look of disappointment. "I shall probably stay the remainder of the summer, and they are always glad to have my friends come to see me while with them." When John Reyburn brought his charming young bride back from their honeymoon his fashionable friends were astonished that instead of occupying his magnificent suburban house he should buy a neglected but picturesque old farm, whose chief attraction was a splendid apple orchard, on the sunny slope of the hill.

"Well, of all the freaks!" they said to each other. "But, then, John Reyburn always was queer, and since he married that old-fashioned little country-girl, I suppose he will be worse

18. I he cone cause to see ght me lossoms e. She white ossoms her to d have not a n; "she n when s. Cas-

1911

he cars. ay she did not en daily in the d about ning led y great om girl dearest

he had into a ad been e lovely nd took r boy," , "I am an act , and I e April gel." Winnipeg Sept., 1911 A Morning Call. Miss Warren's Visitor and Mrs. Grayson's Revolver. By Ethel Watts Mumford. Miss Warren turned her head and her involuntary hostess - noting the listened intently. There was a pause mass of golden hair, the sweet, dimpled of absolute silence, followed by a creak, face with its childish blue eyes and a tingle, and the softest of soft foothumorous, inquisitive mouth; no defalls. Miss Warren rose, gathered the tail of the frilled, embroidered, flowertrimmed robe de chambre and the velvet floating folds of her azure tea-gown tips of tiny high-heeled "mules" escapabout her, and walked to the door of er her. A look of relief crossed her the narrow corridor leading to the rear pallid face. of her flat. She glanced at the silver clock on

"All right, Gaston," she said, and walked through to the pantry, into the the mantelshelf-half after one. From a box on the tea-table at her side she corridor and thence to the sitting-room, where the lamp cast a warm, shaded extracted a snub-nosed, double-barreled glow over a miscellaneous collection of pocket deringer and slipped it inside her objects of art and feminine luxuries. There she paused. "Which way do I get out?" she inquired calmly. sleeve, where it hung in the loose loop of silk, invisible but convenient. All was still. Turning through the door "That's the door over there," Miss on the left, she found herself in the Warren nodded in its direction. "But pantry-the rear room being the dining if I were you, and I might be followed, room opening upon the fire-escape. I wouldn't rush right out like that. With a snap she turned on the electric light. Before her, blinking at the light, stood a slim young woman in a black friend of mine stopping with me-I

OUR CORONATION PREMIUM.

We wish to thank our friends for their quick response to the King George Premium offer announced in our August issue. Just as soon as the number left our presses, our readers got interested in what is, undoubtedly, the most generous premium offer we have yet made. While our subscribers are made up of many nationalities it is evident that they are one in their respect and regard for British Institutions. From every corner of the West new subscribers are being added, both old and new are thus fulfilling the easy conditions on which a beautiful portrait of His Majesty King George can be secured. The King appears in full Coronation robes. The picture is 10 in. x 13 in., printed on fine art paper in six colours, giving splendid effect to the gorgeous robes, and a life-like expression to the whole picture. It is arranged for framing, and will add beauty and dignity to any room. In the years to come it will be highly valued as commemorative of what is believed will prove the most splendid event of this century. We may add that we secured our supply at a very heavy cost, but we ourselves take such pride in the picture that we would like to see it in every Western home, and are offering it free to our readers-the only condition being that one new subscription for one or two years be sent with the application.

Further particulars will be found in our advertising columns.

The Western Home Monthly. Salt goes in or on practically everything we eat-which shows the importance of using only pure, wholesome salt. Order oel Windsor Table. Salt is pure salt-all salt-and nothing but salt. It is the standby in all Canadian homes. Your grocer is sure to have it.'

BRIGGER'S Pure Jams and Orange Marmalade

Put up in 16 oz. glass jars and in 51b. sanitary double-top gold lined tin pails.

Brigger's Pure Jams are made from clean, sound Niagara grown Fruit and Granulated erly "Is le name ughter's then her her for schoolril Day ll fallen me suits often ?"

on the

such a devoted m comes upon my me with week," eing his all probsummer, nave my h them. ght his om their nds were ccupying ouse he turesque ion was e sunny hey said hn Reysince he little be worse walking-suit, a handbag slung at her side by a shoulder strap.

The girl's face was deadly white, her dark hair disarranged, her eyes, intelligent and black, were turned in a hard, bright stare upon the woman before her.

"What are you going to do?" she asked in a low voice.

"That depends," answered Miss Warren, "on what you intend to do."

"I intend to get out of here, and without any row, too," the intruder announced, thrusting. her ungloved hands deep into her pockets of her jacket.

"What's your hurry?" inquired Miss Warren.

"I'm running away," confessed the other. "Put out that light, will you?" Miss Warren considered. "Well, if you're running away, nobody will think you would take refuge where any one is awake. Did you break the windows? -No? Then lock it from where you stand, on the inside. You've already done it? Weren't you afraid to cut off your exit?"

The girl shook. her head. "I was more afraid of their spotting where I went in. I took my chance on getting out through the apartment. Please put out that light! "Better leave it," insisted Miss Warren. "However, come on through." She stepped aside as she spoke, and smiled invitingly. "After you my dear Alphonse."

The girl had been taking stock of gave you the keys and you let yourself in, so the janitor did'nt see you-understand?"

The girl gazed at her in amazement. Mean that?" she said suspiciously.

Miss Warren nodded. "Oh, yes, I mean it! No girl runs away from home unless she has good reason-certainly, when she takes to the fire-escapes at this time of night."

"He struck me," explained the girl sullenly. She lifted her cuff, revealing a bruise. "My husband!" she added fiercely.

"You'll forgive him," said Miss Warren cheerfully.

"Do you think so?" The tone was so icily that Miss Warren looked into the glittering black eyes before her a moment before she dropped her own. "Of course, I don't know," she answered lamely. The other sneered. "Of course you don't How should you? You couldn't be a married woman and look as you do-you're a baby in experience. Look at me! You could blunt a gimlet on my face. That's what matrimony does for a woman!" Was he so very "Poor thing! brutal?"

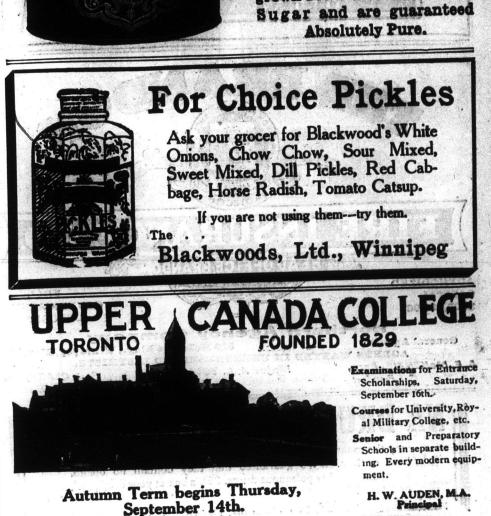

"Beast!"

"You didn't-do anything-hurt himor—when you left?"

Miss Warren's eyes were wide with a new suspicion and terror.

The girl laughed harshly. "Kill him, you mean? No-I didn't-I thought of it, though-now I wish I had!"

Miss Warren sighed with relief. "Oh,

po Fu

sh

sit tic

you'd doctor me?" inquired Mrs. Grayson. "You didn't write it on a placard, of course," replied the hostess, "but you might just as well have done so. You're too ingenuous, my girl."

"Go help yourself, anyway. I've relieved your fears.'

"Come, too," said the guest, her quick glance sweeping the walls of the room.

"No," said Miss Warren, laughing again; "the telephone isn't here; it's in my room. My word! You're suspicious."

Mrs. Grayson started, the expression of annoyance deepening. "Well, I must be a sieve!" she exclaimed. "For goodness' sake, are you a human Marconi station? I didn't want to hurt your feelings, you know, after you've been so white to me; but it's been so long since I was treated with any consideration that I get leery if any one is half decent to me, and you -well-you haven't any reason to be kind."

"Oh, yes, I have," was the cordial rejoiner; "every reason — the best of reasons! I was bored to extinction when you dropped in-bored, but not a bit sleepy. I have insomnia, you see; didn't want to take a powder—they in-terfere with my work, I find. Like all "would-be's' I'm proud of my art, and want to do my best. Thanks to you, I've spent a very interesting hour-so come on-I'll go with you, and you can rifle the ice-box."

Mrs. Grayson smiled for the first Railroad building in Saskatchewan.

"Miss-whatsmile was attractive. ver-your-name-is-

"Miss Ely," said Miss Warren promptly.

"Miss Ely, would you mind putting up that revolver that's lying in the loop of your sleeve? I've a horrid fear of firearms."

Miss Warren blushed crimson. 'Really I ----" she hesitated. "I'd forgotten I had it here. However, you have quite disarmed me, Mrs. Grayson. I'll put my revolver here on the mantelshelf if you'll take yours from your pocket and put it there, too."

It was the guest's turn to start and color. "Well, Miss Marconi, it's X-ray eves you have. I've never met a girl with all the modern improvements before. Here goes!" She drew an up-todate magazine revolver from her jacket pocket and laid it beside the snub-nosed derringer. She drew away nervously. "It's his," she almost whispered, "and -it was with that I wanted to kill him-I believe I would have if I hadn't been afraid of the explosion and the mess. All women are like that, I guess. Aren't you?"

Miss Warren shook her head. really don't know," she answered. never had to use mine, you see, but Y feel so safe when I have it. I don't really suppose I could hit the side of a house at two paces; but it is a comforting sensation to hold one in one's hand, isn't it? You see, I felt I could shoot right through the sleeve, if I had to; just slip my hand inside-so- It would have spoiled my teapt., 1911

Mrs. Grayplacard, of

"but you so. You're . I've re-guest, her alls of the laughing here; it's lou're sus-expression ell, I must led. "For a human t want to now, after e: but it's eated with et leery if e, and you ason to be the cordial he best of extinction d, but not a, you see; r-they inl. Like all y art, and ks to you, and you the first xible, boy-

g hour-so

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

gown, or set it on fire, perhaps. I suppose. you thought the same thing. Funny, wasn't it? And how fortunate we didn't happen to be two foolish women, and shot each other out of sheer nervousness!"

"Isn't it, though? What a funny situation, anyway! It was a very ticklish minute."

"I felt very thumpy," admitted Miss Warren. "I do still," confessed Mrs. Grayson.

"You'll find the brandy in a little silver flask on my dressing-table; just enough for you. I think you are justified.'

The slim, black figure disappeared between the curtains into the bedroom and reappeared with the flask. "Soda?" she said with a business-like directness.

"Ice-box," said Miss Warren. "For she continued; "I never touch vou," anything."

"Nor I," said Mrs. Grayson, "except as medicine. Let's make it ginger ale.

They adjourned to the pantry and turned on the light. The larder was well stocked-cheese, crackers, cold chicken, half a cantaloup, the remains of a lobster salad.

"Miniaturing isn't a starvation game, evidently," observed the girl with a grin. "Are you your own cook?" "No-o, I'm not useful at all-only ornamental." 'You're that, all right," declared Mrs. Grayson with enthusiasm. "Pretty as you are, and a good sort, too, I don't see why you're not a broker's bride."

leading nowhere - one of those strange detached events of life that suggests so much, leave such a deep impression, and seem to have no connection with the woof and color of one's rational existence.

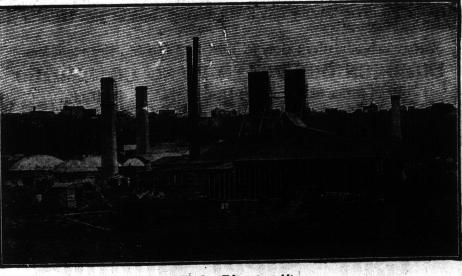

The cat stretched, sphinx-like, on the table, contemplated the dissimilar companions with unwinking eyes of liquid wisdom, seeming, to comprehend the situation and find it matter for serious thought, even for vague unrest, for the tip of an anxious tail twitched time to the quick flow of talk.

Four o'clock tinkled from the clock in the front room. Already night had given place to blue dawn. The rattle of an occasional vehicle echoed in the street. The girl in black raised her eyebrows.

"Four!" she exclaimed. "How the time has bolted! I'll slip now, I think. Everything is quiet. I don't believe he's missed me yet. I'll go down to the Grand Central as if I was due for an early train-then come out as if I'd just arrived by one. I'll have to find some little hotel before there is much going on. I'm sure, Miss Ely, I'm more than grateful to you-I shan't forget any of it, you can bet your paint-box."

"You don't Miss Warren nodded. know how I've enjoyed my evening-or morning, rather. I don't say 'come again,' because it never would be the same, would it? You wouldn't be you if you arrived at the front door, rang for the elevator, and gave your card to the maid."

The hostess accepted the compliment | "Not like me at all," laughed Mrs.

Brick Works-Edmonton, Alta.

and a plate of cold salad simultaneous- | Grayson. "T'd have more sense than ly. "Only a moment ago you were ad-vising me to stick to a single blessed-couldn't have had the lark of it; talked

Here are hose for men, women and children-and six pairs are guaranteed to wear without holes, rips or tears for six months. If any pairs wear out, we give you new hose free. We give you a signed-in-ink guarantee and a return coupon for each of the six pairs. These are the famous Holeproof Hose that have sold so phenomenally in the United States. 9,0000,000 pairs will be worn this year. 95 per cent of these hose, last year, outlasted the six months' guarantee.

The Western Home Monthly.

We pay for yarn an average of seventy cents per pound. Common yarn sells for thirty cents.

Get This Mark How to Order

How to Urder Choose your color, grade and size from the list below and state clearly just what you wish. One size and one. grade in each box. Colors only may be assorted as desired. Six pairs are guaranteed six months except when stated otherwise. Men's Socks-Sizes 95 to 12. Colors: black. light tan, dark tan, pearl, arey blue, gun-metal, malberry. In light weight, 6 pairs $1.50 (ame in medium weight in above colors and in black with white feet, 6 pairs $1.00. Light and ertra light weight feet, 6 pairs $1.00. Light and ertra light weight in the set of the state of the site weight interestied). 6 pairs $2.00. Light and ertra light weight USTRE SOX. 6 pairs $3.00. Pure thread-silk sox. 5 pairs (guaranteed three months) $2.00. Medium worted merino in black, tan, pearl, any and natural, 6 pairs airs (guaran worsted merino

TO DEALERS-Write for our agency proposition. Excellent opportunity, Thousands of dealers in U. S. making big hosiery sales with "Holeproof."

HOLEPROOF HOSIERY CO. OF CANADA, Ltd., 35 Bond St., London, Canada

Tre Your Hose Insured?

Don't wait. Save the next six mon of darning. Send in order now, w How to Make You

$60,000 a Year for Inspection

teed

22011001027.63

Get. This Box

We spend more than $60,000 a year merely for inspection -to see that each pair is perfectly made. These hose are light weight, soft and sheer as any cotton hose on the market. With all their advantages they sell at common hose prices. You save nothing by buying hose that wear out in one-sixth of the time "Holeproof" last. Don't darn any more when there is no need to. Get "Holeproof" today. If your dealer hasn't "Holeproof" on sale, send the money to us in any con-venient way and we'll send you what you want, charges prepaid.

eeth. The liss-whats Warren nd putting

ng in the a horrid

l crimson. ed. "I'd wever, you s. Grayson. he mantelfrom your start and it's X-ray met a girl ements bean up-toher jacket snub-nosed nervously. ered, "and ed to kill if I hadn't n and the

at, I guess.

"I head. wered. "Ī see, but I t. I don't e side of a is a comie in one's elt I could eeve, if I d insideed my tea-ness and leave married cussedness alone."

Y

The girl glanced at her companion and laughed shrewdly. "Well, I meant both," she said engimatically, "and I hope you'll be lucky whatever you do. you' and "good luck' and 'gesundheit,' hope you'll be lucky whatever you do. I like you. Here's your buzz-water, and here's .nine. I drink to my hostess -her very excellent health, with the sincere thanks and appreciation of hers truy-Mrs. Grayson of Nowhere."

Miss Warren bowed and smiled. "To my esteemed and self-invited guest-since finding this kind all others wills be distastefil - here's her very excellent healt 1, her successful flight from tyranny, and the sincere good wishes of hers cordially-Miss Ely, of Miniature negotiating fire-escapes. My revolver Bohemia."

"You talk like a book," smiled the girl.

Mis Warren attacked the salad. "A good one, I hope."

"Good as Bradstreet and - money talks better than anything else. Can I say more?" "You might ask me if I wanted some chicken."

It was a very agreeable supper they ate in the pantry. The intruder in the black walking-suit forgot her domestic trouble; the girl in blue chiffon forgot her ennui. They were heartily enjoying the unexpected entr'acte in the crowded play in their lives. Here was wit for wit, laugh for laugh, shrewd comment and rare philosophy. They might never meet again; it was unlikely that either would ever repeat I was visiting? That 'Miss Ely' busithe story of that night. The episode ness didn't go down, you know." was unique, beginning out of nothing, "Really-I'd forgotten that.

as we have, bluffed and held each other up, if things hadn't-well just happened. I wouldn't have you find out what but not 'au revoirs.'" "Inartistic things," assented Miss Warren. "But I'm awfully glad I was home when you called."

"I'll get my traps, if you don't mind." Mrs. Grayson rose, drank the last drop in her glass, and turned toward the sitting-room, unsnapped the strap from the black handbag, folded it and slipped it in her pocket. "Don't need that now,' she smiled. "It was convenient when please."

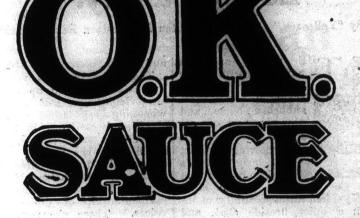

Miss Warren hesitated. "It's been amusing. Suppose we swap. I'm not usually so silly, and yours is the best, I know, and if you don't want to-"Nonsense, here! Swap? Well, rather! You've been a brick to me, and the best sort of entertainer, too. I'll keep your pop-gun for luck-and-mine will play you square." "Good-by," said the hostess, extending her hand. "Good-by," said the guest, gripping the extended palm.

"If any one meets you in the hall," added Miss Warren, "or says anything, tell them you've been stopping with me, and are off to catch an early train." "Do you

The girl smiled irresistibly. mind telling me the name of the lady Say

A delicious sauce, FRUITY in character. Appetising with fish, poultry, meats (hot or cold), in fact, with anything or everything. More, it is a REAL DIGESTIVE.

1000 Guineas

We guarantee every ingredient of the "O.K." Sauce to be absolutely pure and of the finest quality only, and the above sum will be paid to anyone who can prove to the contrary, whether by analysis or otherwise.

MADE ONLY IN LONDON, ENGLAND BY

GEORGE MASON & CO., LIMITED

AGENTS FOR CANADA:

Darby & Turnbull, 179 Bannatyne Ave., Winnipeg, Man.

The Western Home Monthly.

Miss Warren, then-and, by the way, Mrs. Grayson, that story of yours about your cruel husband didn't go down either. I don't want to know what the truth is-I'd rather notmuch rather not."

12

Mrs. Grayson's eyes shifted uneasily, then she laughed. "You're a whited sepulchre," she said — "you and your golden hair and baby eyes and pink cheeks-you ought to be a fox-faced ferret-Miss Warren-am I right this time?

"I'll prove it," the vision in blue remarked, crossing to her escritoire, and, returning, held out an opened envelope, bearing an address, Miss Eleonore Warren. "Read the inclosure," she said; "it may interest you."

In a few formal phrases a celebrated detective agency requested the co-opera-tive services of the addressee.

The girl in the black whistled, almost dropped her handbag, and was overcome by a mixture of amusement and wonder. "I'll be hanged!" she cried softly. "You're a female detec-tive! I'll be — Let me get my breath!"

"I don't like to hurry you," Miss Warren broke in, "but if you going to be off before the house wakes you'd better move. I hate to lose you but-

Mrs. Grayson put down the bag, walked rapidly to the escritoire, scribbled something on a sheet of paper, folded it and thrust it an envelope. "There," she said, "read that when I'm gone. Good-by again - and would it be too much to ask-you've been so good to me-I'm not such a bad lot, really, and I-would you let me kiss you good-by?" "You're a clever woman," said Miss Warren seriously. "Do, for Heaven's sake, use your cleverness to some good end. You can, you know. Kiss me. There! Good luck, poor girl." Their lips met. There was an odd look in the dark woman's intelligent eyes as she opened the door and hurried down the faintly-lighted hallway.

Miss Warren sighed as she slipped the bolt. She paused for a moment of introspection, then turned to the writng-desk and tore open the envelope left by her late companion.

You're the whitest woman that ever lived and you'll forgive me who will never forget you.

J. H. Bailey,

Alias "Pipe-Stem Jimmy."

"And I kissed him! I kissed him!" cried Miss Warren, her hands to her flaming cheeks. And I am glad of it!" she added.

Enduring Tonal Beauty

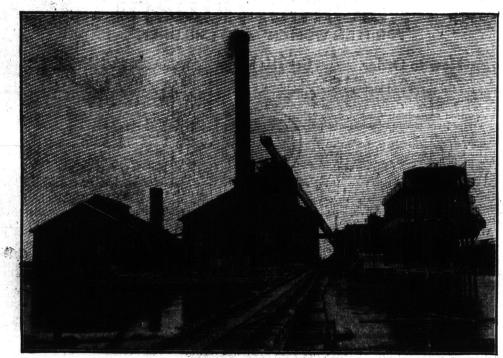

Buying your piano is a serious matter. Weigh it well before deciding. You have seen many pianos lose tone, become "tinny" and flat after two years use. It's easy to avoid that mistake. Simply spend a few minutes looking over the "Dominion" "Dominion" or reading our catalogue, and you'll see why the grand piano frame of the

"Dominion" Canada's 'Old Reliable' Piano

will hold to its first rich beauty of tone for a generation or more. "Dominions" are built to endure in any climate--the iron arch frame cannot warp or bend with the tremendous strain of the strings-it holds them firm and ever in tone. That's why "Dominions" are the favored instrument in over 80,000 homes-they hold their tone and are built to endure. Why not a

Our Selling Methods Permit factory prices and easy terms. We do not burden our prices with heavy expenses for artists' "testimonials," lavish city ware-rooms, etc. Result—You save $100.00 to $150.00. Get our Catalogue of Pianos, Organs and Players. A small deposit will put the instrument of your choice in your

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

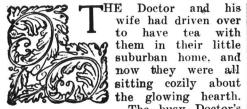

Atikokan Iron Works-Port Arthur

Love's Fallacy.

By "Yallasach." Specially Written for Western Home Monthly.

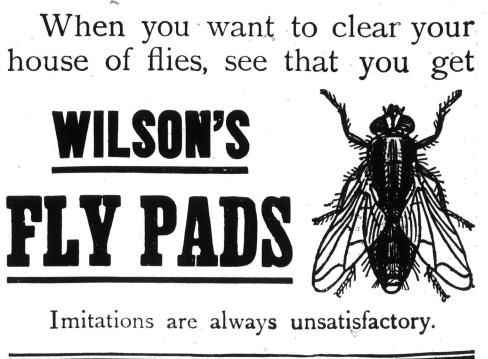

the glowing hearth. The busy Doctor's visits were, of necessity, rare. It was not often the two men, friends since boyhood days, had an opportunity of indulging in a quiet fireside chat, and soon they drifted into one of those sweet, yet sad, conversations of remin-iscence, which have for their burden the magic words, "Do you remember? The women listened, leaning back contented in their chairs.

To Camelia it was an hour of perfect peace, for the Doctor, in the professional part of his visit, had set at rest certain fears that had been troubling her for many days, and now, after a short time of waiting, she could look forward to the joyful ending.

Watching the dancing flames, dreaming dreams, she was oblivious to her surroundings until she felt the Doctor's kindly hand upon her head and heard his voice saying, "I know a little girl who is tired and must go to bed right away." "Oh." she protested. "I am not tired. Must I go so soon." But he was firm, and as the Doctor's wife kissed her good night she begged them to come soon again, for she had known | tell his wife later. "But tell me," Mrs.

HE Doctor and his and loved them both from childhood. The sound of their voices, mellowed by distance, floated up to her, making sleep impossible, and feeling an overwhelming desire to be nearer them, she wrapped herself up in a warm com-forter and stole silently down stairs again. In the darkest corner of the library she tucked herself up on the couch, far enough away not to be detected but near enough to enjoy the companionship of the sound of their voices. There she rested happy and content, smiling to herself as she thought of the little trick she had played on them in disobeying orders. Soon she heard them moving about in the other room and then the three came out into the hall. She heard the Doctor's wife enquiring for her wraps and Horace bounding up the stairs, three steps at time, in quest of them. Then, in the moment that followed, she heard the Doctor's wife anxiously enquire, "How did you find her?" In-stinctively Camelia knew the "her" require, "How did you find her?" ferred to herself, and she listened eagerly for his reply, but happily, too, for had she not that very afternoon had his assurance that all would be well. She knew, too, that Mrs. Moore shared all her husband's professional secrets and that he would tell her exactly how everything was. Therefore, it was with a feeling of uneasiness she heard him reply that he would rather interlocking so perfectly, no driving storm can penetrate. SEND DIMENSIONS OF YOUR ROOF AND GET QUOTATION Nobbs & Eastman, 839 Henry Ave., Winnipeg WESTERN DISTRIBUTORS: The Galt Art Metal Co., Ltd., Galt, Ont ty ng. You years use.

over the ano frame

10

hods sy terms. ices with "testioms, etc. $150.00. s, Organs t will put

e in your Man. ED

ocks

The Western Home Monthly.

Moore insisted. "I am very anxious." 'Well," he said, in the gruff tone he used when under the stress of great feeling, "She hasn't one chance in a hundred. Her heart is very bad. It will be a case where either mother or child must be sacrificed. But mind," he added, 'she must never know. It is my only hope of pulling her through." Terrified and breathless Camelia leaned back in the shadows as the full import of these awful words sank into her brain. He had deceived her then, but only for her own good, but how could she ever die. Stunned, bewildered, she lay there, her mind a chaos, groping blindly for some comforting, sustaining thought. As in a dream she heard the hall door close on their departure. Then, out of the stillness, there floated up to her another sound-her husband replenishing the furnace for the night. Her husband — he must never know she had heard, and instantly she was on her feet speeding up the stairs to her room. It was the first time she had ever wilfully deceived him, she reflected, as she placed a lighted lamp on the table near her bed and laid a magazine on the coverlet to stimulate reading, but he must not know she was worried over anything. How well she remembered the first time she met him. It was on a visit to her cousin Francis, and this quiet scholarly man had dropped in to spend the evening. He seemed to be on such good terms of friendship with the family and, yes, she did believe that he, at first, seemed to pay particular attention to Francis. to the sitting room, found his wife Likely that was why her cousin had cozily esconced on the sofa, chatting over, Horace would take an interest in Francis, and everything would be as before she entered their lives.

Her husband's entrance abruptly put an end to those thoughts. "What! not asleep yet?" he asked, then noting the book, "Have you been reading?" "No, I couldn't sleep," she answered, evading his last question. "Horace, I'd like to have Francis here for awhile," she continued, and wondered if he cared as little as his tone implied, as he answered without turning his head, "Well then have her by all means, my dear." A moment later, noting the tears coursing down her cheeks, he bent ten-derly over her. "Why, what are you crying for?" he asked, surprised. "Ou I don't know," she sobbed. "I guess -because I'm happy."

On the morrow Francis came. Gay and cheerful, she showed no sign of the broken heart Camelia thought she must carry with her. Her gaiety was infectious and soon Camelia found herself laughing and talking as of yore, as she watched her cousin unpack.

"What do you intend doing with all that?" she inquired, indicating a roll of fine nainsook and yards upon yards of filmy lace and insertion, which her Cousin had just lifted out of the trunk. "O that," answered Francis, "I am going to make up into lingerie for myself. I assure you I'm quite a seamstress," she added blushing.

Some time later, Horace, coming in

Cement Works, Edmonton, Alta. treated her more coldly as time went | gaily, while Francis sat near by, busily on, for she noticed that as Horace's

eg

Int.

our get

Sanitas exactly reproduces the finishes, designs WIPE OFF and effects of the finest wall papers and fabrics, but in a far mole serviceable material of moderate cost.

SANITAS

Sanitas is fade-proof, stain-proof, dust - and - dirt - proof, never cracks, never tears, is instantly cleaned with a damp cloth.

All the handsomest glazed tile effects are also made in Sanitas, for bathrooms, kitchens and pantries.

Sanitas is sold by all reliable dry goods and wall paper jobbers in Canada.

Write us your needs fully, and we will send you samples and sketches and tell you how to be quickly, satisfactorily supplied.

STANDARD OIL CLOTH CO. 320 Broadway, New York City

For

Stamped on USE MERITAS -- the guaranteed table oil cloth. the name of any dealer not handling Meritas we will send you ½ dozen hands

Every Yard Meritas doilies.

THE WASHABLE

COVERING

visits increased until it became a usual thing for him to spend all or at least a part of every evening with them, Francis' coldness had seemed to increase proportionately. She remembered how she had determined if she were coming between them, which to her was the only interpretation of her cousin's manner, she would soon eliminate herself, and hastily packing she had gone home. Thither, a few days later, he had followed her. Passing through the hall she had heard the door bell ring, and answering it had found him standing on the threshold. Her blushes and confusion at this sudden, unexpected meeting had told him their own story and ere he left that evening they were betrothed lovers. But even in the midst of her happiness that day, little doubts kept constantly arising as to whether or not she were loyal to her cousin in accepting the man she believed Francis loved. She had tried, incoherently, to express this to her lover, but he had laughingly replied, "What has she to do with us." So she had dismissed the matter from her mind and given herself up to the full enjoyment of her happiness. But now those thoughts came to her again as she remembered that Francis, though in every way an attractive, agreeable girl, had never married, and fully three years had gone by. Perhaps, even yet, she could remedy any unintentional wrong she had done. She would ask Francis to come and stay with her for those last few days and would leave the little baby in her care, then, when all was feels no pain.

plying her needle and surrounded dainty garments in the process of mak-ing. "What do you intend to do with all these?" he asked quizzically. I intend to wear them all," "Oh, answered with a charming blush.

To Francis, sitting in the same room two days later, time seemed an eternity as she listened to the second Doctor's tread ascending the stairs to the room above, where already Dr. Moore and his most skilled nurse had been in attendance for many hours. Camelia, passing through the "Valley of the Shadow," was making a brave fight for life. Again and again as she reached the point where endurance almost failed and she felt she must give up, the strong clasp of her husband's hands and his cheerful smile of courage sustained her. Not much did he resemble the husband who didn't care as he stood there, his ashen face and dripping forehead mute testimony of his agony and fear for her, but always forcing that smile of cheer and encouragement. Almost fainting she hears, agement. Almost failting she hears, as from afar off, her husband's voice of entreaty. "Oh live, my darling, for my sake!" and she rouses herself to smile feebly into the face bending so anxiously over her. The Doctor lays his finger on her wrist and with a triumphant, smile says: "Her pulse is better," and turns to the nurse, who obeying his unspoken command, comes forward and gently administers choloroform and Camelia sinks into a sleep where she Clean

she

Because the Cleanser quickly removes the discolorations which appear on porcelain bathtubs, and which it is impossible to remove by. any other means.

Sprinkle the Cleanser over the tub, and rub the surface with a dampened brush or coarse cloth. Then wash off with clean water, and you will find that all dirt and stains have vanished, leaving the tub clean and spotless.

Many Other Uses and Full Directions on Large Sifter-Can, 10c

beef tea for :

seconds-

a cup-

has taken the place of

It is made in a few

It costs about 3 cents

It contains all that is

It is all nourishment—

good in beef-

The Western Home Monthly.

"I tell you its the finest boy I've seen this winter," said the Dr. indignantly, in answer to the newly made father's poud, but half anxious remark, that it was very red. "And red," he snorted, "Why he isn't red. All babies look like that. He'll lose that in a little while and," he added more gently as he playfully pinched the young mother's pale cheek in farewell, "you'll soon see more red here."

Left alone, Camelia bent over the babe for the hundredth time, in an ectasy of newly found mother love, examining the tiny face cuddled against her. So engrossed was she that it was not until Francis knelt at her side and joined in admiring the babe that she noticed her presence in the room. "Dear little pet," said Francis, hugging him to her, "How I hate to have to leave you." "But why," gasped Camelia, "Why, Francis, I never dreamed of your going so soon. Couldn't you stay with me for the summer anyway," she added, as she realized how lonesome she would be without her. "Oh, I couldn't reafly, Francis answered earnestly, "besides," she added mischeviously, "it would be too expensive on Horace for there will be lots of bills coming in during the

Then seeing next few months." Camelia's puzzled but still despairing look she dropped on her knees beside her. With one arm flung round her she told how she and Arthur Graham had loved each other for the past five years, but only lately had he gotten up courage to tell her. And now they were so happy. It was her trousseau she was sewing on for they were to be married "But, dear," in the early summer. she continued, "I will not tell you another thing just now. How pale you are! I will leave you to rest while I run and pack and congratulations later!" she cried, as she fled out the door.

Faint with surprise, Camelia sank back in her chair. Oh how glad and thankful she was that she had been wrong and Francis had never cared for Horace in that way, and she herself was safe in his love. Leaning back she closed her eyes, and her husband, coming in a moment later, thought her asleep, but, as he knelt to look at his little son, he felt her hand on his head, and, looking up, saw the tears stealing down her pale cheeks. "Why, my darling,', he said, tenderly encircling her with his arms, "I thought you asleep. Why do you weep?" "I guess," she

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

A day started on Cowan's Cocoa is a day with a clear head and a steady nervea day full of snap and life. Cocoa nourishes the body. It is rich in food value and easy to digest. 173

his cal yel jus

ald

the the sai We er

tha

cea the thi

an wa

ye

th

th

CO

The Water Wizard

Being an Account of How an Old Settler Locates Springs. 1

of this country. So you see the main Mayhaps this article will cause a, sneering smile. It may create interest! It may make some wonder how I am so credulous. It may also make me decide in my own mind just what I do believe and just what I fail to believe of this strange power in this old man's hands.

First of all, let me briefly picture to you the country the deviner works in. In the first place his home is perched away up the Esquimault and Nainamo railroad line at seventeen mile post. In supply of water is by seepage. Now I remember, in that good old Ontario, that we used to buy a property and say: "Build the house there, plant the orchard here, and I think this would be a good place for the well; so sink it right there." Remember there are very extensive plateaus there, under which the water lies, and, when struck, 'springs" up in an ever flowing well. Out here it is different. The bed rock

When you buy H.P. Sauce look for the letters H.P. and the view of the Houses of Parliament, which appear on every real bottle of H.P. sauce. Remember there are plenty of imitations, but only one

The water wizard at work.

a part of the country that needs water very badly, so high perched up among the hills is it. You must remember that this hugh province of British Columbia is divided into two portions. The mainland-all the lands on the main continent, and Vancouver Island and the islands adjacent. This division is geographical, not departmental; but is often used in common writings to designate the two parts. I have the honor of living on the long, magnificently rugged Island of Vancouver, which lies some eighty miles out in the Pacific, from the City of Vancouver, where the C.P.R. terminates. This mighty island consists of a long backbone range of mountains and their consequent foothills, benches and coast lands. All this high thrown rocky scene is amply clothed with fir and cedar. It is cut up and in his work, or art, or profession, call it diversified by numerous rifts and faults | what you will, was simply sublime. He that make charming valleys. These are ended his journey at a friend's house. watered by the melting snows of the Here, after luncheon, he took a slow higher tops and the heavy precipitation | walk through the orchard, holding in in many places is sandstone, sometimes metamorphisized. Again, you may meet with a strata of "pudding stone," the almost impenetrable conglomerate so common to this island - evidently upthrown beaches firmly cemented by the clay stone. So you may sink many a hole and not strike a "spring."

The water wizard blind-folded.

When I first came out here I, ignorantly, if silently, laughed the water deviner idea down. I could not accept the common belief, even though good men shared it. Then I began to quietly follow up all tales and make notes of the result of the so-called "water witch" -a he witch this time, and no dread of the stake either. Finally, it happened that Mr. Wrigglesworth-a peculiarly appropriate name for the deviner-and I travelled together. The man's belief

You need Abbey's Salt just as much as you need ICE, in summer.

A pinch of Abbey's Salt, in a glass of cold water, is the most refreshing, satisfying of summer drinks.

A Number of Young Women aged 19 to 30 for busy hospital of 50 beds. Monthly allowance, board and laundry. Nice surroundings, good treatment. Diploma and $100, on graduation, 3 years' course. Address Minnie Morley, R.N., Supervisor of Nurses, Peoples Hospital, 203 Second Avenue, New York City.

t., 1911

ast.

wan's

clear

rve-

d life.

body.

e and 173

Juy

rthe

the

ouses

hich

real

uce.

e plenty

ons, but only one

The "Water Gate' -Olympic mountains in the distance.

his hand the fork of a branch of a tree, | forked stick will not work over an open called, if I would write in the popular yellow journal style, "the witch stick"; just a simple little forked bit off an alder or willow. Not a dozen paces had the old man walked than down turned the forked end of the branch, and he said, "You will get a spring here." Well, I watched my friend and his helper delve and dig; watched them with that unbelievers smile carefully concealed beneath my beard-but it was there all the same. They went down thirty feet, working through hard clay, and, to my disconstiture, they struck water, a good spring, that is flowing yet as I write this.

In another case I know of, where a well had been sunk thirty feet, then to ninety feet, and no water struck, this ancient deviner came along holding that ridiclously simple eight inch bit of common tree branch, and said, "dig over here." Over here was only five feet away from the ninety foot hole, yet that is exactly where the spring wasas the well sinker found out.

Mr. Wigglesworth claims to have found one hundred and fifty springs on this end of Vancouver Island without making a single false location. I have closely watched his hands while he held the vulgar little bit of wood. No sooner does he arrive at the spot below which the spring will ultimately be found, than there is some unclassified power that passes from out of the earth up through that simple bit of forked wood spring. He has found water from just below the surface to a depth of over one hundred feet. Remember, I do not personally claim that he has never met failure-that is his own pronouncement. At the present moment I am deeply interested in one location that seems to confute his holding an unbroken bound to confute his holding an unbroken record; but that he has wonderful success no one in this locality seems to deny-as many a clanking and bumping can daily bear witness.

He writes me as regards the picture in which he appears blindfolded "I met some doubting Thomases while I was locating a place; I agreed to let them blindfold me and lead me around and to tell them every time I passed over the place where I had located the springwhich I did." That was rather a good test? He can supply you with dozens of others. For some twenty-five years he has possessed this power, and he says "the strange thing is I cannot teach my son how to do it.

I have met other men that could find water by means of a forked stick held in the two hands, but Mr. Wrigglesworth is the first man that has used a bit of common wire. Against my own presumed better judgment I am at least almost a believer, and now am most deeply interested in cause and effect.

Take a man, one fairly educated in common subjects, clothe him as the modern man is clothed, give him a bit f forked wood or wire, and turn him loose in your field and he says, "here is water," and you dig for it and get it. Has that man any wonderful gift that is withheld from the average man? I away from the spot. When he has do not think so. I think the average located a spring he can follow it to its man has never tried his powers, for now

The GILLETTE Is An Economy Not An Extravagance

15

Because a fairly good open-blade razor can be bought for two dollars, while a GILLETTE costs five, have you concluded that the GILLETTE is an extravagance? It is not.

The open-blade costs you $2.00 to buy and at least 25c. a year to keep honed and in condition. Total, $2.25 for the first year.

The GILLETTE, with 12 double-edged blades, costs $5.00, and a second box of blades (should your beard be very tough) adds $1.00. Total, $6.00 for first year. Difference $3.75.

Looks bad for the GILLETTE, eh ? But wait! The three-minute GILLETTE will save you 5 to 10 minutes every time you shave. Put it at 5. That's over three working days a year. Isn't your time worth over $1.25 a day ?

When you're nearly late for the train or an important engagement, the five minutes which the GILLETTE saves you is apt to be worth several times the whole cost.

Then there's the comfort of the clean, cool, easy GILLETTE shave-worth in itself several times the difference in price.

For real economy-time and face as well as cash considered—buy a GILLETTE and enjoy it.

Standard Sets $5.00. Pocket Editions $5.00 to $6.00. At your Druggist's, Jeweler's or Hardware Dealer's,

Gillette Safety Razor

Co. of Canada, Limited. Offices and Factory : 63 St. Alexander St.

Montreal

Offices in New York,

0

as much

a glass freshing,

he blood d does l'upset stomach. y it.

omen ital of wance, roundploma years' lorley, eoples e, New and through the man's system, forcing him to allow the trembling bit of wood to point its forked end towards the earth. He says he cannot raise the stick to its upright position until he walks source-but, and this puzzles me-the I find several men that are affected by Seepage from the hills makes luxuriant flower and leaf.

"The Standard $5.00 Set".

WTCKO PAFFIL .

SIR EDMUND ALEXANDER LAIRD, General Manager

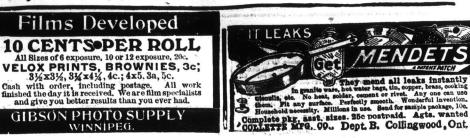

A. H. IRELAND, Superintendent of Branches

| BRAN | NCHES IN | V EVERY | PROVI | NCE OF | CANADA | AND IN |
|------|----------|---------|-------|------------------|--------|---------|
| THE | UNITED | STATES, | MEXIC | O AND | GREAT | BRITAIN |
| | | BRANCH | ES IN | MANITO | BA | |
| - B | PANDON | RL | KHORN | n Ngan kati s | RIVERS | 1 |

| BRANDON | ELKHORN | RIVERS |
|---------|--------------------|------------|
| CARMAN | GILBERT PLAINS | SWAN RIVER |
| DAUPHIN | GRANDVIEW | TREHERNE |
| DURBAN | NEEPAWA | VIRDEN |
| ELGIN | PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE | WINNIPEG |

SAVINGS BANK DEPARTMENT

A Savings Bank Department is open at every branch of the Bank in Canada, except in the Yukon Territory. Deposits of $1 and upwards are received and interest is allowed at current rates. The depositor is subject to no delay in the withdrawal of the whole or any portion of the deposit. Accounts may be opened in the names of two or more persons, and withdrawals made by any one of the number or by the survivor. Every account receives careful attention.

S OXDEW ICO.

Ainusin Japanese Clothing.

Savage Landor, who in 1893 published | the Ainu Koro-pok-Kuru, or pit dwellers, "Alone with the Hairy Ainus."

Although I have travelled the whole length of the Kurile Islands, I cannot attempt in an article of this length to do more than briefly touch upon one or two customs of the Ainu.

As their name suggests, they are a race of exceedingly hairy people. The men grow great beards, of which they are excessively proud, and their bodies are thickly covered with hair, almost like members of the monkey tribe. The women grow no hair on their faces, but seem to find a solace in this, for this imaginary defect in tattooing moustachies on their lips, and often primitive designs on their hands and arms and also across their foreheads. Young un-married women have very little tatooing on them; but once a woman is married, her husband seems to take a pride in decorating his bride with representations of hirsute adornment. The modus operandi is one which requires considerable fortitude on the part of the patient, since the crudest form of tattooing is adopted. This consists of making a number of incisions in the skin with the point of a knife. Cuttle fish black or smoke black is then rubbed into the wounds, and the operation sets up great inflammation of the lips, and is very painful.

A characteristic of the Ainu race is time arrives for these festivals.

owing to the habit of living in huts constructed over of a form of rectangular, circular or oval shaped pit, many traces of which are still to be found in the Kurile Islands.

One great trait in the Ainu character is their great bravery, and this is a quality held in high esteem among them. On the island of Zezo, bears are very numerous. The Ainu men, who are merely armed with such primitive weapons as bows, arrows, and knives, hunt and kill a great number of these animals. One species is notoriously savage. One of the most curious and unnatural costoms is puzzling as to its exact origin. At certain seasons of the year the men organize parties for hunting bears; old bears are killed, their skins and skulls being brought home. The skulls are often erected on sticks, where they remain as trophies outside the hunters' dwelling.

All young bear cubs that are captured are brought home to the settlements, where the women of the tribe adopt them, and actually suckle these beasts as they would their own children. The object is that these young cubs shall be killed and eaten at what is known as a "bear festival." Often when the cubs are too big to be nursed any longer, they are confined in a wooden cage until the

At the color of their skin, which is of a this the unfortunate bear cub is tied

Sept., 1911

hese possesive as the w, if any of and search. nd in these hey can go s by a thing r smile and for with or emains that vith a trih the base ned springs. he editor is ctual knownen locating paper short ubject, that

JUL.

nseen power

and in nothe Oriental he American s written or story, nor of inhabit the rs seem unanthropoloexist among effect that bitated by a 10 were conminated by re called by

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

to a post in the centre of a group of Ainus. A headman of the village teases the cub with some shreds of willow bark fastened to the end of a pole while two other men stand with their bows drawn ready to shoot the victim as it stands on its hind legs.

The cooking pot is probably presided over by the foster mother, who generally

Woman with bear cub.

appears rather pleased than otherwise at the impending fate of her nursling. The Ainu, like the Eskimo, have no religion. They have no knowledge of a Supreme Being and no belief in a future state. In fact they own that they have been taught nothing and know nothing. This is really the state in which they live. Certain of the Ainu intermarry with the Japanese, and hence there is to be seen a number of half trations were gathered in places where the natives came constantly in touch with the Japanese customs. If any one, after reading this article, seeks experience among this strange people-in which he will be amply repaid-let him not pay too long a visit to the interior of an Ainu house, unless he be immune from evil smells, for I have never known anything to equal the uncleanliness of Ainu dwellings, nor encountered any creatures of the human race more odoriforous than the Hairy Ainu themselves.

The Western Home Monthly.

Mooney's Biscuit Co.

The attention of our readers is directed to the advertisement in another column of the Mooney Biscuit & Candy Coy., Ltd., of E atford, Ont., and Winnipeg, Man. Although less than eight years old, the business of the Mooney Biscuit & Candy Coy. has grown by leaps and bounds, until it is said that at the present time they sell more biscuits than any other any Canadian house. Early in the history of their business, before their Winnipeg factory, they displayed their progres-siveness, by building their own line of private freight cars, used exclusively for shipping their own goods.

Last year they opened a large factory in Winnipeg and they have now the distinction of being the only Eastern biscuit manufacturers with a branch factory in Western Canada.

It will perhaps be of interest to our readers to know that they were the first Canadian biscuit manufacturers to realize the value of newspaper space in bringing the merits of their goods before the people of Canada, and ever since their business was established they have been consistent users of newspaper advertising. Their present campaign is of a very unique character. Their announcements are addressed to the lady of the house, and they point out that house work can be considerably reduced by having Mooney's biscuits take the place of much of the baking which is usually done at home. Mooney's biscuits are sold in air tight, dust proof packages, or in sealed tins, guaranteeing their arrival free from any contamination and as fresh and crisp as when they left the Mooney factory.

Remarkable Strawberry Crop. $1,484 to $1,785 Per Acre.

On the Crow's Nest Ranch, Canoe, B.C., on the Shuswap Lake, T. L. Wilkinson took 2,005 boxes (just over 85 crates) of Magoon strawberries off ,600 plants, covering one-seventh of an

FREE LESSO MOUNTING BIRDS

Yes, we will actually send you free and pr paid, a lesson in mounting birds and animals, just exactly as it is given by the famous Northwestern School of Taxidermy. Just the thing you need, if you hunt or fish. Every sportsman, hunter and nature lover should have it. You should never go on another trip until you get this free lesson. No obligations whatsoever. We will send you the lesson absolutely free and prepaid.

Learn to Mount Birds and Animals

Sportsmen-Hunters-Nature Lovers

Learn to mount your own trophies. Save taxidermists bills. Decorate your home, your den or your office with your beautiful trophies. Taxidermy can now be learned easilyquickly-perfectly-in your own home. We will teach you how to become an expert taxidermist within a very few weeks. No need to send your trophies hundreds of miles and pay huge sums to have them mounted. Do it yourself-FREE. You can make big money during your spare time mounting specimens for others, or selling your own specimens.

Big Profits

You can easily make from $20.00 to $50.00 monthly during your spare time, mounting specimens for others, or if you go into the profession from $3,000 to $5,000 yearly. We have 35,000 graduates—every one an enthusiastic expert taxidermist. Thousands make big money during their spare time. Hundreds have gone into the profession and make many times more than they ever made before. If you are making less than $3,000 yearly, you should investigate the wonderful possibilities of taxidermy as a profession. Marvelous opportunities. Greatest school of taxidermy in the world. Best instruction. Recognized as the leading institution by naturalists, taxidermists and museums all over the country. This is your opportunity. Do not let it pass.

pit dwellers, ng in huts of rectangupit, many be found in u character this is a mong them. rs are very who are mitive weanives, hunt ese animals. avage. One natural cosxact origin. ear the men bears; old and skulls skulls are re they rehe hunters'

re captured settlements, ribe adopt hese beasts ildren. The ubs shall be known as a en the cubs longer, they ge until the ivals. At cub is tied breeds. Also where their villages are in proximity to Japanese settlements, the natives to a great extent adopt Japanese costume, whereas among the true Aiun, in warm weather, all forms of clothes are conspicuous by their absence. Perhaps is is fortunate, therefore, that the illus- | through the berries were large and fine.

Ainu Women.

They were worth at the Salmon acre. Arm Farmers' Exchange, prices lowest at $2.50, $212; highest at $3.00, $255; or in other words, $1,484 to $1,785 per The plants were mostly two acre. year olds and were kept well cultivated, and free from weeds last season. They were well fertilized at minimum cost from the hen house, the cook stove and the wash up. The yield lasted over a month, from June 20th, and all

A Family Group.

Free Book

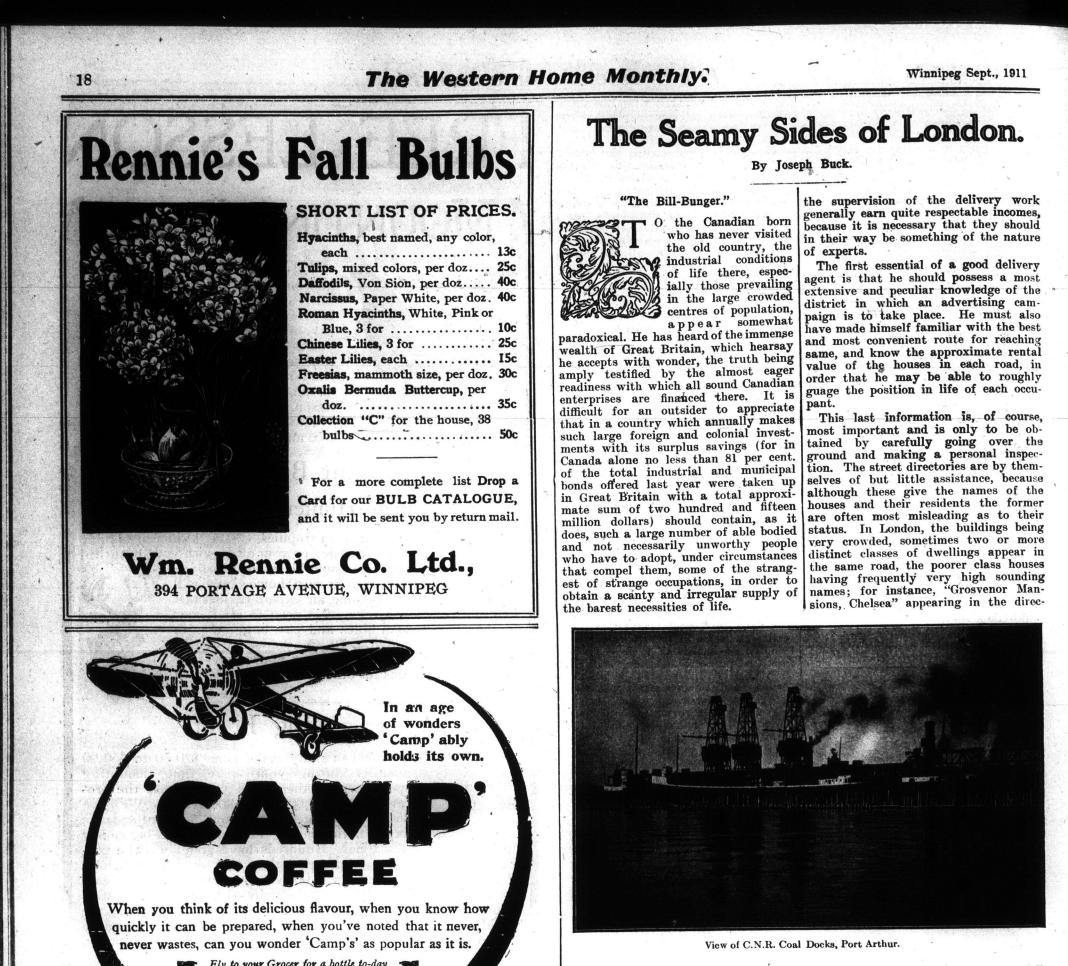

In addition to the handsome, free lesson, we will also send you a new book on Taxidermy, absolutely free. The book tells you all about this most fascinating profession. It tells you all about the famous Northwestern School of Taxidermy. Every one interested in Taxidermy should have this book. You will find it invaluable. Handsomely illustrated-you should write for this book today. If you write at once we will also send you the Taxidermy magazine.

Send the Free Lesson Coupon

Send the free coupon today. We will send you the free lesson-free book and also taxidermy magazine. All are absolutely free and prepaid. No obligations whatsoever. This is your opportunity. Write today for the free lesson, free book and the free magazine. Do not delay. Just tear out the free couponfill in your name and address and mail to us today. Write today-NOW-immediately -before you lay aside the paper.

Northwestern School of Taxidermy

Dept. 5016, Omaha, Neb.

Sole Proprietors-R. Paterson & Sons, Ltd., Coffee Specialists, Glasgow.

NOTICE THE NAME lark's

There's no place like home, and there's no prepared Meats like Clark's.

You who have eaten Clark's delectable Prepared Foods know what quality is.

Pate de Foie

Irish Stew Jellied Veal

Loaf Meats

Soups.

You also know that every can is an aid to economy, because there is absolutely no waste, and practically no time required to turn Clark's Delicious Preparations into appetizing and nourishing repasts.

Get the habit of keeping some of the following in reserve :

| B | eef Steak and Onion ewed Ox Tail | ns | | |
|---|-------------------------------------|-------|--------------|--|
| M | inced Collops | | ¢ | |
| S | ewed Kidney "Chateau" | Brand | Concentrated | |

MONTREAL W. CLARK-Manufacturer of the Celebrated PORK and BEANS.

population are moreover in addition to another class who, working hard and regularly, were estimated by the late Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman as numbering not less than ten millions and whom he graphically described as "living constantly on the border line of starvation."

Although it certainly does seem strange that this most unsatisfactory state of things should exist to-day in the wealthiest country in the world, the unpleasant fact, however, remains-it does exist and in spite of the many schemes that are constantly being brought forward by political parties, by philanthropical societies and by benevolent individuals to remove the great social evil in London at least, things do not grow appreciably better.

Of all the many and varied callings of the "down and out" London not the least arduous and precarious is that of the "Bill Bunger."

It may be here explained that "Bill Bunging" is a slang London term for carrying round and delivering from door to door the immense number of circulars and handbills so extensively used by the London shop-keepers and others to advertise their wares.

This work is contracted for by the numerous advertising agencies, at whose offices the bills or circulars are severally or collectively, according to the arrangement made, designed, folded, placed in envelopes, or otherwise got ready for a house to shouse distribution in a suitable neighborhood.

The men who arrange and undertake automobile to a patent pill.

There a large percentage of the total | tory of that district might, when visited, prove to be a most elaborate block of magnificently, equipped, highly rented flats, or on the other hand be but a number of small, weekly tenements occupied by working people.

Now it is obvious that an expensively got up booklet, drawing attention to the merits of, let us say, a high-class grand piano, would be absolutely wasted if left at the homes of the latter class, and it would be equally useless, from a business point of view, to thrust in the letter box of an expensive residence a cheap throw-away hand bill informing public that Jones, the cheapest the cash butcher in the district, was offering a consignment of frozen mutton at "un-heard of prices." The astute advertising agent knows that it is only by satisfactory results that he can hope to obtain the continued patronage of his trading client and so he is careful to only entrust the supervision of the delivery" arrangements to a man whom he knows to possess the necessary experience and who can be thoroughly relied upon. Huge office cabinets, prepared and kept up at great expense, containing particulars as to the position in life and names of residents in every district, are, of course, part of an advertising agent's equipment. But so thorough and complete is the knowledge of the delivery contractor that generally he can give the agent, off-hand, a very near estimate as to the number that can be "got out" of a certain district with any advertising matter, concerning it may be such widely diverse articles as range from an ., 1911

)n.

ry work incomes, y should e nature delivery

a most ge of the ng camust also the best reaching te rental road. in roughly ach occuf course.

o be obover the l inspecby thembecause s of the e former to their ngs being or more appear in ss houses sounding nor Man-

the direc-

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

The Western Home Monthly.

But to return to the actual "bill-bun-His lot is indeed one of the most ger." wretched and hopeless of all London's social outcasts. His work is hard, always uncertain and his pay miserable in the extreme, eighteenpence, equivalent to about 36 cents, is his remuneration for delivering 500 bills, which is estimated a fair day's work. Let us imagine a familiar scene outside the spacious offices of any wellknown postal advertising agency trading under some such name as "The Spick and Span Addressing Co." The hour is about 7 a.m. The season perhaps No-vember. Overhead, in the grey dawn, a steady drizzling rain is falling upon the muddy pavements. From the corners of the adjoining streets, out of the surrounding gloom, the ragged, unkept, hungry "bill-bungers" appear, singly or in groups, and huddle round the office The establishment will not open until 9 o'clock, but the weary, waiting crowd know only too well that even for this pitiful job, it will be "first come, first served" and that many of their number will not be required and will have had their long chilly wait in vain. Many of these men have been shivering on the Thames embankment all night, others more fortunate in having had a few copper coins overnight have risen early from their beds, at the Rowton Houses or the Salvation Army lodging houses, to hurry to the spot. The time passes. At 8 the waiting, ragged crowd have increased to a small army. It is a strange fact that no advertisement or other announcement seeking their services has appeared anywhere. By some strange mouth to mouth, but certain method, the information has been conveyed the previous evening among the "bill-bungers" all over London that "the Spic" have a big job "to go out." Nine o'clock strikes from a clock near-by. The crowd has now become very dense round the office doors. In a few minutes the "delivery boss" arrives. Quickly he selects his men. He divides them into small gangs, selecting one man as a kind of foreman to each party, who receives for this dignity an extra 6 pence or 12 cents a day. Rapidly each man shoulders his loaded bag of bills, the foreman receives his instructions and if the "bunging" is to take place in an outlying district, the money for their fares and away they go. Slowly the remainder, the unchosen, by far the larger portion of the crowd, slink away to hungrily, wearily, and disappointedly pass another hopeless dav

From what class, it may be asked, do these "bill-bungers" come? They are drawn from almost every rank in life. The gentleman, the professional, the trader, the clerk, mechanic and laborer are all represented in the cohorts of London's unemployed to-day, who rush destitute, friendless and starving, with the despair great as that of a drowning man, for the pitiful wages that "billbunging" brings. Unemployed! "Unemployables you mean!" says the snug social critic sit- districts being set back a considerable

No! it is not so! for although there certainly are among them as among all other flocks, plenty of black sheep, most of them would scorn to accept charity or the cosy shelter of the poor-house. They want work, and when they get even this miserably paid employment, they work hard. For, let it at once be pointed out, that very nearly every bill is fairly delivered at each door. Not from a matter of conscience but from the certain knowledge that were a bundle thrown away and afterwards discovered by the lynx-eyed boss, who follows over their route, not only the individual guilty, but no member of his gang could ever hope for a similar job anywhere again, for it is surprising how quickly these things become known among all the advertising agencies. They work hard, yes! because delivering 500 bills (some of the doors in the better distance from the street) is surely a ting in his comfortable arm chair. hard day's work to any ill-fed and illshod man.

Among London's "bill-bungers" there are men of fine character too. Fine, because of the frequent personally reckless division of the scanty wage that will be often made to a less fortunate companion at the end of the day's work. Fine, because of the information as to the whereabouts of a likely job so freely given to another, the informant well knowing that each applicant lessens his own chance and fine, on account of the innumerable other little acts of human kindness the writer himself has witnessed so often rendered by one poor fellow to another. Yes, among London's "bill-bungers" at least the words are as true to-day as when the great-hearted Dickens wrote them: "What the poor are to the poor, only God and the poor really know."

Successes at Manitoba Agricultural College.

The following is a list of the students who successfully completed the Home Ecomomics Course in Manitoba Agricultural College, Winnipeg, which closed July 14th. The names are in order of merit. The subjects included cookery (practical and theoretical), dressmaking, foods and dietetics, home furnishing, millinery, English, horticulture, home nursing, laundry, hygiene, house-keeping, household handicraft, and sanitation.

1, Margaret Bryce, Arcola, Sask.; 2, Anie B. Fraser, Gunton, Man.; 3, Thorunn Sigurjonsen, Coldsprings, Man.; 4, Mary Hallderson, Lundar, Man.; 5, Margaret Sinclair, Rossburn, Man.; 6, Cora W. Hamilton, Neepawa, Man.; 7, Ethel G. Snyder, Portage la Prairie, Man.; 8, Sigurn Austmann, Coldsprings, Man.; 9, Engene Duncanson, Rossburn, Man.; 10, Gudrun Gud-mundson, Lundar, Man.; 11, Rose Zimmermann, Oakville, Man.; 12, Janet Coltart, Melbourne, Man.

Canada's Best Piano by Mail N Within Reach of the Modest Home

THE HEINTZMAN & CO. PIANO fits the richest home but is within the reach Another view of C.N.R. Coal Docks, Port Arthur.

19

hen visitrate block ghly rentbe but a ements ocexpensivetention to high-class ely wasted tter class, ss, from a ust in the esidence a informing cheapest as offering on at "unadvertisonly by in hope to ige of his ful to only e delivery he knows rience and ied upon. and kept g particuand names t, are, of ng agent's and come delivery can give r estimate "got out" advertising such widefrom an

of the modest purse. It is undisputed leader of all Canadian pianos and second to none in the World. Now listen! This being the largest piano and music house in the West, we buy all our pianos in large quantities and for spot cash, receiving the very lowest price-sharing the big saving by so doing with our customers. And every piano is backed by the prestige of Western Canada's greatest music house. We are certain you will receive the greatest piano value possible by writing to-day about

Our New Mail Order System and Easy Payment Plan

Nothing under the sun we can say will convince you of the excellent quality of the Heintzman & Co. piano until these points have been demonstrated. Do you know that Heintzman & Co. pianos used

Used and Second-Hand Pianos Priced Lower than Ever

TE DO such an enormous business and receive so many used pianos as part payment in exchange for Heintzman & Co. pianos and playerpianos that we are in a position to offer unheard of bargains. You can have these on easiest terms and they will be taken back by us whenever you want a new Heintzman & Co. piano, as part payment.

SLIGHTLY USED UPRIGHT PIANOS.#

| $555.00 | neinizman & Co., 101 | $425.00 |
|----------|-----------------------------|----------|
| $375.00 | Weber, for | $325.00 |
| | SECOND-HAND UPRIGHT PIANOS. | |

$225.00 $375.00 Bell, for $298.00 $350.00 Craig, for..... $500.00 Chickering, for

| $450.00 | | $185.00 |
|----------|---------------------------|----------|
| $450.00 | Chase, for | $170.00 |
| | ODGOND HAND COHADE DIANOS | |

SECOND-HAND SQUARE PIANOS.

| Heintzman & Co Heintzman & Co | | $56.00 $53.00 |
|----------------------------------|--------------------|--------------------|
| Dunham | $68.00 Great West | $49.00 |
| Stanley | $58.00 Stanley | $39.00 |

forty, fifty and sixty years ago are still in perfect tone? We want you to own one, and will make it easy for you by our Easy Payment Plan. The number of pianos we now supply by mail run into the thousands. Cut out the coupon below and mail it to-day.

CUT OUT AND MAIL EARLY

J. J. H. McLean & Co., Limited Dept. W.H.M., 329 Portage Avenue, Winnipeg, Man. Gentlemen-Kindly send catalogue, price list and full particulars of your New Mail Order System and Easy Payment Plan. Name..... Address Organs from $20.00 up. Square Pianos from $25.00 up. J. J. H. McLEAN & CO., LTD. Winnipeg's Greatest Music House Cor. Portage Ave. and Hargrave St., Winnipeg, Man. Canada.

The Western Home Monthly.

THE MAN BEHIND THE PLOW.

And the books are full of stories of the wonders he has done ; There's something sort o' thrillin' in the flag that's wavin' high.

But when the shoutin's over and the fightin's done, somehow

We find we're still dependin' on the man behind the plow.

In the palaces where rulers deal out honors to the great,

There is not a single person who'd be doing' bizness now

Or have medals if it wasn't for the man behind the plow.

We're a-buildin' mighty cities and we're gainin' lofty heights;

We're a-winnin' lots of glory and we're settin' things to rights ;

Future men'll gaze in wonder at the things that we have done,

And they'll overlook the feller, just the same as we do now,

We're a-showin' all creation how the world's affairs should run;

Who's the whole concern's foundation that's the man behind the

In all the pomp and splendor of an army on parade,

And it makes you want to holler when the boys go marchin by;

And through all the awful darkness that the smoke of battles made;

In the halls where jewels glitter and where shoutin' men debate :

They sing about the glories of the man behind the gun,

The Divine Phyllidia.

By Jeffrey Farnol.

The Cherub drifted into my room one evening with a woe begone expres-sion on his usually placid face, and sinking into the most comfortable arm. chair, sat staring moodily into the empty fireplace. "Liver?" I inquired in response to a long-drawn sigh. "Don't you think you might try to be a little less objectionable?" he said reproachfully. "You see," he continued after a pause, "when a fellow wants to --to screw himself up to the point, you know, how the dickens can he when the girl as good as tells him she hates him -er-like the very-" "Exactly," I put in. "It's not to be done, my dear chap." "No, I was afraid not," said the Cherub; "that's why I came to ask your advice."

20

"Certainly," I said encouragingly. "Suppose you begin at the right end and tell me all about it."

Forthwith he plunged into a ram-bling account of his hopes and fears. what she said on this occasion, what she did on that, ending with the usual fulsome panegyric on her person and attributes.

As becomes a true cynic, I sniggered. "I thought you might perhaps give me a 'leg-up' with the affair," he said gloomily.

"My good chap," I said, "this sort of thing doesn't suit you; it never did— give it up. Love," I continued, warmgive it up. Love," I continued, warm-ing to my theme, "love is a disease, an insidious disease, and should be treated as such. What you require is merely a change of air. Go down to your country place and you'll come back cured in a month."

The Cherub looked at me with a malevolent eye.

"I hope you'll get it jolly hard when it comes to your turn, that's all." "I shall immediately resort to medicine," I returned.

"Oh, it's easy enough for you to sit there and talk lightly of the matter, just because you never happen to have been hit, but I call it beastly low," and the Cherub ran his fingers through his to start with, I believe."

Dlow.

curls with an air of such utter dejection that even my cynicism was not proof against it. I reached down a favorite pipe, filled and handed it to him.

"Now," I began when it was well alight, "how long have you been in this state?"

"About a month now," he replied in a tone of dreary pleasure. We smoked for a while in silence.

"Tried flowers?" I inquired at length. "Flowers!" he repeated. "Certainly; they are the usual medium

"Well," he hesitated," I gave her a rose once.

"M-yes; but did you stick it in her hair ?"

The Cherub gasped. "Lord, no!" he exclaimed.

"Ah! you should have done so- in an off-hand, matter-of-fact, brotherly sort of a way, of course, but with a suggestion of hidden passion, you know-just to let her know you mean it."

The Cherub's speechless admiration flattered me.

"Gad! You seem pretty well up to all the moves, considering you pose as

"My dear Cherub," I broke in, "I look on these things from a purely philosophical standpoint."

The Cherub became paternaturally thoughtful.

"Look here, Gip," he said suddenly, "you r ust tackle her for me-sort of lay the groundwork, talk me up to her, you understand. I fancy I could manage things then. It could be quite easy," he continued; "they are staying with mother at Down."

"They ?" I inquired.

"She and her cousin. You and I might run over for a day or two-be quite a merry little party.

"House-parties are an abomination," I said.

The Cherub assented, and reached down a time-table.

"There's a train leaving in an hour," he suggested.

"Well?"

"If we catch that we shall be there in time for dinner." Now it is one thing to sit in one's own rooms and describe the right and proper way to carry so delicate a matter to a successful issue, but quite another to face the haughty "She" one's self. My mind was made up in an instant.

"Such an idea is not to be thought of," I said decidedly. The Cherub's smile was anything but cherubic.

"Meaning, that theory is one thing, and practice another." "My good chap, don't be a fool," I

TUXEDO PARK

The Best Residential Subdivision in The Fastest Growing City in Canada and Your Best Investment.

Saskatoon

is located right in the heart of Saskatchewan, the greatest wheat growing country in the world. There is no other large point anywhere near to dispute or divide up the vast surrounding territory, which embraces 45,000 square miles-over 184 thriving Western towns and villages. The climate is the healthiest the world knows all the year around, and this fact alone is bringing many new families to the Western Provinces.

-S. E. Kiser.

Saskatoon is already a great and important railroad centre. A glance at any reliable map will show you this. There are nine railroad outlets, with new branches still building.

All this means greater and faster growth for Saskatoon. As an example let us give you these figures :----

City Assessment—1906, $2,517,145; 1907, $6,621,337;1908, $7,450,135;1909, $8,156,357; 1910, $10,748,629; 1911, $13,000,000 conservatively.

Population-1903, 113; 1906, 3011; 1909, 12,100;1911, February, over 16,000-a greater percentage of increase by far than any other city in the whole Empire.

Building Statistics-1907, $377,211; 1908, $115,625; 1909, $1002,065; 1910,$2,817,771. School Attendance—1906, 296; 1907, 364; 1908, 651; 1909, 1,113; Feb. 1911, 1660.

This is not the only good residential sub-division-but the best yet offered Tuxedo Park in Saskatoon. To the investor or to the home builder a better proposition or safer investment than a lot or so in Tuxedo Park cannot be possible. But when you sit down and look the proposition square in the face and from all sides as we have done, then, and only then will you fully realize the chances you have of making a good fat turnover before very long.

Tuxedo Park is located in the best residential part of north-west Saskatoon and on a gradual slope overlooking the valley. It is convenient to the business section and away from the noise and smoke of railroad shops and factories. It is where thousands will buy before many moons-the best place for the homes. In 1915 Saskatoon will more likely than not have a population of 50,000. It holds the record for rapid growth of all cities in the entire Empire. Where will all these people live? Where will many of them build? What will land be worth then ?

The shrewd investors are buying every cent's worth of Tuxedo Park property they can because they see what is in You should have your share. Investigate further. Write for maps, circulars and full information store for them. to-day to the exclusive selling agents

The Walch Land Company,

Northern Crown Bank Bldg. Winnipeg, Man

her a

1911

; in her

no!" he — in an

ly sort suggesw-just niration

l up to pose as

"I look y philo-

aturally

uddenly, -sort of to her. ld mane quite staying

I might quite a ination," reached n hour,"

be there one thing

describe carry so ul issue, haughty

as made

ught of," o's smile

ne thing, fool," I ll

said, "of course, I'd stand by you in the affair, but unfortunately I've promised to go fishing with Pattison

this week." "Put him off .- Pat won't mind,- urgent business,-called out of town, etc., you know the style," beamed the Cherub, thrusting a sheet of note-paper before

I groaned inwardly, and took up the pad. I am not a weak man as a rule, but what could one do in the face of such determination? Thus while I lied to Pattison, the Cherub busied himself throwing things into my grip; as I sealed the note, he was in the act of ramming in a dress coat. "Hurry up," he panted, "or we shall miss that train."

"Tooth-brush in ?" I inquired. "It can't go in here," he cried excitedly,-"no room," and with a mighty effort he closed the grip. "But my dear chap," I remonstrated. "All right, I'll make a parcel of the rest," he said, buckling the straps feverishly.

Thus exactly fifty-eight minutes later we were facing each other, somewhat out of breath, in the express for Down. "By the way, you're not much of a hand at parcels, are you ?" I said, glancing at the bulging, misshapen object in the rack.

"Oh, I fancy it will be all right," he said easily, and leaning back he puffed at his pipe with a dreamy expression that warned me what was coming. Presently he sighed.

"She's wonderful, old chap," he exelaimed.

"Since I'm in for it, you might tell me her name and have done with it." I said.

"I call her the Divine Phyllidia," he replied.

"Look here, Cherub, do you expect me to lie about you with any success to a girl with a name like that?" He looked a trifle uncomfortable.

Well, you needn't pitch it too steep, and I'll back you up, you know, Gip." After this we traveled some time in silence. "Yes," he said suddenly, "she's wonderful, with eyes black, my boy, as a moonless night, that flash at you, man, beneath low brows crowned with misty hair."

I did not even attempt to hide my smile.

When in due time we arrived at Down there was of course no conveyance to be swore,-the parcel had gone wrong.

had for miles round, and the Cherub, taking the paper parcel gingerly under his arm-I had, with an eye to possible future contingencies, prudently secured the grip before hand-elected to show me a short cut. "By the way," I said, "looks a triffe unwell, that parcel." "Oh! it will hang together all right until we get there, it isn't far, you know, this way." So saying, he led the way down a maze of narrow lanes, and after climbing grassy banks and squeezing through numerous fences, we found ourselves in a small wood. Here the Cherub suddenly stood still and

"Just what I expected," I sighed, "and by-the-way, what did you do with my tooth-brush?"

"Tooth-brush be hanged," he cried, struggling desperately with the parcel, "come and help me with the confound-ed thing." But instead of complying, fancying I heard voices, I stole towards a clump of bushes, and stealthily peered round.

Within a few inches of mine was a face, so close that I might almost have kissed it,-piquant face it was, warm with the rich coloring of scarlet mouth and raven hair. I started back. "I beg your pardon," I began, and lifted my hat,-as I did so something leaped thence to the grass at my feetit was my errant tooth-brush. I trod upon it immediately, but too late, for I heard a half-suppressed laugh behind me, and turning, I saw another face peeping at me over a bush, and this time the hair was red gold, and the laughing eyes wonderfully blue. I was standing there with my foot on my tooth-brush, looking from one to the other helplessly, when the Cherub appeared. I fancy he must have had a had time with that neural for it was bad time with that parcel, for it was torn in several places, from one of which dangled a white flannel trouser leg. "Phyllidia!" he gasped, and, dropping the parcel, stood staring. In a moment Phyllidia was down on her knees, and began setting it to rights. "This is outrageously packed," she laughed, "and just look Kate, tied with two boot laces.

The Cherub looked apologetic. "You see," he began, but meeting the cousin's blue eyes stopped.

"We were in rather a hurry packing, and the Cherub's idea of a parcel is decidedly quaint," I put in.

CREAM SODAS

The Western Home Monthly.

21

DON'T BAKE-BAKE-BAKE IN THE HARD OLD FASHIONED WAY

It shortens your life, spoils your temper and ruins your looks. Try the new way-the MOONEY way.

No spoiled baking. No overheated kitchens. Lots of leisure in the home. MOONEY'S BISCUITS are so fresh, so crisp, so appetizing that they are largely taking the place of home baking with thousands of Western people. Ask for in air tight, dust proof and damp proof packages -or in sealed tins if you prefer them.

MOONEY'S PERFECTION SODA BISCUITS

Made in the Big Sanitary Factory in Winnipeg.

The Challenge.

"Gip," she repeated, and her eyes belied her solemn mouth. "I have a dog named Gip, the dearest old fellow. I really believe that, in his own way, he loves me better than anybody else in the whole world."

I shook my head. "I doubt it," I began unwarily, "though to be sure," I continued more cautiously, "there is a strange affinity between men and some animals, especially dogs; for in-stance, now I—" In another moment, despite my stern self-repression, I really believe I should have said more than I ought, for as she sat there beside me looking at me out of those deep eyes of hers, so close that her skirts brushed my knee, I had an almost overmasting

The Battle

desire to relegate the Cherub to the deepest limbo, and my fingers itched to clasp the hand lying so near my own, but at that instant Kate began playing and I pulled myself up in time. "Well," she said, under cover of the

"Cousin's rather nice,"

tured.

he

ven

The Western Home Monthly.

Kate was playing a soft, dreamy air, and as I sat, watching Phyllidia's halfaverted face, a bitter feeling took possession of me. Why should I do this thing? I asked myself. Why should Itrample thus on my own heart? What right had the Cherub-? My hand closed suddenly over hers, I felt her start, and for one delicious moment I looked into her eyes, and read there,what? Then her lashes drooped, her fingers slipped from mine, and the knowledge of my presumptuous folly overwhelmed me. "I once saw a fire," I began, desperately, "such a fire as few have ever witnessed. Standing in the pale-faced crowd, I watched the vain endeavors of the firemen. Suddenly, high up at one of the windows, I saw something that turned me faint and sick. It was a child. I closed my eyes. When I looked again, a fire escape had been run up and a fireman was trying to fight his way to that blazing window-but without success. A great mumuring sigh went up to the blood red heavens, for that little helpless child. Suddenly, a tall figure, conspicuous in the fireglow, began to ascend, climbing with strong, firm steps. A great silence fell upon all, broken only by the roar of the flames. Nearer he got and nearer, once his sleeve puffed out in flame, but still he climbed, while-er-strong men held their breath. Then came a wild roar of exultation; he had reached the window; snatched the trembling fire and the little child.

having packed up, slipped from my room, and opening a side door, stepped out into the cool freshness of the morning.

At the edge of the grove I came upon a fallen tree and sitting down I lighted pipe, and listened to the merry my carols of the birds about me.

And as the smoke rose in the still air I seemed to see the face of Phyllidia peeping at me through the blue wreaths full of mischief and laughter as I had seen at first.

A bush rustled beside, and glancing up I beheld, no dream-face this time, but Phyllidia herself standing before me fresh as the morning; she carried her hat in her hand, and her lustrous hair was braided low on her temples.

"Phyllidia," I said, using the name unconsciously.

She greeted me with a studied ease. "You are down very early," I said, wondering why she did not always dress her hair so.

"Oh, I'm fond of the early morning; but you - what brings you down at such an unusual hour?"

"Well, you see," I answered, "I'm going back to town by the early train." She evinced no emotion at my sudden. departure.

"Then I'm glad I happened to find you," she said lightly, "because I want to ask you why you told me all that about Mr. Dymott last night, about the You must

23 of the nost ex.

to the s itched

ear my e began in time.

1911

yes bee a dog

ellow. I n way,

dy else

," I be-sure," I

nere is en and for in-noment,

I really

than I side me

ep eyes brushed

masting

"if I get to—

quivershe was

urriedly, low,—er, woman

y, with-

se so,fair men able and herub—" ning and Mr. A. J. Cotton, a prosperous Swan River farmer, child, and as I watched a thousand | have known it was totally untrue." arms were stretched to welcome him, unharmed, save for his hands, and,-I ended, turning to my companion who had listened with bent head, "the marks are there to this day?-it was the Cherub." When I told her all this -heaven knows, no one could have been more surprised than myself at my imaginative powers; perhaps the music inspired it, perhaps the sense of the wrong I had so nearly committed. The music stopped, and seeing the Cherub approaching, I rose and "Well?" slipping out upon the lawn, leaned hesitated. there, staring up at the moon with a sense of duty nobly done. Yet it had the Cherub with the—ah—with the-been a near thing, the touch of her the affair," I stammered.

fingers thrilled me even then. Despite my philosophy, my heart was strangely heavy as I shut myself into my room that night.

Anyhow, I had kept my word, I told myself, but at what a cost. Looking at the matter in a colder light, I began to wish I had not made him quite so heroic,-true it was cheap melodrama, -but then women like that sort of thing, I told myself, with a cynical laugh. Of course, the Cherub was not worthy of her, but I shrugged my shoulders, she might think so, and after all how could it affect me?

So I went to bed, but not to sleep. and dawn found me tossing restlessly. I heard the first sleepy notes of a bird beneath my window, and presently up came the sun, and with it the determination came to me that I would not stop to see their happiness. I rose, and suddenly away, and I saw her shoulders

"Untrue?" I repeated, trying to look hurt, "you surely don't think-"

"His hands are quite unmarked, except for one small scar, and that he told me he did years ago with a gingerale bottle, and he told me, besides, that he had never seen a big fire in his life.'

I could joyfully have kicked the Cherub at that moment.

"Let me explain," I began, "but first please sit down."

"Well?" she said, seeing that I yet

"Well, you see, I came down to help the affair," I stammered. "'The affair!'" she repeated, with raised brows. "What affair?"

"Oh, the affair, to-er-to propose, you know."

"To propose ?" she echoed.

"Yes; you see, fact is, he's got no idea how to manage these things, and so-er-so he got me to-to promise to lend him a hand, you know." "And, of course, you succeeded?" she asked, after a pause.

"I'm afraid so," I said bitterlythat's why I'm going. to see your happiness." I can't stop

She glanced swiftly up. "My happiness?" she exclaimed. "Yours, and his," I added. "I couldn't bear it-just at present - so I'm going."

For a moment she looked at me as if scarcely comprehending. then turned

GILSON MANUFACTURING CO., 95 YORK STREET

Empire Cream Separator Co., Winnipeg, Man., General Agents.

The Western Home Monthly.

misjudged her; my going does affect her, then, and it is some consolation to have such a woman shed tears over one." "You will think of me sometimes, Phyllidia, in all my loneliness whenwhen you are happy?" I said, leaning above her bowed head. She did not answer, and leaning nearer, I saw her face-and Phyllidia was laughing. Yes, there was no doubt of it, she was actually laughing, and seeing she was discovered cast aside all dissimulation. "And that," she cried, dabbing her eyes with a lace handkerchief-"that was why you told me that wonderful story of the fire. Oh! it's too funnyit really is," and she went off into another peal of laughter.

I felt distincly hurt and annoyed. "I am glad you see it in that light," I said stiffly, "but to me it is a-a tragedy."

She seemed somewhat ashamed, I thought, at least she kept her face hidden. Mechanically I took out my pipe and began filling it.

'As it is," I continued with an effort, "you have my sincerest wishes for your | mature."

heaving. After all," I thought, "I eluded my arm dexterously and disappeared into the grove. I turned to meet the Cherub with a sense of offended virtue at his perfidy and the thought of what I had endured on his account.

Catching sight of me he im-mediately dodged and tried to hide behind the nearest bush. With pitiless rony I demanded to know if he had taken to bird's-nesting, and thereupon he came forth a trifle uncomfortable. "You're down awfully early," he be-

The Cherub's discomfort grew painful to witness, and he shuffled from one foot to the other in the old way I remembered of him when in hot water at school.

"Oh-er-really, that's awfully nice of you dontcherknow,-but I-I fancy

"Yes, -you see, -fact is," he stam-mered, avoiding my eye. "I thought -that is, I fancy I was a-a trifle pre-

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

It

No

first riarc

made thing

the

this,

poac

rent

he (

fish

day

pape

cove

supe

owin

ation

day

mitt

Poa

and

Year

to i

it.

its wi

th

by

in fle

de

m

a

01

ti

Βı

in Big Values? Certainly you are, everybody is, but only a few ever have the chance to get them. YOUR chance is now, the opportunity has come, so be wise and grasp it. LISTEN 'Upon receipt of only 25 cents we will send you a collection of books, photos, cards, novelties, etc. worth from 50 cents to $1.00, and with a written guarantee to refund every cent, plus postage, if not entirely satisfied. Is anything more fair? This is no fake, but a real genuine offer, so do it now and write to-day to that old reliable frm.

The Mail Agency, Edmonton

and trimmed with fine lace and insertion, just as pic-tured. Lined throughout in silk. Comes from 32 to 42 bust. Simply send your bus size and enclose $1.98 together with 10c. in stamps for postage on waist. Order to -d ay Waist No. 11, Standard Garment Co., 10 Standard Building, Lon-don, Canada.

AVALLONE & CO., INC., Dept. E.S. 515 Traders Bank Bldg., Toronto, Ont.

fect fit.

24

This Broadcloth Suit

$5.50

Black or Navy Blue

Express Charges Prepaid By Us

Nobby ladies' suit,

made of very good quality broadcloth.

Coat has semi-fitted back. Coat sleeves

and collar are beautifully trimmed and outlined with heavy silk braid. Finished with trimming buttons. Entire coat

lined throughout

with heavy serge

lining. Length of coat 30 inches.

Skirt has all seams

"I have spoken," I began.

"To Phyllidia," I nodded sternly. made a mistake."

"A mistake," I repeated.

ail. express or money order. Remember that your money will be refunded if the plume is not entirely satisfactory stitched to hiplength heading wide vent plaits insuring per-front. We guarantee thi⁹ dress to ht and please you in every way. Same dress may behad in Fine all wool Panama in Black, Navy, Dark green, and Cardinal, at $6.50. Ad 35c. for postage. Order this beautiful dress No 2 at once. Standard Garment Co., 10 Standard Building. London Canada

ec

from 50

.98

ly made

fine lace

as pic

oughout

m 32 to nd your se $1.98

stamps

Orde

ne ШО

ound

ipeg

19.90

58.00

63.50

65.60

48.60

nany

Ó

0 ffice

Ave.

ation,

et buyers

nmissions price. We ty Free.

ace Bldg.

The Western Home Monthly.

The Poacher's Hut.

By W. R. Gilbert, Calgary.

No one knew when or why it was first built; only among the most patriarchal among the "oldest inhabitants" made any pretence to recollect anything about the last occupier. And the sum of their testimony came to this, that he was a sort of converted poacher, who was allowed to live there rent free, and made such a living as he could by rude rushwork, catching fish and snaring wild-fowl. And one day he was found dead, and the local papers were full of the harrowing discovery which they delated on with superabundant details. It was doubtless owing in part to the uncanny termin-ation of the tenancy that from that day the hut had stood desolated. But apart from this it must be admitted that as a place of residence the Poachers Hut was almost unthinkable and became more so as time went on. Years of vacancy had not contributed to its weather-worthiness: in fact that no dead body there—only that cold,

It had stood for years untenanted. | itary angler would be aware of a gaunt figure in tattered tweeds watching him with gleaming eyes in a livid face.

If unknowing or unmindful the angler spoke to it, the figure would vanish before his eyes and a gust of deadly cold wind-no matter how hot or calm the day-would whirl around him. Another variant had it, that oncethe time is indeterminate as befits your genuine legend-a casual visitor looked in at the hut, and there in the corner lay the fearsome body just as it was discovered years and years before. The visitor "sickened and shuddered and fled from the door," and full of the horror of his discovery, and convinced that it pointed to a recent tragedy, hurried to the village and told the constable.

After some hesitation, at which he indignantly wondered, the constable and his two stout fellows accompanied him back to the hut. But there was

Huntina Knives Finest Quality Hunting Knife, guaranteed, with russet leather sheath, finely shaped carved $1.75 handle •• Double Barrel Shot Guns No. 7W Standard back action top snap gun, twist finish barrels, patent fore-end etc., carefully finished throughout No. 9W 12 gauge fine Damascus finish barrels, Greener

Guns, Hunting Supplies

Hunters and Sportsmen know what it is to be disappointed in getting outfitted when going on a trip. We ship all

For the opening of the shooting season we make the Cross Bolt, Anson & Deeley fore-end, inter-$12.50 changeable parts. Left barrel choked ...

POST FREE The largest catalogue in Canada listing and illustrating guns, rifles, revolvers and hunting supplies ex-clusively. Over 70 pages and bound with handsome three-colored mail orders same day as received.

following SPECIAL OFFERS:

Game Laws of Western Canada Booklet of Game Laws of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, B.C. and Ontario. Mailed with our compliments to any desiring same.

25

A Popular Manitoba Sport.

it stood at all was a sterling tribute to charnel house atmosphere enveloped its original stability. The doors and them; and the blacksmith's dog that windows were broken, the roof in more had come with his master howled sudthan one place fallen through, the leaning chimney only kept in its place by the straggling branches of a willow that had grown against the wall.

But comfortless as it was as a dwelling the hut was undoubtely a picturesque feature in the landscape. It occupied a slight eminence-the only spot it was said, which, when the winter floods rose and the snow water rushed down from the high land round about was never submerged. Around it the march stretched for miles. Once when a casual revival of that gruesome story of the last tenant had attracted attention to the marshland hut a certain well nown painter had come there, and been revived by the weird splendor of the landscape.

" It was of course a fore-gone conclusion that in a compartively primitive neighborhood legends should grow and multiply arond the lonely hut. The original and simplest form these took was naturally associated with the Last Tenant. He had been seen ghastly and spectral, laying ghostly snares or these seemingly contrary attributes, fashioning shadowy baskets. The sol- was a universal pet and plaything.

denly and slunk away, and was found afterwards hidden in a corner of the forge cowering and shivering. And so the legend grew, and acquired later the picturesque addition of red lights gleaning at times through the broken window, and the dark shadow of "the old man" wandering about at nightfall looking for ghostly birds in spectral snares. The whole story was very properly stigmatized as all rubbish by the "quality" who talked about "ignis fatus" and mist wreaths and referred with inconsiderable emphasis to the strength and popularity of the liquor sold at the village inn. But the Poacher's Hut was destined to provide yet another sensation, startling enough, but not at all supernatural. One day the miller's little six year old daughter was missing. She was generally described by the neighbors as "being that venturesome there was no holding of her." and by her mother as "a handful if ever there was one." and in spite, or because of

anoth

desire

shoul

Dr. I

ner,

Ford

that prop 000

peòp feren

ject, Rose

becol

of the

"P

when

his

the

our mus

they

and

kno

and pose tact

of

ing.

seci

ster oth sha We wil to

as doe the ing to

pui int

Ju

ca fre

ea

pla tw

on lo th

ne st ed ch

Jı

R

h

A beautiful camping ground-Pithers Point, Near Fort Frances.

WILL CURE YOU

The Most Wonderful Discovery of the Age—Oxydonor

Sufferers in all parts of the world have been made well and strong by the use of OXYDONOR.

It makes no difference what form of disease you may be suffering from, nor how hopeless your case, try the world-famous

OXYDONOR

Disease simply cannot stay in the body if it is well supplied with Oxy-gen by Oxydonor, which makes the body absorb this revitalizing force through every pore.

Mrs. I. Carmichael, 243 E. Barton Street, Hamilton, writes:-

"I used to be taking something or other all the time for Sciatica, Neuralgia, Stomach and Heart Trouble. Oxydonor is certainly marvelous and I am much improved, I am much stronger, thanks to the invention of such a grand and most valuable instrument."

It is positively unequalled for Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Fevers, Indigestion, Insomnia, Neuralgia, Grippe, Nervous Prostration, Lung and Stomach troubles, weakness from whatever cause, Sciatica, Gout, Lumbago, Liver and Kidney troubles, Paralysis, Heart Trouble and General Debility.

Write to-day for illustrated booklet with testimonials sent free. Refuse, imitations.

DR. H. SANCHE & CO., 362^L St Catherine St. W., Montreal

"lights," and saw, too, another sight that made "the boldest hold his breath for a time." For in front of the hut, half shrouded in mist, lurid and bloodhued in the red light from the window, stood a gaunt, forbidding figure. It was the miller, having most at stake, who first broke the spell.

"Old man or old devil, I want my child!" he said hoarsely, and led the way across the narrow zigzag causeway that crossed the "quake." And then the Figure spoke, in a rough voice enough, albeit rather faint and quavery, and sweeter words surely man nor ghost ever uttered.

"She's all right, mates, if you're looking for the kid. I should have brought her down presently and chanced it, but things ain't dry. She's all right, I tell you; come and see for your-selves."

The search party hurried on to the ill-famed hut. In the broken hearth was a glowing fire of peat and wood; and in front of it. wrapped in a coarses drab colored garment, and her face sheltered from the heat by a screen of her own clothes fastened up to dry, lay The Pet. asleep and smiling; and resting against her, so that she might see it when she woke, was the doll, bedraggled and steaming, and obviously uneasy at finding itself in a sitting position.

to the most treacherous "quake" of all, | new interest to the hut for some of fifty yards from the hut. And then those-the miller and his friends-who, for the first time they, too. saw the as became men of light and learning,

An Ex-King's Unbending.

Mr. Julian Ralph, author and war correspondent tells a story of the late King Kalakana, who on one occasion held a reception at the Windsor hotel in New York. He stood in a parlor with the aldermanic committee "doing the honors" as the people passed by to shake the swarthy monarch's hand. All at once a man reached the King's side in his regular turn, shot out of the line, gripped the king's hand with a hearty grasp, and fairly shouted:—"Why, Dave, old man, how are you?" "Why, Billy," said the King, "I'm very glad to see you!" "Put it there again!" said the man. "It's a good many years, Dave, since you and I ran to fires together in 'Honolulu ?"-and the King shook his hand again, smiling with delight at meeting a familiar face among such a multitude of strangers.

Pills of Attested Value.—Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are the result of careful study of the proper-ties of certain roots and herbs, and the action of such as sedatives and laxatives on the digestive apparatus. The success the compounders have met with attests the value of their work. These pills have been recognized for many years as the best cleansers of the system that can be got. Their excellence was recognized from the first and they grow more popular daily. "It was lucky I found her when I | and they grow more popular daily.

t., 1911

was alight now, ive herd shaky, ey knew up, and she was looked at. trembling tattered ouldersnirt, with those on e?" asked

membered ring some ad. aused by Pet, the rty was fortunate.

shirt and at, and a chelor-in garments 'quakes" toll. And engrossed days, no oid report ict under added a

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

another that Judge Green of Millwood desired it was that his only child Ralph should marry Nellie, the only child of

Dr. Ford, his neighbor around the corner, and his life-long friend; and Dr.

Ford was of a mind with Judge Green.

So anxious were they for the union that they had offered to each of the proposed participants a check of $25,-000 as a wedding present. The young people, however, entertained quite different views on this important subject, and Ralph was as ready to marry Rose Marion as Nellie was willing to become Mrs. Fred Percy. Such is love

"Preposterous," exclaimed the Judge

"It is true, just the same," insisted the Doctor, "and if we hope to have our wishes respected in the matter we must change our tactics. Of course, they really are in love with each other and would marry soon enough, but you know how stubborn young people are,

when the Doctor communicated to him

of the old-fashioned kind.

his latest information.

Love's Riddle Solved.

By Emil Morgani.

is the habit of lawyers.

gram was sent as follows:--

"We'll telegraph the preacher and see," said the Doctor, and they adjourned in great spirits to the Judge's to breakfast, from which point a tele-doesn't please us." "Good; very good; excellent," said the Judge, rubbing his hands and smil-ing. And after thoroughly explaining to each other the course each would pursue they separated to put their plan into action as soon as practicable.

This was immediately, and when the Judge and the Doctor had announced to their children that they had changed their minds and forebade them seeing ing each other again, and as for marrying, that was not to be thought of for an instant, Ralph and Nellie at once began to wonder what had happened. They tried to find out from their parents, but those two astute gentlemen were absolutely uncommuni-

The Western Home Monthly.

Rev. J. H. West, Swanscot. Did you marry Ralph Green and Nellie Ford last night?

(Signed) Green and Ford. "He knows us both," said the Doctor, when the messenger had gone, "and being a preacher he will tell the truth." If there was one thing more than theirs," ventured the Judge warily, as "Of course," assented the Judge, who was a deacon. In an hour or so a telegram to Dr. Ford was received to this effect :-

Swanscot. Yes, at half-past 11 o'clock. Collect.

J. H. West.

On the farm of C. Love, Kilnville, Swan River

When this message was received the Judge and the Doctor were so greatly elated that the actually hugged each other.

Swanscot was but fifty miles from Milwood, and on the 10.30 train came a letter to the Judge from Ralph, and one to the Doctor from Nellie, confirming the telegram, and saying they would remain in Swanscot until they had received the paternal forgiveness for their ruse, and their blessing. They also intimated that they had no money, and that their promised wedding present, or a portion of it, would be most convenient on their bridal tour previous to their return home, but youth is ever bold.

The two fathers held a further con-ference over the letters, and their enthusiasm over their own part in the affair, rather than the marriage itself, so exhilarated them, that they not only sent each a check for the $25,000, as promised, but a bonus for a thousand dollars was added by each to celebrate the success of their scheme. Then they sat down to wait the home-com-ing, chuckling with each other nightly over large copious hot toddies, pleasing to elderly gentlemen of convival tastes.

In the meantime Ralph and Nellie re-ceived their wedding checks and the extras, and without delay deposited them to their respective credits in the Swanscot Bank. This occurred on Wednesday, and on Friday the Swans-cot Herald appeared. At noon of that

A SNOW WHITE CLOTHES LINE

Mrs. Bell was a charming little woman with a cheerful, fascinating smile. You felt the better for her happy presence, and she went about her household duties with a song on her lips and a glad smile in her eye.

Wash day made no difference to her cheerfulness. Her clothes line, strung with fleecywhite garments, fairly glistened and was the envy of her neighbors. One day her next door neighbor was so much taken with the dazzling white appearance of her linen that she asked her however she got them so white. "Look at mine; they are yellow in comparison with yours." "Why," answered Mrs. Bell, "Sunlight Soap does it. I never wash with anything else. I just soak the clothes in lukewarm water, soap them well over with Sunlight, roll them up and allow to stand for about half an hour. Then I rub lightly, rinse them in clean water and hang them up on the line. It's the purity of the soap that does the work. My washing is done by eleven o'clock. For next wash day you buy Sunlight, and I'll show you how." And she did! The woman who uses Sunlight Soap regularly to do her washing has the satisfaction of having her linens and other fabrics made snowy white with the greatest economy in work, time and money. She knows that the purity of Sunlight saves the life of the clothes and does not injure them in the least. Sunlight purifies and cleanses everything it touches.

27

some of ends-who, learning, the story.

ng.

d war corlate King on held a el in New with the he honors' shake the at once a ı his reguripped the grasp, and old man, " said the ou!" "Put n. "It's a you and I ulu?"—and in, smiling miliar face rangers.

e's Vegetable of the proper-the action of he digestive bunders have work. These years as the can be got. com the first cative, and not being able to learn from any other source they sought each other, notwithstanding the ban placed upon further intercourse between them. They were discovered at one of their meetings, and Nellie was locked in her room. She escaped through a window to meet Ralph on the next occasion, and although her father stormed at her violently when he learned of her disobedience, he afterwards chuckled in his heart when he told the Judge about it; and the Judge had a somewhat similar story to narrate of his experience in trying to prevent Ralph from seeing Nellie.

This surveillance by the Judge and the Doctor continued for three weeks, and the two old schemers enjoyed the success of their deep-laid plot amazingly. But they did not let their children know that they so much as spoke to each other. Indeed, they did not hesitate to say that the families were estranged for good and sufficient reasons

One day, or rather one night, came a climax, and the next morning the Judge and the Doctor each received a telegram in these words:-

Swanscot, Tuesday. We were married here last night by Rev. J. H. West.

One to the Judge was signed "Ralph" and Nellie," and the other to the Doctor was signed "Nellie and Ralph." The Judge on his way to the Doctor's, met the Doctor on his way to the Judge's, each with a telegram in hand.

"Possibly it is some scheme of

Use Sunlight Soap This Way

If you follow directions, you do not need to boil your laundry when you use Sunlight Soap. Soak and soap the clothes well, roll them up tight and immerse them in lukewarm water for half an hour; then rinse in clear, fresh, tepid water. You do not need to do any back-breaking rubbing.

The Western Home Monthly.

Mature Experience For Your Guidance

'UST as you would expect a judge to hand down a correct decision in a case at law, so you would expect the Director of a musical college like the Metropolitan School of Music to say the just, the authoritative thing about the piano he has had under close observance for a long term of years.

"During the fourteen years in which we have used the Mason & Risch pianos - Up-rights and Grands-for teaching and concert purposes they have given complete satisfaction, an expression which we have much pleasure in meaning to be as comprehensive as possible, and, of course, embracing such allimportant matters as quality and durability of tone under daily and exacting usage, while in point of appearance they have ever been noticeable for their beauty and good taste." Yours very truly, W. O. Forsyth, Director of Music.

Here speaks favor for the Metropolitan School of Music (Toronto Here are his words :

The School of Individuality

where the fullest possible play is given to the special musical bent of pupil and where neither teacher nor pupil is handicapped by "stereotyped method or iron-clad formula" in the development of the highest measure of musical culture.

MASON & RISCH

"The Piano With a Soul"

that has grown with the years. Do you think that you could be more exacting, that you would say less, that you would get less service if you had a Mason & Risch Piano in YOUR home-for your delight and your childrens after you?

Our Booklet, "Inside Information" (free), tells the whole story of the Mason & Risch. Why it stays long in tune. Why our special Agraffe system assures each note its full native purity. Why an indescribable richness and harmony of tone prevails throughout the entire register. And much more information you need before you buy a piano. Write, or come, see us and investigate for yourself.

Mason & Risch, Limited

day the Judge, with a newspaper in his hand, on his way to the Doctor's met the Doctor on his way to the Judge's, also with a newspaper in his hand. Their faces were red, and they did not seem to be enjoying the news. "Did you—" began the Doctor, opening his paper. "Yes, I did," broke in the Judge,

opening his. "Well, I will be ---" began the Doctor.

"So will I,' broke in the Judge, not waiting for the Doctor to finish what he was about to say.

Under the "Marriages" in The Herald, marked with a blue pencil, were these two notices:

Green-Marion-At the Epiphany Rectory, Rev. J. H. West officiating, Ralph Green and Rose Marion, at 11.30 p.m., Monday, 12th inst.

Percy-Ford-At the Epiphany Rec-

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

erick Percy and Ellen Page Ford, at 11.30 p.m., 12th inst.

The Judge and the Doctor chafed over their defeat for a time, but when their children came home from their bridal trip of a month, they took them right into their homes and, forgave them everthing, even the extra thousand which had never been promised.

"Um," said the Judge, looking sheepishly at the Doctor. "Um," responded the Doctor, looking likewise at the Judge. "You've got a son just the same, papa," said Nellie to her father. "And you've got a daughter, dad" said Ralph to his. The Rev. J. H. West came over from Swanscot to attend the grand wedding reception and he proved conclusively that he had told the truth in his telegram, but not necessarily the whole tory, Rev. J. H. West officiating, Fred- truth, because he wasn't asked to do so.

Some Examination Humors.

By Thomas Laidlaw, Principal Alexandra School, Winnipeg.

Specially Written for W.H.M.

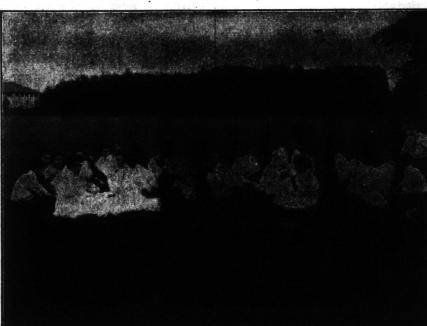

It is no part of the purpose of the writer of this article to cast reflection year." upon the character of the work done by the great majority of students, year." writing on the teachers' examinations "Per referred to throughout. That would a year." be unfair as well as untrue. The work

"Annuals are plants that grow every

"Biennials grow once or twice a

"Perennials grow three or four times

To eradicate Annuals, pick the as a whole was excellent, and showed flowers once a year. To eradicate rangen succe Hist itself easily count ever, writte Class "It all Eu could. affairs quer.] for a lish c an. won most "He solved army Colon Was pany, doubt victor impor now Exi potch

make

India

horro

laugh

been fresh the (

"TI this them Britis

cow. was to m

We

charg

clava

learn

the 1 sang the c

Ru

Winn

read th

clauses

visage "Bru

within hall, a

into th

on a father,

Alas F

didate.

make his 1 Evid W greas of t

howe

when

were mad

reyo

sider

an e

and

Cart

War

sult

0

."]

of] lead

tool

Can

caus

to Sea

bod

of

amo

was thin

life

the

the Act

Iı

B

Bı

W

Factory Branch: 356 Main Street, Winnipeg

The Only Piano Store on Main Street

Lite Insurance

is a boon the improvident reject-the careless ignore-and even the prudent sometimes postpone 1

The first step to taking Life Insurance is to know its many benefits !

Obtain this information by mail-to be quietly considered at home and acted upon at your own convenience-without undue solicitation-by writing to the Company providing Life Insurance at lowest cost and with highest returns.

The Great-West Life Assurance Company Head Office - - WINNIPEG

| CUT OUT AND MAIL |
|--|
| Without committing myself to any action—1 will be pleased to have explanations of your Life Policies. |
| Name |
| Address |
| Date of Birth |

Supper time, Assiniboine Park

long and careful preparation. amongst the answers of twenty-five hundred candidates, there must be a few exceptions from the general standard of proficiency. It is from these few that the following gems have been taken. Whoever reads them will please bear this in mind that they are not typical of the whole. It is only just that this fact should be clearly understood.

Examinations are not usually looked upon as humorous subjects by anxious candidates; indeed, we suspect that the distant prospect of a surgical operation might even be regarded as a joke in comparison. But the grimmest subject has its laughable side and examinations are no exception to this rule.

Perhaps a Non-Conformist or Scotchman might fail to see the joke in the following, but its humor should be appreciated by the churchman. At an examination in history the pupils were asked to give an account of the life of Thomas A. Beckett. One youth closed a thrilling account of the career of the great Archbishop by saying that "he was drowned in the Sea of Canterbury.

The candidate who wrote the answer to this question must have been brought up far from the surrounding quiet of the country school. The question from a paper on Agriculture asked for an explanation of the terms "Annual," "Biennial," "Perennial." The reply was as follows:

But | Biennials, pick two or three times a vear. To eradicate Perennials, pick the roots. A good way also to kill Perennials is to poison them with Pau's Green.

Comment is unnecessary. But think of the delight of a practical farmer, when his son or daughter comes home from school, and gives him the above explanations. Now he knows how to rid his farm of any hard Annual, Biennial, or Perennia, weed that grows, and the Noxious Weed Inspector will be in danger of losing his situation.

Grammar, except to the enthusiast, must always be a somewhat dry-asdust and uninteresting subject, and the examiner who can wade through the papers of a thousand budding teachers, must be an enthusiast indeed, if he does not find the work a weariness to both flesh and brain. But grammar, too, has its lurking humors though we may not always think so. In the examination already referred to, candidates were asked to analyze a passage from the "Eve of Waterloo." The passage begins,

"Within a windowed niche of that high hall

Sat Brunswick's fabled chieftain, He did hear that sound the first," etc.

It is not necessary to give the whole quotation which is well known, though its hidden humors may be all unsuspected. Neither does it present any great difficulty. It was only when he

., 1911

Ford, at chafed

ut when om their ok them

forgave

a. thous-

looking

looking er, dad"

ver from wedding clusively

his tele-

e whole

to do so.

w every twice a ur times

ick the eradicate

B - same,

nised.

The Western Home Monthly.

read the following arrangement of the clauses that the tired examiner's grim visage lit up with a smile. "Brunswick's faked chieftain safe within a windowed niche of that high hall, and when they smiled he rushed into the field and foremost fighting fell on a bloody bier which stretched his father, because he deemed it near." Alas poor father! and alas poor candidate. Striking and original is the ar-rangement, but, "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again."

History also is a subject which lends itself to distortion even somewhat easily we confess. The following account of the career of Napoleon is, however, quite new. The account was written by a candidate for a Second Class Teacher's Certificate:

"It was Napoleon's plan to conquer all Europe and as much of Asia as he could. His first intention after settling affairs at home in France was to conquer Italy. On his way to Italy he was for a short time at Trafalgar, an English coaling station in the Mediterranean. There he was met by Wolfe, who won an overwhelming victory and almost annihilated his army.

"He (Napoleon I presume) when resolved to conquer India. He and his army were landed at Plassey where Colonel Robert Clive who previously was a clerk in The East India Company, with his few courageous redoubtables met Napoleon. Clive was victorious in winning one of the most important battles in history. Napoleon now tired of war returned to France."

Exit the Emperor. What a hotch potch of undigested information it all The Crimean War, and the makes. Indian Mutiny, with their attendant horrors, do not afford much room for laughter, though frequently they have been thought of with tears. It is refreshing to learn from an account of the Crimean War.

"The English helped the Chinese in this war and drove them back. (Who theme were history does not say.) The British then sent an expedition to Moscow, but when they got there the place was burned down and the British had to march back again."

We are all familiar with the famous charge of the famous Brigade at Balaclava, but are somewhat amazed to learn that, "At the Battle of Balaclava the Light Brigade stopped and they all sang "Annie Laurie," before continuing the charge. Russell, the great war correspondent, makes no mention of this incident in his thrilling account of the mad ride. Evidently he missed something. We all know the part played by the greased cartridges as one of the causes of the great mutiny. The story varies however, according to the historian. We are not surprised to learn that when the Sepoys found that they were to be compelled to use bullets made of tallow and fat, they rose in revolt. Doubtless they did not consider that the combination would make an effective bullet, even at short range. But what do you think of this cause and how do you explain it. "When they were told to use The Cartilage of the pig' in the Crimean War, the sepoys thought it was an insult, and so they rose in revolt." Or this: "The Crimean War was in the reign of Elizabeth. Sir Walpole was the leader of the army at that time. It took place in India in 1863."

The writer of that reply will doubtless be able to speak and vote with intelligence on all political questions in Canada. But to return to the great mutiny.

Not many of us are aware that Canada played any conspicuous part in the memorable tragedy. Of course, we know that her voyageurs overcame the difficulties of navigation on the Nile during the Egyptian War, and that her sons fought side by side with the British regulars in Africa. It is only when one reads the following that we learn that even in the dark days of 1857 she also sent her sons to the front. for

"In the Indian Mutiny Colin Campbell was sent out to India with some soldiers from Canada to quell the uprising. Before such humors as these such simple statements as-"At Crecy the knights were mounted and heavily plated;' Or, "In one part of the room was a huge fireplace large enough to roast an ox with a gigantic chimney," hardly bring a smile to the worn visage of the weary examiner.

But let us leave historical humors and turn to the love tragedies that we find portrayed in Tennyson's well-known poems of "Maud" and "Locksley Hall." As you know the poems resemble each other in some respects. Candidates were

"The heroes of "Maud and "Locksley Hall" are both love-sick. Both men think that if the girls they are thinking of do not marry them, they will become worse by marrying some one else. The youth in "Locksley Hall" says he will end up by stduying science and let the world know of many things she did not know of before. These two think only of their own love affairs and let love come before everything else instead of letting it come in somewhere in the background. The hero of "Maud" is very proud of her. At one time he will be 'aviating away up in asked to compare the characters of the heroes and here they are at least as but Maud."

one budding genius saw them:

times a s, pick to kill th Pau's

t think

farmer, es home e above how to Annual, grows, tor will tion. husiast, dry-asand the igh the eachers, , if he ness to ar, too, referred analyze terloo."

we may

that ftain,

whole though

unsusnt any hen he But to come nearer home:

"The Union of Upper and Lower Canada took place in 1701. It was caused by the King sending out leaders to the Continent of America to start a trade in furs and hides. The South Sea Bubble was its name."

In another account we find that:

"The Quebec Act provided that nobody could be a member of the House of Lords without possessing a certain amount of land.

"If anybody committed a crime he was to be beheaded. If he stole anything he was to be imprisoned for life.

"Roman Catholics would worship in their own churches; other people in their own faith."

Again "The British North American Act was one of the causes that led to the Confederation Act."

to Buy Anything Get any of the outfits shown above-your choice of records too. Simply get the phonograph and the records and use them free just as though they were your own. Entertain yourself, your family and your friends too, if you wish, with everything, from the catchiest, newest popular songs, side-splitting minstrels and vaudeville monologues to the famous grand operas, Amberola and other records sung by the world's greatest artists. Hear all this to perfection on the Edison Phonograph. After you have had all this entersung by the world's greatest artists. Hear all this to perfection on the Edison Phonograph. After you have had all this enter-tainment absolutely free, then you may simply send the outfit right back to us at our expense. Now, if one of your friends wishes to buy such an outfit tell him that he can get the rock-bottom price, on easy payments, too; even as low as $2.00 a month without interest. But that's not what we ask of you. We just want to send you your choice of the latest style Edison Phono-graph free—your choice of records too, all free—then we will convince you of the magnificent superiority of the new style Edison. It will cost us a little in express charges to get the phonograph back from you—that is true—but we'll feel amply repaid for that, knowing that we have made you a friend and a walking advertisement of the new style Edison Phonograph.

Send Coupon for the New Edison Books FREE Today Get our handsome Free Edison Catalog and list of over

1500 records so you can select just the machine and the songs, recitations, etc., you want to hear on this ultra generous offer. Remember, there is absolutely no obligation on your part. All you need to do is to return the outfit at our expense when you are through with it. If you enjoy good music, and the finest and most varied entertainment that it is possible to imagine, or if you want to give your family and friends a treat such as they could not possible to imagine, or in you want to give means, then you should certainly send the Free coupon today. Don't wait—your name and address on a postal will do but the coupon is handier. No letter necessary. Be certain to write while the offer lasts. Better write today. Addr

F. K. Babson, EDISON PHONOGRAPH DISTRIBUTERS, Dept. 7516 Western Office 355 Portage Avenue, WINNIPEG, CANADA Eastern Office: 12 Wellington Street, TORONTO, CANADA

FREE COUPON F. K. BABSO Pattern Office: 355 Portage Avenue WINNIFEG, CANADA Bastern Office: 12 Wellington St. Bast TORONTO, CANADA Without obligations on me, please send me your great Edi-son Catalogs, and also full explana-tions of your Free Offer on my choice of a new style Edison Phonograph.

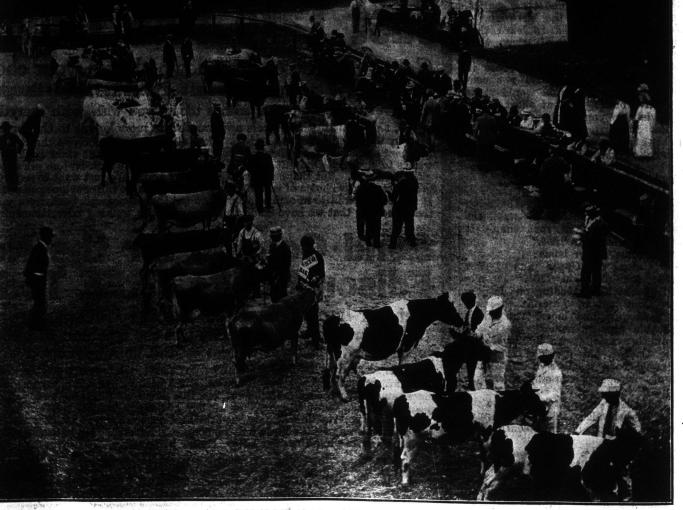

Name

Just sign and mail Free Coupon N

OX NIW I

Winn

mobiles the no

region

writers

in the type o

ment

facts V

his hig

stacles

difficul

stacles

should possib his su

. i. i. I

It i alone-

princi

13

Dairy Herds Competition at Winnipeg, Exhibition.

$5 50 Give inches around largest part of bust and smallest part of waist and largest part of hips also length of skirt in front. Order this beautiful suit today No. 6 add 35c. for postage. Standard Garment Co., 10 Standard Building. London, Ont. metrical Spoudie, Dactylie, t relief worked

, 1911

sible as actually ng for ent exwhen we lined to things iches in ides of ighlands people, poetic, t plains classufficient, xcessive

he hightropics, so little powers are unactivity. er hand, xistence he time conseall the rs who sults of orinting, ery, the s, auto-

Winnipeg Sept., 1911 mobiles and aeroplanes, have lived in the north temperate zone. The same region has furnished the home of the writers of the greatest books. It is also in the temperate zone that the highest type of civilization, culture and refine-ment is reached. Looking at these facts we may reasonably infer that, for his highest development, man needs obstacles to overcome, problems to solve, difficulties to surmount. But the ob-stacles, the problems and the difficulties should not be so great as to be impossible, nor so stupendous as to baffle his supremest efforts.

Effect on Animals and Plants.

alone that we see the effect of the infuence of environment, for the same principle obtains in animals and plants.

It is not in the realm of humanity

The Western Home Monthly:

Shaganappi pony, whose forebears have roamed the plains for ages in the scorching drought of summer and freezing blasts of winter, with the magnificent physique of the Clydesdale or Percheron, whose ancestors have been carefully fed, housed and worked for centuries,

If a plant is to attain perfection, we must give it conditions favorable to its growth-proper soil, temperature, light, moistures and atmosphere. If any of these are lacking in any degree, the plant will not attain its perfect maturity.

How careful we are too, to remove the decayed apples from the barrel, lest by contact we should lose all.

Man is the Sum of His Experiences.

"I am a Part of All that I have met"

Contrast the ill-shaped form of the | Tennyson has Ulysses exclaim, and shall resemble the great stone face, every one can testify to the same truth. We expect the child who has been surrounded by the best influences to become an honored and useful citizen; we are not surprised when the child of the slum becomes a criminal. We say of such an one that he was the victim of circumstances, by which we mean that so great was the influence of his environment that he could not overcome it and it overcame him.

The Influence of an Ideal.

Hawthorne's story, "The Great Stone Face," illustrates the same truth. On a mountain side, overlooking a New England village, carved only by the hand of nature, is the face of a man, noble, majestic, inspiring. It is a tradition in as far as possible, the personification of the village that some day a man, who his or her ideals.

shall come and do great things for the people.

31

A boy named Ernest thinks much about this great/one who will come, and studies the face reverently, thoughtfully, continuously. Years pass and several imposters are welcomed and afterwards rejected. At last, the people realize that it is the man named Ernest, noble, true and good, who resembles the face on the mountain side, and who is the real benefactor of the village.

The Secret of Influence.

"How can I hear what you say, when what you are keeps thundering in my ears?" exclaims a great thinker. One who would influence others should be,

TO-DAY

NAO

P.Q.

will bring it.

In the New FALL AND WINTER CATALOGUE of

to any Destination in Canada

THE SIMPSON STOR

you'll find that on everything from a packet of pins to a load of furniture, we pay all delivery charges to your nearest Railway Station, no matter where you live in Canada.

The time is past when you must worry out just what an article will cost when you receive it and have paid delivery charges. NOW, when you send an order to Simpson's, you know that the price we quote is exactly what the article will cost you laid down at your nearest Station or Post Office with all delivery charges paid.

We will not issue a Christmas Catalogue this year. You will find all Christmas Goods included in this one. TORONTO

If for any reason you find the goods we send you unsatisfactory, return them within seven days after you receive them, in good condition, and we will exchange or refund money, and pay all freight, express or mail charges both ways.

> A feature of this Catalogue is its forty-four pages of delivery-paid furniture. Just write on a post card : "Send me Fall and Winter Catalogue No. 34

$1.25 a year

Bemittances of small sums may be made with comparative safety in ordinary ers. Sums of one dollar or more it would be well to send by registered letter, P.O. letters. Money Order or Express Money Order.

Postage Stamps will be received the same as cash for the fractional parts of a lar, and in any amount when it is impossible for patrons to procure bills. We prefer those of the one cent or two cent denomination.

Change of Address.—Subscribers wishing their addresses changed must state their former as well as new address. All communications relative to change of address must be received by us not later than the 20th of the preceding month. That is to sav if you want your address changed for the July issue, we must hear from you to that effect not later then June 90th want your address ch later than June 20th.

When you renew be sure to sign your name exactly the same as it appears on the label of your paper. If this is not done it leads to confusion. If you have recently changed your address and the paper has been forwarded to you, be sure to let us know the address on your label.

Address all letters to-

THE WESTERN HOME MONTHLY, WINNIPEG, MAN. [To be cut out on the dotted lines.]

Special Subscription Order Blank.

The Western Home Monthly.

| Herein find $c | to pay | for years | subscription |
|--------------------------|--------|-----------|--------------|
| to Western Home Monthly. | | | |

| 2 V U///C | | | | |
|-------------|--------------|------|----------|------|
| P .O | | | Province | |
| | Street or Bo | x No | | |

Donald Flett's Dog Train-Fort Alexander.

lean. She also says that there is only | ters have risen superior to the most one lifter to twenty who lean. Teach your child to be a lifter not a

Influence of Pictures.

leaner.

...1911

Pictures have a great influence on the minds of children. A mother of four boys living in an inland town was puzzled, when each of her sons on growing to manhood, became a sailor. A visitor one day pointed out the cause. On the walls in her home hung several pictures of ships and the sea.

Miss Margaret Slattery tells, as a true story, of a Sunday school teacher who had a rude unmanageable girl in her class. She gave her a picture of Christ, a copy of the painting of a great artist. The girl put it on her dresser, dusted it, looked at it every day. Before long both teacher and mother noticed a great change in the girl. She became kind, gentle, unselfish.

Effect of Evil Pictures.

While we all are glad that the soul may be inspired by beautiful, noble pictures, we deplore the fact that many children and young-people are being dragged down by the moving picture show, the picture advertisement and the picture post card. Though some of these are the means of doing good, there are others which suggest evil." Parents. teachers, and ministers try to guard the child's life and keep it pure, but there The life above, when this is past, in full view, every time he goes to unfavorable environment. Caedmon, the first English poet, was a cow-herd; Bunyan was a tinker, and wrote his sublime "Pilgrim's Progress" when in Bedford jail; Carey, the first foreign missionary of modern times, was a shoemaker; Lincoln, the liberator of slaves and President of the United States, was a rail splitter; Garfield was a mule driver on the Erie Canal; Edison was a news boy. None of these were daunted by circumstances, but each took pleasure in overcoming every obstacle.

W

Mrs

After After Dow A mo Upon Whil Of a

Winl Like But And Whe Up s Then It is

Gua Win Like Ven But The 'Tis But,

As a The Was Mee All To A

Holland the poet sings:

"We rise by things that are 'neath our feet,

By what we have mastered of good and gain,

By the pride deposed and the passion slain,

And the vanquished ills that we hourly meet."

The Life Worth While.

We should be masters of circumstances. We should be .ast rt 'by conquerors. Let us turn the searchlight of eternity on our lives and consider what we shall wish we had done when opportunities are ours no longer. We should not let the good crowd out the best.

"Fill up the hours with what will last, Buy up the moments as they go, Is the ripe fruit of life below."

The Western Home Monthly. Winnipeg Sept., 1911 Your ringlets, a shower of shining gold, Soft over your shoulders fall. My dollie, the love of that far, sweet day Long dead, had no hair at all. Western Verse. Home, Sweet Home! Flint Island Light. But I held her close in my arms at night And sang to her soft and low. And I lavished the love of my childish heart, On that dollie of long ago. For the Children Mrs. Wm. G. Matheson, Port Morien, Cape Bretcn, N.S. TOME is nothing without I wonder, O, you of the sweet blue eyes And cheeks like the morn aglow, Will you ever be loved like that old rag doll, My darling of long ago? music and in this con-Sleepy and blue—the Bay's placid waters After the heat of the day, After the sun has gone flaming Down, and the shadows are grey, A moon and the stars all a peeping— Upon us—so friendly and bright, Upon us—so friendly and bright, nection the PIANO IS SUPREME. More people than we imagine Upon us—so friendly and bright, While out over there—you can see the red flare Of a small island's slow, winking light. do appreciate QUALITY IN A The Summer Time, and —— PIANO. They are the people Wink, wink, four winks-the wait of a second, Wink, wink, four winks—the wait of a second, Like some great eye making fun, But when a wild storm is howling, And there's stern work to be done, When the sea shoots foam all a boiling— Up skyward—almost out of sight, Then—flash, flash it goes, and the sailorman knows It is Flint Island's brave, winking light. who make the standing of any By H. Easton-Jenner A.C.C.M., Yorkton instrument in a community. Do you see that bluff out yonder, to the southward, Ask your music teacher or near the poplars, That are growing tall and stately by yon steep musical friend to give you their CANDID OPINION of the mountain side? Well, just beyond that angle, wandering over moss and pebbles Guarding a moody and rugged highway, Winking so gravely and grands Like to some firefly voyager— Venturing out, from the land; But always the signals a showing— They pierce through the blackness of night, "Tis dreary and lone—when the surf makes a moan But, it fails not—that wee island light. Is a quiet rippling streamlet, where the ng su young trout hide. DOHERTY PIANO :: Oh, many an hour I've sat there still and silent, in the shadows In a gastronomic dream of joy, too blissful far to They will tell you that MONEY and BRAINS cannot As a line one might trace with a pencil As I thought me of the treat in store at night time As a line one might trace with a pench The island appears from town; Washed by the mighty Atlantic, Meeting her smile and her frown; All ready to send out a warning— To wink and to whistle—just right, A keeper of souls—when the grey fog unrolls— Here's to Flint Island's bold, saving light! (Frances) in my shanty. And the wily trout they chuckled as they winked produce a better instrument, and they will be telling the truth. and Our new 1912 designs are now ready for delivery and passed. we will send you cuts and prices on receipt of a post card. For pass they did, and ne'er a one I caught from morn till even. But what of that, I'd sat there idly all the livelong Ask for our Free Trial Offer, by which we place the Piano in your home for THIRTY DAY'S FREE TRIAL before day, With all my troubles banished and the cares of life,—pouf,—never Child of man so happy, half as I, in Child-hood's you pay us one cent." The New Year. Have you seen the 1911 Edition of the Doherty Song hood's day. Book? It contains over 50 old Favorite Songs and if you J. L. Haggett will mention the Western Home Monthly and enclose 2c. The midnight bells have ceased their peel, And ushered in for woe or weal And perhaps in dreams, when I have reached the end of my life's journey, And am waiting for the "Phantom Bark" to pull in with the tide. stamp we will send you one free. And ushered in the two the tell Another year; What will bring we cannot tell But God our Father knoweth well: Then child, why fear? Remember the DOHERTY is THE PIANO YOU WANT W. Doherty Piano and Organ Co., Ltd. Western Branch: 280 Hargrave Street, Winnipeg Long Distance Phone Main 9166 Get the Saving Habit

An accidental snap shot on Centre Island, Toronto, shows the Western Home Monthly's popularity is not confined to the West.

I shall see again the poplars, and the shadows, and And stand beside the streamlet, where the

What'ere is best, He'll surely send,

the cunning trout

hide.

has been deposited. Each coin as it is deposited is duly registered on the face of the bank

"Most practical gift you can give to your children"

Grabb's Keyless Basket Bank

Impossible to Extract Money from it until some multiple of $5.00

he most lmon, the eow-herd: vrote⁻ his when in foreign is a shoeof slaves l States, is a mule on was a e daunted pleasure

t., 1911

magnify

oking or icture of citizens

ition the

the post-

as should ent com-

our sur-

eshing to nore than

ices. We

"in the e genera-

are white

ack slime

the pond.

not need Rome is a square

nd vessel,

just like

they are f people.

a charac-

s parting

as water.

t is the existence.

st charac-

es.

thing.

neath our good and

e passion ve hourly

e.

circumrt 'by e searchand conhad done o longer. rowd out will last, hey go, ow."

And for His loved ones it will tend To work their good; But they will need the spirit's aid But they will need the spirit's aid To bear what on them may be laid To work this good. If health and wealth and friends be given And all the choicest stores of Heaven Be on them pressed, E'en then you'll need the spirit's power To keep you humble in that hour, So richly blest. But should afflictions be thy meed, And these should press they sore indeed. But should afflictions be thy meed, And these should press thee sore indeed, At God's decree. His grace to help you all the way You'll doubly need, and if you pray He'll give it thee. Go then to Him by prayer of faith, And credit what His goodness saith, E'en, e'en to thee. 'Tis "that He'll be thy constant stay," And "that in all things as thy day, Thy strength shall be."

The Dollie of Long Ago.

By Lilian Leveridge

I have dressed a beautiful doll to-night For a little one sweet and fair. Ah me! Can it be I am growing old? That the hoar-frost has touched my hair?

O, the years are ruthless, the years are long, And the shadows are dim and deep 'Twixt me and the gleam of that golden day When I rocked my dollies to sleep.

But to-night they ebb like the ocean tide. And I am a girl again: My heart is the heart of a little child That knoweth no care, no pain

O, fair little lady with ribbon of rose

'Gainst the white of your dainty dress, For the sake of the dollie I loved and lost I give you one foud caress.

Your cheeks are pink as the glowing dawn. Your eyes are forget-me-nots. The face of my Rosie was pale and wan. And her eyes they were two black dots certain established routine of housekeeping when it could be much more profitably spent in rest or recreation. Don't go too long without food. Hunger gives a strained look to the face too. Now and then if one is fatigued a bite between meals will invigorate the whole system and give relaxation and repose to strained muscles and nerves. Common Sense xterminator KILLS ALL BUGS Completely rids the house of them. Beats any "insect powder". Absolutely safe and certain. Use it on the beds and in the kitchen. Money back if you are not satisfied. satisfied. Remember Two Kinds i-For Rats and Mice. 2-For Roaches and Bed-Bugs. At all dealers or from 20

COMMON SENSE MFG. CO. 381 Queen St. W., - Toronto.

First dime locks it. Fiftieth dime unlocks it.

33

THE GEM MOTOR CO., Household Specialties 419 Portage Avenue, Winnipeg, Man.

THE PHILOSOPHER.

THE ELECTION CAMPAIGN.

There is one outstanding feature of the present election campaign that givs satisfaction to the selfrespecting elector. The issue is clean cut, and not necessarily partisan. It can be discussed in all its phases without involving personal animosity and recrimination. The pros and cons of the proposed reciprocity pact negotiated between the Governments of this country and the United States, which is now before the electors of the Dominion, who will give their verdict upon it on the twenty-first day of this month, have been thoroughly set forth by the supporters and the opponents of the pact. The whole question has been, and is being, and will be, thoroughly discussed; and the acceptance, or rejection, of the pact may safely be left to the intelligent and patriotic electors.

CAUSE AND EFFECT.

It is absurd to say that everything is all right, but the world is not half as wrong as the complainers try to make out. Effects continue to have their causes, and frequently when a man is telling you his grievances, you could tell him, if you choose, where the trouble lies, and usually it is located under his own hat. The person who goes about relating his grievances is only sowing the seed of more. He convicts himself of bad judgment; for, if he were wise, he would realize that nobody wants to hear about grievances. People may offer him sympathy, but is it truly genuine? Are they not agreeing with him so that he will sooner finish his tale and go away? When he is gone, the listener will reflect that if all those other people who have known him well have used him so, there must be something wrong with him. As a wise man said, getting through life successfully is a job that calls for much wise reticence and an unvarying air of cheerfulness.

A MILITARIST ON WAR.

In the Ninteenth Century for August there is an article entitled "A Vindication of War," written by Sir Reginald C. Hart, from the point of view of the professional militarist. He argues that war is in the nature of things, and says that history warns us that it is not good for a nation to be too long at peace. "War has been the history of man in the past," writes this warrior, who, no doubt, grieves that he is wielding his pen instead of his sword, "and it must be so in the future." A curious idea this military gentleman must have of the progress of humanity and of the divine purpose in regard to the advancement of the race. Under peace, he tells us, nations languish and perish. He warns mankind "not to commit the folly of bering our swords into ploughshares," and asserts that the Almighty intends human life to be "on a war, not on a peace, basis," adding: "the Bible does not say that war is the root of all evil, but that money is so."

This assertion is on a par with many of Sir Reginald's other assertions. The Bible does not say that money is the root of all evil, but that "the love of money is the root of all evil"—quite a different thing. It is to be said for Sir Reginald, however, that he does not put forward the plea that war is a good thing because it "wipes out surplus population." If that were a benefit, why should we carry on the fight against tuberculosis and other deadly diseases that claim such heavy toll of human life? The truth is that militarism itself is a disease, which like consumption, may produce certain delusive appearances of health and beauty, but in the end brings ruin. family albums and see those bearded faces of men whom we never think of as having been young, we should realize that the old system was one which, perhaps, bare less hardly on the children than on those self-denying parents who suppressed and schooled themselves, in order to do what they felt to be their duty towards the young lives they were training. In one sense, the unselfish parent is the most selfish of all parents. It is easier to be unselfish with a child, in the sense of being indulgent, than it is to be firm and just. When a man writes of the cold sternness of his father, perhaps he is disclosing his own dullness in not having suspected what that sternness cost the man who wore it as a shield imposed by his sense of duty.

DAWSON'S POTATO CROPS.

From Dawson City, a thousand miles north of Winnipeg, comes the news that the harvest, small as it is will be the greatest that the Far North has ever seen. "This year's potato crop is better than anything in southern Canada on a similar acreage," says the dispatch. "Hundreds of tons worth many thousands of dollars, are represented in these Klondyke potato crops." Truly, our ideas about the northern parts of our vast Dominion are undergoing change. Who would have imagined fifteen years ago that potatoes, or anything else, could be grown in the vicinity of Dawson? Now we learn that some of the potato growers up there last year took so much as $8,000 worth from single farms of seventy or eighty acres. This year they expect in some cases to increase greatly that remarkable showing. There is no reason to doubt that the soil in that far northern region will yet be found suitable for the growing of other products than have yet been grown there. And there is little reason for surprise, when we learn of the progress of agriculture in the vicinity of Dawson, that such success is being met with in the Peace River country in growing wheat.

CITY AND COUNTRY INCREASE

The latest bulletin from the Census Bureau at Washington says that the United States census taken last year shows an increase in city population since 1900 in every state and territory, while in seven states there has been an actual decrease in rural population In all but two states the city population has increased faster than the rural population, and generally at a very much more rapid rate. There is no state or territory in which the increase in city population has been less than 10 per cent. since 1900. In thirteen states it has been between 50 and 100 per cent., and in six states it has been more than 100 per cent. The figures the Canadian census are not yet available, but there is every certainty that they will show a very different and more healthy tendency than that pre-vailing in the United States. The chief feature of the growth of population in the Dominion during the past ten years has been, of course, the settlement of large areas here in the West, enormous increasing the country's production o tracted period of time in which she had dealings with the firm of brokers. A financial paper in Toronto, in discussing the case, says that "the fair plaintiff alleged that the brokerage firm did not buy the stock, or if they did, conver d it to their own uses. The judgment declared that the brokers had the right to hypothecate the stock of a client, so long as it was pledged for an amount in excess of the amount owned by the client." The same paper says further: "this case is of interest for two reasons, first, as showing that a woman's reasoning faculties when they come down to plain ordinary business may take extraordinary twists, and secondly, that if the judgment had been in favor of the plaintiff, the speculative stock brokerage business in Canada would have been pronounced dead and buried." While there may not be any special reason for the Philosopher to "butt in," as the phrase goes among the vulgar, it is a little hard to resist the temptation to say that there is a third point in view which the case is of interest. Granted that "a woman's reasoning faculties, when they come down to plain ordinary business, may take extraordinary twists," how about the lawyer who carried the case into court for "the fair plaintiff," and for so doing saw to it, we may safely assume, that they were well paid? Lawyers usually make sure of that. It was man's reasoning faculties, not woman's, that they exercised. And though it may be somewhat late now to offer the remark, it seems almost worth while to point out, even at this distance that the Toronto paper missed an opportunity for comment on their part in the proceedings.

RICH AND POOR.

In our cities we see the costly palaces which our banks and other great concerns have built and are building as places of business, and on every side we see evidences of the accumulating capital in those reservoirs into which flows the wealth produced annually. But here, in this new country, where prosperity is fairly general, things are vastly different from the conditions in the old world countries where there is a numerous population far engulfed in poverty. The contrast between wealth and poverty is greater than ever before. In a recent address in London, Mr. George Paish, editor of that great English financial journal, The Statist, dealt with this subject, and said that money is now spent with a lavishness that would have amazed the wealthy people of a couple of generations ago and would have been impossible to them. "Money is spent on travel by land and by sea, on living, dress, sports, amusements, automobiles and yachts. The nations spend more on armaments during peace than they ever before spent in war. Gold has replaced silver as the ornament of the masses in most parts of the world, while the demand for diamonds, pearls and other precious stones is universal." InI his address Mr. Paish surveyed the world and took into account all the relations of an ordinarily prosperous man's life, showing how markedly every kind of expenditure has increased. But, to look on the best side of this

THE HUMAN NATURE OF PARENTS.

In a somewhat' self-complaisant article in a current magazine, a writer who has made something of a name for himself tells of the harsh rule which his father exercised over him as a boy forty or fifty years ago. In reading the article you cannot help feeling that the purpose of the writer is to make it appear that he deserves special credit for having done so well in life, considering the sort of father he had. The theme of the article is that a great change for the better has taken place in half a century in the relations between parents and children. That there is more frankness and cordiality between parents and children now, speaking generally than there was a few generations ago, is no doubt true; but is it to be believed that the fathers who were harsh with their chidren were lacking in the natural affection felt by the more demonstrative parents of to-day? Habits and customs change, but human The practise nature preserves a pretty flow. used to be for parents to be strict with their children, to be stern and unflinching in their parental duty. It was considered imperative that they should not spare the rod. But does any parent of to-day suppose that parental affections were suppressed or concealed without an effort in the days of his grandfather? We must know that the duty was often a hard one, and when we look through old land whose farming population increases faster than its city population is in the healthiest condition possible.

THE BONDS OF WEDLOCK.

In the State of Washington, under the law of a few years ago to compel medical examination of prospective bridegrooms and brides, many couples intending to be married considered such inspection inquisitorial and humiliating, and to avoid it they took a run across the border and were married in British Columbia. Artificial impediments to marriage have never been successfully maintained. Couples who have made up their minds to join their lives in wedlock will find means for evading any restrictions they might regard as interferences with their personal liberty. Yet we read a great deal nowadays in favor of prohibiting marriage under certain circumstances for the good of future generations. In the gossiping letters of Horace Walpole about English life in the eighteenth century there is a queer story about the arrangement of a marriage between members of two families of title. When the marriage settlements were being discussd, the representative of one side admitted that there was "a touch of insanity in the family." "So have we," replied the representative of the other family, "and so the arrangement is quite even and mutually just." Surely this was the very worst of arrangements. There are cases where marriage entails misery, and into which people may be plunged in entire ignorance.

A WOMAN, AND SOME LAWYERS.

In Toronto recently there was a suit brought by a lady of that city against a firm of brokers. The lady in the case it appears had been unfortunate in her speculations, and her suit was for the sum of $8,153.46, being the amount paid by her in margins, commissions and interest during the somewhat prosubject, a great deal of the increased outlay results in advantage to the race—better sanitation, education, better food, better clothing, heal.h, a declining death rate. The world's wealth is being devoted in unprecedented quantities to mere luxuries, but at the same time it is being devoted in unprecedented quantities to the betterment of human conditions.

THE "BARREN LANDS."

Can the immense areas of our Canadian northland lying between the coast of Hudson Bay) and the valley of the Mackenzie River be utilized for forest reserves? The Forestry Branch of the Department of Interior has just issued a report on the exploration by foresters of the route of the Hudson Bay Railway. Spruce is, for the most part the only timber there which is large enough for saw-timber or railway ties. The poplar, birch and Jack pine are short and spindly. Most of the tamarack has been killed by insects. "We did not find two hundred green tamarack trees above ten inches in diameter," says the report. The rate of growth we are told is decidedly slow, on account of the cold, wet soil of the muskegs which cover so much of the region. There is nothing, however, in all this that militates against the possibility of establishing spruce reserves. The Government might well devote the necessary money to the drainage and scientific reforesting of an area large enough to test the question thoroughly. In Europe there is ample forest growth far north of the Hudson Bay region. Practically all of Norway lies north of the latitude of Fort Churchill, and Great Britain gets most of its mine props as well as its pulpwood from Nor. way. There is no reason why the vast moss covered area of the "barren lands" should not yield to the scientific methods which have covered not only with spruce forests but with farms the Danish heath, which was once regarded as the most useiss hand under the sun.

chandise you are in need of. It is a picture book, a fashion book and a supply book. It is full of lifelike illustrations, it pictures styles as they are worn in the fashion centres, and it's a guide where to buy all kinds of supplies.

Our prices are absolutely the lowest consistent with best quality. Money back if not satisfied.

The Hudson's Bay Co. is a tremendous organization, and our buying powers therefore enable us to quote prices that will prove to be the lowest consistent with the quality. Hudson's Bay goods are admittedly the best you can buy. You can shop with us with the utmost confidence and satisfaction. Anything you buy that does not suit, return, and we will pay charges both ways, and return your money. ou wil fill in the coupon and send to us we will mail you a copy at once.

HUDSON'S BAY CO.

WINNIPEG

HERBERT E. BURBIDGE,

STORES COMMISSIONER

| | | f٦ |
|-------|---|-----|
| | SON'S BAY CO. Winnipeg ease send me your new fall catalogue | - 5 |
| to th | ease send me your new ran on the sender send me address below : | |
| Nam | 96 | |
| Post | t Office | |
| Prov | V | |

educa-

eclining oted in

but at edented ditions.

north-

ay) and zed for the Deport on he Hudpart the or sawnd Jack

amarack ind two nches in growth

the cold, nuch of all this stablishht well

age and to test s ample region.

latitude most of m Nor. s coveryield to not only Danish ost useN

The Western Home Monthly.

Field Crops in Canada.

The condition of field crops in Can- make a home on the farm-and our ada shows good averages for all pro-vinces as well as for all crops. Fall wheat was hurt by the hard winter in Ontario, but fared better in Alberta. The estimated yield is 23.24 bushels for the former province and 27.89 bushels for for the latter. The total estimated yield is 17,706,000 bushels. The condi-tion of spring wheat at the end of July was 90 for the whole of Canada, being 85 to 95 in the Maritime provinces, 80 to 89, in Ontario and Quebec, 90 to 96 in the Northwest provinces and 85 in British Columbia. Oats and barley have an average condition of 88 for Canada, 85 to 95 in the Maritime provinces, and 87 to 89 in British Columbia. Rye, peas and beans range from 78 to 84 in Canada and buckwheat is 81.85. Mixed grains have a condition of 86, which is 14 per cent. less than last year, and flax is 91, which is nearly 20 better. The average of corn for husking is 86 and of potatoes 85.64-being in each case a little higher than last year. Potatoes, turnips and mangolds range from 81 to 85, or about the same as a year ago. Hay and clover and alfalfa are 80 to 83, which is a little lower in each case than last year. Corn for fodder has an average condition of 87, sugar beets of 79 and pasture of 79. The eastern provinces are lower than the figures quoted for the whole of Canada, and the western provinces are higher. The highest averages are given for Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Sugar beets have a condition of 81 in Ontario and Alberta, where they are grown to supply the sugar factories.

Compared with last year's crops in the Northwest provinces, the condition of spring wheat in Manitoba south of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is 88 to 39, of oats 88.72 to 38.85, and of barley 85.16 to 34.92; and north of the same railway the condition is 92.21 to 77.42 for wheat, 90.71 to 72.90 for oats, and 88.95 to 50.84 for barley. In Saskatchewan south of townships 25 the condition of wheat is 90.19 to 69.33, of oats 88.27 to 61.64, and of barley 80.03 to 65.89; and north of townships 24 the condition of wheat is 98.22 to 67.69, of oats it is 95.35 to 63.88, and of barley 94.58 to 71.30. In Alberta south of townships 31 the condition of wheat is 93.89 to 24.93, of oats 95.28 to 20.43, and of barley 93.70 to 26.36; and north of townships 30 the condition of wheat is 97.84 to 71.55, of oats 97.95 to 65.68 and of barley 105.95 to 73.60.

area of spring wheat

solicitude for the welfare of their children.

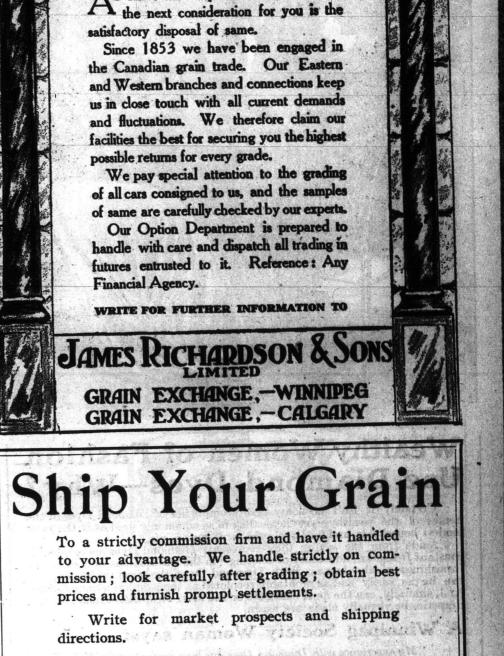

There are three things which stand out with clearness,-contribute to the new view and are to be reckoned with in our consideration of the feature of agriculture. 1. The enclosure of the public domain. 2. The imperative demand for increased production, a demand made by increasing population. 3. The education of the children on the farm, so as to insure a physical and intellectual life that places the farmer on the level with the best in other lines of business.

There never has been a public question, it is said, upon which there is so much oneness of sentiment as that of agricultural education. It is true that agriculture binds all interests, that it fosters true democracy. If in fifty years every state must double its production, then whatever affects that production is of public concern, and is not a class interest. If production is in-creasing faster than transportation facilities, then that is a matter of public concern, and improved waterways is properly a subject for a public policy. It has come to pass that the best minds advocate making agricultural education a part of our general educational system. There are two educational system. points which bear strongly on this subject: 1. The new attitude toward work -actual work with the hands. There are those who believe that work only is educative, and that the farmer's work is most educative because of its freedom from meaningless repetition. The second point is well expressed by Pres. Sledd, who says, "education should give to life a satisfying content. The farmer be given training that will give him poise and content." Some one writing of the North Adams High School in Michigan says: "Agricultural instruction gives point and value to all other high school work in science, arithmetic and language." So it would seem that the right plan is coming, and that we shall have agriculture in all schools, rather than special schools of agriculture.

Mutual.

"Mary," said a lady to her maid, "I don't like the looks of that man who called to see you last night." "Well, well," said Mary, "ain't it funny, ma'am? He said the same about you.

GRAIN GROWERS

A FTER the crop has been harvested,

37

Northwest provinces this year is 1,500, 000 acres more than last year and of oats 341,000 acres, but no increase is shown for barley.

The yield of hay and clover is estimated at 12,189,000 tons for Canada, being 1.43 tons per acre and the largest yields for provinces are 4,736,000 tons in Ontario, 5,028,000 tons in Quebec, 254,000 tons in Prince Edward Island, 941,000 tons in Nova Scotia and 885,-000 tons in New Brunswick.

The New View Point in Agriculture.

The man, the soil and the crop are inseparable in the new outlook - formerly the great mass of people were concerned only with the crop. That old sign "Cash for wheat," which used to be found on mills and warehouses was the great incentive to one crop farming -the great cause of the one crop farmer with his great limitations and his burden of miscry.

As has been said: "Production is fundamental but it is not final."

The urge of pioneer conditions, however, made the production of wheat almost final. If we have a new view point it is because we have risen on the experiences, the knowledge and the hopes of our fathers.

We have added to our appreciation of the value of the crop-our appreciation of the fact that we hold the soil in trust to be passed on, monre fertile than we found it-and to that, our appreciation of the man and woman who

The best work is always the product of the best men. In Taxidermy we are distinct leaders. Send your Birds and Ani mals to be mounted. Work guaranteed and costs moderate. Cash deposit required with all orders.

John Ambrose 171 Fort St. The Taxidermist WINNIPEG STOP! STOP! STOP! Thirty Days Trial of

Ringtrated Catalog 1541 Canal

Thompson, Sons & Company

"My experience with Diamond Dyes has been perfectly delightful. I be required $2\frac{1}{2}$ yards of material 27 or 2 yards 36 inches wide. The pattern, No. 7081, is cut in sizes

box

one

fini

tra box

tire wit

left

edg

tur gor left bac

der

cut

to 36 wie

siz of dre thi

of

draperies were almost new, but I made up my mind that they would have to be recolored. Diamond Dyes did the work magnificently. Then I int oduced these splendid dyes into my wardrobe with equally charming results. It wasn't economy that prompted me to try them, but I find that Diamond Dyes have saved me many hundreds of dollars." Mrs. W. L. Allen, Winnipeg, Canada.

7091 House Gown or Wrapper, 34 to 44 bust.

and side-back. The fronts are joined for a portion of their depth and the opening above is finished with hems. The tucks at the shoulders provide becoming fullness. Whichever collar is used, it is joined to the neck edge. The three-quarter sleeves are made in one-piece each and finished with cucs. The long sleeves are plain, made with upper and under portions. The gown can be made with a train or in walking length.

For the medium size will be required 8 yards of material 27, 7 yards 36 or 45% yards 44 inches wide, the width of the skirt at lower edge is 3 yards for the walking length. The pattern, No. 7091, is cut in sizes for a 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inch bust measure and will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of ten cents.

CHILD'S APRON, 7081.

With high or square neck, with or without sleeves and pockets.

The really protective aprovide the one that always is needed. This one for children of 2, 4 and 6 years of age. It will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of ten cents.

SIX GORED SKIRT FOR MISSES AND SMALL WOMEN, 7093.

7093 Six Gored Skirt for Misses and Small Women, 14, 16 and 18 years.

There are two kinds of Diamond Dyes—one for Wool or Silk, the other for Cotton, Linen or Mixed Goods. D.amond Dyes for Wool or Silk now come in Blue envelopes. And, as heretofore, those for Cotton, Linen or Mixed Goods are in White envelopes.

Here's the Truth About Dyes for Home Use:

lamo

Our experience of over thirty years has proven that no one dye will successfully color every fabric.

There are two classes of fabrics-animal fibre fabrics-and vegetable fibre fabrics.

Wool and Silk are animal fibre fabrics. Cotton and Linen are vegetable fibre fabrics. "Union" or "Rixed" goods are 60% to 80% Cotton—so must be treated as vegetable fibre fabrics.

Vegetable fibres require one class of dye, and animal fibres another and radically different class of dye. As proof—we call attention to the fact that manufacturers of woollen goods use one class of dye, while manufacturers of cotton goods use an entirely different goods use class of dye.

For these reasons we manufacture one class of Diamond Dyes for coloring Cotton, Linen or Mixed Goods, and another class of Diamond Dyes for coloring Wool or Silk, so that you may obtain the very best results on EVERY fabric.

EXAMPLE: To get the best possible results in coloring Cotton, Linen or Mixed Goods, use the Diamond Dyes manufactured especially for Cotton, Linen or Mixed Goods.

AND REMEMBER: To get the best possible result in coloring Wool or Silk, use the Diamond Dyes manufactured especially for Wool or Silk. Diamond Dyes are sold at the uniform price of 10c per package.

Valuable Books and Samples Free

Send us your dealer's name and address—tell us whether or not he sells Diamond Dyes. We will then send you that famous book of helps, the Diamond Dye Annual, a copy of the Direction Book and 36 samples of Dyed Cloth—Free

THE WELLS & RICHARDSON CO., LIMITED, MONTREAL, QUEBEC

igh

out

ore

ay

te-

ily

for

ite the ith nd

ece

igh

out

are nd

ny

vill

27

SIX GORED SKIRT FOR MISSES AND SMALL WOMEN, 7093.

With front gore made with scalloped or plain edge with high or natural waist line.

The six gored skirt that gives a box-plait effect at front and back is one of the best liked. This one can be finished with scalloped edges, as illustrated, or plain, as preferred, and the box-plaits can be stitched for their entire length, or part of the way only, with the edges of the plaits joined and left free below.

The skirt is cut in six gores. The edges of front and back gores are turned under and lapped onto the side gores. The closing can be made at the left of the front or the left of the The high waisted skirt is unback. der-faced at the upper edge. The skirt cut to the natural waist line is joined to a belt.

For the 16 year size will be required 51/4 yards of material 27, 31/2 yards 36 or 31/4 yards 44 inches wide. The width of the skirt at the lower edge is 2% yards.

The pattern, No. 7093, is cut in sizes for misses of 14, 16 and 18 years of age, and will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of ten cents.

PEASANT BLOUSE FOR MISSES AND SMALL WOMEN, 7092.

invisibly at the left of the front. The under sleeves are attached beneath the sleeve "edges For the 16 year size will be required 21% yards of material 27 or 36, 11% yards 44 inches wide, with 3/4 yard 18 inches wide for the chemisette and under sleeves. The pattern, No. 7092, is cut in sizes for misses of 14, 16 and 18 years of Either it or the embroidery pattern,

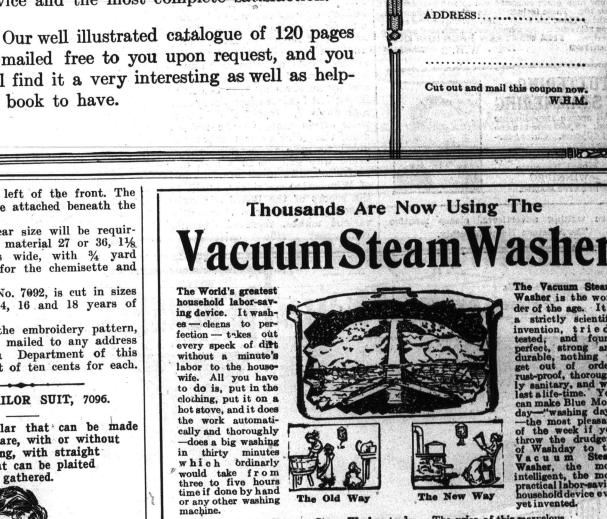

N

No. 583, will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of ten cents for each.

GIRL'S SAILOR SUIT, 7096.

With sailor collar that can be made round or square, with or without yoke facing, with straight skirt that can be plaited or gathered.

der of the age. It is a strictly scientific invention, tried, tested, and found perfect, strong and , noth t of of, tho vet invented.

Jewellery-and-Silver-by-Mail System

DINGWALLS

The Western Home Monthly.

is one of the finest aids you can have in the choosing of your wedding or personal gifts.

It places within your reach the choicest and largest Jewellery and Silverware stock in the West, and at the same time ensures rapid service and the most complete satisfaction.

is mailed free to you upon request, and you will find it a very interesting as well as helpful book to have.

Will you send me by return mail a copy of your 1911 catalogue and as soon as the 1912 catalogue is off the press this fall send it as well.

PORTAGE VENUE

D. R. Dingwall Limited

Jewellers and Silversmiths

Winnipeg, Man.

47

NAME ADDRESS.....

Cut out and mail this coupon p W.H.M.

1:02

7092 Peasant Blouse for Misses and Small Women, 14, 16 and 18 years.

With or without stock collar, and under sleeves. 583 Embroidery Design.

The blouse that is closed at the left of the front is a favorite and a very generally becoming one. Here is a model designed for small women and young girls that can be treated in a number of ways. In the illustration, it is made of linen, finished with scalloped edges and with little eyelets in the scallops and the edges bound, or it can be left plain and trimmed with scallops, but it can be cut in larger banding or with applique, and the blouse can be made either of plain material or of fancy material. If a more elaborate effect is wanted, it can be embroidered or braided in some attractive design. It can be worn with a six gored skirt as illustrated, and give a semi-princesse effect, or it can be worn with any preferred skirt either cut to the high or to the natural waist Lue,

The blouse is made in two pieces, the sleeves making a part of it. The chemisette is separate and adjusted inder the blouse and closed at the book, while the blouse itself is closed

7096 Girl's Sailor Suit, 6 to 12 years. The sailor suit is one that always

THE VACUUM STEAM WASHER CO., 245a Notre Dame Ave. is in demand for little girls. This one is finished with a blouse that is hemmed at the front edges and which can be made plain or with an applied yoke. The skirt is joined to an under-body, and this under-body is faced to form the shield. In the illustration, white linen is trimmed with blue and with white braid, but dresses of this kind are made from serge, flannel and from various other materials.

Order a Vacuum Steam Washer to-day. The price of this marvelous machine, carriage paid anywhere, only $2.50.

The dress consists of blouse, underbody and skirt. The blouse is made with front and back portions and when the yoke is used it is applied on indicated lines. The sleeves are cut in one piece each and tucked at their lower edges. They can be finished with or without straight cuffs. The collar without straight cuffs. The collar is joined to the neck edge.

The quantity of material required for the 10 year size is 6 yards 27, 43/4 yards 36 or 3 yards 44 inches wide, with 1/2 yard 27 inches wide for sailor collar and cuffs, 3% yard for shield and standing collar.

The pattern, No. 7096, is cut in sizes for girls from 6 to 12 years of age, and it will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of ten cents.

box with spirit burner, fly weel with speed regula-tor on metal pedestal, entire engine on wood base. We give it to you free for a few hour's work sell-ing our beautiful Litho-Art Post Cards at 3 for 5c. These comprise Thanksgiving, Hallowe'en, Love Scenes, Birthday Views, Comics Best Wishes, etc., and are fast sellers. Write us today for $4 worth of these postcards, sell them, return the money, and we will send Engine exactly as represented by return. WESTERN DEFMULTION CO

WESTERN PREMIUM CO., Winnipeg, Dept. W.H. 2 Canada.

Read Page 48c August issue, Western Home Monthly. If you cannot find it, send for a free sample copy. You can make some easy money if you do it now. Address: P.O. Box 811, Winnipeg, Canada.

Attitution and a second and a s

Isn't it because shingles have made a good roof? And because the abundant lumber of days gone by has created the shingle habit? But this shingle habit is giving way to

NEPONSET Paroid Roofing

The Real Rival of Best Shingles

A. L. BOWEN, user, writes:

"A Barn burned next to me on the 4th. The shingled barn caught a dozen times from sparks but NEPON-SET Paroid saved house and storehouse. Sparks won't fire Paroid."

Lasts longer. Costs less to buy and less to lay. Gives actual fire protection. Let us send you actual records of NEPONSET Paroid covering 13 years' hard service on barns, factories, storehouses, railroad and Government buildings, etc.

Other NEPONSET Roofings are-NEPONSET Proslate for houses; NEPONSET Red Rope for temporary buildings.

NEPONSET Roofings are made in Canada.

The leading dealer in every town carries NEPONSET Roofings. If you do not know him, write us. Ask tor the NFPONSET Book of Roofing Facts.

F. W. BIRD & SON, Makers, 653 Lotteridge St., Hamilton, Ont.

Established 1795 Winnipeg, Calgary, St. John. N. B., Vancouver, B. C. M. & S. PIERCE, dealers, write: "We have never had a complaint from any one we have sold NE-PONSET Paroid to the seni get liev hav hea der arti

cate

the

was

WOI

wer

pre-tha

tere

Th

the

Hil

mil

ope of nea

Hil

de

st ol

er to Pe

> go Te th no th m so 203

k

and those we sold to years ago come again when in need."

the best rlay-Ansatisfy can be Avenue no Coms of the

., 1911

few men r a comfight in ne public h of the sset. and th is of he treat-

25 stpaid this nade dress, as shown, the front ot trimmed trimmed lace yoke, fine pleats, whole suit d to please al consists in black ark green, tooth faced le for cold y, dark red er one of you will be rou will be r bargain. rt of bust

Ē

I find that my mention of the ing of horses and cattle. Indeed, the catalogue of china, to be issued by one natural feed for stock could hardly be of the department stores, was of very considerable interest to About China. readers of this column.

The Women's Quiet Hour.

By E. Cora Hind.

the most northern part of inforta. I sent in the requests to the house getting out the catalogues, and I be-lieve that by this time all requests have been filled. I should be glad to hear from any of the women who order this china as to how they find the articles furnished compare with the catalogue, or rather, with their idea of them gathered from the catalogue. I was very grateful to a number of the women who, in writing for a catalogue, were kind enough to express their appreciation of the column and to say that they find it both helpful and in-

During the past month I had the opportunity of visiting the Swan River Valley, one of the few parts of Manitoba which I had not

The Cotton previously seen. It is Farms. a wonderful stretch of country, lying between the Duck Mountains and the Porcupine teresting.

Hills, varying in width from 16 to 35 miles long. It is a country of wide, poultry. I am glad to be able to give open spaces, with tree-bordered streams my readers a picture of Miss Cotton, of clear water running over gravel, and the daughter of the house, among her near its centre is pierced by Thunder feathered brood. She is a very success-Hill, which adds not only character but ful poultry woman, though they do not surpassed, as growth of wild peas and vetches is often from 31/2 to 5 feet high. Tradition says that in the very About China. 1 think that, in an, 1 received over twenty inquiries, and these were scattered from Ontario to the most northern part of Alberta. I the most northern part of the house the second the second to the house the most northern part of the house the second the second to the house the most northern part of the house the second to the house home of the banks of the beautiful little stream on the main trail from Kenville to Thunder Hill. There is a beautiful garden and a regular plantation of raspberries, red, white and black currants, and gooseberries; but Mrs. Cotton has firmly set her face against the clearing-up of the stretch of native timber and underbrush right along the stream, so that it is possible to step from this well-ordered garden into the real wilderness, lending a delightful touch of contrast to this farm home. I shall always remember the cordial greeting I received when, an unexpected and really uninvited guest, I arrived there one evening just at supper time. Mrs. Cotton has all the heartiness of "the old timers, and though her hospitality has been drawn upon for many years, the supply seems to be inexhaustible. We spent the evening going about the farm, where they breed good cattle and horses, and good

Miss Cotton and her feathered tribe.

beauty to the valley. The soil is mar- | raise poultry for the market, but only velously rich, and the growth, this year remarkably luxuriant. In addition to the Swan River itself-from which the Valley takes its name-there is Cotton Creek, Roaring River, Thunder Creek, and a number of smaller streams. Through this valley, in the old days, ran one of the famous northern trails. This train was from Yorkton, cross country, through old Fort Pelly, past McPherson (where, by the way, the very first administration of government for the Northwestern Territories took place) and up through the Swan River Valley, past what is now the town of Swan River, and on to the north. The streams, also, were very much used in the old days for Hud-The son's Bay freight transport. southern end of the valley is in Saskatchewan, but the most beautiful part of it is in Manitoba. On this trip was entertained at the home of Mr. A. J. Cotton, who is a pioneer of the more recent settlement of the valley, it being ten years since he moved from Treherne to that point. His home lies about nine miles from the present Thunder Hill branch of the Canadian Northern Railway; and he has really carried on an experimental farm for his own benefit and the benefit of his He has proved that the neighbors Swan River valley can produce almost any kind of grain or vegetables, also for their own use. Swan River Valley rejoices in the rural postal service, and the women of the family were loud in their praise of its conveniences. The cost is comparatively small, and they get their mail, in this particular instance, three time a week, right at their own door, and can, if they wish, send, in this way, money orders for anything which they require from the city. They have not yet got the rural telephone, but will have it this fall. I was so struck by the beauty of the valley and its fertility that I asked Mr. Cotton how much of it was still vacant. He thinks that less than 20 per cent. of the land has, as yet, been brought under cultivation.

I had a very interesting chat recently with a man who has visited France frequently for the purchase of Percheron horses. We were commenting on the dif-Women ferent breeds, and I ask-Who ed him if there were any Raise truth in the statement Foals. that the Percheron horses being descended from the old Arab strain had something to do with their docility and the ease with which they can be trained -- a feature which has al ways made them popular with circus He said the question of managers. how much Arab blood there is in the that it is an idea! spot for the breed | Percheron of the present day is es beautifully illustrated and containing a list with full description of a large number of tasteful sets of China. These are all in open patterns, and not only can a piece be replaced, but any person desiring to accumulate a really beautiful set of China, can begin by buying a few plates and cups at a time, and keep ordering more as the purse permits.

There are only a very limited number of these catalogues so that immediate application is suggested. In dealing with us you have the benefit of an exceptionally large stock, as well as our 30 years of Western exper ence.

J. Robinson & Co., Winnipeg

ENGLISH CLOTH cannot be equalled for smartness in appearance and long wear.
 We can offer you these, and combine with the above, cheapness of price. We are in the centre of the great woollen industry, and offer only thoroughly reliable cloths which will give every satisfaction. Suits made to your special measurements from which will give every satisfaction. Suits made to your special measurements from $7, and upwards. Suit lengths, which your tailor will make up, from $2.50 upwards.
 $7, and upwards. Suit lengths, which your tailor will make up, from $2.50 upwards.
 Write to-day for selection of 150 cloths, testimonials, measurement forms, etc., post free.
 GROVES & LINDLEY, 42, Lion Buildings, Huddersheld, Fug.

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

Winn

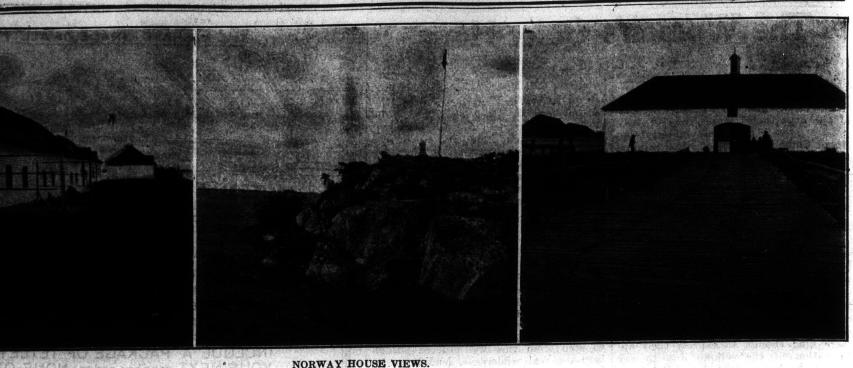

It affec finally fraud to is trem end, the ed i to al wife, at sents, t the man than th sacrifice told tha has bec her real whole h that so crime, the mo

Mrs. piness moved 1

Dr. G nation multi-n content

large.

Hudson Bay "Quarters."

tremely problematic, but that the docility and tractability for which they have made a success of it. While it docility of the Percheron horse is due are noted. This conversation with Proto the fact that he has that best of all trainers for horses—or children— a woman. The system under which horses are raised in France is, of course, familiar to most breeders or importers, but may not be so familiar to readers of this column. The French Government takes a very active interest in the breeding of horses, and sets aside certain sums for this purpose. A man who is in the business of horse-raising and selling may have hundreds of stallions of all ages on his farm, and perhaps not more than one or two The mares are on the small mares. farm holdings of France. In the season the stallions are sent through the country and stand for service at various points in the farming districts. The man who owns the stallions takes an option on the stallion colts. The farms being small, the mare with foal is sent out to work, and returned to the home regularly, to suckle her colt. The room in which the colts are raised is only divided by a short passage from the living room of the family on these small French farms; and the foals, from the time they are dropped until they are old enough to go to the stallion farms, are constantly tended, handed by the women of the family. This not only has accounted for the very small percentage of loss in the raising of foals, but has developed, in fessor Carlyle roused in me once more the idea of which I have frequently written-that there is a very excellent opening in the Canadian West for this class of work by women. Why don't the girls on the farms make a bargain with their fathers for the raising of the foals? They would add immensely to the value of the horses for sale, and they should receive a good percentage of the price for which the horses are eventually sold. One of the com-plaints which farmers so frequently make about the horse business is that a horse trader will frequently come and pay them $200 for a horse, and that in a few months he will sell the horse for $300 or even $400. And they cannot be made to understand that the months that have intervened have been spent by the dealer in the most careful training of that horse. Now if these horses were trained on the farms by the women they would have the enhanced value at once; for the dealer would greatly prefer buying the horse already trained. In these days, when there are automobiles, railway trains, threshing engines and the like in every country district, there is no reason why a horse should not be completely broken for city use before it ever comes into the city. Women as a rule have much better hands for horses than men.

Rocky Point at landing, showing Monument to Chief Fractor Belanger, who was drowned trying to save one of his men.

it is for lambs, to be made complete pets of, the fact that they have been accustomed always to being handled to some extent, and, from their second year, having been broken to harness and driven, and ultimately broken by women, almost invariably ensures good, safe horses, with plenty of spirit and no vice.

I think that all of my readers who have the pleasure of meeting Miss A. B. Juniper, the Professof of Domestic Science for Manitoba Ag-Miss A. B. ricultural College, will be Juniper. glad to know that she is Miss A. B.

enjoying a well-earned holiday in her old home in England. Before she left, however, she had com-pleted the plans for the Domestic Science building in connection with the new college, as it is being erected at St. Vital. Miss Juniper has succeeded in capturing the hearts of all the students who, so far, have worked under her, and there is no doubt that when the new building is completed the work will go forward very rapidly. The Home Economics clubs in Manitoba and the Homemakers' clubs in Saskatchewan have all had a busy and interesting summer, and much interest has been aroused, and, I think, great progress They have more patience; and wherever made, in the work of improving condi-

Warehouse and walk to Landing.

Miss L. M. Montgomery, the author of "Anne of Green Gables," "Anne of Avonlea," "Kilmeny," and numerous short stories, has betaken herself to matrimony, Books.

and has also got out a new book—"The Story Girl." Frankly, this book is not equal to "Anne of Green Gables," but it is a very bright story of the sayings and doings of a party of school boys and girls in Prince Edward Island. It is a very wholesome book, and one which mothers may take into the home with the utmost confidence. Personally, I think that author has been writing too many books in too short a time; but, perhaps, now that she has a husband and a home to look after, she will write more slowly and her readers will get the benefit.

"George Thorne," by Norval Richardson, is a book that I would strongly recommend to mothers to buy for their sons. Norval Richardson has one other novel to his credit-"The Lead of Honor." George Thorne is a young man who, after very hard struggles, at the age of 23 or 24 is suddenly confronted with temptation to pass himself off as the son of a very wealthy man, whose child has been abducted when it was three or four years old. He yields to the temptation, and succeeds in completely deceiving the man and his wife. The whole strength of the book lies in the effect on his character of the ab-this particular breed, the wonderful they have undertaken this work, they tions for the women on the farms.

solute goodness and trust of the woman

It affects him so strongly that he is finally compelled to confess the whole fraud to his supposed father. The scene is tremendously dramatic, and, in the end, the supposed father is constrained to keep the whole story from his wife, and the hero, George Thome, consents, to for the rest of his life, bear the martyrdom of living a part, rather than that the woman's life should be sactificed to the second blow of being told that this young man, of whom she has become so passionately fond, is not her real son. The cleverest touch in the whole book is perhaps the suggestion that sometimes the confession of a crime, long after its commission, is the most absolute form of selfishness.

Mrs. Fiske: Most of some people's happiness would be swept away if one removed their sense of grievance.

Dr. Grenfell: The true prosperity of a nation lies not in the number of its multi-millionaires, but in the comfort, content, and well-doing of its people at large.

or of

e of

rous

tak-

ony, it a ikly, of ight

of a rince nolemay

nost that

nany

perand

vrite

get ardngly

heir

ther of man

the

nted

f as hose was

s to om-

vife.

s in

ab-

The Western Home Monthly.

A CANADIAN SUNSET.

Behold! the gorgeous splendor! A Canadian sunset scene, Artist and poet, Come lend your powers, To portray the grandeur Of the hour, when The sun is sinking, Slowly, sinking, In the West.

A Tennyson, wreathed in laurels, An Angelo, crowned with fame, Would pause, enraptured With the glory, As fleecy clouds Float on in space, Outlined with perfect grace, Tinged with the radiance Of departing day.

Delicate hues and softest tints, Kissed with the sinking rays, Blended with colors of Crimson and gold, Illumine the West With a glorious light, Then, as tho' loath To say good night, Frown and darker grow. 'Tis now in the hush of evening,

Gentle zephyrs are at play, Wafting the fragrance of beautiful flowers, The perfume of new-mown hay. My soul is serenely resting, As I watch the close of day, And I would that life's dar. shadows Might thus fade

And pass away, To form as it were, a curtain And draw the shades of night, The darkening clouds Dance round and round, Then one and all unite; Their billlowy peaks catch The last lingering ray As Old Sol sinks to his rest. Oh! what can compare to a sunset

In Canada's glorious West! Tabitha Ann.

George Bernard Shaw: Few people can write letters, since the days of the picture postcard. Lord Rosebery: The British have a genius for hastening slowly.

51

Harold Begbie: I often wonder whether the Elizabethan age was quite as golden as we imagine it to have been.

Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott: Many people think they are imitating the poor widow when they only put a half-penny on the plate.

Dr. Woods Hutchinson: It is triffes that wreck philosophers, and pin-pricks that prevent happiness.

Rev. Dr. Hillis: The world is not less religious than it was: it is simply more practical.

Dr. J. W. Robertson: Willingness and ability are not the same things: ability can only be obtained by training.

J. M. Barrie: The friendships of grown up people are incomprehensible to children, because they seem so unintelligible and so dreary.

vich in women's

t ni eress falitati

. the ninim

Losvia Patreon

Eaton's Fall and Winter Catalogue Has Been Issued

No DOUBT you have received the copy of our 1911 Fall and Winter Catalogue which was sent you some days ago, if you have been in the habit of dealing with us, or if you have been receiving our Catalogues in times past. If you have not received it, we want you to let us know at once, so that we may send you one. We know that you will like it, because it is the biggest and best we have ever issued and because it is, as usual, the price dictionary of Canada. It tells what ought to be paid for dependable goods when they are bought right and sold at a reasonable profit. Our Catalogue prices are misleading to those who do not know the quality of our merchandise, because they are so low that people misjudge the quality of the goods we handle. As a matter of fact, we sell our ready-to-wear garments anywhere from 30 to 50 per cent lower than we could

As a matter of fact, we sen our ready-to-wear garment possibly sell them for, did we buy in the regular way. But, by buying the tweeds and linings direct from the makers and ourselves manufacturing them into wearing apparel, we save all middlemen's profits and our customers have the advantage of all savings thus effected.

Take Men's Clothing, for instance; on page 84 of our new Catalogue we describe and illustrate a man's suit, which we are selling for $12.50, and the same suit, made from the same tweed, only that our suit is better made and fits better, is sold to the trade for $16.00 by a leading Canada Clothing Manufacturer. And the same is true of Women's Suits and Skirts. The styles we are showing are the same as are now being worn in Paris, New York and other Fashion Centres. Did we buy these garments in New York or Paris we could not sell them for three times the prices we are quoting.

So much for our values, but the chief point is that our Fall and Winter Catalogue is now ready and we want all in Western Canada who require any kind of merchandise to have access to our Catalogue, because we can save them money on every dollar's worth of goods they buy from us.

We also want to get in touch with any who intend coming from Great Britain or the United States to make Canada their future home. We want to send them our Catalogue. It may assist them, To this end, we invite the co-operation of our Mail Order friends who can help us by sending us the names and addresses of all who, to their knowledge, intend coming to Canada.

Write for the Catalogue today T. EATON COLIMITED. WINNIPEG TO EADDOUS COMPANY TO INNIPEC

The Young Woman and Her Problem.

By Pearl Richmond Hamilton.

COZY CUSHIONS OF COURTESIES.

Cover the hard benches of daily life with the cozy cushions of little courtesies. Many girls who are kind and courteous in company are rude and careless with their sisters and brothers. Strangers can understand when courtesy is artificial. It is visible in the lines of the face. Petty sacrifices develop the art of courtesy, and these secure harmony and peace in the home as well as in society. They never lose their power of charm. There is noth-ing on earth so powerful as a soul. ing on earth so powerful as a soul. If it be brought under the inspiration If it be brought under the inspiration of ideal love for others, a girl's life will be like a chain of joy between earth and heaven. "Memory is posses-sion" and in after years when the reality of the present life is beyond our reach, the beauty of the sacrifices we make now will be reflected from a life rich in womanly loveliness, like a beautiful scene in the deep waters of a mountain lake. There is close con-nection between character and service, nection between character and service, between inwardonobleness and outward between inward nonieness and outward loveliness. We are responsible, each in our own little way, for the welfare of others. I know a lovely young English woman whose life has been touched with great sorrow. She did not allow it to conquer her, but, on the contrary, she has come out of it stronger and superior out of her affliction has come sweeter. Out of her affliction has come a new life—a resurrection as it were— "grown from the seed of the best that died in the old self." She forgot herself in the service of others. I have self in the service of others. I have known her some time, and the people she comforts and helps say she is the loveliest young woman they know. And yet she herself has passed though more trouble than those she has comforted. She came to me the other day with a request that filled me with admiration for her. Knowing that the city is full of lonely, homeless girls, she said she of lonely, homeless girls, she said she could give two or three hours every evening to them and asked me if I would direct her to the rooms of some of the girls who need a friend. Noth-ing worth while comes easy. Once a Finland poetess, whose writings had made her popular, was asked how she first came to exercise her art. "I had once a heavy sorrow, I shut it up in my heart, and it came forth again in song," was the reply.

Mrs. Hemans did. most of her work in a sick-room. The "Sabbath Sonnet" was dictated by her upon her deathbed. Elizabeth Barrett Browning, too, wrote much of her work "when on a sofa in a darkened room." "Love is the sweet exchange of personality," which finds its expression in the -cry, "Not I, but you!" There are many lovely girls who face a dark future because the one they love has left them. This is a very great sorrow and the only way to turn away from the direction of despondency is to take a 'bit of sunshine to others, hide the gloom behind a smile and "do something for somebody quick." "I am bigger than anything that can happen to me." Mrs. Wiggs says: "When things first got to goin' wrong with me, I says, 'O Lord whatever comes, keep me from gittin' sour!' Since then I've made it a practice to put all my worries down in the bottom of my heart, then sit on the lid an' smile."

THE STIMULUS OF AMBITION.

Some people say women should not take up men's work because they are liable to mental overstrain. It is more wholesome to work into disease than to lounge into it. A woman with no mental exercise and by too luxurious living, too much amusement and overdress is in more danger of a nervous breakdown than the woman who takes up a line of work. The busy woman is not a gossip; the ambitious girl is not despondent; the brilliant lady is not a bondslave to dress; the philanthropic person is not discontented. Wholesome ambition is worth more than medicine in promoting health. The stimulus of ambition ' adds immense zest to life. There is a growing number of world-wide examples of woman's capacity in the realms of invention, scientific discovery and business ability. No less than six hundred patents are granted to British women annually. A French lady, Madame Delong Tuyssusian, has received eighteen medals and diplomas at successive European exhibitions for a machine of her invention for cutting metal plates. The only woman member of the In-stitution of British Electrical Engineers is Mrs. Ayrton. The society numbers over six thousand men. Mrs. Ayrton has also won the Hughes gold medal for experimental investigations on the electric arc and on sand ripples. Dr. Marie Stopes, D.Sc., Ph.D., who was ap-pointed assistant to the Professor of Determent of the professor of Botany at Manchester University, has made valuable researches concerning the geologic and botanic problems regard-ing coal nodules. Two French women, Mademoiselle and Madame Merian, have made astonishing discoveries in relation to bees and other insect life. They prove that the eyes and hands of women are adapted to dealing with the smaller objects of creation. James Johnston, F. R. Hist. S., says that in the case of the American reaper, "a woman first hit upon the idea of combining the action of a row of scissors in cutting. She took ordinary scissors for cutting her grass border, fastening one limb of each to a board, and controlling the others by a strong wire. In this lay the principle of the reaper of world-wide use." Western Texas is proud of Mrs. Anney McElroy Brett, woman promoter. To-day she is the telephone queen of the southwest. She is president of the Southern Independent Telephone and Telegraph Company and president and general mana-ger of the Brett Construction, Telephone and Telegraph Company. These companies, representing more than $500,000, were organized by her with-out a dollar of capital to start with. At any rate it is "better to wear out than to rust out."

ABSENCE

It is after the good-bye to the homefolks that we sit back in the car seat and reflect on our past life in the old home. Our hearts grow tender and how we long to live the life over again! Were we given the opportunity, we would be kinder, softer and more thoughtful. This new country is full of young women who are far from the parental roof and they realize just what this absence means. Let the girl who is at home picture herself among strangers and she will appreciate more her home environment. Our country is fast filling up with young people; and young women who marry and go into the new land should be well prepared in the knowledge of what the life away from friends and medical assistance means. This is a vital problem among young wives in the West. I have a most pathetic letter from a young wife who is too far from a town for medical assistance and she asks me to give her information. Let every mother of a daughter who is about to become a bride take her into a heart-to-heart confidence, and give her the information she will need when far from home and friends. So many young girls tell me that their mothers do not tell them what they should know. Many girls tell me, after bitter experience, that their mothers are to blame for their errors, because they did not tell them what girls should know.

them what girls should know. Girls and mothers do not appreciate one another half enough when they are all at home. One of our readers has sent me the following poem for publication:

Absence.

The shortest absence brings to every thought

Of those we love a solemn tenderness. It is akin to death, we now confess, Seeing the loneliness their loss has brought,

That they were dearer far than we had taught

Ourselves to think. We see that nothing less Than hope of their return could cheer or bless

Our weary days. We wonder how far aught

Or all of fault in them, we could heed, Or anger with their loving presence near

Or wound them by the smallest word or deed.

Dear absent love of mine! It did not need

Thy absence to tell me thou were dear, And yet the absence maketh it more clear.

THE BORDER LINE BETWEEN A LIVING AND LXURY.

There is a heavy duty demanded of the girl who steps over the border line between a living and luxury. Custom demanded the price of her life in many cases. I know a girl who earns four dollars a week and she wears a twentydollar willow plume. Too many wageearning girls starve body and soul in order to ape the fashionable women whom they serve. They dress sort of tawdry swell. The willow plume may be an offering on the shrine of fashion representing many lunchless days and the sacrifice of comfortable clothing. The other day I saw a girl wearing an expensive plume on her hat and her

Read Page 48c August issue, Western Home Monthly. If you cannot find it, send for a free sample copy. You can make some easy money if you do it now. Address : P.O. Box 811, Winnipeg, Canada.

TO GET REALLY GRAND RESULTS

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

dres the

mor ed i inex

mar that in mon But

stat

ing ing that of t cons fam

dres

stre

hats

curk

ingl wall

of t

arou adm

thes thro

with girls

dres

R

sern

is a

mon

may drin

it c

who

resp

ty,

girl

cont

Winter Flowers for House Culture

AND THE LOVELIEST OF EARLY SPRING GARDENS

It is needful to order your choice of Bulbs and Plants

Do so by getting — FREE BY POST — the NEW AUTUMN, 1911, CATALOGUE of

Canada's Greatest Seed House

It contains the best varieties of TULIPS, LILLIES, HYACINTHS, NARCISSUS, CROCUS, SNOW-DROPS, FREESIAS, CHINESE SACRED LILY, etc. These GARDEN BULBS must be secured THIS AUTUMN. They CANNOT be obtained in the Spring.

Steele, Briggs

1911 nforma-

n home

g_girls not tell

'Many

erience. me for not tell preciate

hey_are

ers has publica-

every derness.

we had

t noth-

d cheer

now far

ld heed.

st word

did not re dear. it more

CEN A

nded of

der line Custom

n many

ns four twentywage soul in women

sort of ne may fashion ys and lothing. ring an nd her issue, y. If for a u can F.O.

ada.

ts

ence

fess,

has

The Western Home Monthly.

dress was shabby and too warm for the day. How much more sensible and more attractive would she have appeared in a neat muslin dress with a pretty, inexpensive hat. A girl made this remark to me only to-day: "Really, all that girls talk about now may be put in three words-clothes, men and money. That is all they think about." But there are girls, I am pleased to state, who spend their time in improv-ing the mind and character. In looking back over my life at the moments that have been worth while, how many of them did money buy? By the way conspicuous dressing courts vulgar familiarity girls-young girls-do not dress simply enough, especially on the street. Two young girls will pin two hats on the back of a bunch of false curls, paint two faces, wear two startingly generous V-necked dresses and walk down the street where two-thirds of the people who pass them will turn around for a second, gaze-not one of admiration, but one of disgust. Soon these two girls may be seen walking through a down-town thoroughfare with two strange young men. These girls courted this familiarity by their dress. Rev. John D. Stratton preached a sermon on "Choosing a Wife," and here is a telling extract from the sermon: "A man may while away idle moments with the flippant maiden. He may giggle with her, dance with her, drink with her and pet her, but when it comes to marrying he will seek one who has the pride of purity, that self respect which does not brook familiarity, and that maidenly modesty and reserve which to his heart are the seal of true womanhood."

HEROIC LONELINESS.

...

Girls often indulge in day-dreams Some young women liven in continual come true. Whatever life has for a girl will reach her sooner if she be contented, capable and cheerful.

before them like a dull, dreary and uninviting road. They see nothing bright in life. It is an art to be able to enjoy one's self. It is one art which may be independent of circumstances. Furthermore it is one that every girl may attain if she be determined. Let her aim be advancement. Now, a girl cannot enjoy herself if self be unworthy. Cultivate pursuits for solitary moments to which the thoughts may turn with expectation of pleasure. Store up wholesome memories by filling the mind with rich material from books and observations of daily life. In the forest we listen to the voice of love. It lures us into the hidden places with hinted promises. The prairie-our generous promising prairie-land-is the voice of hope. Crushed hope blossoms forth when we witness the growth of the grass, the flowers, the wheat. The sound of singing birds is a comfort and the cool night breezes bringing us the scent of rich harvest fields whisper that God is everywhere. From the mountain we hear the voice of prayer. The grandest prayers of the universe should be breathed by Western Canadian women if they would live up to their environment. Ellen Thorney-croft Fowler says: "It is only those who have scaled the mountain that hear the whisper of the still small voice." So many young women are sad and gloomy beacuse the future is blank, as one said to me: "I can't help being down hearted. I am not popular and have not the slightest prospects of a home." "My dear girl," I answered, "banish with determination all that speaks of regret, self and gloom or bitterness. Convert your mind into a garden of delight. You will grow lovely and popular with wonderful rapidity by so doing." We live in an environment of love, hope and prayer.

know girls whose lives seem to stretch

JEALOUS SISTERS.

couragement over the treatment of her husband's sister, who is a young lady older than the bride. When a girl leaves home and friends for the new life it seems to me that the husband's sister should receive her kindly and be proud of a new sister. If the brother be happy the sister's love is extremely selfish if she treat the new wife un kindly. Genuine love wants to see the loved one happy. To be sure the sister suffers sharp, deep agony when her brother goes out from the home, but she should feel no hardness or re-bellion. She herself will probably some time be some brother's wife. It is one of the mysteries that a man and woman totally different can live happily together as husband and wife, while the wife and sister have little harmony. But sisters should be more generous, else in the opinion of others they appear jealous.

DO YOU PITY YOURSELF?

Some young women live in continual fear of what other people may think of them. This fear is an indication of selfishness. They lose entire self-con-trol and worry themselves into nervous prostration. Archbishop Temple says: "Good manners demand three things, self-control, seld-denial and self-re-spect." I know a girl who pities herself constantly until she walks about the home like a frozen icicle and every one who comes near her feels a cold sting. She says she is a martyr. Yet she has a beautiful home, plenty of money and good parents. I wish she had to work, for when one is forced to work it develops self-control, strength of will, cheefulness and con-tent. A girl who harbors secret jealousy and antagonism creates an atmosphere that drives away the best of friends. This young lady takes kindnesses from others as a matter of A letter from a young bride came to emotion of gratitude should be excited. Winnipeg, Canada.

my desk yesterday. It was full of dis- All culture is but tinsel if the person has little spiritual beauty of soul. There are so many diseases among women that could be cured by a dose of self-sacrifice taken twice each day. In order to help on charitable move-In order to help on charitable move-ments women are denying themselves luxuries that they have been accustom-ed to. The Red Cross Hospital in Tokyp was born of the charitable activity of the Empress of China. One time the Tokyo Charity Hospital in the district of Shiba, where the poorest people of Tokyo were admitted free, needed help. She had given all she could from help. She had given all she could from her funds, but when she felt the needs her funds, but when she felt the needs of the suffering children she cut down her own personal expenditures. A lady of her court told the British minister that the Empress hardly bought her a pair of gloves or a handkerchief. The greatest lady of Japan sacrified for the needs of the afflicted poor of her country. God has surged before us her country. God has spread before us a beautiful world and He meant all of His children to have an equal share in the enjoyment so far as possible, but we cannot enjoy life if we live in a continual state of pity."

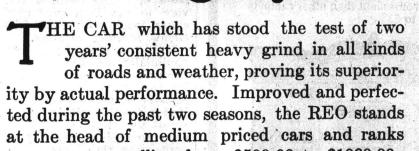

53

Twixt optimist and pessimist the dif-ference is droll; The optimist sees the doughnut, the pessimist the hole.

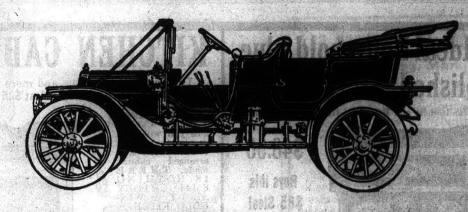

A Healthy Pipe.

On another page of this issue, a Winnipeg firm is advertising a pipe which should prove of interest to every smoker. The cartridges provided with this pipe readily absorb all nicotine, so that a pleasant and healthy smoke is assured assured.

Read Page 48c August Issue, Western Home Monthly, If you cannot find it, send for a sample copy. You can make some easy money if you do ft now. Address: P.O. Box 811, among many selling from $500.00 to $1000.00. REO cars have run further than any other car in Western Canada and are still doing good work and satisfying the most exacting.

The Mighty Reo

Inquiry of any of our four hundred customers throughout Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. The REO is the best agency proposition to-day. Duplicate parts are carried ready for immediate delivery. No waiting for orders sent the factory, necessitating tedious and vexatious delays. Price complete, $1425.000 F.O.B. Winnipeg.

The Hupmobile

THE HUPMOBILE is the last word in light cars. Nothing quite so stylish and certainly no small car so well and consistently made. With its record of 35 miles to the gallon of gasoline and minimum tire expense, no car appeals to the man who desires to hold down running cost like the HUPMOBILE. Price complete, $900.00, F.O.B. Winnipeg. We can make immediate deliveries of all models.

JOSEPH MAW & CO., LIMITED, 112-118 King Street, Winnipeg, Canada

It is true that the Curzon service annihilates the distances separating

A new design with elaborate nickeled trimmings. The nickeling is done by special process, and is of a white silvery effect. The Ideal Household Steel mange is equipped with all the latest improvements, and thoroughly up to date in every respect. Pay $85.00 to the local dealer and you will not get a range to equal the Ideal Household. Absolutely the hand-someter, most elaborate and highest grade steel range made in the world. A long step ahead of others in the art stove making. "MT LOOK what we are doing. We are furnishing you this magnificent new six-hole full nickeled range, in all sizes, complete with reservoir and warming closet, just as illustrated, beyond question or doubt the highest grade range made in the world. Burns wood or any kind of coal. Takes wood 24 inches long. "More reservoir encased, shipping weight, 550 pounds. Complete with high closet and oven thermometer $45.50 MT ITE FOR STOVE CATALOGUE" Showing the most complete line of up-to-date stoves and ranges. Sold direct to consumer at wholesale prices.

prices.

decide that it is most conveniently arranged cabinet made. THERE IS NOTHING SMALLORPOKY ABOUT A WIN-GOLD KITCHEN CABINET. From the large divided four bin to the s m allest spice drawer, you will find it just the proper size; it's just find it just the proper size; it's just what you need to save thousands of those unnecessary steps which you take every day. Cooking will be-come a pleasure in-stead of a burden when you use a stead of a burden when you use a WINGOLD CAB-INET. Cutlery and spice drawers, the kneading and cut-tingboard, thesugar, salt and flour bins are all within easy reach. Two large cup boards and china closet com-plete the cabinet in every detail. Made of white maple, natural finish. The base 32 inches high, 46 inches wide and 26 inches deep. Entire height of cabinet, 84 inches. Lowest Price ever quoted for a High Grade Cabinet.

decide · that it is

$18.50 Write for new Furniture Catalog. Sent free on request WINGOLD STOVE CO., 246.2 McDermott Ave., Winnipeg

Britain's Colonies from their Mother, but this step on the part of the Proprietors to personally pay a tour of inspection to their ramifications across the Atlantic, must do much to even strengthen the very life spirit permeating the house, and enable them to give even more efficient service to their thousands of patrons.

Mr. T. Curzon and his staff will carry with them on their tour all the leading samples, all the latest West End of London and New York and Canadian fashions and will, in short, be fully equipped to take orders and to measure clients for their tailoring needs.

The arrival of the Principal and Staff will be duly advertised in the Dominion newspapers during the tour, and visitors will always receive a hearty reception at the various hotels at which Messrs. Curzons will be staying during their progress through the country. They will al-ways be honored by a visit from clients and will not importune orders. Briefly Messrs. Curzon intend to bring a touch of the Mother Country right into the Dominion. Look out for definite dates.

Read Page 48c August issue, Western Home Monthly. If you cannot find it, send for a free sample copy. You can make some easy money if you do it now. Address : P.O. 811, Winnipeg, Canada.

Add Art

the

T ber

need trac sent

bag

can

tive

wor

one

ed

mat

Man

in t han

1180 eas

bee

pen

and alre

left can

ing

tur

ed

inte

effe

in

WO

the

is .

tan

ma

Co:

mos tai Kir of p

The Western Home Monthly.

t., 1911

"Donald Webster, ell as by 789, died

have a mmon of

mmon of akes.' t. "is the Scottish

the last message en flash-Doubtless of our have his mesnd seeing ed as to purport. certainly communiof every portance, lained in tirety it that the meastailoring in Eng. modern anada to housands s, living It means with the choicest woollen nd Scotcollection he latest Tweeds, Cheviots, e Mother ot every d. out Canthe leadouse, ins, and is the purt with a ting into ends and

n service eparating Mother, the Protour of ifications much to ife spirit enable cient sertrons. staff will ir all the est West fork and in short, ders and tailoring ipal and d in the ring the s receive various zons will progress will alsit from ne orders. ntend to Country Look out

t issue, ly. If nd for a ou can y if you : P.O. 1.

Our Special Bargain

can be easily embroidered as the linings are afterwards slip stitched and turned back into place. We have selected several varieties of bags which will interest our readers, one of the most effective of these and the very latest in style is the "Musketeer," which is worn suspended from the shoulder by the long cord handles. This bag, which is most practical, is made from heavy tan linen and finished with fringe to match, the design is effectively em-

The above illustration represents our Latest Complete Stencilling Outfit. With the aid of this outfit you can make the most artistic Pillow Tops, Doilles, Cur-tains, Centre Pieces, Portieres, Scarfs, Kimonas, etc., without having any knowledge of painting

15 Artistic Stencil Designs, perforated on good-Bond paper

1 Stencil Design, cut on special oil board, ready to use

6 Tubes of assorted best Stencilling Oil Colors. 2 Stencil Brushes

4 Thamb Tacks

1 Cake of "Ideal" preparation for transferring Stencil Designs and Distributor Also full directions for Stencilling and mixing the various colors to the desired shades

These stencils can be used an unlimited num-ber of times and are especially suited for the needs of the beginner. No draving, cutting or tracing necessary. The complete outfit will be sent post paid for the Special Price of $1.00

Address all orders

Art Needlework Co., Winnipeg, Canada supplied at 3 cents extra per skein; find.

are very handsome when embroidered and suitable to wear with handsome costumes. The former bag is mounted in a gilt frame and the other in dull grey silver. No. 1392 is a very useful bag which may be had in either tan or white linen. This bag as well as the 1386 are most practical as they are inexpensive and just the thing to carry with tub gowns or other summer costumes.

1389.-Velvet Bag, $1.35.

In addition to the prices quoted for the hand bags, silk to embroider will be over-candid friend would be difficult to built like a castle. Owen Wister: Anything more odious and disagreeable in daily life than the

3

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

THE YOUNG MAN AND HIS PROBLEM.

By James L. Gordon, D.D., Central Congregational Church, Winnipeg.

GETTING THERE.

Are you getting there? Where?—Somewhere! Are you making progress? Can you see any improvement in yourself? Have you been able to crystalize one splendid thought in fact, habit or character? You should question each reasonable idea which you are not able-to realize. If your ideal can be reached why not reach it. Somebody has suggested the following inscription for the tombstone of Joseph II., of Vienna, "Here lies a King, who, with the best intentions, never succeeded in carrying out a single plan."

WHAT'S THE USE.

The great orator gets tired of his crowd. The successful producer of literature grows weary of reviews even when complimentary. The "popular" man, ever and anon seeks for some place where his popularity is not known, and the man of money called "the monied man" wonders why there are so many things in the realm of human need which money will not buy. Even so great a genius as Michael Angelo, remarked in an hour of gloom:—"It would have been better for me if I had spent my life making matches instead of cutting marble and painting domes."

FORTUNE TELLING.

Tell me your habits and I will tell you your fortune. Tell me how you spend your spare moments and I will tell you what comforts will surround you in your maturity. Tell me your aspirations, your ambitions and your secret desires and I will tell you what the leading traits of your character will be when you have passed the seventh milestone of your life. Said Lord Beaconfield:—"We make our own fortunes and then call them 'fate.""

IF. C. Sateria

Did you ever play with an "IF"? Did you ever ask yourself the question, "What would happen if—" If the preacher should lose his voice. If the dentist should lose control of the nerves of his hand. If the musician should lose the gift of hearing. If the photographer should lose the sense of sight. If the wholesale tea merchant should lose the sense of taste. When Maurice Burke met with the most terrible accident of his life—a great rock rolling down one side of a vast mountain ravine and cutting off both his feet—he lay for six weeks in a lonely mountain cabin, and found himself driven to this stern conclusion:—"My feet are gone—now I must use my head!" Cripples have made a great record in the world because they have been compelled to go through life head first. Brains brings a higher price than brawn. Could you think your way through life?

DON'T BOAST.

Don't say that you can do a thing-do it! Be said:—'You must write it better my boy' "--and after his spirit had been calmed and his heart strengthened he began again and with heroic determination produced a world classic which will live for centuries.

CRITICISM.

Criticism is of great value to the man who knows how to profit by it. The man who imagines that his work is above criticism is the man who, in all probality, needs the attention of the critic the most. It is not necessary to ask for criticism but it is wise and sensible to give due weight and consideration to all the comments which may float your way concerning your work and achievement. In order to keep out of a rut and in order to avoid extremes, listen to every adverse criticism, even though it may be profferred to you in a style and manner which is objectionable, and even unkind and cruel. Randolph Churchill, when a member of Parliament wrote to a newspaper cutting agency, saying:—"Send me nothing but adverse articles." Your enemies may sometimes speak the truth.

LASTING TREASURES.

The only treasure which will last is that which you are able to work into the fibre of your soul. Every picture painted on the walls of your memory is as indestructable as the life of your soul. Every line of poetry which you commit to memory will bring you compound interest in the realm of eternal values. The wealth which you leave behind you may benefit others, but only that which you incorporate in your inner nature, will you be able to carry be-yond the realm of time and sense. When Napoleon ordered the Duke of Parma to send the celebrated picture of Jerome, in his possession, to Paris, the duke offered the handsome sum of $200,000 if the great national treasure might be retained, but Napoleon, who was often cruel in his decisions, though shrewd in the sweep of his thought, coldly remarked:-"The figure is a handsome one and, financially, tempting; but the money will soon be spent whereas this master piece if secured will adorn the capitol for ages."

HEARTOLOGY.

Work your creed into your life. Remember that religion is not a thing to be kept in cold storage. Religion is like a river-a swift motion guarantees its purity. Emotion which never reaches a practical application in the life of the individual whose affections have been touched, quenches the spirit of genuine piety and breeds hypocrisy, Henry Drummond, the well-known author, once affirmed that he was acquainted with a theologian of repute whose literary work had reached a dozen editions, and who was, financially independent, but who never gave a farthing to charity, never went to church or mission, and who was never known to manifest an interest in any project which was not directly or indirectly related to himself. Even a preacher has his temptations. Frederick Robertson once said: "When a preacher finds himself more interested in truth than he is in men, he should beware."

LIFE PRESERVERS.

I have never been able to find an insect which was not busy in a little world of its own. The inhabitants of an ant hill are just as busy as the pushing business men of Winnipeg. The worm in the clod and the bee in the hive seem to be ever up and at it. The unhappy people are those who can find nothing to do. Charles Kingsley once said:--"Thank God every day, when you arise, that you have something to do, whether you like it or not." Your task is your preserver, says Emerson

A NOBLE PURPOSE.

"I dreamed a beautiful dream, in my youth, and I awoke and found it true" says Jacob Riis in his "Making of an American. To dream and to do, is the blending of action and reflection, which gives birth to noble deeds, and creates fuel for the altar fires of memory. A young man without purpose is drifting—a soul without anchorage. A youth without a program is as helpless as a ship without a rudder. What we try to do makes us what we are. Better have a mark even though you miss it. Firing at random never produced a marksman. Purpose is the soul of personality. Have a purpose and it may be that when your hair begins to grow grey you will be able to say "I dreamed a beautiful dream, in my youth, and I awoke and found it true."

FATHER AND SON.

"Goodbye, my boy-if you turn out bad it will break my heart!"-It was the last message of a man of forty-seven to a boy of seventeen, as the lad stepped aboard a train. There was a sob in the father's voice and a suggestion of love's intensity in his eyes. Oh, what a suggestion of invested interest! Could that boy measure the depths of his father's concern, or know to what an extent his father's comfort and happiness would be effected by his acts and deeds? What anxious eyes are fixed on the youth as he makes his first venture upon the uncertain sea of life's pilgrimage. A thoughtful young man would rather forego a thousand pleasures than take one step that would cause a cloud to settle upon the faces of loved ones who from the old homestead in the country watch the fortunes of the lad who left home blessed with tender thought and anxious prayer.

A WEATHER EYE.

Keep an eye open for danger signals. The weather changes sometimes suddenly, we have met with unlooked for accidents when turning a corner. I suddenly met the man for whom I was nto looking and was not looking for me. He was on this side of the corner and I on that. So we met without appointment. Watch your own personal habits. Let no habit get the position of control. "I know of no form of amusement which is so dangerous when it becomes a passion as card playing" says Carl Schurz in "A Story of A Long Life."

Ţ

Biltor

22

Winnipeg

sen and smoke yourself. curved pipe

Every p

Fits

Cureo

$12.64, del

TRENC

S James

Air Rit

long, full

high-grade beautifull Write for shooter.

This fin

Pe

modest in all your claims when you are climbing and when you have reached the top, be just a little more modest. Let others boast of your skill and ability but, for all purposes of praise, be seemingly unconscious of your gifts and talents. When men speak of you of your success venture a look of surprise. The compliment may be flattery and you may have just cause for mentally refusing to take all the kind words which you receive at their full value. Whatever you do or say—Never boast. Remember, it is easier to make predictions than it is to fufill them. Be as good as your word, always, and be better than your prophecies—if possible. Adelaide, daughter of the Duke of Savoy, exclaimed on one occasion! "They will have to reckon with me when I become queen!—But she never became queen.

TRY AGAIN.

and manufactor in

Success is written so large on the bill board of life that we cannot see the inevitable record of failure in the rear. Most of the great scholars of destiny have been sent back to the hard benches of unfavoring circumstances and told to do their sum over again. In mastering a sum they have mastered a system and thus spelled out the meaning of that word—success. When Thomas Carlyle heard that the first volume of the "French Revolution" had been ignorantly destroyed by the servant of John Stuart Mill, he remarked to a friend. "It is as if my invisible schoolmaster had torn my copy book and

INDEPENDENTLY POOR.

It you can't be independently rich be independently poor. Enthrone your conscience as sovereign your soul and obey every behest and degree. Remember that men respect honesty, revere purity, and fear integrity. When Benjamin Franklin was offered a larg sum of mony if he would publish a mean article in his paper he replied: "Last night I dined on bread and milk and slept on the floor of my office; the same provision awaits me to-night —and I need no more." Noble answer!

"GET ONE-QUICK."

Except to sleep well, eat regularly, dress neatly, rest systematically and handle a cigar skillfully, certain young men seem to be absolutely without aim, purpose or ambition. To all such we commend the words of Carlyle to the young man who remarked in the presence of the old philosopher:--"I haven't any particular purpose in life!" "Then get one quick!" said the stern old man, striking his cain on the pavement, "Get one quick!"

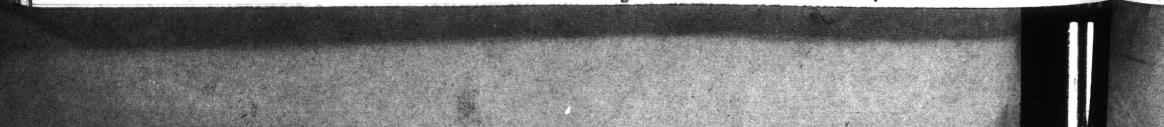

PUT HIM OUT!

"Put him out!" shouted the crowd. "Put him out!" and a circle of brawny men, angry and wrathful, were ready to shoulder the offending citizen and hurl him out of a political gathering where the crowd preferred to listen to the superb eloquence of William Jennings Bryan, but Mr. Bryan exclaimed with a becalming gesture, "Don't put him out—don't put him out—he is the man whom I am trying to reach!" Well done! Have a respect for the man who differs with you.

NO

Learn to say "No!" Say it kindly. Say it slowly. Say it gently. Say it firmly. Say it with a steady eye. Say it with compressed lips. Say it once and no more. But learn to say "No!" As Spurgeon used to say:--"Learn to say "No"; it will be of more use to you than to be able to read Latin."

911

hich

e in the the

and

find

nank

ometask

and

his

0, is rives

ltar

se is vith-

it a

are.

ring

pose dit

grey tiful

d it will man

lad

the sity

in-

his

his

by

l on

the

tful

ires

ttle

old the

and ther

un-

sud-

and

the

int-

no

no n it

hurz

ut!"

ful; hurl

owd

iam

h 3 put h!"

Ters

The Western Home Monthly.

Possibilites of Siberia.

S Best Horse YOU. Yet your best horse is just as liable to develop a Spavin, Ringbone, Splint, Curb or Lameness as your poorest. These aliments cannot be prevented int they can be quickly and entirely used if you always have on hand a solute of the old reltable

Kendall's Spavin Cure

worry. perience of Mr. Peter Otoole of Daniston, nerely typical of thousands. He says-s used your Spavin Cure frequently for ton years and it has given me entire on of Reid Hill, Alta, says : I and your Spavin Cure and also r. I cured two Bone Spavins and syour Spavin Cure for certainly is the world's d-it is a safe and reliable cure. Frice is bothe or 6 bothes for $6.00. Get our druggist, or write direct to us.

and smoke all you like without harm to yourself. State whether straight or curved pipe preferred.

> Post $1.00 free. with box of 50 cartridges.

Every pipe guaranteed PERFECT. G. W. DAVEY & CO., 25 Empress Bdg.

Winnipeg.

In the near future Siberia may be the most formidable competitor of the United States in agricultural products. It is an immense country, embracing territory over three times the area of the United States, and although a large part of this area consists of Arctic tundra and mountain ranges, its soil available for agriculture is at least twice the size of the whole of the United States. Its agricultural products are varied from the production of cotton in the southwest or Caspian Sea districts, to the more northern regions.

Until recently the vast southern part was the domain of the Kirghiz, a rov ing tribe living in tents, their herds spending the summer on the vast northern steppes, moving south on the approach of winter; now these people together with the remains of once powerful Tartar tribes are retreating before the advance of Russian immigration, and are confining themselves to narrower limits, very much the same as the Indians have been compelled to do on this continent. Russian immigration to Siberia began some 30 years ago and before the recent disastrous war had assumed immense proportions. In 1900 it amounted to over 300,000 and the recent disturbance in Russia proper will still further turn immigration eastward to this country. The building of the transsiberian rail-way also did much to show the world her possibilities. Danish engineers employed on the railway, settling down on the land dairying followed as a matter of course and now the export of dairy products is assuming formidable proportions. The Russian government gives to each male citizen forty-five acres free in the shape of homestead; still further assisting him with implements and team; holding his homestead as security. An agricultural college has been established at Tomsk, and experimental stations placed in various parts of the country, very much in the same man-ner as in Canada.

Experimental stations have also been established and as far back as 1898 at Koorgan it was found that the average butter fat in milk was nearly 6 per cent. Danish and German merchants now have stations in Siberia to buy butter that they ship to London, Hamburg and other European markets.

The export of butter increased rapidly previous to the Japanese war. In 1909 one train load of butter was shipped in refrigerator cars through Russia proper to Rega, where it was taken by steamer to London and other ports, and also during the year pre-vious to the war three million poods, or 135,000,000 pounds of butter was shipped from Siberia.

Évery village in some districts has one or more dairies, and are engaged in the production of butter and cheese for export. Improved machinery is being used

Look for me in your dealer's win-dow. Then go in and hear me ring "The National Call to Breakfast." You'll recognize me at once by my "tailor-made" appearance; my beau-tiful "thin model" watch style case

I'm the

"Thin Model"

"tailor-made" appearance; my beau-tiful "thin model" walch style case and my big, open, smiling face. My bell isn't alarming. It's cheer-ful. I wake you pleasantly—like sun-light does in summer—even on the darkest, coldest mornings. I ring at intervals for 15 minutes or steadily as you choose. And I wake you on time for I'm walch accurate as a timekeeper. I've got a regular watch escape-ment—the mechanism upon which a watch most depends for its time-keeping qualities. You'll notice that I tick fast, evenly and tightly like a watch instead of slowly and heavily like common alarm clocks.

(23)

PRICE

prepaid

1)

57

I must run like a watch for six days and nights in my factory under careful inspection before they will let me go to the jeweler. I was designed by a Swiss, and I'm made in a factory that's been running for the past thirty years. I'm the re-sult of all that experience and all those facilities.

those facilities. An inner casing of steel gives me great strength and makes me dust-

I'm to be found at your dealer. Ask yours to introduce me to you today. My price is $3.00. It could easily be more and you'd will-ingly pay it, for once you see me you'll know I'm worth it.

If you want to be "first in the field" get me-Big Ben-to wake you in

th and Ring

ranteed. Alten Watch Co.Dept | | 05 Chicago

and modern methods adopted and although the present unrest following the disastrous war has temporarily checked development it is safe to predict that in the near future the product of Siberia will be an important factor in the markets of the world.

Wrinkle Dont's.

Don't go too long without food. Don't worry and don't fret are the most healthful of maxims.

Don't wear tight shoes; they make a young face look old, drawn and wrinkled in a few hours.

Don't speak with all the muscles of the face. It is very charming and captivating to be deeply, deadly in earnest, but facial grimaces form creases which in time will become wrinkles.

Don't worry, but if worry you must, keep the forehead smooth-don't wrinkle it. Worry is called the American national disease, and Americanitis is its distinctive name. The women of the Orient are wiser-they never worry.

double - barrel breach - load with express ing 12 gauge gun, with the

This outfit includes a fine

hard shooting left barrel choke bored. It is fitted with the celebrated Greener cross-bolt, and is made with interchangeable parts. This means that any repairs may be quickly and cheaply made. Also a serviceable take-down canvas gun-cover, leather bound and a complete cleaning outfit. The price including express charges prepaid to any railway point in Western Canada $16.00. Write for our Illustrated Gun Catalogue, No. 49W.

Care of WESTERN CLOCK CO., La Salle, III.

If your dealer doesn't sell me I'll come duty prepaid on receipt of $3.00

Shooting Outfit No. 82W

The Hingston Smith Arms Go. Ltd. Firearms and Sporting Goods Winnipeg

Send us 60c.

Receive by return mail, post paid, this very attractive winter waist. It comes in sizes 32 to 42. It is of a fine flannel finished waisting in a navy blue with white dots, trimmed with plain navy strappings, button trimmed Order this waist No. 4 to-day. Add 7c for postage. STANDARD GARMENT CO. 10 Standard Bldg, London, Can-

Read Page 48c August issue, Western Home Monthly. you cannot find it, send for a free sample copy. You can make some easy money if you do it now. Address P.O. Box 811, Winnipeg, Canada.

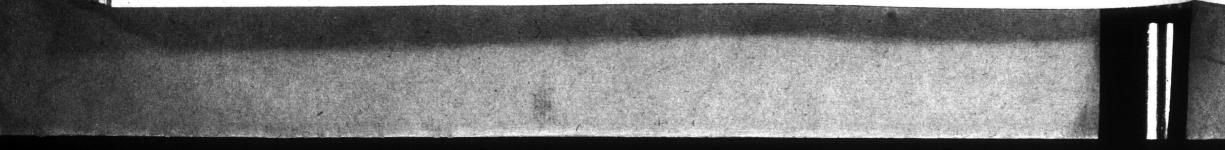

wly. ady and ised use

ne wo "leetle dog." in the morn he went on bably seekin where Charl were woods lonely road. terfly flew h of boy and o be for Char not have th from his g chase, forge on they we O green count

3

R.

='1

1

-¥--

*--

-*-

d white rom the

that my

1;.....

So

×-

×

*-

y. my oth-er

The Western Home Monthly.

Young People.

Flip.

By Eric Waters.

They were absolutely still-the boy and the dog. They might have been taken for statues, but for the bright eyes of the tiny black-and-tan. Charley-in the whitest of sailor suits-sat, with legs stretched out, his back against a pillar and the little dog held tightly in his arms. His eyes had a dreamy look, for he was thinkingthinking hard-wondering why, when he and his mother were visiting and conversation was just at the most interesting point, mother was sure to say:

"Run away, Charley; go and play." Charley did not want to play, for the boys he knew had gone away for the summer, and "a little fellow could not have much fun playing alone." But Charley knew how to obey, and though he felt vexed, he jumped up quickly and started for the door.

Aunt Anna must have guessed at the loneliness, and to comfort him, said:

"You may take Flip with you, Charley, but do not let him out of your sight.

Now, Flip was quite the most important member of the family, "almost human" everyone said, for did he not shed real tears when his beloved mistress was away? It was quite an honor to be trusted with him, because, although he was a most endearing little creature and full of amusing tricks, he was also a thoroughbred and worth a big sum of money. So, to start with, Charlie thought it safest to hold him fast. The street was quiet on this particular afternoon, except for an occasional carriage or bicycle; then the sharp little ears were all attention and the eyes brighter than ever.

Flip was a dog with strong likes and dislikes. He liked the butcher boy for very good reasons, and was fond of little boys; but the rag and bottle men he hated-dashed after them, snapping at them and barking altogether like a mad litle fury at the very sound of "Rags! bottles! bones!" If he could not get out, he ran from window to window like "one possessed."

The poor ragmen were very harmless, patient and even kind, and knew no reason for the petted darling's spite. Perhaps, in his little dog's heart, he resented their gathering so many bones. As a rule they only laughed at the fury of the little atom, with the exception of a Russian Jew, who had no doubt received harsh treatment enough in his own country to make him bitter. He was very ugly, with a bushy black beard. He pushed a miserable little cart, made of an old packing-box and two small He had cause to hate Flip, for wheels. he had felt Flip's sharp little teeth in his leg, and vowed in broken English

Suddenly the little dog pricked up his ears, trembled and burst into furious barking. Somebody must be near.

Somebody, alas ! was near. Danger lurked before them; for there by the roadside was Flip's enemy, the ragand-bottle-man, with his wobbly little cart besides him. Charley's heart sank down into his very shoes. It had been very funny to watch the little vixen from Aunt Anna's windows, but it was not the least bit funny out here, so far away from home, with darkness coming on; for Charlie was only a little fellow after all, though brave enough as little boys go

"I haf you now. I will kill you," the ragman cried. "I sell your bones! Rags! bottles!" he sang out, the better to aggravate his little foe.

More furious than ever, Flip sprang at him, only to be seized by two strong hands, hit with a stick, and-oh! the insult!-thrust into a dirty bag half full of rags and bones. Then the bag was tied tightly with strong cords.

"Let my dog out! Give him back!" screamed Charley. "Please, please let him out! We'll never let him tease you any more." But the man was very sadly away and turned down the road that he now saw led to town. Then he peeped through some bushes, and saw the ragman watching. Ap-parently satisfied that the child had gone, he began to push the cart rapidly in the other direction.

Then Charley, looking about, saw an old ditch running beside the lane, and, slipping in, followed cautiously through the tall weeds lest he might be discov-ered. How lonely it was; how still ! How hungry the child felt, too! By and by the ragman, evidently thinking that no one would find him, sat down and began to eat his supper. Of the torture that poor Flip was enduring in the dirty bag, Charley did not dare to think. Crouching down in the ditch, he watched.

The man drew a big black bottle from the rubbish in the cart, and putting it to his lips took a long, long drink.

"Ah!" thought Charley, "p'r'ps that's what makes him so cross." It must have made him sleepy, for presently he lay down on the grass. If the man would only sleep!

Charley felt vainly in his pocket for a stray cooky. His hand touched his knife, which he drew out and opened. He waited patiently. Then he crept nearer, to hear a loud snore. He was him out! We'll never let him tease you any more." But the man was deaf to his pleading. "Go home," he said fiercely, pointing down the road, "or I'll put you in the bag, too." Charlie was almost distracted. He could never go home without Flip; he had promised to "keep him in sight." Then—like a flash—the idea came to him to pretend to go. So he walked he made a slit big enough to release poor Flip. He ...d a hand tightly over his mouth lest he should bark, and, tucking him into his sailor blouse, ran as fast as his little legs could go. Once on the road, he ran faster and faster, stumbling or. falling sometimes, only to pick himself up again and struggle on, Far below he saw the lights of the city, for darkness had nearly come. Hark! he heard someone following, and looking back, saw a dark form and heard the horrid "Rags, bottles!" ring out on the still air—the cruel man knowing that it would infuriate the dog. Faster and faster ran boy and dog; faster and faster came their enem Terror-abject terror-seized the child. Oh! would no one come?

59

Then down the hill he spied a bright light piercing the darkness. Surely it was coming toward them. Норе quickened his steps. Nearer and nearer came the light, big and bright and glow-ing-nearer and nearer! Then a horn. Oh! welcome sound! An automobile!

Oh! welcome sound! An automobile! Would it stop for a poor little boy? Like a fiery chariot it rushed along. "Help! Help!' cried the child as he fell ehausted in the dust. A sudden stop—a joyous cry— a happy bark from Flip, and Uncle Willie had them both in his arms, and there was auntie and mother, too. They had come to the rescue just in time. A forlorn little figure was Charley, his

A forlorn little figure was Charley, his once spick-and-span suit all soiled and creased; his rosy cheeks pale and stained with tears. As he told his tale of terror he looked back for his tormentor; but the ragman had disappeared into the woods—and out of their lives—for he was never more seen.

ON'T BUY A GASOLINEER Its Great Advantages are: 1st-Lowest Fuel Cost; pays for itself in Fuel Saving. 2nd-

for operating farm machinery. 3rd—Easy on the machine it operates. 4th—Uses Gasoline, Kerosche of Gas. 3th—Jeffer Easily and Quickly, occupying minimum space. 7th—It is the King of Portable Engines. No engine has so wide a rai Easily and Quickly, occupying minimum space. 7th—It is the King of Portable Engines. No engine has so wide a rai Easily and Quickly, occupying minimum space. 7th—It is the King of Portable Engines. No engine has so wide a rai Easily and Quickly, occupying minimum space. 7th—It is the King of Portable Engines. No engine has so wide a rai Easily and Quickly, occupying minimum space. 7th—It is the King of Portable Engines. No engine has so wide a rai Easily and Quickly, occupying minimum space. 7th—It is the King of Portable Engines. No engine has so wide a rai engines; 30 to 5% H. P. four cylinder engines. All Heavy duty, slow speed engines. For surety of operation and low fu TEMPLE PUMP COMPANY, Maanfacturers. 405 West 15th St., Chicage, U.S.A.

To the man who wants to regain his youth, who wants to feel like he did when he was budding into manhood, I offer a book which will show him the road to happiness-a book of 80 pages, which is brimful of the things he likes to read, which will give him courage and enlighten him as to the cause and cure of his troubles. It will point out the pitfalls and guide him safely to a future of strength and vitality. It is beautifully illustrated. It tells what other men have suffered and how they have cured themselves. It is free. I will send it, closely seale you will mail me this coupon. If you are not the man you ought to be, send for it to-day.

that he would have revenge on tha "leetle dog." This enemy had passed in the morning, muttering vengeance as he went onward into the country, probably seeking bones. The pretty street where Charley was visiting was in the suburbs of a big city, and just beyond were woods and country lanes and a lonely road.

Suddenly a very large, beautiful butterfly flew by, attracting the bright eyes of boy and dog. What a prize it would be for Charley's collection! He would not have tried to capture it, however, but the excited little dog sprang from his grasp, pursuing the pretty flutterer. Then the hey too gave flutterer. Then the boy, too, gave chase, forgetting everything. On and on they went, the butterfly ever in ad-vance. On and on into the sweet, green country.

How long they ran the child had no idea, nor how many turnings they made, till suddenly he stood still, as the winged creature soared high above him quite beyond his reach; stood still, to discover that they were in a strange place, with no one near to tell them how to go home. What would mother and Aunt Anna think? They turned down a lane, but every step took them further from home.

DR. McLAUGHLIN'S ELECTRIC BELT

builds up broken-down men, restores youth and vigor and makes men look and feel strong. It will cure every case of Rheumatism, Nervous Debility, Weak Stomach, Kidney and Liver Troubles, Lame Back, Sciatica, Varicocele, Loss of Power and every evidence of weakness in men and women. It will not fail; it cannot fail, as it infuses in the weakened parts the force of life and strength.

To those who are tired of paying without results, and to those who doubt if anything will help them, I make this offer: If you will secure me my

PAY WHEN YOU ARE CURED

I will let you have my Belt without paying me one cent in advance.

SEND FOR THIS BOOK TO-DAY

Cut out this coupon and mail it to me to-day. I will send you my 80-page book, together with . price list, prepaid, free. Don't wait a minute, cut out the coupon now.

| 1 | DR. E. | M. McI | AUGI | ILIN |
|---|-----------|--------------|------------|--------|
| | 237 Yonge | Street, T | 'oronto, | Canada |
| | Send me y | our book fre | e, closely | sealed |

| NAME | ····· |
|-------------|--|
| | |
| Office Hour | s-9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesday and Saturday until 8.30 p.m. |

You may be sure that no one scolded Charley when they learned how cleverly and bravely he had rescued his little friend. How safe, how joyous, how happy was the boy in his mother's arms; how beside himself with delight the tiny pet restored to her he loved we need not tell; but years were to pass before either of them could hear without a shiver—"Rags! bottles! bottles! rags!"

60

A Python that Loved Music.

By Charles Hungerford.

Hamburg, as many know, is the great headquarters of the trade in wild animals for menageries and "zoos." To Hamburg are shipped lions, elephants and giraffes, captured in South and East Africa, tigers from India, jaguars and tapirs from South America, gorillas from the Congo, Orang-ou-tang from Borneo, and, in fact, every kind of beast, bird and reptile from all quarters of the globe.

The warehcuses of the two principal firms engaged in this business are interesting places to visit after the ar-rival of a "beast ship," with new or unusually large specimens of animal life.

The narrator made such a visit a few weeks since, on the arrival 'of a re-markably large, brilliantly marked python, shipped from Padang, Sumatra. This Colubrine giant is more than 30 feet in length and was bespoken by the Austrian government for a zoo at Budapest.

But the story of its capture is even more interesting than the huge crea-ture itself, for this python had fallen a victim to its fondness for the notes of a violin.

There is a telegraph-line extending across Sumatra, from Padang, connect-ing that port, by means of submarine cables, with Batavia and Singapore.

Along this line of land wire are a number of interior stations. One of charge of an operator named Carlos Gambrino, a mestizo from Batavia, Java, educated at the industrial school there.

The station is on a hillock in the valley of the river Kampar, and is adjacent to dense forest, jungle and a long morass. It is a solitary little place, consisting merely of four or five thatched huts, elevated on posts to a height of six feet from the ground, to be more secure from noxious insects, reptiles and wild beasts.

The station is at the junction of two native roads, or trails, along which the interior trade of the island is conducted after a desultory fashion; and as a rule Gambrino has little enough to do, except listen to the ticking of the instrument, monotonously repeating messages to remote points in which he can feel little interest. For solace and com-pany, therefore, he frequently has recourse to his violin.

Thatched houses on posts in Sumatra are not commonly supplied with glass windows; but Gambrino had afforded himself the luxury of a twopane sash, set to slide in an aperture in the side wall of his hut, and some five or six months ago, during the wet season, he was sitting at this window one afternoon, as he played his violin, when he saw the head of a large serpent rise out of the grass, at a distance of seventy or eighty yards.

His first impulse was to get his carbine and try to shoot the monster, for he saw that it was a very large python, and not a desirable neighbor. But something in the attitude of the reptile led him to surmise that / it had raised itself to hear the violin, and he passed at once to a lively air.

As long as he continued playing the python remained there apparently mo-tionless; but when he ceased it drew its head down, and he saw nothing more of it that day, although he went out with his gun to look for it.

Nearly a fortnight passed, and the

these, called Pali-lo-pom, has been in incident had gone from his mind,for large snakes are not uncommon in Sumatra,-when one night, as he was playing the violin to some native acquaintances who had come to the hut, they heard the sounds made by a large snake gliding across the bamboo platform or floor of the little veranda. On looking out with a light, one of the party saw a huge, mottled python gliding away.

But it was not until the reptile ap peared a' third time, raising its head near his window, that the telegrapher became certain that it was really his violin which attracted it.

In the meantime the operator at Padang, with whom Gambrino held daily conversations by wire, had told him that the German agent of a Hamburg house at that port would pay ten pounds, English money, for such a py thon as he described.

Gambrino began scheming to capture the reptile. In one of the huts at the station there was stored a quantity of fiber rope, such as is used in Sumatra for bridging small rivers and ravines. Gambrino contrived three large nooses from this rope, which he elevated hori-zontally, on bamboo poles, to the height of his window, and carried the drawing ends of the nooses inside the hut.

This was done after the operator had ascertained that at times the snake would come about the house and raise its head if it heard the violin.

Some time later the python was beguiled by the music into raising its head inside one of the nooses, which a native, who was on the watch while Gambrino played, instantly jerked tight.

What followed was exciting. The reptile resented the trick with vigor, and showed itself possessed of far more strength than they had expected.

beam inside, and the snake nearly pulled the entire structure down, mak-ing it rock and creak in a way that "Most things certainly are things," she admitted, "and a few things are precious; but even then there's a dif-The rope had been made fast to a caused Gambrino and his native ally to leap to the ground in haste from a back entrance. The reptile coiled its body about the posts and pulled desperately to break away. Altogether, it was a wild night at this little remote telegraph station.

The next morning a crowd of natives collected; and as the python had by this time exhausted itself, they contrived to hoist its head as high as the roof of the hut and to secure its tail.

It was then lowered into a molasses hogshead, which was covered and trussed up securely with ropes.

In this condition the python was drawn to Padang on a bullock cart. It is said to weigh more than four hundred pounds.

Only a Thing.

In a pretty, sunny parlor, modest but tasteful, two women were arranging flowers. One was the hostess, the other a visitor who was helping with the preparations for a tea that afternoon. It was from the visitor's hand that a delicate glass vase slipped and crashed to pieces on the hearth.

"O Ellen, I'm so sorry!" she exclaimed, in distress. "The Venetian glass vase your sister brought from Italy-the very one I can't possibly replace. It's too bad!"

"It was pretty, and I'm sorry, of course," acknowledged Ellen, frankly, burrowing promptly in a closet for the dust-pan, "but don't stand there frozen with horror, and your face like a tragic mask. After all it's only a thing."

"'Only a thing!'" echoed the culprit, in a voice of astonishment tinged with indignation. "Of course it's a thing. Most things are things. But that doesn't prevent their being precious." Ellen laughed outright.

was peck

bird wee

A the man

stay but

brig

they

just for

B you

nes til

I ope sou

ugl tak

see you I > was We

fish

bui

bac

fee

out bor

kin

Winn

ference

the fa

it out

aunt,

comfoi

and sp

always that c

perienc

import

and in

be tro

matte

action

sions,

deeme

than things "W

ciple

disast

a tea

Laugh

the t friend

genui laugh

'Thin

kind ?

kind

slave

cheer

chrvs

and hand

to be after

"0]

"I

"You

Printed on the finest of art paper in six colors, size 10 x 13, suitable for framing, and admittedly the finest memento of the great Coronation Ceremony yet produced. While the cost of every copy of this beautiful picture amounts in money value to more than one year's subscription to this magazine, yet we are anxious that every reader should have it, and we make the conditions so easy that no one need be disappointed.

Every subscriber who will, before Sept. 3t0h, send us a new subscriber will receive one for himself, while his friend will be similarly treated.

The Western Home Monthly at one dollar for a year, or two dollars for three, is acknowledged to be the best magazine value in the country to-day, so that our readers with this additional inducement should have no trouble in sending in new names. If we could but show you this really fine portrait you would at once put forth the necessary effort to secure it, and we are sure that those who will receive it will give it the choicest position in their best room. Of all the generous offers we have made to our readers this is undoubtedly the best, and we hope to hear from many and hear promptly.

HOME PUBLISHING COMPANY, WINNIPEG

The WESTERN HOME MONTHLY WINNIPEG Gentlemen-Enclosed find $1.00 for which please send The Western Home Monthly and King George Premium to Name

| ddress | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | 4 | | | | | | | | |
|--------|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|--|
| | • | • | 1 | • | • | • | • | • | • | • | • | • | • | • | • | • | • | • | • | • | * | • | • | • | • | • | • | • | | ug., 1911.

native ally ste from a coiled its pulled desogether, it tle remote of natives had by this ontrived to roof of the a molașșes and trussython was k cart. It four hun-modest but arranging ostess, the elping with that afteritor's hand slipped and rth.

!" she exe Venetian ought from possibly rea sorry, of en, frankly, oset for the there frozen ike a tragic thing." the culprit, tinged with t's a thing. But that g precious."

are things," things are ere's a dif-

THLY

or which

Monthly

.

Winnipeg Sept., 1911 ference. I forgot that you didn't know the family byword, and couldn't finish it out for yourself. "You see, I was quoting my name-aunt, who was the dearest, coziest, most comfortable and yet most wide-awake and spirited old lady in the world. She always declared that the richest gain that came to her through age and experience was the perception of relative importance. Life is so much more easy and interesting if we never let ourselves be troubled about what need not really matter; and compared with people and actions things, our mere little possessions, are after all so trifling. She deemed it disgraceful that anything less than war, earthquake or fire, affecting things should make us unhappy. "When a heart, a promise or a principle is broken,' she used to say, 'that's disaster, and one may grieve; but when a teapot is—a thing is only a thing. Laugh and take a brown pitcher, and the tea will taste just as good."

"I suppose it would," agreed Ellen's friend, reflectively, "if the laugh were genuine, but so many of us couldn't laugh. It's Emerson, isn't it, who says, 'Things are in the saddle, and ride mankind ?' Only he should have said womankind; it's we housekeepers who are slaves to things."

"Oh, not all of us," protested Ellen, cheerfully. "Suppose you put the pink chrysanthemums in that old Dutch mug and twist the trailing fern round the handle — I'm not sure it isn't going to be prettier than the Venetian vase, after all."

Nest Babies.

By Clarence Hawkes.

The most interesting time of the whole year in bird land is the time when the fledglings are hatched and the life of the new family begins. You children could hardly know unless you have often watched the birds what patience it has taken to bring this little bird family into the world.

In the first place, it took days to build the nest. Perhaps the first nest was destroyed by the wind, so a second may have been built. After the nest was finally built, with much planning by the parent birds, the eggs had to be laid; this usually takes a day for an egg, but some birds skip a day between each egg.

After all the eggs were laid the mother Bird had to sit upon them for about three weeks before her patience was rewarded by seeing a small spot pecked in each egg. Think how hard it would be for you children who like to wriggle about to sit perfectly still, just as the mother

WALTER BAKER & CO. LIMITED DORCHESTER, MASS. ESTABLISHED 1780 Canadian Mills at 1000 ALBERT STREET, MONTREAL

The New Mills at Montreal are now in operation and for the convenience of the Canadian trade we have established Distributing Points at

Montreal, Winnipeg, Vancouver

flavor and food value.

Important to Grocers and Consumers!

The absolute purity and healthfulness of

BAKER'S COCOA

and CHOCOLATE

are guaranteed under the pure food laws of Canada. Made by a perfect mechanical process, they are unequaled for delicacy of

The Western Home Monthly.

Some birds, like the kingfisher, digest the food for their young before feeding it to them. They first swallow the food themselves, and when it has become soft they gulp it up and feed it to the young birds.

Registered Trade-Mark

Most little birds when they are first hatched are rather ugly, shapeless little things without any feathers. Young bluebirds feather out very early, but the queer thing about them is that they are black as little crows and it is not until they have been out of the nest for some time that they put on the blue and red of their parents. The cuckoo also has a queer family of fledgings. This shy bird is very slow about laying her eggs, for she sometimes takes a week to an egg, so that the first cuckoo is hatched out long before his brothers and sisters. So a cuckoo's nest will usually contain birds the eggs before they are hatched. Once the young birds leave the nest they never return, but are pushed out into the world to shift for themselves. It is surprising how quickly they learn what things are good for food and which things to let alone. They are never deceived into eating poison foods, as children often are. Nature has given each young bird such instinct as he needs to take care of himself in the great world into which he has come. Each bird has in its little head such wisdom as will en-able it to build its nest and rear its young when the time comes. Also he knows that he must fly many miles away to warmer climes when the cold comes, where he will not perish.

Little birds love the sunshine and the warmth and plenty of good things to eat. When they have all these things their songs gladden the earth and their bright feathers cheer us as they bird has to do on the eggs, for three weeks.

61

After the fledglings are finally hatched there is great activity in the family for many days. Most of the little birds stay in the nest for several weeks, but little partridges are an exemption to this rule, for they are among the brightest and hardiest of chicks, and in a very few hours after being hatched they are picking up their own living just as though they had always worked for it.

But this is not the case with most young birds. Young herons stay in the nest and are fed by the old herons until they are nearly grown.

It is a pretty sight to see those wideopen mouths go up at the slightest sound near the nest. Most of these ugly, naked little birds are greedy and take a great deal of feeding. I have seen old robins carrying worms to their young nearly all day long.

Did you ever hear of a fledgling that was hatched in a hole in the ground? Well, that is where the young kingfisher is hatched.

When a pair of kingfishers want to build themselves a nest they dig a hole back into some sandy bank for several feet, and at the end of it they hollow out a round place and line it with fish bones. Here in darkness the young kingfishers are hatched.

Young kingfishers are among the hungriest of fledglings, and when there is a large family you may see the old birds fishing for these wide-open mouths all day long.

of several sizes? There will be one little naked cuckoo just hatched, another a week old, and perhaps one just ready to go out into the world and pick up his own living.

There is one bird that is quite shiftless about her young. In fact, she has nothing to do with them; this is the cowbird, she goes about laying her eggs in other birds' nests. When the other birds find a cowbird has laid an egg in their nest they usually hatch it out and take care of the young bird with their own.

The young cowbird is a greedy fellow, and it greatly surprises its foster mother, who wonders why one of her brood is so greedy and so much larger than the rest of her family.

Most old birds teach their young to fly, showing them by example how the trick is done, and often withholding food to coax them to try their wings. An old robin will frequently sit upon a limb holding a tempting worm in its bill, while the young robin perches upon a limb near by winking and blinking and wishing so much that he had that worm but not daring for a long time to fly to his parent and get it.

When the young birds first go forth from the nest is a time of peril to the family, for there is always a chance that some luckless bird will flop down on the grass and the cat will get it. If it is not the cat sometimes thoughtless children will injure young birds, and some other birds will even kill the fledgings of their neighbors.

Hawks, shrikes, kingbirds, crows, and | it will blow away. others often rob nests of their young birds and still more frequently steal from the web to his home; when any flash by. Let us, then, feed and protect these little friends and encourage them to build about our houses, for it is a great thing to have the full confidence of even a little bird.

How Spiders Work.

Watch an old spider making a fine web. A fly will get caught in it as he goes quickly through the window if he is not careful, then the spider will eat him, and when the spider goes for a walk he must look sharply to right and left or some creature will eat him. A bird will suddenly swallow him or a wasp will kill him; the centipedes, too, are always looking for spiders.

The spider's silk, with which he makes his beautiful web, is like a piece of your mother's sewing silk - it is made of a lot of very fine strands. And in what a wonderful way the spider spins his web from bush to bush! He throws out a silken thread, and the wind carries it to a leaf, where it sticks, then he walks carefully across the thread, carrying another thread to make his tight rope stronger. He pulls the thread with his claws, as a sailor tugs at the sail ropes, and fastens it with great_care; round and round he goes until the splendid web is made, and, if the wind is blowing, he fastens, tiny pieces of stick to the web for fear

A spider often stretches a thread

Unusual opportunity for men wi capital to become independent for Valuable Book and full particulars F Write today. NATIONAL CO-OPERATIVE REALTY GO Marden Building M 667 Washington, D. C.

E. R. MARDEN President

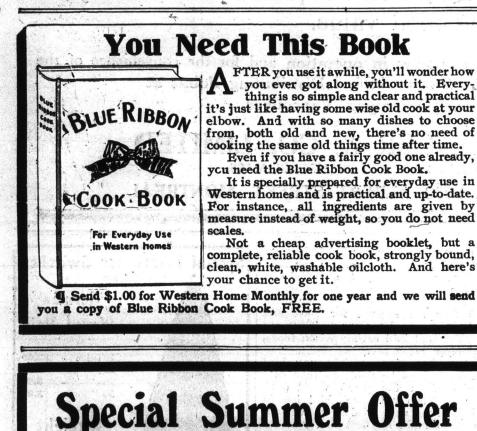

MY FREE TRIAL TREATMENT MAY CURE YOU

Kingston, Ont., June 6th, 1909. Dear Mrs. Currah,—I feel so very much better after using the 10 days' treat-tent of ORANGE LILY you were kind enough to send, that I will not require any ore. In fact, I feel entirely well, and it is now a month since I stopped using the eatment. (Miss) F. W. T. ar letters to the above are not infrequent, though, of (MASS) F. W. 1. requent, though, of course, such cases are not of long standing. Most wo-men who have suffered for any length of time will require to use ORANGE LILY longer than the Trial Treatment in order to effect a complete cure, but in every case they will be perceptibly benefited. Further, the benefit will be perman-ent whether they continue to use ORANGE LILY or not. It is not taken internally, and does not con-tain any alcohol or other stimulant. It is an applied treatment, and acts directly on the suffering or-gans. In all cases of women's dis-orders, these organs are congest-ed to a greater or less extent, and course, such cases

ORANGE LILY will relieve and remove this congestion just as positively and cer-tainly as the action of ammonia or soap on soiled linen. It is a simple chemical problem, and the result is always the same, a step towards better health and

In order that every suffering woman may prove its good qualities, I will send enough of ORANGE LILY for 10 day's treatment, absolutely free, to each lady who will send me her address. MRS. FRANCLS. E. CURRAH, WINDSOR, ON'. 10

WEEKLY FREE PRESS and PRAIRIE FARMER, Winnipeg, -$1.00 . WESTERN HOME MONTHLY, Winnipeg, 1.00

creature is caught in the web the spider feels the web shake, and out he runs to see what has happened.

Spiders are very clever. If you should touch a green one he would double up his little legs and fall from the place where you saw him. If you did not notice that he was hanging from his thread you would likely say: "It is only a green lead." There is a brown spider that does the same thing, hoping to be taken for a brown leaf.

The trap-door spider makes her house by digging a hole in the ground; she scratches it up with her front legs and carries out the tiny lumps of earth until there is a nice long hole. She lines this with fine silk, which she weaves herself, then makes a little door of leaves and sticks woven together with her silk and fastens it on with a silken hinge. This is a safe, warm home for the baby spiders, and if the mother hears some dangerous creature trying to get in she holds onto the door with all her might, and the children run to the other end of the house. The spider children are very industrious; they amuse themselves by making tiny houses just like the one their mother has made, so that when they grow up they can make safe, warm houses for their own children.

Some spiders live under the water in little balls made of their own silk; some live under the ground, and others live in trees or in our houses. There are big and little spiders of many different colors, but they can all run very fast for they have eight legs.-Amelia De Wolffers,

That Young Misbehave.

By R. H. Woodbine.

Mina Welding was a bright girl, though perhaps not as bright as she thought herself. But that may be said of a great many people.

One evening she came bounding into the house and said to her mother, who was sewing in the sitting-room:

"Mother, I hear that Mr. Sandover, the editor of the Compass, wants a clerk. That's just the kind of a position I'd like."

"Has he advertised for a clerk?" asked Mrs. Welding.

"No, he's afraid he'll have a crush of applicants, and so he's just looking around and trying to find the clerk he wants in a quiet way. Somebody mentioned me to him, and he said he wished I'd come up to his office. I'm going the first thing in the morning."

"I hope you'll succeed," said her moth-"You could earn your own pin er. and maybe help a little to keep money. the pot boiling these hard times." If you think Mina delayed her going to Mr. Sandover's office the next day. you do not know what an energetic little body she was. Bright and early she entered the office. She stated her errand in her brisk way, and told Mr. Sandover about her acquirements. "I am pleased with what you say, Mr. Sandover stated at the end of the interview. "Come up day after tomorrow, and I may give you a trial with some work." The young girl hurried home in a very hopeful frame of mind, and told her mother that Mr. Sandover and his office were "just delightful." It would be "splendid" to work in such a place. In this sanguine mood she spent the day, and in the evening she and her "chum," Lizzie Osgood, went to a service in one of the churches-the one the girls usually attended. It was a small church in the suburbs, near Mina's home. Now you would scarcely believe it of Mina, but truth compels me to say that she was not as well behaved in church services and at other gatherings as she should have been. That evening she and Lizzie did a great deal of "cutting up," as they called it. They had a vast amount of sport themselves, and kept the circle of girls around them in a titter, disturbing many people who wanted to listen to the sermon, so that the minister had to reprimand them. you suppose she saw when the service was over, as she turned to look back over the church? "Oh, Lizzie," she whispered. "there's my editor, Mr. Sandover, the man I'm going to work for-any way, I'm almost sure of the position. Isn't he a fine-looking man? He's smart, too, I tell you. He's looking this way now. My! hasn't he got keen eyes?"

At the appointed time the second day after, she made her way to the office of the Compass to decide on the final arrangements about the position. Mr. Sandover turned his revolving chair as she entered and scanned her searchingly.

"Well, you have come to see about that position, have you?" he said. "I was at the Lisbon street church night before last. You were there?"

"Yes," Mina replied, her face turning several colors.

"I saw a couple of girls behaving themselves very badly during the service," "One of them I the editor went on. called in my mind 'that young misbehave.' She was the leader of the mischief."

He paused, and Mina wished the floor would open and let her sink through.

"Now, my young friend, I recognized the girl who conducted herself so badly, and I have decided that any girl who has such mistaken ideas of smartness isn't smart enough to work in my office. She took advantage of the minister and misbehaved when he was not looking. How do I know but she might be dishonest in working for me? 1 can make no use of your services in my office."

The editor resumed his writing, while Mina crept home an humbler and a wiser girl.

So Old that it is New.

By Mary Joslyn Smith.

Mabel went into the kitchen one day and asked, "Katy, do you know any new riddle or conundrum? They are all the fashion at school, and I want a new one.'

"I know just one, and that is not a new one. I heard it in good old Ireland a long time ago."

"Well, I guess it's so old that it will be new to all of us, so you will teach it to me?

"A question I will ask of thee,

Come, answer if you please. Tell in what chapter there's a verse With three and fifty t's?"

When Mabel had learned the rhyme she ask- Katy the answer.

"That's the hard part for me to remember. It's in the Bible, sure, but I forget where. I remember that the name of the book it is in is a girl's name."

Mabel went to her mother and found the answer to be Esther, the eighth chapter and the ninth verse. Mabel's mother assured her the riddle was old enough to be new at school, and perhaps in many other places.

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

Win

Refer tanding. Sir W Sir G Rev. College Rev. of Mori-Hon. London Dr. i quor s pensive tions, n cons

THE

by le year beau figur Syste close M

661

A

ther

sma

who orde

The

the

bac

slug

the

you

Sw

kid

and

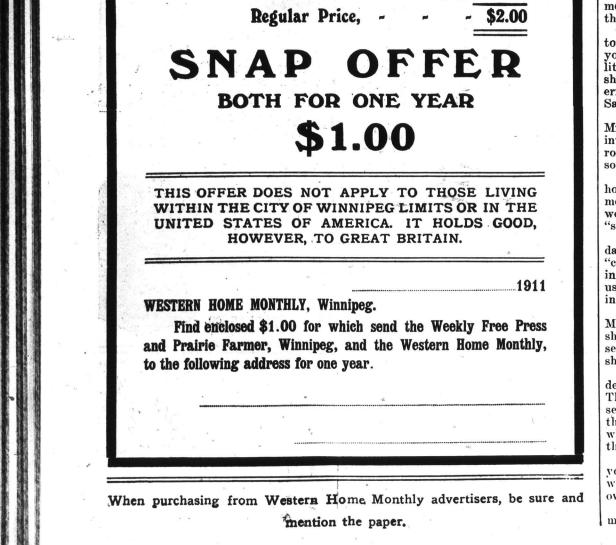

Fif

Ma

IV

I v dout said all a send cure cure

Fill

The First Temperancc Society.

The first temperance society in Connecticut, and probably in the world, was organized in Litchfield in 1789. The pledge was as follows: "So many are the avenues leading to misery, that it is impossible to guard them all. Such evils as are produced by our own folly and weakness are within our power to avoid. The immoderate use which the people of our State make of distilled spirits is undoubtedly an evil of this kind. The morals are corrupted, property is exhausted, and health destroyed. Whereupon we do hereby associate and mutually agree that hereafter we will carry on our business without the use of distilled spirits as an article of refreshment either for ourselves or those we employ, and that instead thereof, we will serve our workmen with wholesome food and common, simple drinks of our own production." This was signed by thirty-six men. These facts are recorded by an old county history, and are believed to be well substantiated. Such an agreement among employers of the present day might result in much good.

They Cleanse While They Cure.—The vegetable compounds of which Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are composed, mainly dandelion and mandrakes

ept., 1911

I'm almost he a finetoo, I tell now. My!

second day the office of he final artion. Mr. ng chair as searchingly.

about that "I was at ight before ace turning

aving themhe service, of them I ung misbeof the mis-

ed the floor through. recognized lf so badly, y girl who smartness in my ofthe minister s not looke might be e? 1 can ices in my iting, while and a wiser lew.

nith. en one day know any hey are all I want a at is not a od old Irethat it will ı will teach thee. lease. 's a verse

the rhyme r. me to resure, but I

er that the is a girl's r and found the eighth se. Mabel's dle was old ol, and per-

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

A. MoTAGGART, M.D., C M., 75 Yonge St., Toronto, Canada,

THE SECRET PERFECT BUST and Form Sent Free Madam Thora's French Corsine System of Bust Development is a simple home treatment and is guaran-teed to enlarge the bust six in-the bust six in-ches; also fills hollow places in neck and chest. It has been used by leading actresses and society ladies for 20 years. Book giving full particulars sent free, beautifully illustrated from life, showing figures before and after using the Corsine system. Letters sacredly confidential. Hu-close two stamps and address: Madem Thore Tollet Co., Torento, Ont.

Liquor and Tobacco Habits

References as to Dr. McTaggart's professional standing and persona lintegrity permitted by: Sir W. R. Meredith, Chief Justice. Sir Geo. W. Ross, ex-Premier o f Ontario. Rev. N. Burwash, D.D., President Victoria College.

College. Rev. J. G. Shearer, B.A., D.D., Secretary Board of Moral Reform, Toronto. Right Rev. J. F. Sweeney, D.D., Bishop of Toronto Hon. Thomas Coffey, Senator, Catholic Record, London, Ontario. Dr. McTaggart's vegetable remedies for the iguor and tobacco habits are healthful, safe, inex-pensive home treatments. No hypodermic injec-tions, no publicity, no loss of time from business, and a certain cure.

nd a certain cure. Consultation or Correspondence invited.

"What Every Woman Knows"

Almost every woman suffers now and then from dull, persistent aches in the small of the back. And most of those who do, think this is due to some disorder peculiar to women. It is not. The kidneys are at fault-or rather the owner of the kidneys. For these backaches are a certain sign of clogged, sluggish kidneys, just as are most of the headaches that afflict women. Rid yourself of the torment with Dr. Clark's Sweet Nitre Pills, which cleanse the kidneys, keep them healthy and active, and tone the whole urinary system. Fifty cents a box, or direct from The Martin, Bole & Wynne Co., of Winnipeg, Canada.

Temperance Talk.

The Western Home Monthly.

The Voice Within. A late eminent preacher and writer, speaking of his early childhood, relates the following:

"When I was a little boy in my fourth year, one fine day in spring my father led me by the hand to a distant part of the farm, but soon sent me home alone. On the way I had to pass a little pond, then spreading its waters wide; a rhodora in full bloom, a rare flower which grew only in that locality, attracted my attention and drew me to the spot. I saw a little tortoise sunning himself in the shallow waters at the roots of the flaming shrub. I lifted the stick I had in my hand to strike the harmless reptile; for, though I had never killed any creature, yet I had seen other boys do so, and I felt a disposition to follow their wicked example. But all at once something checked my little arm, and a voice within me said, clear and loud 'It is wrong!' I held my uplifted stick in a wonder at the new emotion, the consciousness of an involuntary but inward check upon my actions.

"I hastened home and told the tale to my mother, and asked her what it was that told me it was wrong. She wiped her arms, said, 'Some men call it cons- a day for those sixty years it would

to give up his drinking habits and provide another kind of dinner for those at home.

Three Pints a Day.

I was exceedingly struck with an anecdote told me by a London physician. He went into the park and sat down upon a bench, and there sat down by him an old pauper of eighty years of age. And this physician entered into conversation with him and asked him what his trade was. The man said, "A carpenter." "A very good trade, indeed," said the physician; "well, how is it that you come at this time of life to be a pauper; have you been addicted to drink?" "Not at all; I have only taken my three pints a day—never spent more than 6d. a day." The physician took out his pencil and a piece of paper, and said to the man, "How long have you continued this practice of drinking you continued this practice of drinking your three pints of ale a day?" The man said, "I am now eighty, and I have continued this practice, more or less, for sixty years." "Very well," said the physician, "I will just do the sum," and he found that by doing the sum that if a tear from her eye, and taking me in this ma nhad only laid by that sixpence

Nervous Prostration Sleeplessness Palpitation of the Heart Dizzy Spells Are all Cured by the Use of MILBURN'S

HEART and NERVE PILLS

63

Mr. Peter Halstad, Tilley, Alta., writes: "I take great pleasure in writing a few lines to tell you what your Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I had a long standing case of nervous prostration, sleeplessness, palpitation of the heart, and dizzy spells. I bought a box of the pills and they did me so much good I continued their use until I had used several boxes and they restored me to health again. They are a great remedy and I recommend them to all my friends."

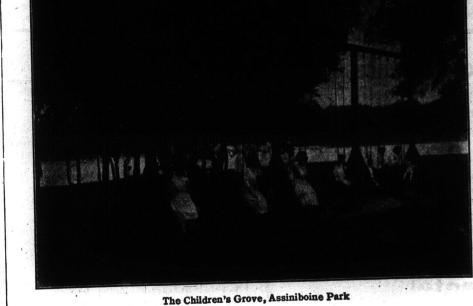

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. per box or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or will be mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

For Weak Men Send Name and Address Today-

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, failing memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural drains, or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—with out any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quictly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men and I am con-vinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor failure ever puttogether. I think I owe it to my fellow man to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere whois weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest acting restorative, up-building, SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quictly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 4215 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain, ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send t entirely free cience, but I prefer to call it the voice | have come, with compound interest, to 3,226; and he said to the pauper, "My of God in the soul of man. If you listen good man, instead of being a pauper at this moment you might have been quite as well in health, in every respect quite as happy, and you might have been the possessor of £3,226 at this moment; in other words, you might have had £150 a year, or some £3 a week, not that little voice."" by working an hour longer or doing anything differently, except by being a total abstainer, and by putting this A Drunkard's Dinner. money that you have been spending day by day these sixty years on your beer." A man was in the habit of spending -Archdeacon Farrar.

$3.50 Recipe FREE

You Gan Have it Free and Be Strong and vigorous.

put together.

Society.

society in the world, in 1789. "So many nisery, that them all. by our own within our oderate use te make of ubtedly an morals are austed, and ipon we do

ually agree of distilled refreshment ose we emeof, we will wholesome inks of our s signed by cts are renistory, and ibstantiated. mployers of

-The vegetable Vegetable Pills ad mandrake; of deleterious gans to healthest remedy for al of then will n and do more ng that can be

ilt in much

SEND US $1.00 Receive by return mail postpaid TWO dresses for little girls age 2 to 8, dresses are of soft warm dress goods for winter wear, in dark red plaid patterns made with blouse and skirt braid trimmed and latest style. This dress, age 10 and 12 75c. each, age 14 $1.25, add 12c. for postage. Stand-ard Garment Co., 10 Standard Building, London, Canada.

I Gured My Rupture I Will Show You How To Cure Yours FREE!

I was helpless and bed-ridden for years from a double rupture. No truss could hold. Doctors said I would die if not operated on. I fooled them all and cured myself by a simple discovery. I will send the cure free by mail if you write for it. It cured me and has since cured thousands. It will cure you. cure you.

Fill out the coupon pelow and mail it to me today.

Free Rupture-Cure Coupon

CAPI. W. A. CULLINGS. Box 20 Watertown, N.Y.

Dear Sir:--Please send me free of all cost your New Discovery for the Cure of Rupture.

Name Address.....

and obey it, then it will speak clearer and clearer, and always guide you right; but if you turn a deaf ear or disobey, then it will fade out, little by little, and leave you in the dark and without a guide. Your life depends on heeding his days and nights lounging about public houses, gambling and indulging in the various gross amusements that pertain to such a life. One day, while he and his cronies were employed as usual, his wife entered the saloon, bearing in her hands a dish. He looked up with surprise, while she said:

"I thought, husband, that as you were so busy, and had no time to come home to dinner, I would bring your dinner to you;" and setting the dish upon the table she quietly retired.

Calling his associates around him, he invited to partake with him of the repast. Lifting the cover from the dish, he found in it simply a piece of paper, on which was written:

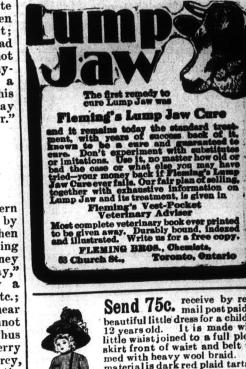

"Dear Husband,—I hope you will enjoy your dinner. It is the same kind that your wife and children have at home." The discomfiture of the husband may be imagined. The subject was too grim for mirth. The hungry wife and suffering children stood in vivid relief I am in debt," says one; "I have no before the idle and shiftness man, who money about me," says another. Then so effectually considered the matter as every finger is a thumb, and it is such

*

"I'll Pay."

When men meet together at a tavern or ale house, upon jovial occasions, by way of kindness to drink together, then happy is that man, when the reckoning is brought, that can be rid of his money first. "I'll pay," says one; "I'll pay," says another. "You shall not pay a penny," says a third, "I'll pay all," etc.; and so it grows sometimes very near unto a quarrel, because one man cannot spend his money before another. Thus in words of worldy fellowship and merry making; but come to a work of mercy, how is it then? Is the money upon the table? Is every man ready to throw down, and make it a leading case to the rest of the company? No such matter; one puts it off to another; "Alas!

Send 75c. receive by return beautiful little dress for a child 2 to 12 years old. It is made with a little waistjoined to a full pleated skirt front of waist and belt trim-med with heavy wool braid. The material is dark red plaid tartan or blue and white pokadot dress goods suitable for winter wear, ages 2 to 12, only 75 cents, age 14, $1.25. These dresses are worth double and are offered as an advertisement of our big ladies wearing apparel mail our big ladies wearing apparel mail order house.

Standard Garment Co. 10 Standard Building, London, Ont

1 A Frangesa March 2 Alpine Hut 3 An Easter Emblem

94 Old Black Joe, (Trans.)

March

Women and Song

ON WICKO

he had never known a teetotaler to apply for parish relief. In Edinburgh, out of 27,000 cases of pauperism, 20,000 were traceable to drunkenness, and in London it is estimated that two-thirds of our paupers owe their condition to the same terrible evil. This is no matter for wonder when we come to consider the amount of money which is squandered in drink, coupled with the unprofitable and unproductive nature of the trade to the community at large. During four years, up to 1879, the amount spent in the United Kingdom upon intoxicating liquors amounted to £574,000,000, a sum within £18,000,000 of the total of our export trade with of the whole world during three years! And judging from the number of workmen in proportion to the money value of the various liquors sent out at the large Caledonian Distillery in Edinburgh, the drink money spent in the country would, if more productively applied, employ 2,000,000 instead of 250,000 of our population.

Win

If all

And

Woi

And

Wor

To

Abo

And

The

If

Wei

And

Ad

And

Wh

If 1

As

The

And

And

It

life,

not s seem tire

away

It

when

decad

into woul

two

is th is th en f

ting

lessn

"Bab

play

befor

to se

the show

Such

noth

what

with upor

view

gress

disti

our

her mid:

man

W

If

It

Th

The r

Then

And (

The st

If cru

A bet

If pur

The k

If tho

The re

If hea

And t

Then

A bri

If me

And a

- tough ;

Anvil Chorus (from "Il Trovatore") April Smiles, Waltzes April Smile, Waltzes Arbutus Waltz, (Merry Bells)
At Sundown
Artist Life, Waltzes
Autumn Gavotte, (Merry Bells)
Battle of Waterloo
Beautiful Blue Danube Waltzes
Black Hawk, Waltzes
Black Key Polka Mazurka
Bluetta Polka (Merry Bells)
Bluetta Polka (Merry Bells) Bells) 16 Brook, (The) 17 Bohemian Girl 18 Campion March (Merry Bells) 20 Cavalleria Rusticana, Int. 21 Convent Grand March 22 Convent Bells 23 Cornflower Waltzes 24 Con A more(with my love) 25 Chacon ne Chacon ne
 Chapel in the Fores Consolstion
 Daffodil, Schottische, (Merry Belle)
 Dorothys Old English 29 Dorothy, Old English Dance 30 Dixie, Transcription 31 Echoes of the Bal 1 32 Evening Star (Tannhauser) 33 Evening Song 34 Flower of Spring, A 35 Fairy Wedding, Walts 36 Faust, (Transcription) 37 Fifth N octurne 38 First H eart Throbs 39 Flatterer (The) 38 39 39 Flatterer(The) 39 Flatterer(The) 40 Flower Son g 41 Frolic of the Frogs, Waltz 42 Funeral March 43 Fur El ise 44 Gertrude's Dream, Waltz 45 Gipsy Dance 46 Girlhood days, Three-step 47 HazelBlossoms

49 Heartsease 50 Heimwich, (Longing for 95 One Heart—One Soul 96 Padishah, (Persian March 97 Palms (The) 98 Patti Waltzes, 00 Parcha Dar D (Tyrolienne) Home) 51 Home Sweet Home, (Trans.) 52 IlTrovatore 99 Pearly Dew Drops 100 Peri Waltzes 101 Polish Dance 102 Pure as Snow 53 In the Country 54 In the Meadow 55 In the Twilight 56 Invitation to the Dance 102 Pure as Snow 103 Pretty Picture 104 Qui Vive Galop (4 H'da) (Double Number) 105 Ramona Waltzes 106 Remember Me 107 Rippling Waves 108 Rustic Dance 109 Sach Woltz 57 Il Bacio, (The Kiss) Waltzes 58 Jolly Fellows, Waltzes 60 L'Argentine, Thistle) (Silvery 61 La Czarine, Masurka 62 LaFountaine 109 Sack Waltz 110 Scarf Dance 111 Schubert's Serenade 63 La Paloma 64 Largo 111 Schubert's Serenade 112 Secret Love 113 Shepherd Boy 114 Silvery Waves 116 Simple Confession 118 Spring Song 119 Spring's Awakening 120 Spring Beauty, Waltz (Merry Bells) 121 Stephan ie Gavötte 122 Storm (The) 123 Shepherd's Song 124 Tam O'Shanter Last Hope Last Waltz of a Madman Le Tremolo 63 67 68 Lily Little Fairy, Waltzes 69 70 Little Fairy, Polka Little Fairy, Schottische 71 72 73 Little Fairy, March 74 Love's Dream After The Ball 75 La Serenata 76 Lily of the Valley 78 Loin Du Bal, (Sounds from 123 Snepheru s Song 124 Tam O'Shanter 125 Tannhauser, (Evening 18 Loin Du Bai, (So the Ball)
79 Maiden's Prayer
80 May Has Come
81 Melody in F
82 Minuet
83 Monastry Bells
84 Moment Musical Star) 127 Thine Own, (Melody) 128 Traumere and Romance 129 Twentieth Century Woman, March 130 Two Angels 131 Under the Double Eagle, 84 Moment Musican 85 Morning Flowers, (Gavotte 133 Valse Bleue 86 Mountain Belle, (Schottische) 134 Valsein E flat 87 Music Box 88 My Old Kentucky Home 135 Waves of the Danube 136 Waves of the Ocean (Trans.) 89 Old Folks at Home, with 137 Warblings at Eve 138 Weber's Last Waltz variations 90 Orange Blossoms, Waltzes 91 Orvetta Waltzes 92 Over the Waves, Mexican Waltzes 139 Wedding March 140 Whispering of Love 141 Wine, Women an Waltzes 142 You and I Waltzes

ADDRESS ALL LETTERS

Western Home Monthly, Winnipeg, Canada.

2240

Making It Red.

A gentleman the other day saw his daughter dipping her little doll-baby's dress into a tin cup, and inquired "What ae you doing, my daughter?" "I'm coloring my doll's dress red." "With what?" "With beer." "What put that foolish notion into your head, my child? You can't color it red with "Yes, I can. pa; because ma beer." said it was beer that made your nose so red." And the gentleman had business that required him down town immediately.

you'll run your through train in that station at last, Where the freight is oft judged by the switch of the past.

Sir Andrew Clark and Total Abstinence.

Dr. Andrew Clark gives in the following words an excellent testimony to the advantage of total abstinence: "Every adult man will find after trial that he will work better, he will enjoy more, he will have a longer exemption from disease, he will probably better in all the higher relations of live longer, and certainly he will be life. . . I daresay if a man took a glass of wine, as sometimes people do to overcome nervousness, he might succeed, and, indeed, I am bound to say that that sort of help alcohol sometimes curiously enough, at the ex-pense of blunting his sensibilities. . . . That is my testimony as to the effect of alcoholic liquors upon health and upon work-namely, that for all purposes of sustained, enduring, fruitful work, it is my experience that alcohol does not help, but hinders it. . . I am bound to say that for all honest work alcohol never helps 🌲 human soul, never, never."

It Has Many Qualities.—The man who poss-esses a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is armed against many ills. It will cure a cough, break a cold, prevent sore throat; it will reduce the write perside the swelling from a sprain, cure the most persist ent sores and will speeduly heal cuts and contusions. It is a medicine chest in itself, and can be got for a duarter of a dollar. quarter of a dollar.

pt., 1911

boys, 'tis ybe lessen ying, your

don't fail ked, more

at ruinous no words

ot switch.

e the

t the rest

os it is the train,

on this

nders, the

them well, why-

nd dull to the others on some

't ever go

o take

g to have en' things

nd it will –you will

that the the the

would be when 'tis

er so train in ed by the

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

Sunday Reading.

If.

If all who hate would love us, And all our loves were true, The stars that swing above us Would brighten up the blue. If cruel words were kisses, And every scowl a smile, A better world than this is Would hardly be worth while; If purses would untighten To meet a brother's need, The load we bear would lighten Above the grave of greed. If those who whine would whistle, And those who languish laugh, The rose would route the thistle, The grain outrun the chaff; If hearts were only jolly, If grieving were forgot And tears and melancholy

Were things that now are not-Then Love would kneel to Duty, And all the world would seem A bridal bower of beauty, A dream within a dream. If men would cease to worry, And women cease to sigh,

And all be glad to bury Whatever has to die-If neighbor spake to neighbor, As love demands of all, The rust would eat the sabre, The spear stay on the wall; Then every day would glisten, And every eye would shine,

And God would pause to listen, And life would be divine.

"I try to keep my life simple. Long ago, I learned that what women possess beyond the real necessities soon grow to be a weariness to the nerves. The more of the unessentials we acquire the more we want. Our most coveted treasure soon grows insignificant in the thought of something still to be achieved. I make my rule of life less change and more repose."

That is a good rule for any harrassed mother or business woman who has come to think life too much for her. Ever Notice?

Oh, laugh, ye merry punsters because woman cannot nail,

But there are always two sides to every little tale. It may be woman cannot nail or tack to hold things tight,

But what man in creation can pin anything just right

Work that Pays.

The question, "Will it pay?" influences more or less the choice of any undertaking or vocation. As too commonly understood, the meaning is, "Will it pay me?" But there are unselfish persons who prefer a life-work that will pay others.

An athletic young minister had a strong temptation to face. He was a lover of "the national game," and had been an excellent player in many contests in the Eastern state where he was -Washington Times. educated. At length he went to Iowa.

Stooking on the farm of John P. Marcellus, ex. M.L.A., Fishburn, Alta.

| He had accepted a position as a county

H. Samuel's World Famed ACME" SILVER Fine 1 plate Lever Movement. Dust proof cap. With H. Samuel's Gold Half Hunter nted improvements. Keyless or keywind. Over $6.00 2000,000 in wear ment Hall-marked Case, with high grade jewelled keyless lever movement 10 years warranty. SHYER ALBERT FREE A Month Under Water Mr. A. Smith Blaen-garw, Wales, writing regarw, Wales, writing re-cently says-"My brother bought one of your "Acme" Levers 7, years ago. Unfortunately he got drowned off Vancouver Island, and the watch being a month under water made no differ-ence whatever to it. It keepstime to a second. $3.60 Silver Wristlet Watch A reliable and accurately adjusted timekeeper, in handsome Sterling Silver case, warranted for 7 years. With straps in various shades. "Lucky" Wedding Rings World-renowned for beauty of finish and lasting wear. 22 ct. Solid Gold. Latest Court Styles. Sold by weight. $2.50, $5.00, $8.50 upwards. Ring size card in the Free Book. Over 250,000 customers in all parts of the 250,000 world have written enthusiastic letters in praise Testimonials of their purchases. SEND A POST CARD FOR THE BIG FREE BOOK TO-DAY SAMUEL H. The Largest Firm of its kind in the Empire Market Street, Manchester, England the foltestimony bstinence: after trial e will enonger exprobably lations of e will be man took ies people he might bound to ohol somet the exnsibilities. as to the on health at for all ing, fruite that alinders it. nat for all helps 🎗

Total

n who poss-ectric Oil is ure a cough, t will reduce most persis d contusions. h be got for a

Craving for Novelty

It is casy to talk about the simple life, and so hard to live it, for life is not simple any more. Its complications seem unavoidable.

The trouble lies in ourselves; the entire trend of womanly sentiment is away from the centuries held dear.

It was not so hard to keep life simple when one's black silk did duty for a decade. Nowadays if the silk don't cut into ribbons the cut of the garment would mean the patch box in at least two seasons.

It is the craze for something new that is the undoing of simplicity. Novelty is the keynote of most of our lives. Even friendships and matrimony are getting injected with this microbe of restlessness. A mother said not long ago. "Baby Louise is so finicky she will only play with her toys two or three times before she is tired of them, and I have to send them off to the hospital." And the mother seemed to think that it showed a progressive spirit in her child. Such a craving for novelty can mean nothing but unhappiness, no matter what one's ability to gratify it.

If we are ever to become simple again without some dire calamity forcing it upon our country, we must change our views of that which we now think progressive.

We will have to learn to draw a sharp distinction between our necessities and our frills. A woman who is noted for her restfulness and her placidity in the repeat some of the good things he used midst of a hard life was asked how she to say to his Sunday-school, but this managed to keep unfretted.

superintendent of schools there. In a little while he received an offer of five thousand dollars from a big Eastern club to play ball from April to November, and at the same time a call to the pastorate of a small country parish at a salary of six hundred dollars a year. He chose the little church and the small salary. He is serving God as a successful minister, and he sees no reason why the newspapers should praise him as an example of remarkable self-sacrifice.

The Rev. T. M. Hurst has told, in the Cumberland Presbyterian, of a wealthy politician who met by appointment, in Washington, a city missionary, who twenty years before had been his intimate friend. The politician found to his dismay that he was advertised to make an evening address at a mission meeting. Both men in the days of their young Christian zeal had been active workers in the same Sunday-school, one as superintendent and the other as musical director; but in lapse of years the superintendent had drifted into politics and lost his interest in religious work, although he retained his church-membership. To his friend, evidently, he was the same earnest and spiritual Christian that he used to be, and he did not have the courage to confess the change. He was caught, and felt obliged to make the best of it.

He went to the meeting with the missionary, and floundered through his speech. By an effort he could recall and "sermon" was a sadly perfunctory per-

Gourlay Pianos are high-priced, but worth the price. Thoroughness in construction insures Gourlay Pianos against Loss of Tone, and tone is the important factor in any Piano.

In every Gourlay Piano the expert knowledge of its builders and the determination to use nothing but the best, either in labor or material, produces a sympathetic richness of tone that is unmatchable among Canadian Pianos.

Above style, in choice mahogany or walnut, only $425, on three years' terms.

We carry a full line of Chickering, Knabe, Gourlay, Bell, Haines, Sherlock Manning and Colonial Pianos. Descriptive Catalogues and prices mailed free on application.

295 PORTAGE AVE., WINNIPEG

W. SMITH GRUBBER CO.,

The Angelus Player Piano was the favorite instrument of our late revered monarch King Edward the seventh.

We want a SMITH STUMP PULLER

stump or timbered farm in the

It has a cost record of 5¢ a

Smith Sta, La Crescent, Minn.

The Melodant, the wonderful new expression device, which is absolutely necessary to artistic playing, is found only in the Angelus.

The Angelus Player is furnished only in the Angelus, Gourlay Angelus and Knabe Angelus Pianos

Price of above Style only $950 on three years' terms; other makes $575 up.

lies outside of his hand. We can conceive of no limit to time or space. They whatever be the bounds of the unbounded, two things are real-here and now. They are real to me because I am given power to touch them and to mold them. Here and now-this is our place and our day. Here and now our lives make their count.

Many men for a hundred thousand. years have had their day; other men the world over have found their peace, and others more will come and go, for our race is still in its childhood. Yesterday has passed away. It is as far from us as the days of Julius Caesar. We cannot make it nor mar it now. To-morrow is still unborn. It may never be ours, for it is not yet to-day. To-day is our day, and no day was ever so inspiring, so glorious, so worshipful as the day that actually is. For this is our time to act, the hour for us to play our part. The ages have waited for us. Our lives have led up to it. For every meanest day is the conflux of two eternities. Let our part be large or small, it is our part. It is a part of love and action. It is for us to do our best, not our second best; to do it with good cheer and with perfect confidence that in God's economy no right act is ever Whatever our immediate or wasted. our ultimate fate it is not for us to cringe or whine nor to cry for any special recompense for days of doubt, discomfort, or despair.

Have faith that I am at home in God's picture of Herod. While under the then existing conditions he was only tetrarch, must extend everywhere-forever. But he does, nevertheless, stand as the representative of lase knigship. In these accounts of the feeding of the multitudes Christ is revealed as the true King. In each case the miracle is introduced by the declaration of His compassion. "He......saw a great multitude, and He had compassion on them" (14:14); "I have compassion on the multitude" (15:32). These quotations m ca

ho

OI

tin

pr

sin

yo He ful

pic sh

be ar

Ca

In their locali STIT give cours

Organ Banj

turn

men after

Yo

other

and t

to pl

you

Th

are i recor

ehild

grap

plain offer

very

& We

sary

No

ful c

show

Th

has succ

abso

sic.

whic

vinc

you NA7

98 1

N.Y

Mari

Corr the Sue Men deci One Fall

W

take us back to that illuminative verse to which we have already more than once referred: "When He saw the multitudes He was moved with compassion, because they were distressed and scattered as sheep not having a shepherd" (9:36). The idea of kingship has its most illuminative interpretation according to the Scriptures, and according to all highest human conception, in the work of the shepherd. That work is ever that of guidance and healing and feeding. On both these occasions of the feeding of the multitudes there were also evidences of healing power. The contrast therefore is evident. Herod feared the multitude, Jesus had compassion on the multitude. Herod's fear issued in destructive administration, for when the king breaks law and violates conscience, the people are scattered. The compassion of Jesus knew no fear of the crowd, and expressed itself not only in the benefits it conferred, but in the moral requirements upon which it insisted.

The first lesson of these stories is that of His ability to feed the multitudes. universe. This is no alien land. Our The account of the material miracle

PATENTS Trade Marks Write for Booklet, Circulars, Terms, etc. stump where the stumps run from 1 to 3 feet through; it will clear from 1 to 3 acres a day doing the work of 20 men. Write to day for our catalogue and FREE TRIAL OFFER. Fetherstonhaugh & Co. GERALD S. ROXBURGH, B.A. So. Resident 209-210 Bank of Nova Scotla, Portage Ave. (Opp. Free Press) WINNIPEG. MAN.

., 1911

father's to our ne world. dequate. hain and conquest th means ands are long ess and

t best, rest

e around ot see thee:

at to folrs peace e,

e mantle is good; s word, hee shall Exchange.

D. them, I 6:35

this lesl instrucWinnipeg Sept., 1911

means more than a mere vacation accessory. It means home pictures, portraits of one's family and friends, intimate pictures that become priceless as the years go by.

And picture making is very simple by the Kodak system. Ask your dealer or write us for "At Home with the Kodak," a beautifully illustrated booklet about home picture making, that not only shows the pleasing results that can be obtained, but shows how they are made.

Canadian Kodak Company, Limited TORONTO, CAN.

Music

Home Instruction

SPECIAL OFFER TO READERS OF

THE WESTERN HOME MONTHLY

The Western Home Monthly.

is a plain and simple story, demonstrating His ability to meet the physical needs of men. That it had a spiritual value is self-evident from the fact that He so interpreted it, as John records, in his report of the wonderful discourse from which the Golden Text is taken. In that discourse He rebuked the matarialism of those who discovered nothing in the feeding of the multitude other than the satisfaction of physical need. "Ye seek Me, not because ye saw signs, but because ye ate of the loaves, and were filled." Whatever wonder He wrought in the realm of the material was a revelation of His ability in spiritual things; and an unveiling of the intimate relationship between spiritual and material things. He Himself had stood erect in the presence of the most direct assaults of evil recognition of the truth of the Word written long before. "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." The word of God is His revelation of Himself; and His speech to men as a law of life. It is, moreover, a law not merely in the sense of a rule or regulation, but the discovery to man of the secret by which his life realizes its own possibilities. Hence all the hunger or desire of life is perfectly met and satisfied by such as hear the Word of God and obey it. Trus when Jesus in interpretation of the profoundest spiritual values of His miracle, declared, "I am the Bread of life," spoiled beyond reclamation.

Uses for old newspapers .-- Old newspapers are excellent moth preventives. Whenever practicable they should be placed under the carpets (this saves the nail heads in wooden floors from damaging them), and woollens can safely be kept over the summer if wrapped securely in newspapers and all edges pasted down. Moths avoid the odour of printers' ink. For cleaning stoves and polishing windows, news-papers have few equals, and are better than having dirty cloths hanging about, as they can be burned as soon as used.

Salt and Pepper.-The proper use of these two and especially the salt has made a reputation for a great many cooks. It is used in nearly every article of food and one would think that constant use would have made any cook perfect, but this is far from the fact. It is never possible to give exact quantities as this would vary in every different dish and in small quantities would need a delicate scale to measure, so we must always season by taste. In meats it is necessary always to season at the start, but do not put in all at once, rather use about two-thirds of what you think is sufficient and this will leave you a margin of safety. You will often find that this two-thirds is all that is needed and if not you can add more; but if too much is used your dish is From

It transforms faded, dingy, ready - for - the rag-bag clothes and house furnishings into things of freshness and beauty. Dresses, petticoats, stockings, gloves, sweaters, golf-coats, children's dresses, ribbons, feathers, colored table-cloths, cushion tops, couc covers, rugs-these are some of your possessions to which Maypole Soap would give a new lease of life. "Ren

Kakabeba Falls, near Fort William.

67

"IN MERRIE ENGLAND"

with the the then tetrarch, s the re-In these he multithe true is intros compasmultitude, n them' on the quotations tive verse ore than the mulmpassion, and scatshepherd" as its most cording to ing to all the work ever that d feeding. he feeding also evie contrast feared the ion on the ued in dewhen the conscience, e compasthe crowd, ly in the the moral insisted. ries is that multitudes. al miracle turn they simply ask that you recom-mend their institute to your friends after you learn to play.

You may not know one note from another; yet, by their wonderfully simple and thorough method, you can soon learn to play. If you are an advanced player you will receive special instruction.

The lessons are sent weekly. They are so simple and easy that they are recommended to any person or little child who can read English. Photographs and drawings make everything plain. Under the Institute's free tuition offer you will be asked to pay only a very small amount (averaging 14 cents a week) to cover postage and the necessary sheet music.

No one should overlook this wonderful offer. Tell your friends about itshow this article to them.

The INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTE has successfully taught others and can successfully teach you, even if you know absolutely nothing whatever about music. The lessons make everything clear.

Write today for the FREE booklet, which explains everything. It will convince you and cost you nothing. Address your letter or postal card to INTER-NATIONAL INSTITUTE OF MUSIC, 98 Fifth Ave., Dept. 162D, New York N.Y.

Malliage, Domicile, Divorce, 11th Edition, correct time required in every state of the United States, to acquire domicile, sue for and obtain a valid divorce judg-ment, together with all the leading court decisions on the statutes. Postpaid, One Dollar: Attorney Donovan, Sioux Falls, South Dakota, U.S.A.

God for man is manifest; and more, that through Him, it is possible that men should not only see, but obey. Those who yield to Him as the Word of God discover the secret of their own life, and receive such strength as will enable them to realize it, and thus to find its fullest satisfaction, bread for all hunger, and the true answer to all desire.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS.

To freshen black silk .- A reader of the Western Home Monthly writes to ask how to freshen black silk that has become somewhat rusty by being worn on a hat. The simplest way to do this is to sponge the silk well with some strong cold tea, and then carefully iron on the wrong side.

To make milk glasses shine.-Always rinse milk glasses in cold water previous to washing in hot soapsuds if you wish them to be clean and bright. To freshen a velvet collar.-Velvet coat collars are greatly improved by rubbing with a flannel wrung out of ammonia and hot water.

To prevent pies boiling over .-- In baking meat pies and fruit tarts they often boil over. To prevent this stand them in a baking-tin with some water in the tin. This will prevent the juice and gravy boiling out in the least, as the steam from the baking-tin keeps it in.

He claimed that in Himself the will of | time to time as you cook, taste and add a very little salt as you think needed until it suits you, and when you have done this you are at the limit of human capabilities. People differ greatly in taste and you will be often disappointed by a lack of appreciation of that which you think a culinary masterpiece. You can only season correctly for those people with tastes similar to your own, so do not try to suit everyone, but always under season slightly, which will allow each person the chance to humor his or her own peculiarities of taste.

All stews should be salted when put on the fire in order that the meat be seasoned through. Boiled meats or roasts the same. Do not depend on the seasoning in the sance or gravy to make these palatable. Laugh at the person who says that salt makes a steak or roast tough and juiceless. Nothing under the sun will toughen a steak as much as a dull table knife and the cook who neglects the knife edges is always the one that forgets to use the salt.

In using pepper do not forget that it is cumulative in effect and while the first bite or spoonful may taste very mild, by the time you have half finished the plate it seems much better. Furthermore, in seasoning a soup for instance, you will find that it is much hotter a few minutes later as the pepper flavor needs time to cook as well as anything else. This is especially true of Chili Pepper or Curry Powder.

At one operation Maypole Soap cleanses and dyes to the brightest prettiest colors, fadeless in sun or rain.

But one of the best things about Maypole Soap is the ease of using it. No muss or fussno scattering powder around -no stained hands or kettles. It's the most satisfactory home dye.

Made in 24 colors-will give any shade. Colors 10c; black 15c. At your dealer's or post paid with booklet, "How to Dye," from

Frank L. Benedict & Go. Montreal

| The | Western | Home | Mon |
|-----|---------|------|-----|
| | 1 | | |

thly.

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

Bigger Cream Checks Sure For Years To Come

> Just because a separator skims close is not sufficient reason for buying it. Equally important is the question of durability.

An I H C Cream Harvester was put to a year's test at the factory-running steadily for 10 hours every working day. This is equivalent to 20 years of ordinary use, figuring on a basis of half an hour's daily service. Yet in all this time there was no perceptible wear. What better proof of I H C durability can you ask?

C Cream Harvesters Dairymaid and Bluebell

have been paying cow owners big dividends for years. Their skimming qualities are unequalled-their ease of turning-ease of cleaning-and durability are easily proved by the testimony of owners. Why not investigate?

You will find that I H C Cream Harvesters are the only separators with dust-proof gears, which are easily accessible. The frame is entirely protected from wear by phosphor bronze bushings. The I H C has large shafts, bushings, and bearings. The patented dirt-arrester removes the finest particles of dirt from the milk before the milk is separated.

I H C Cream Harvesters are made in two styles-Dairymaid, chain drive, and Bluebell, gear drive-each in four sizes. The I H C local agent will be glad to point out the above features and many others, or, write nearest branch house for catalogues.

CANADIAN BRANCHES-International Harvester Company of America at Brandon, Calgary, Edmonton, Hamilton, Lethbridge, London, Montreal, North Battleford, Ottawa, Regime-Seskatoon, St. John, Weyburn, Winnipeg, Yorkton.

About the Farm.

Mowing Flax to Cause Stooling.

Flax grown for seed is one of the best paying crops, yet the most neglected. Any old time for sowing, or any old piece of land is good enough for flax in the mind of the average grain grower. Flax is essentially a homesteader's first crop, for it can be grown on new breaking. While new breaking will produce a crop in a season of ordinary rainfall, the best and surest method is to grow flax on deep, well tilled soil in a good condition of fertility. In fact, any soil in fit condition for wheat or oats would be suitable for flax. The prairie lands of the Canadian Northwest, as well as climatic conditions, seem favorable for the production of flax seed.

To prepare raw prairie for flax, deep breaking should be resorted to, 4 or 5 inches deep, with discing and harrowing to form a compact seed bed. Sow the seed at the rate of 20 to 30 pounds per acre. The seed should not be sown too deep. About one inch seems to be the best. When discing the breaking, set the discs to cut the soil fairly well, but not to disturb the sod. Then pack the sod and harrow well.

Flax should be thoroughly cleaned of With refoul weeds before sowing.

have been trying to get rid of for two years, but without success. I have kept it from going to seed, yet the original patch, 40 feet square, which was here two years ago when I bought the farm, has doubled in size. If you can suggest any way of destroying this pest, I shall certainly be under great obligation to you."

The specimen sent was of the weed known as Canada thistle. It is one of the most persistent of the common weeds found in this territory. It is as difficult to destroy as quack grass. The reason is that it is perennial and it reproduces both by seeds and under-ground rootstocks. This means that keeping the weed from producing seed does not stop it from spreading, as our correspondent has found out. For his particular purpose, where the weed is confined to one small place on the farm, and for other similar cases, the best thing to do is to plow the patch up right away, disc and harrow it thoroughly till the roots come to the top; then haul them off and burn them.

This accomplished, continue to cultivate the patch at least once a week throughout the entire summer season. Don't allow the thistles to form any leaves at all. If you succeed in pre-venting leaf growth, what roots there gard to the best time for seeding, the will be left in the ground when win-

At Mapleton near Winnipeg.

last week in May has proven best. | ter sets in will be very weak and com-Never sow flax successively on the same paratively easy to keep down next land, as there is great danger from a disease known as "flax wilt." This disbe planted year, when the land sho to some cultivated crop like potatoes. This method may necessitate fencing the patch off next season. The following year the thistles should all be gone and the patch may be seeded down to clover and timothy again if desired. There is no use in trying to kill Can-ada thistle by half-way means. Go at crop than any other grain. it in earnest before it spreads further over the farm.

BEAUTIFUL FRENCH DOLL YOU MAY FREE

Desk 38

This Dolly is a genuine imported little French Lady. She is nearly 1½ feet tall, handsomely dressed throughout in the latest Paris Doll Fashion, including render Lady. She is hearly 1/2 feet tall, handsomely dressed throughout in the latest Paris Doll Fashion, including hat, undergarments, stockings, and slip-pers ornamented with buckles. You can undress her and put her to bed, and she will close her eyes and go to sleep. Her dress is artistically trimmed with lace; in fact she is a stylish little beauty, and will be the belle of dolldom in every playhouse. She has a real flesh color Bisque head, jointed body so that she can stand up or sit down in any position, rosy cheeks, pearly teeth, beautiful eyes; and her hair hangs in natural curly ring-lets about her shoulders. We will give one of these beautiful Dolls, absolutely free, to every little girl who will sell only 20 of our fast selling size 16 x 20 multi-color Oleograph Pictures. These are all reproductions of Famous Paint-ings, the originals of which cost hun-dreds of dollars. They are all suitable for framing, and well worthy of a place on the walls of any home. These pictures sell in Art Stores at 50 cents each, so that at our wholesale price of 15 cents each you can sell the whole lot in an hour. Especially as we will send you a Prize Coupon to give with every Picture you sell, which will entitle your customer to receive an extra present from us absolutely free. Order right now. We will send the pictures by re-turn mail postpaid. When sold return us our money', $3.00, and this beautiful doll will be sent to you at once. Address: COLONIAL ART CO.

ease is said to be due to fungoid growth, and shows itself by the young plants wilting just as if suffering from intense heat or drought. Professor Bolley, of North Dakota, has proven that flax is no more a soil-exhausting

X

I

I

Teronto, Ont.

In the spring of 1909 I sowed some flax, and when the young plants were four to five inches high, horses got into the crop and pastured part of it. When I was cutting the crop in the fall, I noticed that where the horses had been the flax plants had stooled considerably, resulting in a very much heavier yield. I decided to follow up this "experiment" and ran a mowing machine over a patch of flax when the young plants were about 4 inches high, cutting off the tops. The result was very similar to when the horses ate off the tops. I intend to follow up my experiment in this line by mowing a measured acre, when the young flax plants are four inches high, and thresh the acre separately to satisfy myself on this matter, for I think cutting off the tops of the young plants strengthens the growth and causes a branching to take place. As regards the advisability of pasturing the young crop, I should think the cattle or horses would be inclined to do considerable injury to the erop by pulling up the young plants.

Destroying Canada Thistle

A subscriber writes ... "I herewith send you a specimen of a weed that I will do much toward smotliering the

Where these thistles have spread quite generally over the farm, the best way to destroy them is as follows: Allow them to grow undisturbed till they are in full bloom; then cut them as close to the ground as possible and plow the land shallow - say three inches deep — during the first days in August. Then disc very thoroughly and harrow, so as to get as many roots on top of the soil as possible. It is a good plan to gather the dry roots with a rake and burn them. The reason for this is that even after the roots have become pretty well dried out they still retain their vitality, and as soon as favorable conditions appear they begin to grow again. The ground should be harrowed, or disced, and harrowed at least once a week during August and September. This done, seed down to winter wheat or rye.

lin

est CO

T^H Remain couver B. V.

The winter grain may be pastured in the fall and early spring; it may then be plowed under and the ground planted to corn, or if preferable seeded to sorghum, using 60 pounds of seed per acre. If the ground is rich so the sorghum will make a heavy crop, this

pt., 1911

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

f for two have kept e original was here the farm, can sugthis pest, great ob-

the weed It is one e common It is as grass. The and it rend underans that ucing seed ng, as our For his e weed is on the cases, the the patch narrow it me to the ourn them. ue to culce a week ner season. form any ed in pre-oots there when win-

Gannot Freeze up or Overheat Has enclosed crank case, with perfect splash lubrication. A complete High Grade Power Plant Weighs only 225 lbs.

ter or summer.

Manitoba

Ingine

Air-Cooled

Pumping

Sold under an absolute guarantee to give satisfaction.

Is a Marvel for Power!

Will pump any well up to 300 ft.

Will run any hand power machine

fanning mill, grindstone, etc.

Guaranteed to start easy in win-

such as cream separator, churn,

Write to-day for descriptive literature and price.

We manufacture all sizes of Gasoline. Engines up to 25 h.p. If interested in the large sizes, write for complete catalog.

First year's crop Stacks on a Manitoba Farm.

The Western Home Monthly.

The Best Forage Plant.

thistles during the growing season. The sorghum should be cut for hay, and the ground fall plowed as early as possible. A good crop to follow the sorghum is corn, provided it is given thorough cultivation and hoeing if necessary. This treatment should kill the thistles. The land may then be prepared for seeding to clover and timothy with one of the small grains as a nurse crop.

The man who sets out to kill Canada thistles must be prepared to do a thorough job. A half-hearted way of going about the work will only cultivate the thistle and make it grow faster. The reason we speak of letting the thistles come into full bloom before the main strength of the plant is used for the production of seed, and this is a weakening process so far as the underground rootstocks are concerned. When the thistle is prevented from producing seed, it immediately makes another effort which further weakens its rootstocks. By following this method, the starch and other nutrients that are stored in the rootstocks early in the spring or late in the fall will be out of them when the tops are cut and the ground is plowed; consequently they are more easily killed. Iron sulphate has been recommended as a spray for keeping Can-stems of the thistle, but not the roots. If a small grain crop like oats or wheat, infested with the thistle, is sprayed with iron sulphate when the grain is from six to ten inches high, the tops of the thistles are destroyed and the grain given an opportunity to and the grain given an opportunity to partially smother them and weaken their roots, and at the same time pre-vent them from doing much damage pounds one way and then cross sow 10 vent them from doing much damage to the grain in which they are growing. Under field conditions the spray would have to be applied with a power sprayer, using 100 pounds of iron sulphate to 52 gallons of water. Iron sulphate does not injure small grain or grasses, but it destroys the leaves of Canada thistles at once. The sulphate costs in the neighborhood of 75 to 90 cents per cwt. and 52 gallons of the spray is sufficient for one acre. Remember that this spray treatment is 2d Premium .- Our experience with alfalfa leads us to the following conclusions: That any soil heavy enough to maintain continuous moisture through the summer will grow alfalfa. That rich, well drained soils are best suited, especially if the subsoil is such as to permit underdrainage. That river bottom land with gravel subsoils is ideal land for its growth. That it is folly to attempt to grow it on heavy undrained clay soils, or those of a sandy nature, or on any kind of thin soils. Our soil is river bottom subject an annual overflow. It has gravel sub-soils leading to river. As to its value: It is worth as much for cows giving milk as corn or any cutting them is that during this period of its products. As a pasture for swine the main strength of the plant is used it outranks clover. For poultry the dry leaves, moistened and fed to them, equals green feeds in summer. For hay it outyileds, the season through, any crop grown. The hay is eaten by all stock. Even the large stalks refused by other stock are eaten by the sheep.

We estimate its value as a reclaimer of worn-out soils as double that of any other plant, from the fact that its deep root system brings to the surface a greater amount of nitrogen than any other legume, and the same fact exists as to its absorption from the air of vast quantities of nitrogen. No other crop will stand continuous cropping as it does, two three, and even ada thistles in check. The sulphate cropping as it does, two three, and even solution will destroy the leaves and four cuttings being made in one season. We have a neighboring field, on like soil to ours, that have been cut four times this year for feeding hogs. Our experience in sowing is that August sowings on well prepared lands give best results. Sowings with oats or rye do not give as good results. June

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Belleriver, Que. - "Without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I would not be alive. For five months I had painful and ir-the uterus. I suf-fered like a martyr and thought often of death. I con-sulted two doctors who could do nothing for me. went to a hospital, and the best doc-tors said I must submit to an operation, because I had a tumor. I went back home much discouraged. One of my cousins advised me to take your Compound, as it had cured her. I did so and soon commenced to feel better, and my appetite came back with the first bottle. Now I feel no pain and am cured. Your remedy is deserving of praise." - Mrs. EMMA CHATEL, Valleyfield, Belleriver, Quebec.

Another Operation Avoided. Poughkeepsie, N.Y.-I run a sewing machine in a large factory and got all run down. I had to give up work for I could not stand the pains in my back. The doctor said I needed an operation for womb trouble but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did more gained five pounds. I hope that every-one who is suffering from female trouble, hervousness and backache will take the Compound. I owe my thanks to Mrs. Pinkham. She is the for me than the do thanks to Mrs. Finkham. She is the working girl's friend for health, and all women who suffer should write to her and take her advice.—MISS TILLIE PLENZIG, 3Jay St., Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Thirty years of unparalleled success confirms the power of Lydia E. Pink-ham's Vegetable. Compound to come ham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases.

he nlanted e potatoes. fencing e The followall be gone d down to if desired. o kill Canns. Go at ads further and comown next

ve spread n, the best follows: S sturbed till n cut them ossible and say three rst days in oughly and t is a good ots with a reason for roots have t they still as soon as they begin should be arrowed at August and d down to e pastured ng; it may the ground able seeded of seed per rich so the crop, this tliering the Pump Co. Limited Brandon, Man. Calgary, Alta. Victoria, B.C.

THE GARDEN SPOT OF CANADA. Send for booklet, "Victoria, British Columbia." Unsurpassed climate and fertility of soil. Remarkable development proceeding on Van-couver Island.

pounds. This leaves no vacant spots. For ease of curing and for keeping qualities it equals any of the clovers. One field of alfalfa, plowed under two years ago, has been double cropped the past two years, with peas and sweet corn following, and shows good fertility. Its nitrogenous quality makes it a great feed for fattening any stock, saving much in grain feeding. We estimate its value, all things considered, as greater than any other plant grown only temporary in its effect, and it must for forage purposes. Any farmer who R. V. Winch & Co., Limited, Victoria, B.C. be followed by thorough cultivation. has the soil adapted to its growth and

Winn

The tubin stron

Pe

are l caus farm Agen THE

AF Bedu Veint 1.00 W.F. The and

a

and $10 wi wi wi mo mo ing pa fro pla

J I Chi

Every Shot a Kill

If you are sure of yourself, if your am-munition as right, and the gun is a Tobin Simplex, there can be no doubt as to the re-sult of your shot. If it is not a kill—look to yourself or the ammunition—for this gun is absolutely dependable. It sets a Standard of accuracy for you to live up to—nothing is more sure than a in the hands of an expert shot. Made in Canada from the very best materi-els procurable, a better gun is not on the market anywhere. It is the lightest gun for its strength, and the strongest gun for its light weight. Throw it into your buckboard, toss it into your cance, handle it roughly— you can't damage it with any handling that is within reason. It is made for business. So sure are we that it will give satisfaction, that we give a "money-it will give satisfaction, that we give a "money-back" guarantee with each gun. That means that if we cannot give you satisfaction in every detail, you may have your money back with-out cuestion out question. Priced from $20.00 to $210.00. Ask to see them at the local hard ware or sporting goods shop. Send for our new catalogue. It teems with good news for sportsmen.

The Tobin Arms Mfg. Co., Limited Woodstock Ontario

the other hand, he deals with facts, mouths to feed. not theories. His views on soil fertility are sound. His studies of American soils in general and of Illinois soils in particular have not only convinced him of the fact-which every farmer knows to be true - that our soils are being systematically robbed of their fertility, and that they always have been robbed, but also he sees that if this condition is continued very much longer, American civilization will soon go the way that other civilizations have gone before. His contention is that the phosphorus content of our soils is very limited, practically exhausted in some of our eastern and southern states, and that unless our natural phosphate rock deposits, which are also limited, are retained in this country and pro-tected by the government, agricultural production per acre will continue to diminish from decade to decade until agriculture will decline to the level of that of China, India and Russia. We are now annually exporting five million dollars' worth of raw phos-phate rock, enough phosphorus "for the production of more than a billion dollar's worth of wheat." He adds: 'How long can we afford to give away a thousand millions for five millions?" It has been reported by the United States Geological Survey that if the present rate of increase in phosphate rock export continues, in 50 years our mines will be empty. Whether this will prove to be true may be open to question. Large new beds of this rock have recently been found and inexhaustible supplies may yet be discovered. Be that as it may, however, the fact remains that while the average farmer knows that continuous grain all those nitrogenous compounds of a

It is this great soil fertility question which is discussed in "The Story of the Soil" in a new, original, instructive, and enteraining manner. The facts in the case are so plainly set forth, yet so strikingly told, that we wish thousands of our readers would send for the book.

Effect of Rust on Straw and Grain.

The effect of rust is to arrest the development of the plant and to prevent the seed from arriving at a proper maturity. It would seem that much of nutriment which with healthy growth would reach the grain, remains in the straw and makes the straw more nourishing than that of rust free wreat. Rusted straw has been found by analysis to contain 7.69 per cent. protein, whereas in rust free straw it is only about 2.44 per cent. There is a marked difference between the appearance of both the grain and the straw of healthy and affected wheat, according to a report of the government chemist.

The rust free wheat had a clear, bright yellow, well ripened straw; a normal ear, both as to size and color, and a plump, well filled grain. On the other hand, the rusted wheat straw presented in general a dirty greenish brown appearance, and on closer inspection showed many spots or patches of infection, while its ears were smaller than normal, and the kernels light and much shrivelled.

The Straw. - The rusted straw is much the richer in crude protein. Under the term crude protein is included

3 foot Walk Gate $2.75; 10 foot Drive Gate $5.00 3 foot Walk Gate $2.75; 10 foot Drive Gate $5.00 PROTECTION GUARANTEED We guarantee every foot of Regal fence, including its galvanization for 12 years. We challange comparison. Simply figure out the price of the quantity of Regai fence you require and fill out the order blank below. Upon receipt, we will ship your order, frieght prepaid. If your purchase is not entirely satisfactory, return wire at our expense, and we will refund your money in full. The satis-fied customer is our best advertisement and business asset. "Independent pat compared with any Trust." 'Independent; not connected with any Trust."

ORDER BLANK HI

Regal Fence & Gate Co. Sarnia, Canada.

Yours truly

| Name | |
|------------------|--|
| Shipping Address | |
| | |
| Province | |

Something New in a Scrub Cutting Machine

THE EAGLE Steel Scrub-Cutter cuts thick willow and poplar scrub with four to six horses, with a possible saving of 75 per cent. in cost of clearing land. For descriptive matter and price apply to

The Eagle Scrub Cutter Co. Gilbert Plains, Manitoba

pt., 1911

Fence

PREPAID

imminut. Cott of in one small profit nd up. Top Ornamental new epoch in the justry. Never be-re make the Regal be Regal in beau

e, church, sch de, sag nor rec will cost you through your ts, No.9 wires a of new methods, hery and the em-wire experts, we than that of any to our low buying e prices and at the han you can buy

unning foot wan, add 1 cent mbia, add 3 cent mbia, add 4 cent Winnipeg Sept., 1911

Warranted to Give Satisfaction.

Gombault's

Caustic Balsam

Has Imitators But No Competitors.

Sale, Speedy and Fostave Cuff I Gurb, Splint, Sweeny, Capped Hock, Strained Tendons, Founder, Wind Paffs, and all lameness from Spavin, Ringbone and other bony tumors. Gures all skin diseases or Farasites, Thrush, Diphtheria, Removes all Bunches from Horses or Cattle.

sunches from Horses or Cattle. As a Human Remedy for Rheumatism, prains, Sore Throat, etc., it is invaluable. Every bottle of Caustic Balsam sold is arranted to give satisfaction. Price $1,50 w bottle. Sold by druggists, or sent by ex-ess, charges paid, with full directions for i use. LFSend for descriptive circulars, stimonials, etc. Address the Lawrence-Williams Co., Cleveland, O.

To keep moths out of furs,

ings.

clothing, carpets and draperies use Keat-

188

For sale by all Druggists

In tins only 10, 15, 20, 250.

Safe, Speedy and Positive Cure for

The Western Home Monthly.

food that go to repair waste, form | period advances the fungus attains the blood, and build up muscle and tissue. stuffs is due chiefly to the large proportion of protein they contain. It may safely be concluded, therefore, that the rusted straw, containing as it does more than three times the protein found in the rust-free straw is very much superior in feeding value. Further, in the rusted straw we have a slightly higher percentage of fatthe consistent next in value to protein -and somewhat less fibre-the element of least value in a fodder, and hence there is additional evidence of the most satisfactory character to support the statement respecting the more nutritious nature of the rust affected straw.

The Grain.-The small and shrivelled character of the grain from the rusted wheat may be deduced from the weight of 100 kernels being only half that of 100 kernels from the unaffected wheat. This fact, however, from the standpoint of a feed does not betoken a lessening of the nutritive qualities; indeed, as the data for the protein show, it has, weight for weight, considerably the higher value.

The protein of the shrivelled grain is 3.19 per cent. higher than that of the plump grain from the rust-free plant. Part of this higher protein content in the smaller grain is no doubt to be accounted for in its larger proportion of bran-but chiefly is it due ascendancy, crippling the energies and The high value of concentrated feed functions of the tissues and checking the movement of the food materials to the seed. In other words, the growth of the rust arrests development and induces premature ripening, which, as we have seen, means a straw in which still remains the elaborated food, and a grain small, shrivelled, immature, rich in protein and deficient in starch, It may be well to point out that although the rust makes the grain more nitrogenous, it at the same time very materially reduces the yield per acrethe average figures indicating a loss of about 50 per cent. We have not as yet been able to complete the analysis of the milling products of this shrivelled wheat, but we may rest as-sured until such time as the data are available that its proportion of bran to flour will be higher than normally ripened wheat. We may, further, conjecture that this bran will be found slightly more nitrogenous than that from rust-free wheat. It is held by certain millers that rust makes the flour somewhat "stronger," but at the moment there are no data to support this contention.

Selecting Breeds.

In selecting a breed for table sale remember that the dark fowls with to the fact that the transference and black legs, have blue flesh and black accumulation of starch in the kernel pin feathers, are not so saleable for has been but partial and incomplete. market purposes. I think the yellow

A Steam Plowing Outfit at Vegreville, Sask.

71

Gasoline Going Up! Automobile owners are urning up so much gaso-ine that the world's supply o 150 higher mazing "DET The "DETROIT" is the only en pal oll successfully; uses alcohol, gr Starts without cranking. Basic paten ris-no cams-no spreaker.

rive Gate $5.00 ry foot of Regal galvanization for galvanization for llange comparison, ity of Regal fence nk below. Upon the prepaid. If return wire at our full. The satis-d business asset. ith any Trust."

HI

to the amount of tate whether cur-ft) for which youfeet of Regal high. If it is not d at the expense of, my entire purchase Regal Guarantee.

..... ••••••

in a ting e

Cutter cuts scrub with sible saving earing land. ce apply to tter Co. itoba

The Gate That Lasts The frame of the Peerless Gate is made of steel tubing, electrically welded into one solid piece. It is strong and rigid and will not sag nor get out of order. Peerless Farm and Gates are built to stand. They will save you money be-cause they never need repair. We also make lawn, farm and poultry fence that stands the test of time. Agents wanted. Write for full particulars. THE BANWELL HOXIE WIRE FENCE CO., Ltd., Dopt. P., Winnipog, Man. Hamilton, Ont.

ABSORBINE Will reduce inflamed, strained, swollen Tendons, Ligaments, Muscles or Bruises, Cure the Lameness and stop pain from & Splint, Side Bone or Bone Spavin. No blister, no hair gone. Horse can be used. $2 a bottle delivered. Describe Hours After your case for special instructions and Book 2 E free. ABSORBINE, J.R., the liniment for mankind. Reduces strained, torn ligaments, enlarged glands, Price or muscles—heals ulcers—allays pain. Price LOG a bottle at dealers or delivered. W.F. YOUNG P.D. F. 135Lymans Bidg. Montreal, Can.

LIU B DOTTIE at dealers or delivered. W.F. YOUNG, P.D.F., 138 Lymans Bidg., Montreal, Can, Also furnished by Martin Bole & Wynne Co., Winnipeg : The National Drug and Chemical Co., Winnipeg & Calgary ; and Henderson Bros. Co. Ltd., Vancouver.

Traveling Salesmen, and Saleswomen Wanted GIUL JAILES WOMEN WANTER Earn While You Learn. We now have on file letters from thousands of Wholesale and Manufac-turing firms who are anxious to employ Salesmen and Saleswomen capable of earning from $1,000.00 to $10,000.00 a year and expenses. No former experi-ence needed to get one of these good positions. We will teach you to be a high grade Salesman or Sales-ment Bureau will assist you to secure a position where you can earn good wages while you are learn-ing Practical Salesmanship. Write today for full particulars, list of good openings and testimonials from over a thousand persons we have recently placed in good positions. Address, Nearest Office. Dept. 146

Address, Nearest Office, Dept. 146 National Salesmen's Training Association Chicago New York Kansas City New Orleans Seattle U.S.A.

Other features of note in the | fleshed, analysis of the grain from the rusted wheat are : (1) The somewhat larger percentage of fibre and ash-indicating more bran-and, (2) the lower carbohydrates (starch) and fat content. Apart from the valuable information that these data furnish regarding the relative feeding value of the straw and grain of rusted wheat, we have in these results interesting evidence as to the physiological effect of the rust on the wheat plant. Speaking broadly, there are (after germination) two periods in the life of the wheat plant-the first, a period of feeding and assimilation; the second, a later and usually shorter period, during which the food materials accumulated in the stem and leaf (straw) are transferred to and stored in the seed (kernel). There is, of course, no exact time when it can be said that the one ends and the other begins. Under normal conditions there is a gradual cessation of feeding, both by root and leaf, accompanied by an ever-increasing movement of the first period is characterised by growth, accumulated material to the seed. The second is recognised by the maturation or ripening of the seed. Further, it would seem than in the development of the seed, the albuminoids or protein are the first to be transferred, and later-towards the close of the maturation period — the carbo-hydrates (starch, etc.), are more the vitality of the wheat plant during matter of the care of your own. One the first stage or period, but as the of the first things it will tell you to white legged. white pin feather fowl far more attractive as a seller and so more valuable all through. Eggs all alike are, too, the best marketing article. Large eggs still more ready sellers, size first, then shape and color.

.

I like the leghorn breeds for all around laying; they are laying standard for egg producers. The white leghorn gives the fine white oval egg of the markets we see so many of now; the brown lays a slightly smaller egg, deep cream in color, and for that reason not so much fancied for market purpose, but the brown pullet beats her white sister by a month's time in laying possibilities, as I have had brown pullets lay for me in three and a half months from the shell on good feed, while four and a half months is the early date for the white pullet. For table fowl give me the barred plymouth rocks every time. They make a fine, yellow legged, fat breasted fowl, with a small eating capacity in proportion to their weight. They will make—cock and hen—nine and more pounds to the pair. This is possible weight-the standard of weight to be fed for, they will not give crack results without fine care. No fowl will. Were I going to start at raising poultry, and minus experience, my first step would be to buy the Potter book of instructions. Then I should study it and follow its instructions. Doing so, you will pretty surely learn The rust apparently does not effect shortly what and how to do in the 2 to 20 h.p., in stock ready to ship. Complete angine tested just before crating. Comes all ready to ran. Fumps, saws, threshes, churns, separates milk, grinds feed, shalls corn, rus home electric-lighting plant. Prices (stripped), 539.50 up. Sont any place on 16 days' Free Trial. Don't buy an engine till you investigate amasing, money-saving, power-saving "DETROIT." Thousands in use. Costs only postal to find out. If you are first in your neighborhood to write, we will allow you Special Extra-Low Introductory price. Write! Detroit Engine Works. 347 Bellevus Ava.. Detroit. Mich.

FRUIT LANDS, ETC.

Armstrong, B.C. - The Garden District o the Okanagan Valley; an established, self-supporting and unboomed district with mild winters, permanent markets, unlimited pure water supply, and the most desirable home-sites in the world. There are no syndicate or company holdings. No one gets out when the company holdings. No one gets out when the new settler comes in. Accordingly, easy terms can be had on all purchases, the district being large and the owners selling only a portion of their holdings. Fruit growing is carried on in all branches and on a good paying basis; also there are equally profitable mixed farms,⁵ celery ranches, poultry farms and market garden in great abundance. No irrigation. Send at once for a free booklet of the district to

The Secretary, Board of Trade, Armstrong, B.C.

BAD LEGS, ETC., VARICOSE VEINS,

are completely cured with inexpensive home treatment. It absolutely removes the pain, swelling, tiredness and disease. Full particulars on receipt of stamps. W. F. Young, P. D. F. 138 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

"A bright twentieth-century man for new and The rust apparently does not effect shortly what and how to do in the fascinating work as ambitious representative for the vitality of the wheat plant during the first stage or period, but as the season progresses and the ripening do will be to weed out your wasteful will tell you to do will be to weed out your wasteful men applyOxygenor Company, Chatham, Ontario.

stock is that which eats and gives no stock and get rid of it. Wasteful profit. Look over your fowl, sell all your roosters as soon as saleable, also all the third year hens who are then laying sparsely. They eat more than they pay for in eggs; that is the stand-ard of hen uselessness. Weed out right along, all the poorer layers, till your stock is useful, fine laying stock. Set all of your hens as fast as they lay out their litters, and when they are setting, watch to give them good, kind care. A setting hen that comes off her nest worn out by neglect and want of good food and water and proper chance to get out and scratch a few minutes a day will be a dead loss to you for weeks to come, where a hen taken care of will begin to lay before her brood is away from her. Care of your hens is your money, remember.

I saw one woman start in with six hens and a bundle of laths for a yard. She had a packing box for a henhouse, and no money to get any fancy fixings. That women kept on working cent by cent, until she had a fine yard, a fine henhouse, two hundred or more fowl, and regularly gathered something like a hundred eggs a day. But she worked. She cooked and chopped food and fed and watched all her barnyard full, and they were not neglected; she raised poultry, she didn't-intend to. This was not a big "business." More fowl would bring a much better average return, but it shows that small beginnings in the poultry line will bring good returns if you stay with the business, and that the woman who resolves can so accomplish in the end the result that many a man has attained only by the outlay of a large. amount of money.

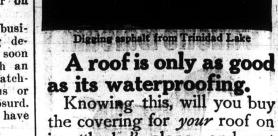

posted; and those will go back to the old custom of only when they are prepared to put the cream separator on the shelf.

Poultrymen woh are in the business commercially, whose living depends upon the profits, would as soon think of threshing the grain with an old-time flail, as they would of hatching chicks or ducklings with hens or ducks. The though would be absurd. Without the incubator they would have to go out of business.

Before the introduction of incubators large configurerial poultry plants were an impossibility. Mr. James Rankin gets the credit of putting the first lot of ducklings and broilers on the market in considerable numbers, and making it pay. But James Rankin's only salvation was the invention of an incubator. Without its aid he found he could not make a business of raising poultry for market at a profit; so he made one.

That was many years ago. The incubator of to-day has improved as time has rolled on, and-but no more need be said regarding the future of the incubator (the built-to-hatch incubator) in the poultry business. Hens will continue to be used where only a dozen or two chickens are intended to be kept for home use; but on the farm where chickens can be fed cheaply and are raised by fifties and hundreds, the time-saving incubator, the economic method, will be-is-adopted.

The farmer and his wife sometimes face a disconcerting situation when they have finally decided that they wish to get more of the poultry profits by buying an incubator. The question arises—"Which incubator shall buy?

the covering for your roof on its "looks" alone, and not know what it is made of?

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

Jenasco

the Trinidad-Lake-Asphalt Roofing

is waterproofed entirely with natural asphalt. In Trinidad Lake this asphalt has resisted blazing sun and terrific storms for hundreds of years. It has natural oils that give it lasting life in a roof despite the buffeting of rain, snow, sun, wind, heat, cold, and fire.

Man has tried to make lasting waterproofers-and always failed. Ordinary ready roofings show you what happens. They are made of mysterious "compositions" or coal tar; and they soon crack, break, leak, and go to pieces. Yet as for looks, they are mighty good imitations.

) The life and backbone of Genasco is Trinidad Lake Asphalt-the natural everlasting waterproofer-and that makes Genasco last.

Genasco is made with mineral and smooth surfaces. Guaranteed, of course. The Kant-leak Kleet waterproofs the seams of roofing thoroughly without the use of smeary unsightly cement, avoids nail-leaks, and gives the roof an attractive appearance.

Only selections (7 double discs) of your own PAY $5.00 DOWN $4.00 Monthly AND LICE NEILSON, CAVALIERI, UBELIE, etc. sing and play exclusively of the Columbia. Other Columbia Outfits $25.00, $50.00, $75.00, $100.00, etc. Easy payments

Columbiai n beautiful modern cabinet with

A THEATRE AT HOME

Seven

days'

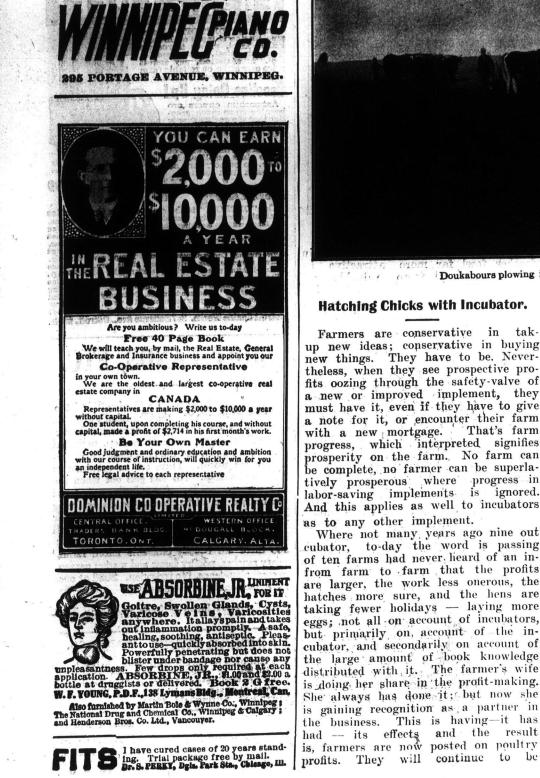

free

trial if desired.

Double Discs, 2 different selections, 85c. All inguages. Imported British records now ready. Gold Monided Cylinder Records, 2 minute 55c; 4 minute 45c.

Columbia Indestructible Cylinder Re-cords, 2 minute 45c; 4 minute 65c. Satisfaction guaranteed. We have all makes of second-hand machines at Bargain prices. Old machines taken in trade. 40 styles of talking machines. 30,000 records. 40 styles of pianos. Ask for interesting Graphophone History and ree Booklet No. 43, and be sure to hear the Doukabours plowing in Benito District. Hatching Chicks with Incubator. Farmers are conservative in takup new ideas; conservative in buying new things. They have to be. Nevertheless, when they see prospective profits oozing through the safety-valve of a new or improved implement, they must have it, even if they have to give a note for it, or encounter their farm with a new mortgage. That's farm with a new mortgage. progress, which interpreted signifies prosperity on the farm. No farm can be complete, no farmer can be superlatively prosperous where progress in labor-saving implements is ignored.

as to any other implement. Where not many years ago nine out cubator, to-day the word is passing of ten farms had never heard of an infrom farm to farm that the profits are larger, the work less onerous, the hatches more sure, and the hens are taking fewer holidays - laying more eggs; not all on account of incubators, but primarily on, account of the incubator, and secondarily on account of the large amount of book knowledge distributed with it. The farmer's wife is doing her share in the profit-making. She always has done it; but now she is gaining recognition as a partner in the business. This is having-it has had — its effects and the result her-own of the hen that never could is, farmers are now posted on poultry be made to sit. That is all common profits. They will continue to be knowledge.

I may not advise them here except generally. There are a number of good incubators on the market; and there are a number of built-to-sell machines that the farmer cannot afford to experiment with; but the present-day farmer has his eye-teeth cut and he knows he cannot get something for nothing. To be successful in raising poultry one must use business-ilke methods with business-like equipment. In buying an incubator go about it in the same way as you would if you were buying another agricultural implement. I might advise again and again, but I cannot give better advice than that. Think it over; and be as particular as you would in trading horses.

When you personally know of poultry plants each using from 50 to 100 incubators; of plants hatching 40,000 ducklings in a single season; of fanciers hatching their big show winners in incubators, and raising them in brooders, there's not much left for me It is not evidence of the to sav. utility of incubators that is wanted. because anybody can get that in any down-to-date incubator manufacturer's catalogue-evidence on the size of the poultry business; on the profits in the business; on the decadence of "mother" hen (unless the hen that lays the eggs is the mother); and the coming-into-

Write to-day for our Free Illustrated Kodak Catalogue.

Steele Mitchell, Limited 213 Rupert Ave., Winnipeg, Man. suffer to the "0 all r "Y "H at y the out. "Y "V the impa talk "H to s E the hum the Perc cent of y

up

to

with

the

fou

gest

rep

mes

fou

per

T

V

0

Winni

Some

A thick

"Pray, "To ha

"My wo

asked

Said he And all

My bes

A hen

Said I

Said sh

It's jus

I asked

You lov

"My pi Is to a

A hors Said I

"Neigh "Stills

I aske

The m

"Alas "So I o

467 the self in some women

Willia

consul

gard '

The

buildi

that also t Mr name

Lone

Mr

fice, grow

cited

glum

she s The club.

The

pt., 1911 /

good ing. you buy roof on nd not of?

t Roofing

with natlad Lake blazing for huntural oils in a roof in, snow, d fire. e lasting ys failed. show you re made ions" or n crack, o pieces.

e mighty Genasco is e natural ind that ineral and , of course. rproofs the without the ent, avoids an attrac-

Roofing, with oll. Write us I samples.

Asphalt ompany oofing in the world.

phia Chicago ace Roofing

rofessional

Illustrated

mited

eg, Man.

oplies.

xecuted.

cited and impatient; he was dogged and glum. "O, doctor, he has lost his voice! He hasn't spoken a word for two days," she said.

The Western Home Monthly.

In Lighter Vein.

Some Tame Animals I Have Known.

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

By Nixon Waterman.

I asked the dog: "Why all this din?" Said he: "I'm fashioned outside in,

And all my days and nights I've tried

My best to get the bark outside."

hen was cackling lound and long, Said I to her: "How strange your song."

I asked the cat: "Pray tell me why

A horse was being lashed one day.

"Stills keeps its equine-imity."

stick ?"

the

club.

Said I: "Why don't you run away?"

"Neigh, neigh! my stable mind," sai. he,

I asked the cow, "Why don't you kick The man who whips you with the

"So I can give whipped cream, you see!"

Rejected With Scorn.

A certain social organization, called self in difficulties after the lapse of some twenty years. The "young" women were no longer rightly named. The New York "Times" says that Mr.

William H. Crane, the actor, was once consulted by some charming girls in regard to the name of their prospective

Their object, they wrote, was the building of character. They wished that to be suggested in the title, and also the fact that they were unmarried. Mr. Crane replied that he had a name for the club-"The Building and

A Rare Disease.

Mrs. Juniper entered the doctor's office, dragging by the hand an over-grown boy of fourteen. She was ex-

"Young Woman's Club," found it-

'Alas I must be lashed," said she,

Said she:"Tis scarce a song; in fact, It's just a lay, to be eggs-act."

You love to sing?" She blinked her eye. "My purr-puss, sir, as you can see, Is to a mews myself," said she.

One of the most prominent citizens of Pickens County, Georgia, was not long ago driving through the sparesly-A thick-fleeced lamb came trotting by: settled ountain section of his State "Pray, whither now, my lamb?" quoth I. "To have," said he, with ne'er a stop, when darkness overtook him. It is the custom throughout the South for the "My wool clipped at the baa-baa shop." latch-string of a farmer's home to hang on the outside for the accommodation of the wandering stranger, so this par-ticular wanderer stopped in front of the first home he reached and halloed. After some delay the head of the household appeared at the door.

The Idol of His State.

"My friend, can you put me up for the night?" asked the wanderer. "Can't do it, stranger. Sorry, but my house is full. You'll find Squire Dickey's nigh on to three mile farther down the road."

and I'm all right," the wayfarer added, fearing he might have been taken for one of the "revenoos" so much dreaded in the region of mountain dew.

73

"All lawyers is robbers. I'm agin them all."

"But I'm a Baptist preacher over my way." "Squire Dickey's a Baptist. I'm

Double

Satisfaction.

Methodist myself. You go on yonder." Thinking to find some means of melting the stony heart, the stranger an-nounced himself as chairman of the "But it's already dark. Surely you nounced himself as chairman of can find a place for me. I'm a lawyer Democratic County Committee of

The lime is a tropical fruit, belonging to the same family as the orange, lemon and grape fruit. It grows on trees-is about half the size of a lemon-almost round-of a greenish, yellow color when ripe-and is valuable for its juice which is unique and distinctive in flavor, tart like the grape fruit but much more pungent and pleasing in flavor.

The finest limes in the world grow on the Island of Montserrat, in the West Indies.

"Montserrat" Lime Fruit Juice is the expressed and purified juice of these choice Montserrat Limes.

It makes most delicious summer drinks and frozen desserts-and is a delightful flavoring for pies and cakes.

Because of its wholesomeness and healthfulness, all ships of the British Navy must carry "Montserrat" Lime Fruit Juice and serve it to the men.

Get a bottle of "Montserrat" from your druggist or grocer -and learn the "Montserrat" way of having lots of good things that you don't usually get at most places you go.

NATIONAL DRUG AND CHEMICAL CO, OF CANADA, LIMITED, MONTREAL

The boy loked at her sullenly, and suffered the doctor to hold his face up to the light. "Open your mouth. H'm! Tongue all right?"

"Ya-ah."

Lone Association."

"Hold your head up and let me look at your throat. Seems to be nothing the trouble there. Push your tongue out. Now pull it back. Feel all right?" 'Ya-ah.'

"Why, Mrs. Juniper, there is nothing the matter with him," said the doctor, "Boy, why don't you impatiently. talk ?"

"How can I when I ain't got anything to say?"

Per Capita.

Europeans who are inclined to deny the South African native a sense of humor should read a story of Veltman, the chief of the Fingoes, which Dr. Perceval Laurence has told in his recent book, "On Circuit in Kaffirland." On one occasion four advocates, one of whom was Dr. Laurence, were hard up for transportation, and were glad to charter one of Veltman's wagons, with a span of six mules, to convey them to the next circuit town.

The charge, they were told, would be four pounds per mule, which they suggested was a trifle stiff.

Veltman took time to consider their representation, but ultimately sent a message that his price would not be four pounds per mule, but four pounds per advocate.

in prizes will be awarded to each Province. These prizes will be divided into four groups, consisting of:

into four groups, consisting 01: PRIZE "A"—$100.00 to be given to the farmer in each Province who will use during 1911 the greatest number of barrels of "CANADA" Cement. PRIZE "B"—$100.00 to be given to the farmer in each Province who uses "CANADA" Cement for the greatest number of purposes. PRIZE "C"— $100.00 to be given to the farmer in each Province who furnishes us with the photograph showing the best of any kind of work done on his farm during 1911 with "CANADA" Cement. PRIZE "D"— $100.00 to be given to the farmer in each Province who submits the best and most complete description of how any par-ticular piece of work (shown by photograph sent in) was done.

Every farmer in Canada is eligible. Therefore, do not be deterred from entering by any feeling that

As a matter of fact, your success in this contest will depend to a great extent on your careful reading of our 160-page book, "What the Farmer Can Do With Concrete." In this book-sent free on request to any farmer, full instructions are given as to the uses of concrete, and plans for every kind of farm buildings and farm utility. You'll see the need of this book, whether you are going to try for a prize or not. If you have not got your copy yet, write for it to-night. Simply cut off the attached cou-Please pon-or a postcard will dosend Cirsign your name and adcular and dress thereto and mail Book. it to-night. Name...

Canada Cement Company, Limited MONTREAL

Winnip

Co Is The

ness

If Yo

Must If Y

and regulation and

Mr.

writes:-

years wi

remedie

heartily

Price

t all de

0-

OPT

Full

chas and fou

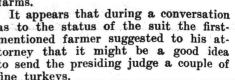

"At the stockyards!" exclaimed the other, in a voice trembling with indignation. "I wouldn't work there for fifty dollars a day if I were starving

Wisconsin who had been retained by a farmer to prosecute a suit against a neighbor relative to the title of a strip of land running between their respective

as to the status of the suit the firstmentioned farmer suggested to his attorney that it might be a good idea to send the presiding judge a couple of

'that would never do, my man! You

ject. The case came up, was tried, and judgment was rendered in the plaintiff's favor. When the news was brought to him the farmer expressed his satisfac-

Orillia, Ont. 1

Too astonished at the man's temerity to say anything, the lawyer merely

Sept., 1911

b there for claimed the

with indig-there for re starving

tarian."

y.

a lawyer in ained by a against a of a strip r respective good idea

n the subtried, and

e plaintiff's brought to is satisfac-

e turkeys!"

's temerity yer merely

er, "I sent

nt them in

LTD.

o Supplies ateur

nipeg e and prices Winnipeg Sept., 1911

Constipation Is The Cause of More Sickness Than Anything Else.

If You Wish To Be Well You Must Keep The Bowels Open. If You Don't, Constipation Is Sure To Follow.

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

et on the bowels and promote their free and regular action, thus curing Constipation and all diseases arising from it. Mr. Harry Revoy, Shanick, Ont., writes:---"Having been troubled for years with constipation and trying many remedies without success, I finally nurchased Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and found them most beneficial; they are indeed splendid pills and I can heartily recommend them." Price 25c. per vial or 5 vials for $1.00, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Correspondence.

The Western Home Monthly.

columns of The Western Home Monthly are reminded that space under this heading is primarily intended for the large circle that constitutes our regular subscribers. The volume of correspondence sent us for this department is so great that it becomes necessary to give preference, if not exclusive attention, to names that appear on our mailing lists, but then all our friends of these pages, young and old, should be subscribers to "The Western Home Monthly."

Satisfied with Life.

Sask., 31st July, 1911. Dear editor;-I have been a reader of The Western Home Monthly for a considerable time, and enjoy reading its pages. After reading Winunla's letter in the July number, I would like to say a few words in defence of the average farmer.

I am a farmer's wife. Have been married five years, and have three children, the eldest is $3\frac{1}{2}$ years and the youngest three months. My husband never finds

Contributors to the correspondence | days. Some women are never satisfied unless they are going around gossiping and spending a whole lot more money than their husbands can afford.

Does Winunla ever treat her husband to a little of the "taffy stick?" Is it fair to expect the men to do all the loving? Now girls, you do your part: don't be afraid to let hubby see that don't be airaid to let hubby see that you love him. Treat him to a little of the taffy stick, and I am sure you won't be disappointed. What if hubby does forget the groceries? Does wifie not do the same occasionaly when she meets in with Mrs. So and So. I know I have often. Browney was going to allow her husband two nights out a week. Well, I don't think hubby will want it. I remember about a year ago one of my husband's companions before he was married called one evening and wanted him to go with him to see some game, but he refused and told him he didn't care for these things any more, he pre-care for these things any more, he pro-ferred staying at home. Girls have the making of their husb-ands, and it is their own fault when they drive them from the home with their fault finding and complaining. I hope I haven't taken up too much of your valuable space, and will answer all letters of those who would like to three months. My husband never finds write. Wishing the W. H. M. every fault with me. He looks after the out- success. A Happy Farmer's Wife.

Be sure your dress-material is "worth making up." Simpson-Eddystone Fast Hazel Brown Prints are the brown cotton dressgoods with cloth of superior quality.

75

The experience of 65 years enables us to make his calico in the most beautiful shade of brown absolutely unmoved by soap, light, or perspiration. New designs in artistic effects.

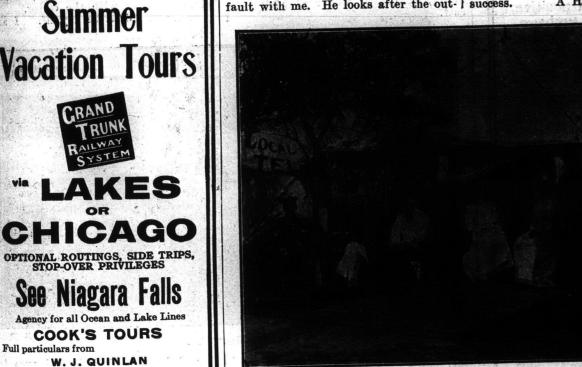

Show this advertisement to your dealer when you order, and don't accept substitutes. If not in your dealer's stock write us his name and address. We'll help him supply you. The Eddystone Mfg. Co., Phila.

AN WATER AND AND

-LAWRIE & SMITHhave for many years manufac-tured this fabric, which has been much appreciated, and goes on increasingly so. The excellent quality of the material, which is practically unshrinkable, makes it most adaptable to those who make up garments for day and night wear in their own homes.

PRICES-1/- to 3/6 per yard. Write for Free Samples to neral Hospital. Emergency Tent at Winnipeg Exhibition. Nurses and Doctor with squad from Army Medical Corps.

onversation t the firstto his ata couple of ne counsel. man! You suit."

Full particulars from

Babay Sure furnish the work and teach you free, you work in bality where you live Send us your address and we will an the business tuily remember we guarantee a clear profit in the business tuily remember we guarantee a clear profit 1 43 for every day swork, absolutely sure. Write at once. ROJAL MANUFACTURING CO., Box 1036, WINDSOR, ONT side work and I attend to the work inside. We farm 960 acres of land, and it is all under cultivation. We have 750 acres in crop this year. I usually have a girl to help me in the summer, but do the work alone in the winter. My husband is just the same to me now as he was during our courting days, and I hope I am the same to him. Last winter he thought I wasn't looking very well so he sent me over to the Old Country for a holiday and he stayed alone. I enjoyed my holiday very well, but was glad to get home again. There were quite a lot of women going over at that time and leaving their hubbies behind, so it isn't always the men who have the fine times. I don't think it fair to expect hubby to help with the house work after he has been working out all day, and women shouldn't need his help if they plan their work proper-ly. I don't think house work the long monotonous grind Winunla talks of. If a girl loves her husband it will be a pleasure instead of a burden to cater to that one man for the rest of her life. Now if we did nothing, but were simply ornaments where would be the home makers? Riches are not everything and women were meant to work as well as the men.

All the farmer's wives around here have a pretty fair time. They are not stinted to either chicken money or but-ter money, but get as many clothes as they want, whether they need them or not had a chance, but still in its present and have a horse and buggy to not, and have a horse and buggy to drive around week days as well as Sun-

Interesting and Instructive. Saskatchewan. Dear editor,-I have been a subscriber to the Western Home Monthly for about there years and enjoy reading it very much, and think it is a very good paper for the young folks, especially the correspondence columns. The editor-must have quite a time getting the let-ters printed and looking after them. I live about the centre of the west side of Saskatchewan, about thirtyfive miles from Battleford. I have been living in the west six years, and think it is a good country to make money in a short time if you are willing to work. It is a great place for a young fellow to start in, if he is willing to work as he can get a homestead and work himself up. Out here a few years ago you could get a half section, a pre-emption and a homestead. There is all kinds of work in the west, and the very best of wages, and one can get work all the year round.

I think I am living in a good part of the west, as there are miles and miles of level prairie, just as level as a table, and one can see for miles. The land is the very best and grows the best of crops. It is going to be one of the greatest wheat growing parts of the west when it is in full swing. But as

In the course of five years the prairie will all be broken up, and it will be a network of railroads, and in the summer time you will see nothing for miles but wheat. There has been a great quantity of land broken up this last ter than I do the city, as I have tried few years with steam and gasoline plowing outfits, but still it is going to have a larger boom next year than ever. There are a good many more plowing outfits coming in and more settlers.

I live a few miles from where the great Cut Kinfe battle was fought about twenty-five years ago. When Reil tried to drive the white men out of this It was fought at the Cut country. Knife Hill and on the banks of the Cut Knife Creek. There were a good many soldiers buried where the battle was fought, but a few years ago they removed them to Battleford. There are a good many old timers here who lived here at the time of the battle.

I was born in Ontario, but still I would sooner live in the west, and I think any body that lived in the west for a while would say so too. I think it is a good place for a man or a woman to live or to work in, as they have just as many pleasures, or more, and if they do go out to work they get just as good places to work in and a good deal better wages. As for a man and his wife coming out west to homestead, they would have little hardships for a time, but in a few years they would have as good a home, or a little better, than they would have in the find my address with the editor.

As the old saying is, I am one of those lonely homesteader's in the west ern part of Ontario, where there is not anything to see but timber and muskeg. Still at the same time I enjoy it bet. both.

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

Winni

SUM

troubl Days. the St

D

WI

DIARR

CRAMI

ERA I

COMPL

This

market

failed t

insist o

Mrs.

"Just

a little hot we bad wi

I thou

tried e

withou

neighb with th

advise

Wild honest

that s think mer C

of Wil

factur

Limit

The

The umph is th make say :

intole Thi the fa have Nowa too f

gist

Presc

takes and quick

ance

perfe

test

econd

for t

one

start

12 0

every stock

can

the r

Farn

Th

to 44 Corse 50c. refun Vi clude scrip i n yo AVA Bank

The

Be s

Well, I guess, that I had better describe myself. I am only 35 years of age, weight 140 pounds, 5ft. 4in. tall. blue eyes and light hair. Now I would be very pleased if some of the young ladies or old maids or widows, or in fact anybody, would write me, as then I would have something to do to wear away the long hours of the evening. You will find my address with the editor.

Wishing the W. H. M. success, yours Muskeg Farmer. truly,

The Magic Circle.

Wellwood, July 25, 1911. Dear sir,--Will you let a lonely western girl take a peep in your charming page of correspondence, and enter the magic circle. I must say your magazine is the most amusing and instructive paper on record, and also one of the best printed to-day. I am a girl and only 25-no boys, not any more I am thankful to say; but I would like some nice correspondents. Brown Eyed Solitaire would be a jolly kind of friend to have. I wish he would write to me if he can't kill time any better, he will

Now I will describe myself. I am

Elbow Bridge, C.N.R.

Any girl who wishes to come out | tall and have black hair and eyes to west won't need to look a year for a match. I will sign myself, batchelor, for there are a string of Dellrose them from one end of the west to the other. Now girls do not get discourag-A Letter from Alberta. ed, but come right along and pick one out as you go through the bunch of Alberta, July, 1911. wild and woolly batchelors that you see in the west. I see that most of the Dear sir,-Here comes a dancing little maid who wishes to join your jolly circle. I have taken the Western Home writers give a description of them-Monthly for quite a while, and am very selves, that seems to be the funny part much interested in the correspondence of it to read some of the descriptions columns, so I thought the editor might some people give to themselves. Of find room for a breezy little letter from course everybody makes themselves as pretty as a doll, with a complexion like a rose, so I guess if I don't give a desthe west. As the custom is to describe oneself, I must do so also, I suppose. I am nearing seventeen years of age, am cription of myself I will have to fall five feet and three inches short, weight out of line. So here goes. I am a 106 lbs., have brown hair and brown eyes, and as for complexion—oh! you "apple blossom" and "blushing moon." Canadian, pretty as a picture, my hair has never got long enough to see how long it is, and I am five feet and a I don't like to hear a person talk about potato high, and if I have counted it their own fine looks, so I will not say right I am nineteen years old. If I don't stop writing soon I will get a poke on the shoulder from someanything about mine. Am very fond of nearly all kinds of out and indoor sport. I ride, drive, skate and play ten-nis; I can sing, play the piano some, and can talk like a chatterbox when body. I would like to get a few letters from anybody who cares to write, and I will answer same promptly. Hoping this once started. I do not dance or play history will interest somebody, and wishcards, and only indulge in clean, healthy ing the Western Home Monthly every games of any kind. I was unfortunate enough to miss Archibald's letter, but success, and thanking you for the space it has certainly caused a disturbance among the fair sex, and I think it is lucky for Archibald that we don't know those lonely homesteader's in the westwrite to me will find my address with the editor. I will sign myself, his real name and addres; don't you? Last Grain. I think much injustice is done to the woman of the 20th century, and perhaps A Letter From The East. she deserves some of it too, but what Ont., July. would the world be without the sun-Sir,-I have taken your paper for shine and love of the women's cheerful some months now, and I am very much nature? This does not answer in every pleased with it, especially the correscase, but just because all women do not toe the mark, that is no reason why pondence pages.

cured and the skin left clean and pure as before. My Ideal Acne Cure has cured hundreds of cases and I can cure YOU. Write for booklet or call for free consultation.

MRS E. COATES COLEMAN 224 Smith Street, Winnipeg Phone Main 996

CE R. D. EVANS, Discoverer of the famous Evans' Cancer Cure, desires all who suffer with Cancer to write to him. Two days' treatment cures external or internal cancer. Write to R. D. EVANS, Brandon, Manitoba, Canada

"Let good digestion wait on appetite, and health on both!" SHAKESPEARE They will if you take They correct stomach disorders, assist digestion, and make life worth living again for the victim of dyspepsia. 50c. a box. If your druggist has not stocked them-yet, send us 50c. and we will mail them.

National Drug and Chemical Company of Canada, Limited, Montreal

Sept., 1911

am one of in the west there is not and muskeg. njoy it bet-I have tried had better 35 years of ft. 4in. tall, low I would f the young rs, or in fact as then I do to wear the evening. s with the ccess, yours g Farmer.

25, 1911. lonely westur charming d enter the ur magazine instructive one of the a girl and more I am ld like some Eyed Solid of friend write to me tter, he will editor.

elf. I am

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

SUMMER COMPLAINT is one of the most troublesome troubles of the Hot Summer Days. The Old and the Young, the Strong and the Weak are all affected alike.

DR. FOWLER'S Extract of Wild Strawberry

Is the most effective remedy known for the cure of

DIARRHOEA, DYSENTERY, COLIC, CRAMPS, CHOLERA MORBUS, CHOL-ERA INFANTUM, AND ALL SUMMER COMPLAINTS.

This sterling remedy has been on the market ior over 65 years and has yet failed to do what we claim for it. Be sure and ask for Dr. Fowler's and insist on being given what you ask for.

Mrs. C. E. Mills, Teulon, Man., writes "Just a line to let you know that I have a little girl five years old, and during the hot weather of last summer she was very bad with the Summer Complaint, in fact. I thought we were going to lose her. We tried everything we could think of but without success. One day one of our neighbors asked what was the trouble with the little girl, and we told him. He advised us to try Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, which we did. I honestly believe it was the only thing that saved my little girl's life. I don't think there is anything better for Summer Complaint than Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry." Price 35c. Manu-factured only by The T. Milburn Co.

Limited. Toronto. Ont. The Slim Summer Girl is Winning.

The day of the slim woman's triumph has arrived. "The thinner one is the more stylish," say the dressmakers, "and the more comfortable," say those whose fat makes summer intolerable.

This would have been sad news for the fat woman a year ago. She would have had to try dieting or exercise. Nowadays, however, the woman who is too fat for the styles goes to the druggist and gets a tablet of Marmola Prescription Tablets, one of which she takes after each meal and at bedtime, they should all be condemned. This is the first time I have been in a sober mood for such a long time, I must re-turn to my usual self or I will forget how. I must say Inconner of the July number is made of the right kind of stuff. I quite agree with her on the subject of chewing, smoking, dancing, and playing cards, etc. Hurrah! for more like her. I would like to secure a few correspondents to pass away the lonely moments, and will endeavor to answer all letters promptly. Boys, don't be backward in coming forward, and would like to correspond with Bashful Bill, if he is not too bashful and if he will write first.

Hoping I have not taken up too much of the editor's precious space, I will close, wishing the editor and club every success and signing myself, "Oh! you Kid."

A Successful Farmer.

Bethune, Sask., June 11th, 1911.

Dear sir,-As I am an interested reader of your valuable paper the W.H.M., and not seeing my first letter in print I will try again. I enjoy reading correspondence very much. Some write lots of truth and good sense and some otherwise. Well I am a batchelor and own a big stock and grain farm with cheeks, which is something I could need age before. "My old friends who have been used to see-ing me with a thin, long face, say that I am looking better than they have ever seen m before and father and mother are so pleased to think I have got to look so well and weigh so heavy 'for me."

so heavy 'for me."" CLAY JOHNSON says: "Please send me another ten-day treatment. I am well pleased with Sargol. It has been the light of my life. I am getting back to my proper weight again. When I began to take Sargol I only weighed 138 pounds, and now, four weeks later. I am weighing 153 pounds and feeling fine. I don't have that stupid feeling every morning that I used to have. I feel good all the time. I want to put on about five pounds of flesh and that will be all I want."

put on about five pounds of these and that will be all I want." F. GAGNON writes: "Here is my report since taking the Sargol treatment. I am a man 67 years of age and was all run down to the very bottom. I had to quit work, as I was so weak. Now, thanks to Sargol, I look like a new man. I gained 22 pounds with 23 days' treatment. I cannot tell you how happy I feel. All my clothes are getting too tight. My face has a good color and I never was so happy in my life." MRS. VERNIE ROUSE says: "Sargol is certainly the grandest treatment I ever used. It has helped me greatly. I could hardly eat anything and was not able to sit up three days out of a week, with stomach trouble. I took only two boxes of Sargol and can eat anything and it don't hurt me and I have no more headache. My weight was 120 pounds and now I weigh 140 and feel better than I have for five years. I am now as fleshy as I want to be, and shall certainly recommend Sargol, for it does just exactly what you say it will do." You may know some of these people or know head the some some them. We will ind eyes to erta.

Dellrose

uly, 1911. ancing little your jolly estern Home and am very rrespondence ditor might letter from s to describe , I suppose. s of age, am hort, weight and brown on-oh! you hing moon. n talk about will not say very fond of and indoor nd play tenpiano some, erbox when nce or play ean, healthy unfortunate letter, but disturbance think it is don't know don't you? done to the and perhaps o, but what ut the sunen's cheerful wer in every omen do not reason why and so reduces her superfluous flesh quickly.

These tablets being made in accordance with the famous prescription, are perfectly harmless, even on the hottest days, and they are, also, the most economical preparation a person can buy, for they cost only 75 cents a large case, one of which is frequently enough to start a person losing fat at the rate of 12 or 14 ounces a day. Pretty nearly every druggist keeps this tablet in stock, but should yours be sold out, you can easily obtain a case by sending to the makers, The Marmola Company, 1412 Farmer Building, Detroit, Mich.

Send only 25c. and we will mail and we will mail you, postage prepaid by us, this fine Corset cover. Made of g o d quality Cambric front yoke of three rows1-inchTor-chon lace trim- chon lace trim-med with rib-bon, beading-and bow, edged around neck with 1-inchlace to match: armto match; arm-State size desired. When you receive the to 44. Corset Cover, if you do not find it worth at least 50c, mailit right back and we will promptly 50 c.

50c. mathit right back and we will prompty refund your money, also postage. With every order for Corset Cover we will in-clude, absolutely free of charge, one years sub-scription to "Art Needlework Magazine." Send AVALLONE & Co., Inc. Dep't B. 515 Traders Bank Bidg., Toronto, Ontario

A Western Delegate.

lots of money in the bank. I enjoy life fairly well, but also think it might be happier with a life partner, so if any of the fair sex care to write to me I will gladly answer them. I am five feet eight inches fair complexion, dark hair, weight 150 lbs. Very fond of music; can play anything from a tin can to a sweet potato. So wishing all sure success, I will ring off. My address is with the "Riches." editor.

Girls and Homesteads.

Sask., July, 1911.

Sir,-Having been both a subscriber and a reader of your paper for three years, I think I will write you a letter now. I enjoy the correspondence column very much, and I read it carefully every month, in fact I like all of the W. H. M., and I do not know which I like best.

"Only a Mere Boy's" letter in the May number is one I enjoyed very much. He must be a sensible man. I, for myself, do not think it gentlemanly for a man to drink, chew, or gamble. I do not mind smoking very much.

For myself, I am very fond of dancing and playing cards, and also horse-back riding; I am really happy when riding a good horse. I am a westerner, and have always lived either in Manitoba or Saskatchewan. I like Sask. K11, Bank of Commerce Bldg, Minneapolis, Minn. | MARTIN, Pharm. Chemist. SOUTHAMPTON, BMG.

This is an invitation that no thin man or woman can afford to ignore. We'll tell you discovery that helps digest the foods you eat -that puts good, solid flesh on people who are and underweight, no matter what the cause may be that makes brain in five hours and blood in four that puts the red corpusels in the blood which every thin man or woman so saily needs. How can we do this? We will tell you. Science has discovered a remarks oble concentrated treatment which increases of growth, the very substance of which our bodies are made - a treatment that makes period as if yo magic and makes an old dyspeptic or a ufferer from weak nerves or lack of vitality feel like a 2-year-old. This new treatment, has proved a boom to every thin person, "S-a-g-ol." Nothing like it has ever been my have never been able to appear strißen has mything they wore because of their thinness, if you mant a beautiful and well-cound di wight of hots proved - foot forget the n a me "S-a-g-ol." Nothing like it has ever been my have never been able to appear strißen has mything they wore because of their thinness, if you want a beautiful and well-cound di wight with the sproved show the serve is a soly full of hots have never been able to appear strißen way the mything they wore because of their thinness. Not have never been able to appear strißen has mything they wore because of their thinness. Not have never been able to appear strißen with mything they wore because of their thinness. Not have never been able to appear strißen the mything they wore because of their thinness in the blood is forget the serve is a body full of the sole of this precious product it will comentation to the sole of single the weight of the sole of single diverse is a body full of the sole of the sole of single the weight of the sole of the sole who have tied we to the sole to not the sole of single the sole of the sole to not the sole of the sole of the sole of the sole tor the sole of the sole of the sole

REV. GEORGE W. DAVIS says: "I have made a faithful trial of the Sargol treatment and must say it, has brought to me new life and vigor. I have gained twenty pounds and now weigh 170 pounds, and, what is better, I have gained the days of my boyhood. It has been the turning point of my life. My health is now fine. I don't have to take any medicine at all and never want to again."

MRS. A. I. RODENHEISER writes:

"I have gained immensely since I took Sargol, for I only weighed about 106 pounds when I began using it and now I weigh 130 pounds, so really this makes twenty-four pounds. I feel stronger and am looking bet-Sargol, for it does just exactly what you say it will do." You may know some of these people or know somebody who knows them. We will send you their full address if you wish, so that you can find out all about Sargol and the wonders it has wrought. Probably you are now thinking whether all this can be true. Stop it! Write us at once and we will send you, absolutely free, a 50c package of the most wonderful tablets you have ever seen. No matter what the cause of your thinness is from, Sargel makes thin folks fat, but we don't ask you to take our word for it. Simply cut the coupon below and inclose 10c stamps to help cover distribution expenses and Uncle Sam's mail will bring you the most valuable package you ever received

COME, EAT WITH US AT OUR EXPENSE

This coupon entitles any thin person to one 50c package of Sargol, the concentrated Flesh Builder (provided you have never tried it, and that 10c is enclosed to cover postage, packing, etc. Read our advertisement printed above, and then put 10c in stamps in letter today, with this coupon, and the full 50c package will be sent to you by return of post. Address: The Sargol Company, 5-J, Herald Bldg., Binghamton, N. Y.

Write your name and address plainly, and PIN THIS COUPON TO YOUR LETTER.

Are the acknowledged leading remedy for all Fema complaints. Recommended by the Medical Faculty. The genuine bear the signature of WM MARTIN (registered without which none are genuine). No lady should be without them. Sold by all Chemists & Stores

ILANC OXJI

A Justice of the Peace Suarantees this Cure by the Use of

Doan's Kidney Pills

Mr. B. J. Thomas, Fisher River, Man. writes:—"I beg to acknowledge a receipt of thanks for the great benefit derived from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. from the use of Dean's Kidney Fills. For some years I suffered from severe pains in my back and could hardly work at all, and when I stooped dewn to pick up anything I felt as if my back would break. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Fills, and after taking two borse I was completely sured and feel boxes I was completely cured and feel that I cannot speak too highly in their favor. It will be two years this April and am still cured and expect to stay cured."

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN I, the undersigned, J.P. of Fisher River, do hereby take oath and swear, knowing the above statement to be true as testified. Knowing all men by this right.

Signed, L. C. ROGERS, J.P., Fisher River, Man. Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c. per box, pr 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The C. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

hair and fair complexion, and I never yet stopped a son from shining.

How many girls in this western country consider they should have a homestead? I think a western girl should be allowed a homestead as well as a man. For my part I do not sympathise with all the batchelors. Of course I know some of their lives are not easy, but some could be better if they tried. I have seen and been in lots of bachelors shacks and, well, I would not like to tell what I saw; but I suppose I had better draw this to a close, as it is my first letter. I would like to correspond with some bachelor not under 20 or over 30. I will leave my address with the editor, and wish the W. H. M. all prosperity. Q. T.

A Reader for Five Years.

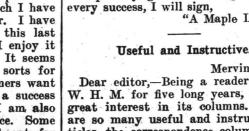

Man., July 17, 1911. Dear editor,-I have often felt as if I would like to write a short epistle to your monthly magaine, of which I have the honor of being a subscriber. I have been reading your paper for this last five years, and can say that I enjoy it better than any paper I get. It seems to be so full of food of all sorts for our brains, and we young farmers want to learn all we can to make a success of life in the great west. I am also interested in the correspondence. Some of the letters seem to stand out for best. Am five feet six inches tall, brown | South African scrip on it about a year ago

I came from Nova Scotia about four years ago; have been in the west ever since. I think I will have to take a trip east soon and see some of you pretty girls that write such beautious letters. I am sure they must be worth seeing, especially those with "hazel green eyes" and "peach bloom complexions" and "rose bud lips." I am not quite that beautiful, but haven't frightened anyone yet.

Now if any of those beauties from away down east, or anywhere else, care to correspond with a dandy young fellow who never drinks anything stronger than lemonade or chews anything worse than the rag, I will be pleased to cor-respond with them; my address will be found with the editor.

I have been a subscriber to the W.H. M. for some time, and find it a good paper; there is a lot of good reading in it. The Young Man and His Problem

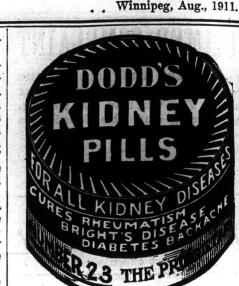

BAD

LEG

McM

perfe

years

Sciat

sever

to wo

docto

doing got "

and 1

that matis

takes

.

Rhe

the 667

fruit kidı

keej Tak

inst St of

LII

To

artifi

the wear mak

They

stron

pract

We

out a tice

best

can

Writ

infor

state

amp

have

J.H

54

Whe

Fo

"5

44V

nipeg with

"The Lake Superior Express"

Daily via the Great Lakes.

"The Duluth Express"

Daily via Duluth, the Great Lakes, and Chicago.

"The St. Paul Night Flyer"

Daily via St. Paul and Chicago.

"The St. Paul Day Express"

Daily via St. Paul and Chicago.

For Time Tables, reservations,

on any Canadian

Northern Railway

R. CREELMAN,

General Passenger Agent, w Ganadian Northern Station

Winnipe g, Can

Worth

agent, or write

fares and full information call

who is upright, who is trying to live | hear from some middle aged corresa life of usefulness, a life that is pleasing to both God and man, while a great many others seem to be satisfied with a sort of a half-and-half way of living. Some girls write: I don't mind a man smoking or chewing, and he can have a good spree once in a while. Those little habits are fast being crowded out of good society. I wish it was the motto of each person in the correspondence ranks to look up, aim high, for if we dont aim, high we can't expect to gain the standard that we ought.

Now for fear you are mistaken in me, I will tell you what I am like. I am a farmer's son, 23 years old, very fond of sports; I am 5ft. 7in., weigh 160 lbs., brown hair, blue eyes. I can enjoy a good time with almost anyone. I liked the letter from a girl in Manitoba, she calls herself Inconnu. I would like very much to hear from her or any other nice girl that cares to write.

Wishing the editor and his readers of the W. H. M. every success, I remain, "Always Pleasant."

Would Not Scare Anyone.

Saskatchewan, June 29, 1911. Dear sir,-I see so few letters from this part of the world in your correspondence page, I thought I would write

Perhaps the girls would like to know what kind of a fellow I am, so I will give them a short description. Here it is. Age 25, height 5 ft. 91/2 in., brown hair, hazel eyes, weight 150 pounds. I dence column, and I find I cannot long-am at present living on a half section er resist the temptation to get in touch LVL Catalog included, send ic stamp MAGIC, Dept. 12 270 W 30th St. New York in South Saskatchewan; I applied a pondents, as I am a man of 40 summers. I weigh 170 lbs., am well built, and have blue eyes. I have a section of land in Saskatchewan and a good home.

The Watcher.

Wishing the W. H. M. much success, I remain, "Country Farmer."

Two British Lillies.

Regina, Sask., July, 1911. Sir,-We have been readers of the W.H.M. for some time past, and have been interested in the correspondence page. We are extremely sorry for some of the poor lonely bachelors, and would certainly like to write to some of them. Now for our names we are going to to take Tiger Lily and Water Lily. Tiger is a brunette, with a very sweet nature, is a good cook, and quite used to farming. Water Lily is a blonde, and is also good tempered, except when put out quite a bit, good cook, and would in time get used to farming. We are both of the same age-still in our teens. Now, Water Lily would like to correspond with "Old Country Chap" in June issue, as she is an old country girl herself; in fact both of us are. We hope to see this in print, and also to hear from quite a few nice young people. The Two Lillies. We remain,

Has a Good Time.

Saskatchewan, June 26th, 1911. Sir,--I, too, am an interested reader of the W. H. M., especially the correspondence column, and I find I cannot longwith some of the wide-awake Western-

MAGIC POCKET FREE Worth

J I W

Aug., 1911.

PILLS BAD

REMEDY

LEG or, Piles, Glan-d and Inflamed orm or Diseased ay perhaps, but t is no reason 1 Hospitals and tion, but do not, ce to the Drug Ointment and Bad Legs, etc. sshopper'' on a T & Co., Albert ondon, England tional Drug &

EAT

IMENT

Woman

Whirling Spray

Winnipeg Sept., 1911 ers. I am a young Scotchman, 23 years of age, 5ft. 10in. in height, have brown FRUIT-A-TIVES" eyes, dark hair, kind of broad in build, and weigh about 160 lbs. I came to this country five years ago, and have WILL CURE worked in Manitoba all the time until two or three months ago, when I found my way into Saskatchewan. I must say I am very glad to be one of the many bachelor homesteaders out in the far West, while it is a very lonely life in many respects, we may find McMillan's Corner, Ont., Sept. 30th, 1910. "Your remedy, "Fruit-a-tives" is a perfect panacea for Rheumatism. For years, I suffered distressing pain from Sciatic Rheumatism, being laid up several times a year, and not being able to work at anything. I went to different doctors who told me there was no use

"Fruit-a-tives" is the greatest cure for "Fruit-a-tives" cures, because like fruit juice it purifies the blood -regulates kidneys, bowels and skin-and thus keeps the whole system free of uric acid. Take "Fruit-a-tives" and you will find 50c. a box-6 for $2.50-trial size, 25c.

At dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, instant relief and a prompt cure.

Rheumatism, Sciatica and Lumbago in the world.

Ottawa.

Artificia

Two Lillies.

most agreeable company in good reading, of which I am very fond. The prospects for us young men in the West are good, and by careful management can soon have home ready for one of the bright cheery girls who would be willing to share the tempest and sunshine of life on the prairie. I am very fond of music, an old choir boy at home, and play the mandoline very well. My mother thinks I am fairly good to look at, and hope somebody else may think the same. Now, girls, here's your chance if any one cares to write to me, my address is with the editor.

Hoping to see this first letter of mine in next month's isue, wishing the W.H.M. a succesful future, I will sign Young Lochinvar.

FAT IS FATAL

Fat is Fatal to Health, Comfort, Happiness and often Fatal to Life.

Let me send you a trial treatment FREE OF CHARGE. You can get rid of your fat safely, surely and quickly.

E. A. Richards, Ex-Mayor of Holly Hill, Fla., says: "Your treatment cured me permanently, it has been two years since I stopped taking it and have not regained a pound. It also cured my Dyspepsia and I now enjoy the best of health."

The Western Home Monthly.

Rev. / Mary Kimball, 112 S. Jackson St., Janes-ville, Wis., says: "Before I took your treatment I was subject to violent choking fits, my friends were often afraid I would choke to death. Your treatment has cured all this and reduced my waist 6 inches and my hips 8 inches. My garments now are all so large they seem as if made for another women.'

Mrs. John Bye, Minneapolis, Kan., says: "Your weight from 203 pounds to 145 pounds and has also wonderfully improved my general health. I can do my housework now without pain or the smothering spells I used to have. My husband says it is worth $1000 to him and the children since I used your Kresslin Treatment."

FREE

OFFER

SPECIAL I have had such wonderful success with my method of reducing superfluous fat that I have decided to offer for a limited time-free trial treatments. Hundreds of testimonials on file show that my treatment takes off fat at the rate of 5 to 7 pounds a week and what is more, that the fat does not return when the treatment is finished. No person is so fat but what it will have the desired effect, no matter where the excess fat is located-stomach, bust, hips, cheeks, neck-it will quickly vanish without starving, exercising or in any way interfering with your customary habits. My treatment is endorsed by physicians, because of its easy, natural elimination of abnormal flesh and its beneficial effect on the whole system. Perfectly harmless; easy and quick results. Rheumatism, Asthma, Kidney and Heart Troubles leave as fat is reduced. Don't take my word for this; I will prove it at my own expense. Write to-day for free trial treatment and illustrated booklet on the subject; it costs you nothing. Address Dr. J. Spillenger, Dept. E., 72 Madison Ave., New York City.

What my treatment has accomplished in hundreds of cases. It will help you ! Try it !

When writing advertisers, please mention The Western Home Monthly.

Sir,-I have read your magazine every month since I came here, and we always look forward to it, and, after a long time, I am writing this to join the already large crowd in your columns, and try and get some correspondents. I am English, and have been here two and a half years. I am seventeen, weigh 124 pounds, and am 5 ft. 7 in. tall. I work in a large store 14 miles from the railroad. If Brunette, Lily of the Valley, Siamese Twin No. 1, Wise or any other young ladies will write to me, I shall be pleased to answer them. My address is with the editor.

Hoping to receive some letters, I will Albertan. sign myself,

Dr. Spillenger is well known as a successful Obesity Specialist and any statements he makes can be absolutely relied upon. He is licensed and regis-

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back's, the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelds or ankles; eg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleep-lessness and the despondency? I have a recipe for these troubles that yon can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K2045, Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will seend it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe, contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power. It will quickly show its power once you use narmiess remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power. It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free - you can use it and cure yourself at home.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

Any person who is the sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a guarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The appli-cant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Jub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy mis ybe made a tanyagency, on certain con-ditions, by f ather, mother, son, daughter, brother orsister of in tending hom esteader.

Duties—Six months' residence (upon and cultiva-tion of the and in) ach of three years. A home-steader maylive within nine miles of his homestead on a i arm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son. daughter broth ero rsister.

I n certain districts a homesteader in good tand-ing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhaust d his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six monthe in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

Deputy of the Minister of the Interior. N.B.—Unauthorized publication of this advertise-ment will not be paid for.

On the Schwager farm-Dundurn, Sask.

Winnipeg Sept., 1911

0

no

nc

af

D

ar

Household Suggestions.

"In Friendly Guise" By Frances, Port Morien, Cape Breton.

Wealthy housekeepers can skip this article; it is a little chat with the many women who do their own work, many women who do their own work, thereby dispensing with that uncertain element known as "hired help"—I call it "emancipation"—it is one of the "blessings" of poverty. Many able writers discourse glibly— through the domestic departments of

through the domestic departments of sundry magazines on "housekeeping"— but very much of their advice is useless to the wives of working men, although there are a few practical grains to be gleaned from out the mass. But, dear "house-mothers," don't you experience a sinking sensation when they talk of "system?" System is so impossible to the great majority of us the great majority of us.

Where can system come in when at times the bread winner is starting out for a night's work at an hour when other men are getting into their slippers and hunting for the day's paper. How can system flouri h, when on sweeping days for the upper chambers, a tired man is sleeping the sleep of the "just," and must not be disturbed, and the house must be kept quiet below stairs as well. We must take all this good council with a sprinkling of salt, for every household is a law unto itself, and you must plan work according to your need.

But use your brains instead of your feet and don't make a slave of yourself in any of your "doings," or sooner or later your pots and pans and other household gods will rise up and "do" you. Train the little ones to helpbegin early. Teach them to wait upon themselves, to put away their playthings, dust, lay the table, hang out small garments on wash days, pull out one requires a breathing spell some times.

And your husband will help you to attain this measure of freedom once in a while, if he is a halfway decent fellow, and, I think, most men are-if they get a fair show.

My sympathy goes out to all the tired, conscientious mothers, who strive so hard to make the best and the most of everything; who believe in cleanliness, first, last, and always- and whose souls are racked at the sight of disorder; but there is a certain amount of "clutter" that cannot well be avoided in a houseful of children, and one must overlook it, comfort is better than "style," anyway.

The workingmen's wives to-day are facing the greatest problem of the times-how to make one dollar do the work of two-how they manage, they alone can tell.

To the young and inexperienced housewives, I would like to say there is much prated economy that is not really economy at all. Don't be deluded into trying to make a tasty meal from a "bone," "a cold potato," and a spoonful of "boiled rice." You may delude yourself, but the effect of the combination will not be generally much appreciated. I have learned many things through my many failures; experience is the only real teacher, though she is a very stern one, and some day you will surely arrive at success.

Now, a word more, and I will have done. Above all things, learn to depend upon yourselves. If your mother and sisters live near, don't rush to them for help in every trifling emergency. Oh, they would come willingly to your aid, no doubt of that-your mother esbastings, and pick up scraps when you pecially-but it is not "playing fair." Of course, there are many occasions when help is really needed, time enough then to seek it. Your mother brought up one family, don't expect her to rear yours. Don't lose your head if Kate should happen to sneeze, or Johnny runs a splinter into his finger, you will in time have pulled enough of wood from your children's hands to make a goodly bonfire, and you will regard it as "all in the day's work." You have entered into the great game, now play it thoroughly; better to live and die an honorable single maiden, than to marry and be a "quitter."

to transport the provisions. One must drive, so there is usually but one pair of hands to hold tipsy things, and the packing and delivering of the goods be-comes a serious problem especially as it is desired to get there quickly and have the things as hot as possible.

A deep stone jar with cover is the very best utensil to carry dinners which should be boiled or baked for these occasions, as fried foods cool very rapidly. Before the dinner is to be packed the jar can be filled with boiling water or placed on the back of the stove or in the oven to get thoroughly heated, and then the dinner will not cool off during the journey.

A roast of beef to be carved in the field and served with potatoes browned with it, or boiled beef with potatoes will always be relished. Boiled ham with potatoes, or ham pot pie, never goes begging in the harvest field. Such vegetables as peas, beans, corn, tomatoes -in fact any garden vegetable-may be cooked and placed with little trouble. Just so the things are hot and good they will be liked by all.

For dessert the very best things are cookies and coffee or some sort of cake easily transported. Of course fruit is always easily carried, but pies never carry well. Custards are a snare and all soft puddings a nuisance. A man likes to sit down with a tin of hot coffee and a cooky or a couple of doughnuts, but he does hate to muss around with a soft pie or a custard.

A lady who has had much experience in taking dinners to the field packs her apple sauce in a quart fruit jar, her pickled beets in another, her dinner in a stone jar and her dessert in a covered basket, and with a jug of hot coffee she sets forth alone to deliver the noon meal. The food is served on bright pie pans and the coffee poured into new tin cups. There is no danger of breaking things, and she really enjoys getting out for these picnic spreads. Of course it would be easier to feed the men at what to carry as only a buggy is at hand | monly the dough is like that used for soda or cream-of-tartar biscuit, but sometimes shortened pastry dough, such as is made for pies, is used. This is especially the case in the fancy individual dishes usually called pattics. Occasionally the pie is covered with a potato crust, in which case the meat is put directly into the dish without lining the latter. Sewed beef, veal, and chicken are probably most frequently used in pies, but any kind of meat may be used, or several kinds in combina. tion. Pork pies are favorite dishes in many rural regions, especially at hogkilling time, and when well made are excellent.

> If pies are made from raw meat and vegetables longer cooking is needed than otherwise, and in such cases it is well to cover the dish with a plate. cook until the pie is nearly done, then re turn to the oven until the crust is lightly browned. Many cooks insist on piercing holes in the top crust of a meat pie directly it is taken from the oven.

Egg Sandwiches.

Boil 6 eggs hard. Put in cold water to cool. Chop fine and season with salt, pepper, mustard and a little vinegar. Have thin slices of bread buttered and spread with lettuce leaves. Spread the egg between.

Salmon Sandwiches.

Two thin slices of bread cut triangular and buttered; between them put canned salmon, dressed with lemon juice, salt and pepper to taste, on a lettuce leaf. These are best eaten soon after made.

Egg and Cheese Sandwiches.

Yolks of six hard-boiled eggs mashed fine with 1/2 pound grated cheese and moistened mayonnaise. Make a nice filling for are sewing-and great will be your reward in the future.

Make simple washdresses for every day wear, for yourself and children; good ginghams and "ducks," well lined, are plenty heavy enough for winter, and can be washed whenever desired; while prints are both cheap and dainty for summer days. Likewise, prepare wholesome and plain fare for your table, and whenever your nerves begin to feel "frazzled," just drop everything, go out and lock the door on all your worriestake the tots, and hie you to the fields, woods, or parks, and let Mother Nature strengthen you anew. Don't say, "how can I"; remember you are your own mistress, you are not chained to the dress-makers task, an office desk, or the school room; you are queen of that realm called Home! Then plot, plan, contrive ways and means, simplify, reduce, only get there somehow-every-

Dinner in the Field.

It often happens during the busy season that the men want their dinner brought out to them in a distant field, and the ladies are at a loss to know

home in her cool dining room, but when necessity demands the picnics she does not complain, but sets herself to give the men the best things she can find hot and good, for she knows that a good dinner in the midst of a hard day's work is a great thing to a hungry man. and a great factor in keeping good hired men, so she willingly makes the sacrifice, knowing that harvest can't last for ever,

Meat Pies.

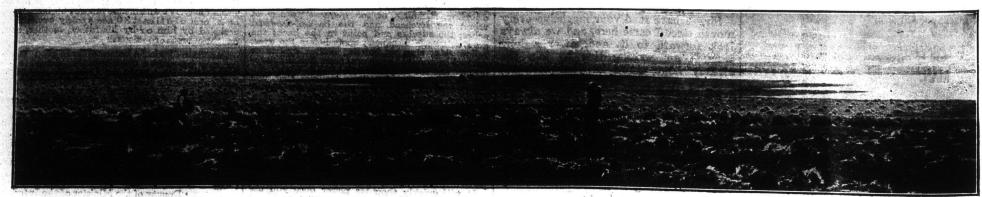

Meat pies represent another method of combining flour with meat. They are ordinarily baked in a fairly deep dish, the sides of which may or may not be lined with dough. The cooked meat, cut into small pieces, is put into the dish, sometimes with small pieces of vegetables, a gravy is poured over the meat, the dish is covered with a layer of Iced Tea.

Put 1/2 cupful of tea in cold water in a pitcher in the morning; when wanted, strain, add cold water, and ice to taste, serve. Add more cold water to the tea leaves in the pitcher with a little fresh tea; set away, and use again. The flavor is nicer than any way I have ever tried. I keep the pitcher in the ice box and change twice a week.

Tongue Sandwiches.

One cupful finely chopped tongue, 1 teaspoonful made mustard, 1 teaspoon-ful soft butter, ¹/₄ teaspoonful Cayenne pepper, yolk of 1 hard-boiled egg, juice of 1/2 lemon, dash of nutmeg. Mix all ingredients thoroughly and spread bedough, and then baked. Most com- | tween thin slices of bread.

On the Schwager farm-Dundurn Sask

pt., 1911

used for cuit, but ough, such . This is ancy indi-1 pattics. ed with a the meat h without veal, and frequently meat may combina. dishes in y at hogmade are meat and eeded than it is well late. cook the, re crust is insist on cust of a from the old water son with ittle vineid butterce leaves.

read cut veen them ith lemon ste, on a aten soon

hes. 15 mashed heese and ke a nice If you are one of those who are looking for an efficient dentifrice without a "druggy" taste, try and assure yourself that its delicious flavor does not lessen its efficiency. Ask your dentist, or notice for yourself the difference in your teeth after a month or two of its twice-a-day use.

Educators all over the country have found this pleasant-tasting dentifrice their greatest aid in teaching their scholars the importance of "Good Teeth--Good Health."

old water ng; when r, and ice old water cher with and use than any keep the nge twice tongue, 1 teaspoonl Cayenne egg, juice Mix all pread be-

TO DENTISTS

You will please your patients and induce them to take care of their teeth—and your work—if you recommend the regular use of Colgate's Ribbon Dental Cream.

As a neutralizer of excessive acidity of the mouth, and as an efficient cleanser, it has the endorsement of eminent dentists and of expert chemists.

Every day letters are received from well-known dentists in praise of the benefits which Ribbon Dental Cream confers on their patients.

Read what these Dentists say:

"It is positively the first cream I have found that will polish gold crowns and bridge work in the mouth."

"I heartily endorse your Ribbon Dental Cream. It has a tendency to stimulate gum tissue." "It leaves a cool, delicious taste in the mouth." "I know of no more cleanly, efficient, convenient and dainty dentifrice to keep the teeth clean and the breath pure."

Names will be given on application

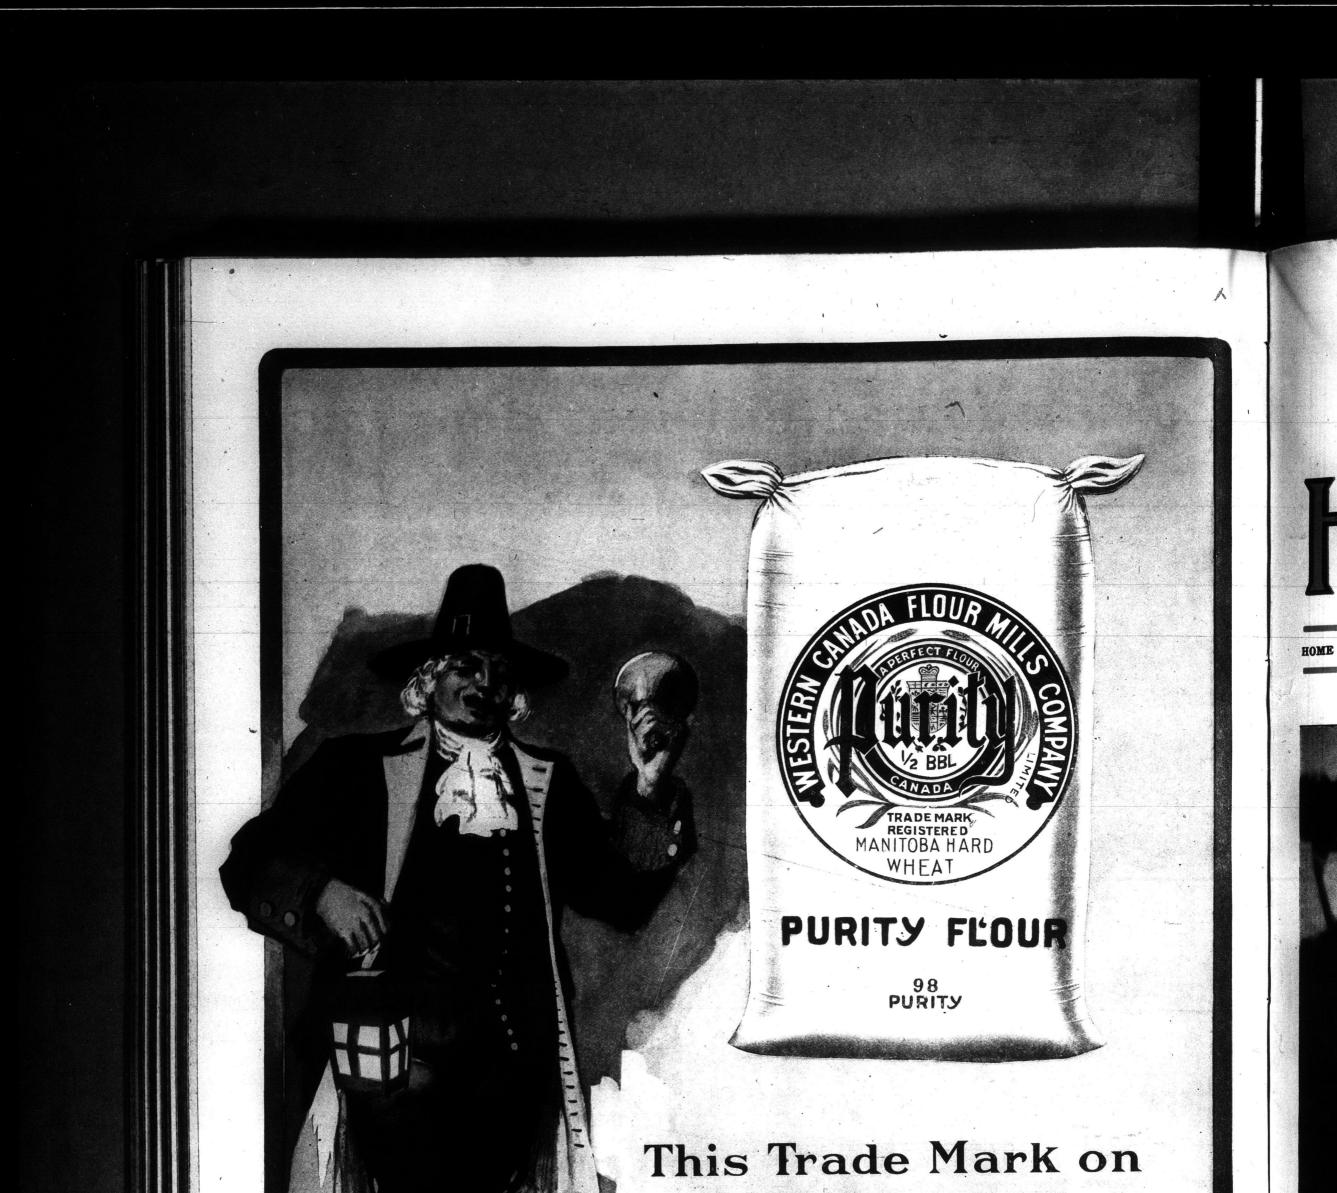

Colgate's Ribbon Dental Cream cleans, preserves and polishes perfectly and antiseptically, leaving the mouth in that sweet, clean, non-acid condition which counteracts germ growth.

A trial tube of this delicious, efficient cream sent for 4c. in stamps.

Address Colgate & Co., Dept. M, Coristine Bldg., Montreal

Makers of the famous Cashmere Bouquet Toilet Soap

W. G. M. SHEPHERD, Montreal, Sole Agent for Canada

a sack stands for all that is Desirable in Flour

Toget the best, buy URITY FLOUR "MORE BREAD AND BETTER BREAD"