

THE WEEKLY ONTARIO AND BAY OF QUINTE CHRONICLE

ESTABLISHED 1841.

BELLEVEILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1915. MORTON & HERITY, Proprietors

Patriotic Subscriptions S.S. No. 2, Sidney.

At the call of the Trustees there was held on the evening of the 15th of September last in the Front of Sidney School a meeting in aid of the Patriotic Fund, which was presided over by Mr. K. J. Graham now of Belleville, but formerly a student in this celebrated old school. The speakers of the evening were Warden Ketcheson, Rev. F. J. Joblin, ex-Mayor J. F. Wills and Mr. Graham.

After the speaking was finished, a resolution was passed directing the appointment of a committee to canvass the school section for subscriptions. Mr. F. W. Wilson and Mr. Donald Gunn were selected and in their usual energetic and earnest manner commenced the work forthwith and have continued working until there resulted from their canvas a subscription of $443.00.

This speaks well for school section No. 2. This grant of funds from the residents of that section is entirely in addition to their many gifts to the Red Cross and Patriotic Committees who have been sending supplies and comforts to the men at the front.

The following is the list of subscribers:

Military Notes

Four recruits left this morning for Barrefield to join the 80th Batt. Percy James Fitzgerald, aged 19, single, mail carrier, Rimington, John Boyd Naylor, 19, single, student, Belleville, C. Howard, Norwich, England, B. Hicks, Norwich, England.

Captain Bleeker is going out into the northern country for the balance of the week to secure recruits.

Corporal Sandford is busy recruiting up north.

Captain Denton, Trooper Malloy and others are engaged in the northern part of the county holding a series of meetings.

Sergeant Chas. A. W. Thompson of the 33rd Battery C.F.A. has been given an extension of leave and left yesterday for Campbellford.

Lieut. Jenkins has received orders to recruit for the artillery in Belleville.

A number of artillery recruits have been secured and will leave for Barrefield in a few days.

Presented With Electric Lamp

A very pleasant social was held last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Boyce, Dundas Street. Among the guests of the evening were Mr. L. W. Buller, the popular agent here of the C.N.R., and Mrs. Buller. It was the sixteenth anniversary of their wedding and during the course of the evening the games and social intercourses were interrupted when Mr. and Mrs. Buller were presented with a handsome electric library lamp. The presentation was made on behalf of those present in a happy and felicitous manner by one of the guests, and though they were very much surprised, both Mr. and Mrs. Buller replied to the address of presentation in a graceful way. The thoughtful attention of the charming young hostess, Mrs. Boyce, was much enjoyed and appreciated by all who were privileged to be present.

Successful Evangelistic Services

The evangelistic services still in progress in the Tabernacle church, continue to deepen in interest and spiritual influence, and many are turning to God. At Monday night's service, the pastor, Rev. Mr. Moore, preached on the "Profit and Loss" of the Christian Life and made an earnest appeal for decision, with the result that nearly a dozen young people openly enlisted in the service of Christ.

Police Notes

The police last night investigated the complaint of a strange man apparently following pedestrians on the west side of the river. No one was found.

A boy ran off from his home yesterday, but returned today. Mr. John Weir's little girl was attacked by a dog yesterday and suffered a severe nip from the canine. The child's clothes protected her from severe injury. Three men charged with allowing a cow and horses to be at large were each fined $1 and costs this morning. Each man paid $3.25 into the city exchequer. All owners of animals at large will be prosecuted, says the inspector. P. Hurst was fined $10 or 30 days as he appeared after remand on a charge of drunkenness.

VICTORIA.

Now remember the date of our chicken pie supper on Thursday evening Oct. 28th, a good programme. The corn binder is busy these days along with the farmers.

Apple-picking is still raging in this vicinity. No service here next Sunday. A jolly crowd attended the fowl supper at Rednersville on Wednesday night, all report a good time. Sunday School next Sunday 10.30 a.m.

Melvin Prymer spent the week-end at Mr. G. Prymer's. Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Bert Fox, it's a boy.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Brickman and children spent the week-end at Mr. J. Hennessy's Thuriow. Mrs. B. W. White and Miss Carrie spent Sunday at Mr. W. Bush's.

Mrs. F. Brickman and Miss Vera took tea at Mr. L. Brickman's on Sunday.

Mr. G. Babcock sr. had a husking bee on Thursday night. The first of the season.

Mrs. (Rev.) A. R. Godderson, of Campbellford was in the city yesterday.

GERMANS NOW QUIT WITHOUT FIGHTING.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 20.—According to an official statement issued by the Russian War Office last night the Germans are becoming demoralized. The statement notes in referring to the fighting on the left bank of the Styr, above Novo Selki, that "the smoothness of our operations and the successful results attained are shown by the fact that a body of our troops yesterday took prisoner 50 officers and 1900 men and captured six machine guns and a great quantity of arms and ammunition abandoned by the enemy, all with the loss of one officer and 50 soldiers."

Two entire companies of the 41st German Infantry Regiment, with their officers (500 men) were also taken prisoner at Novo Selki on Monday. This makes 2,500 prisoners and about 70 officers taken on this part of the front in one day.

FOUR GERMAN VESSELS TORPEDOED IN BALTIC.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 20.—Four German steamers, the Pernambuco, Soederhamn, Johannes-Russ and Dalafven have been torpedoed in the Baltic Sea off Oxelesund to the south of Stockholm by British submarines. The Pernambuco, and Dalafven were sunk, but the Soederhamn and Johannes-Russ are still afloat. The crews of all the steamers were saved.

The Soederhamn, which was loaded with wood, and the Pernambuco, with a cargo of iron ore, were bound for Germany. The destinations of the Johannes-Russ and Dalafven are not known.

MELROSE

We are sorry to report that Mr. Dickson English is very low. Miss Gladys Post has been spending a few days at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Reuben Howard.

INITIATIVE LOST ON MAIN FRONTS.

BERLIN, Oct. 20.—Reviewing the military situation in The Berliner Tageblatt, Major Moraht, the military critic, notes that while Germany is now really on the defensive in France and Russia, she is attacking in Serbia, where she will "shake hands with all her friends and probably be opposed by the armies of all her enemies."

Reviewing his article, the Overseas News Agency says: "The Serbian attack serves the central powers politically, and is advancing them toward final victory, Major Moraht says, while the French and British offensive was undertaken with enormous forces in mere fury and obstinacy, while the efforts of Russia are only designed to regain for her territory which she has lost."

The discussion between the entente nations regarding their respective participation in the Balkan campaign is still uncompleted, Major Moraht points out, and, regarding such participation, he says that France is unable to spare troops from her home front, while her colonial troops are not suitable for service in a Serbian winter campaign. Great Britain's shaken forces from the Dardanelles would not be able to cope in battle with the victorious German and Austro-Hungarian forces, and the enthusiastic Bulgarian troops, he adds, while Italy wishes to make her own war, saving her soldiers and her gold.

HUNS AND BULGARS BEATEN BACK IN TWO PLACES.

GENEVA, Oct. 20.—The Serbians have repulsed the Austro-Germans heavily north of Shabatz, according to a Bucharest message today.

Serb forces are said to have assumed a vigorous successful offensive about Pozarevac. The Bulgarians are described as badly beaten at Ortakoi.

Shourd's Evaporator at Wellington Barracks.

(Special to The Ontario)
Wellington, Oct. 20.—About 5 o'clock yesterday morning the night watchman at L. K. Shourd's evaporator here, discovered a small fire in the building. He tried to extinguish it without success and it soon spread to the whole building which was a total loss. The villagers were alarmed and organized themselves into a fire brigade. They devoted their efforts to saving the surrounding buildings as in this they were fortunate, a successful being greatly appreciated as a heavy rain which was falling at the time.

There was no insurance on the evaporator as Mr. Shourd's loss would be a very serious one. A very considerable number of women and servants are thrown out of employment. Our village has no fire protection worthy of the name and many objections are being raised. It is hoped that this fire will awaken the people to a sense of the risk they are running as long as they permit the present state of affairs to continue.

Police Court

The investigation of the charge of rape preferred against Fred Mack was this morning began before Magistrate Masson and enlarged until Friday, a witnesses had not all been heard.

"BEYOND RECKONING."

Mr. John Buchan, in the latest volume of his scintillating "History of the War," makes reference to the tremendous energy which Germany at winter developed in the provision of munitions. "The quantity of the shells," he says, "is not the winter's work," which Germany produced is beyond reckoning. When we remember that she supplied 900 miles (with some distance from Austria) on the East, more than 90 miles on the West (and equipped Turkey for a Dardanelles campaign, and that her use of shells was five or six times more lavish than that of her opponents, we may get some notion of the magnitude of the national effort. It was more impressive in its way than the muster of great armies in August. Mr. Buchan thinks that Germany's losses by the beginning of April are little less than three millions.

Mr. Buchan makes interesting mention of the coming of the German poison fumes at the second battle of Ypres when the Canadians saved the situation:

About 6.30 (he says) our artillery observers reported that a strange green vapour was moving over the French trenches. Then, as the April night closed in and the great shells still rained upon Ypres, there were strange scenes between the canal and the Pilkem Road. Back through the dusk came a stream of French soldiers, blinded, and coughing, and wild with terror. Some black devilry had come upon them, and they had broken before this more than human fear. Behind them they left hundreds of their comrades stricken and dead, with froth on their lips and horrible blue faces. The rout surged over the canal and the road to Ypres, and the road was choked with broken infantry and galloping gun teams lacking their guns.

No discredit, adds Mr. Buchan, attaches to those who broke. "The pressure was more than flesh and blood could bear."

In an account of the second gas attack, Mr. Buchan says:

The gas was pumped from cylinders, and rising in a cloud, which at its maximum was seven feet high, it travelled in two minutes the distance between the lines. It was thickest close to the ground, and filled every cranny of the trenches. Our men had then no knowledge of it, and were provided with no prophylactics, but instinct taught some of them what to do.

A wet handkerchief wrapped round the mouth gave a little relief, and it was best for a man to keep on his feet. It was fatal to run backwards. Mr. Buchan goes on to explain, for that was the soldier followed the gas zone, and the exertion of rapid movement compelled deep breathing, and so drew the poison into the lungs. Its effect was to fill the lungs with fluid and produce acute bronchitis. Those smitten by it suffered horribly, gasping and struggling for breath, with blue swollen faces, and eyes bursting from the head. It affected the sight, too, and produced temporary blindness. Even a thousand yards from the place of emission men were affected with violent sickness and giddiness. After that the vapor dissipated itself, and only the lanced herbage marked its track.

DANGERS OF PESSIMISM.

Lord Robert Cecil, who is a member in the National Government of the United Kingdom, said in a recent speech:

"Then we are told, sometimes by British writers, that this country is in a terrible condition. By reading some of them you would almost think we are a nation of drunken snickers, led by a series of Ministers and Generals who are either incompetent or corrupt or both. We read effusions of this kind, we know what they really mean, we value them at their true value. But all foreigners do not understand our ways of going on, and the harm that is done in foreign countries by statements of that kind is not easy to exaggerate. I do not know if writers realize that every violent attack on the artisan or on the millionaire, on the soldier or on the politician, is immediately reproduced in the German papers. They are spread throughout the world and it is said: 'Look at the miserable condition England is in! How can you venture to throw in your lot with England? How can you trust in England's victory? You see what their own papers say about them.' The harm which is done is incalculable. Let those who write or who speak in public have perpetually before them the question: How would this appear if this were reproduced in Berlin?"

What part, it may well be asked, did the pessimism of the Northcliffe press—a pessimism calculated and designed to further personal and political ambitions—play in enabling the German Government to convince the King of Bulgaria that it would be safe for him to openly espouse the cause of the Central Powers? The pessimists are doing incalculable harm everywhere. Without minimizing the gravity of the situation we need not hesitate to believe that we are going to win this war.

Germany is now playing her cards to drag Spain and Sweden into the hangman's net that is tightening around her. If their rulers are wise they will spurn the tempter.

Says the editor of the New York Outlook: "If the Outlook seems to be sympathetic to England in her contest with Germany it is because the battle for freedom of the mind was first fought and won in England."

The activity of the British submarines in the Baltic shows that the British Navy is once more striking what is left of German commerce in a very vital channel. There are, of course, no German ships in the North Sea against which British submarines can operate. The British undersea craft have made their way into the Baltic through the difficult waters of the Skager Rack and the Cattegat, and without adopting any of the murderous methods of the Huns, are attacking Germany in a very effective way, for it is through the Baltic that she is able to draw her supplies from Sweden and other neutral countries. Once the British submarines pass the Scandinavian narrows they are able to operate from Russian bases. It may be that before very long the eastern end of the Kiel Canal will be sealed up as effectively as the North Sea end. Notwithstanding all that is heard about German submarine warfare, the finest feats performed by undersea craft are to be credited to the British Navy, first in the Dardanelles and now in the landlocked waters of the Baltic. The stranglehold upon Germany's sea commerce is being tightened from day to day, while British ships are as free to sail the ocean as ever.

Signs are beginning to appear in England indicative of coming trouble over the supply of fuel for the war. In a speech delivered last week, Lord Kitchener plainly hinted at this. The armies now being sent into the field must, he said, be maintained in full strength to the very end of the struggle. To this end, he declared, there will be required a large addition to the numbers of recruits now joining and the problem of how to secure these is, he said, engaging the attention of the Government.

Col. Lee, M.P., who was at one time British military attaché at Washington, put the case much more clearly. The number of men required cannot, he said, be obtained under the present system, and he declared conscription absolutely necessary.

The London Daily News adds to this that Lord Curzon, Lord Lansdowne, Bonar Law, and even Lloyd-George favor conscription, and that some members of the Coalition Cabinet, presumably these, are ready to resign in order to force their colleagues to accept their views.

What organized labor will say to this proposal was made clear by Mr. Thomas, a labor member of parliament and assistant general secretary of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants. He declared that every lodge of the Railway Union had informed the Executive Committee that on the introduction of conscription the men would stop work. "If the conscriptionists want an industrial revolution," he said, "let them proceed with their agitation."

TROUBLE COMING.

I have been a-havin' lots of fun,
Not jest a little bit;
I been a-doin' everything,
Until I'd want to quit.
I been a-goin' anywhere—
Play ball or swimmin' pool—
But I can't do it any more—
I gotta go to school.

There hasn't been no one to say,
"Now, James, you may recite."
I haven't had to learn a thing
From mornin' clear till night.
An' now I guess I'll have to learn—
Jest like I was a fool—
A lot a kid don't wanta know—
That's what kids do at school.

Doggone it all! I wisht that I'd Been borned a Injun kid,
If any teacher touched me, he'd
Be sorry that he did.
I'd do the things I wanted to
And nothin' do by rule;
And then I'd tell the other kids:
"Ain't goin' to be no school!"

Mr. J. J. B. Flint Writes on His Trip to New York City

My Dear Sir,—

Many persons have great difficulty in getting round New York. It is exceedingly simple if you will remember that the streets run east and west and the avenues north and south. At the south there is the ocean, at the north Central Park, and the park known as the Bronx. The Hudson on the west and the river separating Brooklyn from New York on the east. You can take a boat at the Battery, at the extreme south of the ocean, and completely encircle the Manhattan Island, which constitutes New York. With the subways, elevated roads and surface cars, you can reach any point speedily. Of course, it is necessary to know the routes. The four largest buildings are the Woolworth, the Metropoliitan Life, and the municipal building. At the south, there are a large number of streets, which bear names and not numbers. Streets begin to number if I remember correctly, at Fourteenth street, and goes on up to the Bronx, and possibly beyond. The great Brooklyn, Williamsburg and Manhattan bridges are very wonderful. They amply repay a careful study, as I believe there are few greater in the world. Many suburbs are occupied almost exclusively by foreigners and it is in these thickly populated centers that Tammany has its great strength. The system of parks is wonderful. There are many in the city and nothing can be more delightful than a walk, or a drive through them. You see beautiful lakes with swans and aquatic birds. Many grey squirrels will come close to you, looking for nuts, which the children give them. They seem devoid of fear. You will see beautiful deer, with the large black eyes, sporting the fields, scores of boys and girls playing on the grass. For ten cents you can take a boat ride over the lakes. You can sit down quietly, and watch the procession of motors, cycles, carriages, horsemen, all bent upon enjoyment. What a heaven of relief it must be, for poor people on the hot summer days to come into these beautiful cool, and shady parks to listen to the bands of music, songs of birds, see the beautiful flowers, and foliage, all free to every one. The museums afford the keenest enjoyment to those who are fond of pictures, of bric-a-brac, of all the wonderful productions of distant lands—mummies, etc. from Egypt, steel and brass work from China and Japan, wonderful tapestries from the looms of Paris and Brussels, galleries of paintings from many countries. The fact is that it is a liberal education to wander through these wonderful collections. Take the collection of the late J. P. Morgan. You can see pictures costing thousands of dollars, gems of purest ray serena, worth immense sums, and innumerable objects of great beauty. The picture galleries are wonderful. You can see the original of Ross Bonheur's Horse Show, originals from Sir Joshua Reynolds, Turner, Landseer, Manesky, landscapes and sea-scapes. In fact description is impossible. The Natural History exhibit, American Museum of Arts and Sciences, the Brooklyn Museum, the great rival of the Metropolitan. The aquarium with its fishes, seals, immense turtles and fish of singular forms and colors, the electric eel, which if touched, will administer an electric shock, which will almost destroy life. Then, the shipping, the great liners belonging to the Germans and now interned. The steamers going out into the ocean, and coming into port. Then the Coney Island, Brighton Beach, Rockaway, and Sheepshead Bay coast, swarming with thousands of bathers. Coney Island glowing at night with innumerable lights. A hundred shows of all kinds, attracting thousands of spectators. Then the great stores such as Wannamakers', Macys', Altman's, Lord and Taylor, Gimbels, Sterns, Tiffanys'. These great stores sell all kinds of curios, and almost rival the museums. Just now, the public seems excited over the meetings held by an evangelist named Al Jennings. This man was a lawyer, but became a wild west bandit, and robber. He was the leader for a number of years of the Jennings gang, which frequently indulged in holding up the Wells and Fargo express, holding up trains, and robbing the express cars. Lives were lost and Jennings was sent for life to a prison, but after a number of years was pardoned. It seems something of a jump from a highway robber to an evangelist.

I am yours,
J. J. B. Flint

FROM BELLEVILLE TO SAN DIEGO AND RETURN

Miss Anna Hurley Writes a Glowing Account of the Tour of the Ontario Party to the Great Panama-Pacific World's Exposition.

The Panama-Pacific International Exposition has become something of the past as far as the Lane's touring party is concerned and something that each one of us will remember. We left Belleville on Aug. 23rd and thanks to the kindness and hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Sinclair, we started with the feeling that our trip would be both pleasant and instructive and no one has been disappointed. On Tuesday morning we reached Chicago and immediately to the LaSalle where we had breakfast and spent the morning visiting the art gallery, public library and Marshall Fields, where we had lunch and then motored out Michigan Ave. to Lincoln Park, and the Zoo. On returning to the LaSalle at 5.30 we found Mrs. Power and Mrs. Stewart waiting to see us. We were glad to see some one from Belleville and I think they were also. Mr. Lane phoned Mr. Power and they had dinner with us at the College Inn, where we were entertained during dinner by four fancy skaters. It certainly was quite a novelty to see ice in August. An excellent orchestra furnished music and one might dance between the courses, but we did not indulge. At 9.55 we left for Omaha on the Chicago Milwaukee and St. Paul, arriving there about nine next morning and registered at the Rome. Omaha is a city with 200,000 population. We viewed the city from the twelfth story of the Union Pacific Building, which occupies ten acres. This great railway company make all plans and blue prints for all their construction work. The stores are very large and the residential section beautiful. One of the most beautiful homes is owned by Mrs. Gallagher, a former Bellevillian, who is always glad to welcome any one from her home town. On awakening next morning we found that we were in the snow-capped mountains and it was 7.30 we were in Denver. Everyone exclaimed "What a beautiful City". The buildings are all of stone and cement and with the green grass of the lawns and parks, makes a most picturesque entering it. Heesman Park contains 324 acres and in it are the Zoo and several tennis courts, kept up by the city. We took the Denver and Rio Grande for Colorado Springs. After lunch we started for Crystal Park. The motor winds around the mountains some places forming the letter "S". It looks dangerous and there seems nothing to prevent one from dropping off the ledge and falling to the depths below. As one winds around, the view changes and Mike's Peak can be seen 1473 feet high, rising abruptly from the plains and is called the sentinel of the Rockies. Its snow-clad summit towers above the neighboring mountains. A cavity in the rock where some one has been prospecting is called "Mike's Disappointment." Further on "Blasted Hopes." When we reached Artistic Point, which is 7776 feet high, we could see Manitou, a little Indian village nestling down between the mountains and looking like toy houses, also City and Colorado Springs. The next point reached was Ave Inspiring, 7865 feet high and it is all the same implies. Here we had the feeling that if one must go higher, you wonder if you said your morning prayers and made your will. The view from here is beautiful and Inspiration Point can be seen 1200 feet below. At last Crystal Park is reached, 8745 feet high and we were greeted with a terrible hail-storm. It lasted about ten minutes and then over the mountains appeared a rainbow in the bright sunshine. Every one was silent, it was too beautiful for words. Our descent was much enjoyed also. The mountain road leading to City State Park is ten miles long and 25 miles from the hotel. We changed into automobiles here and drove to Manitou where we drank from the mineral spring and then on to the Garden of the Gods. Here we saw huge rocks two and three hundred feet high with only the drive way between. Here we saw nature's own carving, one huge rock formation looks exactly like the Kissing Camels, again a large hole 13 feet across through the high rocks. The next morning Seven Falls and South Cheyenne Canon were visited. You climb steps to the top of Seven Falls. Here the canon opens with a beautiful valley with numerous water falls and shady places. Near here is the grave of Helen Hunt Jackson, who wrote the world famous book Romona. After luncheon at the Antlers Hotel we left for Salt Lake City passing through the Royal Gorge. This part of our trip was beautiful, on either side are mountains of granite, some 2000 feet high, and flowing between is the Arkansas River, with the State road which is being built by the state convicts and who camp along the road, on one side and the railroad on the other. In describing this route I once heard a man say that one sitting in the observation car could shake hands with the engineer. This is a little exaggerated, but not very much as in many places the train from a half circle. On awaking next morning we found ourselves in the Utah desert. All one sees is miles of white sand and the heat is almost unbearable. There is no dinner on the trains through here but the Fred Harvey eating houses instead, which are conducted on the plan of first-class hotels. Salt Lake is a large city with very wide streets and as every one knows it is the home of the Mormons. We viewed the Mormon Temple from the outside, as no one but a Mormon is allowed inside but one can go through the Tabernacle which is built with a high dome and contains the largest pipe organ in the world and can seat ten thousand people. The acoustic properties of this building are wonderful. The dropping of a pin at one end of the building can be distinctly heard at the other. At the back of the Tabernacle is a very pretty little park containing a life-size figure in bronze of Brigham Young, also other statues, a fountain and flowers. We also saw the house formerly occupied by Brigham Young and several small houses where each of his many wives lived. There is a law passed in the State of Utah that no Mormon can have more than one wife. The state capitol is beautiful and cost six million dollars, also the Utah Hotel which cost two and a half millions. We took the steam cars and after an hour's ride we saw in the distance a beautiful summer resort, and several in bathing. We got our bathing suits at the office and after checking our valuables went to our dressing rooms and were soon ready and all went in. The water contains 35% salt and is so heavy that lying on one's back one may "float with the tide." The salt plunge is very healthy and after a fresh water shower one feels greatly refreshed. We came away with one more curiosity added to our list. On the following day, Sunday we left at 1 p.m. on the San Pedro and South Western for Riverside, California. The heat was intense and going through the Nevada Desert seemed more than we could endure. Nothing but white sand and a few scattered sage bushes between us and the mountains. After reaching Riverside we motored to the Glenwood Mission Inn where we were shown through the quaintest and most artistic place we had seen. It is built to represent a mission house of the early ages, the furniture, pictures, beamed ceilings, the first musical instrument, the old hand carved mahogany chairs, tables, etc. are also of that period. The music room, contains a large organ which is played during meals. One can have afternoon tea in the court, which is decorated with beautiful palms and each guest is given oranges on leaving. A tree one sees in California, and no where else is the pepper tree. A very graceful looking tree with several small leaves on a long stem, pinkish berries that hang like our currants. Just before reaching Los Angeles we passed through a place called Ontario, which is inhabited by people who named it after their own province at home. The Hot Point Iron is manufactured here. All through this district one sees orange groves all along the railroad. We reached Los Angeles at 7.15 and took a car for Old San Gabriel Mission to see the Mission Play. The Mission Play is to America what the Passion Play is to Europe. As a pageant drama, the Mission Play tells a story second only to the great story told in the Passion Play by the peasants of Oberammergau. The story told by the Mission Play is the bringing and the founding of Christian civilization by the Franciscan Monks to the western shores of America. The actors are native Californians, descended either from old Spanish families or from the Indians who were converted to Christianity by the Franciscan Fathers.

Sergt. Harris Writes From France

Mrs. Jesse Harris, whose son, Sergeant Albert E. Harris, of the Canadian Artillery is at the front, has received from him a most interesting letter, telling of the British and French advance some weeks ago—

Dear Mother—

This is Wednesday afternoon and as I have an hour or so to myself I thought I would write. The weather is fierce at present, it has been raining and cold the past week. The rainy season has set in and I guess we'll have a wet time of it from now on. I wonder what's the matter with the mail, nothing but papers has come my way for the past month or so. I hope that the mail did not get lost in the Arabia which was submarine. However that's very likely the case. Well I suppose you have been reading with interest of the latest British and French advance, and the successes they have gained. We were right in the center of that attack and assisted in the 72 hour bombardment. We managed to destroy a large part of the German wire entanglements, also to explode and destroy a number of the German trenches. To the south the French were at it six days without a stop. This wet weather is certainly fierce. The trenches cannot be described and the communications are just water and mud to the knees. In the dugout where I am sleeping, the floor is just cut up into ditches to let the water, which leaks through the roof, run away. Say, I have got to have a pair of rubber boots. The reason I am asking you to provide for boots is because we never get enough money out here to buy a pair. They allow you about 30 francs per month which amounts to about 20c per day. I am writing to Manchester tonight to get them to send me a pair of tops and you can send the money to them. Well, mother and all, I am keeping quite well and hearty and hope you are all the same at home.

Just received two pair of homemade socks from some Canadian Patriot's League or other. I was putting a pair on tonight when I felt a card and saw they were from Mrs. Jack Carter, Belleville. All the boys you know are well, including Guy Harris, the Yeomans boys, Steve Sword, etc. I think I have told you all this time mother, so hoping to hear from you in the near future, I will close with regards and remembrance to all.

Your loving son,

Albert.

Note—Three French divisions have broken through the German lines at Verdun. We got them on the run.

Mayor and Council Make Contributions

Set Example to Citizens in Aid of British Red Cross—Sounding of Railroad Whistles to be Stopped Within City Limits.

Mayor Panter and Council last evening set the example to the citizens at large by making individual subscriptions to the work of the British Red Cross on its first appeal outside of the British Isles. The council passed a grant of three hundred dollars to the cause and then some discussion arose as to the part citizens in general were to play.

"I think that the citizens should be given an opportunity to aid," said Ald. Wallbridge. "No organization for Trafalgar Day, Oct. 21st has been made in Belleville. "Some one should be appointed to receive subscriptions."

"This being the first appeal of the British Empire to the colonies, I think that the $300 grant is not large enough and the citizens should be asked to contribute," said Ald. Smith.

Mayor Panter explained that the ladies were not able to undertake any collection, owing to the strenuous work which they have been doing. Unfortunately no organization is taking up the work.

Ald. McCurdy suggested that a good strong appeal for the British Red Cross should be made through the press. Ald. Wallbridge thought the municipality should request the bank managers and others of the city to receive subscriptions. "My idea is to make it convenient for the public." "What about starting the subscriptions right here?" asked Mayor Panter. The council fell in line and the eight members who were present subscribed a total of $25 out of their own pockets.

Everybody felt happy after having assisted the cause this much, for every member at the board was smiling. The public will be asked to subscribe on Trafalgar Day, Oct. 21st to British Red Cross, Mayor Panter, Ald. Wallbridge and Ald. Woodley are a committee to prepare an appeal to the citizens and arrange places at which subscription lists will be available.

A letter was received from the office of Dr. McCullough, provincial officer of health, approving of the Victoria Ave. sewer from Pinnacle to Front street.

The Board of Education requested the construction of a cement sidewalk in front of Queen Victoria school. Fire Chief W. J. Brown gave a report on his visit to the National Convention of Fire Chiefs in Ottawa, noting the benefits derived from attendance.

City Engineer Evans reported that the water sewer asked on North Charles street would be a paying proposition costing $203.

A bylaw was passed authorizing the construction of a sanitary sewer on Victoria Avenue between Front and Pinnacle streets.

Ald. McFee gave notice of a motion to introduce a bylaw to prohibit the sounding of railroad whistles within the corporation in conformity with the provisions of the Railway Act. This will obviate the distress caused by screeching engines passing Belleville hospital.

Ald. St. Charles asked if the chairman of waterworks knew there was a leak in the main on the upper bridge.

Ald. Woodley said "not to his knowledge." He will investigate.

Ald. Woodley—"I would like to inquire if it is the wish of this council to give the women of the Khaki Club water privileges six months free of cost."

Silver Anniversary of The W. M. S.

The silver anniversary of the Belleville District Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church was held in the Tabernacle Methodist Church on Wednesday, Oct. 13th.

The morning session opened with our District Organizer, Mrs. S. C. Gay, presiding. Devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. Robson and Mrs. Jones. Rev. Mr. Moore, pastor of the church, extended to the ladies a very cordial welcome. This anniversary, he said, had a very special significance, making the 25th milestone. The first district convention was held in this church and as the gathering today was so greatly favored with having so much earthly sunshine it was but typical of the brighter sunshine brought to the souls of all who are touched by the influence and principles of the W.M.S.

In reply Mrs. Gay spoke of our chief aim and desire to do the best work for our Heavenly Father. We have learned in a measure what it means to sacrifice for our country but there is a greater need for us to sacrifice for our Saviour. We desire to make this a veritable banner year.

Our honorary president, Mrs. L. Massey, conducted the election of organizers for the ensuing year, which resulted in the re-election of Mrs. S. C. Gay, who has so capably filled the position for the past year. Our capable and efficient secretary, Mrs. Mead of Belleville, was unanimously re-appointed.

Mrs. E. N. Baker read a very interesting letter on the work which is being done by the W.M.S. at Kobe, Japan. We were much pleased to have with us, Dr. Meacham, who has spent twenty years in educational work in Japan. He spoke of the devoted zeal, and earnestness of our missionaries, who are endeavoring to take the gospel to heathen lands.

Devotional exercises in the afternoon were conducted by Mrs. Clary and Mrs. Massey, after which reports were given by delegates from the 25 auxiliaries on the district also from the circles and bands. These reports were very encouraging, showing much interest and enthusiasm on the part of the workers, resulting in much progress being made during the past year.

Mrs. H. K. Denyes spoke on Systematic Giving. If from every dollar we would give the Lord the tenth His storehouse would be full to overflowing and there would always be ready money to carry on His work. It seems such a very little sacrifice for us to make for the Lord when we are doing so much for our country.

Mrs. C. L. Walters read a paper on "Our Talents and How to Use Them." We all have more talents than we suppose. For every one God has a place and an equipment and it is our duty to find it. Those who do their best for God never fail. Christ's reward was for faithfulness and not success.

Miss F. Andrews in a paper on "The Circle" emphasized the fact that to provide recruits for the Lord's army we must look to our young people, and it is in the circles where they get the training to fit them for greater service.

Another very interesting feature of the convention was the celebrating of the 52nd anniversary of the marriage of Rev. Amos Campbell and wife, with thankfulness to God for all His benedictions. Mrs. Campbell desired to express her gratitude in a tangible way by making her husband an honorary life member of the W.M.S.

The sessions were enlivened by music by Mrs. Duff, Mrs. Singer, Miss Moorehouse, the Misses Wootton and a reading by Miss Spargo, all of which were very much appreciated. A vote of thanks was given to the ladies of the Tabernacle who so bountifully entertained us; to all those who took part in the program; to Mrs. Mead as president of the Tabernacle W.M.S. and also as secretary for her enthusiastic assistance; and to the local press who so generously advertised our meetings and also published our reports.

The convention received invitations from Moira and Foxboro for next year. Owing to the distance to Moira the invitation to Foxboro was accepted.

The proceeds of the dinner and the offering, after expenses were deducted goes to the local auxiliary and amounted to about $54.

Rev. Mr. Jobin closed the convention with prayer.

Hastings' New Crown Attorney

Monday, October 18th, will be remembered as a red letter day in the career of Mr. William Carnew of this city, for yesterday not only did he receive the appointment of Crown Attorney for the County of Hastings but also he celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his birth. His success in the office vacated by the death of the late Peter J. M. Anderson, is most popular one with all classes of the community.

Mr. Carnew received the recommendation of the M.P.P.'s some days ago and the notice of his appointment was awaited by the public with interest. Crown Attorney Carnew was born in Peoria, Ill. U.S., on October 18th, 1865 and came to Belleville in the year 1871. He attended Belleville High School after which he entered Trinity University, graduating with the degree of LL.B. He began to study law in the office of Messrs. Denmar and Northrup in 1886 and after course at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, was admitted to practice in 1891 as a barrister and solicitor. He was a partner of Mr. W. B. Northrup, K.C., M.P. and in 1900 entered in partnership with Mr. E. Guss Porter, K.C., M.P. For 15 years the partnership has been conducted with the greatest harmony between the members of the firm.

Mr. Carnew has been an active member of the Liberal Conservative party and enjoys the utmost confidence of its members. His interest is all kinds of healthy sports and athletics both in the city and from home is well known. He is a prominent member of the Masonic craft.

His knowledge of criminal law is very extensive as his experience has covered not only that most fertile field the police court, where offences are seen in their unvarnished state, but also the Supreme Court, where he has had many cases before Judge and jury.

His genial disposition has made him thousands of friends. Today he is receiving the congratulations of his admirers.

He made his last appearance in court as solicitor yesterday in a case in Trenton, and did not know of his appointment until he returned last evening to Belleville.

This morning he made his debut in the police court as the representative of the crown. His first day's work was not heavy, as he had only one case, that of rape, which was laid over until tomorrow.

Crown Attorney Carnew was the one lawyer on Belleville and district who came into closest touch with the late Crown Attorney Anderson. In nearly all cases they appeared on the opposite sides, but their relations were always the most cordial and happy.

Capt. Bleecker Issues an Appeal

The Armouries Belleville, Oct. 18th, 1915

Editor The Ontario—

Dear Sir—Our recruiting officers working in Belleville and the County of Hastings report that recruiting has been very slack in the last month and results have been far from satisfactory although they have put forth every effort to secure recruits, having held recruiting meetings in all the towns and villages in the county, in fact, Captain Ponton has so overworked himself that he has been ordered by the medical officers to take a rest.

The public can readily understand that there is considerable expense in connection with recruiting, the Department of Militia and Defense are quite willing to bear the most of this expense but there are a few items they will not pass, such as advertising, as they feel this is unnecessary as everyone should know recruits are wanted and another expense is the hiring of motor cars. There are a large number of places in the county that are hard to reach by rail and often the results obtained do not warrant the time spent getting to and from the different places and again we cannot follow up our recruiting meetings as we have not the time, but if we had a motor car at our disposal we could reach three or four of these places in a day and could accomplish better results, being in a position to follow up our efforts.

As was said before, the Department will not bear this expense and a suggestion was made that possibly some good patriotic citizen or citizens, who are interested in our work could arrange to put a motor car at our disposal for a few weeks and we would arrange to maintain and drive it and in this way the outlying points of the county would be much easier to reach and better results would be obtained.

Yours truly,

C. A. Bleecker, Captain, Officer in charge of Recruiting.

AUTUMN COMFORT. Serviceable Coat to Replace the Silk Sweater.

THIS rough and ready coat supplants summer's light wraps, contrasting their frivolity with its mannish correctness. This belt appears to take the normal line—and keep it.

A CRETONNE COAT

How to Make One at Home That Looks Smart. The girls at a summer resort where everybody knows everybody else are, as a rule, very clannish and dress as much alike as peas. The minute one of their number appears wearing something a little out of the ordinary it is the signal for every other girl to get the same thing, with a slight modification perhaps.

Instead of resenting the fact that you are "copied," you "sort of swell up with pride" that they like your hat, frock or coat well enough to want others like it.

When I first noticed this fact I resolved to be the exception to the rule and not be a "copy cat," but this year my resolution was broken. The cause of my fall from grace was Olive Howell's cretonne coat.

She wore it one evening to the Campbell's lawn party over a white lingeerie frock, and it seemed such a practical summery garment and so simply made that I just couldn't resist the temptation to duplicate it.

Mother bought a generous supply of cretonne and chintz before we came here to redecorate the cottage, and there were yards and yards left. So I had a vision of Cicely "fogged out" in a coat made from the leavings of the blue guest room, and I made one from the scraps left from the hangings and cushions in mother's room.

Olive lent us her coat to use as a pattern, and we soon had ours well under way. It had to be cut rather like a smock, hanging full from the shoulders to form deep folds about the hem.

I made mine slightly different from Olive's by shortening the coat in front and making a square rolled down collar instead of a rounded one. Just by way of a little contrast I used plain cream colored cretonne for the belt, cuffs and collar, fastening the belt with a flat button covered with the plain material.

The sleeves caused me a lot of trouble, for I had cut them too wide to fit the armhole without gathering them a trifle. This fullness seemed to spoil the coat, so I had to rip them out after having finished them with three rows of machine stitching and cut them smaller.

Then I added a patch pocket to one side and strapped all the seams with seam binding to give the inside of the coat a neat appearance.

Olive's coat is fastened with white frogs made of braid, but as I had nothing of the sort here I had to improvise fastenings from bullet buttons of white porcelain ripped from my linen frock and narrow strips of plain cretonne. I attached a button to each end of a string and slipped it through the buttonholes embroidered on each side of the front. Five of these fasteners were needed to close the coat.

There is no end to the wear one can get from a coat of this type, for whenever they become soiled soap and water will make them like new.—A College Girl.

A Joke That Recalled.

Professor Ikono of Tokyo university is well known for his absent-mindedness. One evening on his way from school, says the East and West News, he struck his head against a telegraph post. "Pardon me, pardon me," he said, and quickened his gait. A certain colleague of the same university happened to see this from the other side of the street, and the following day said to the professor: "I was surprised last night by your carelessness, Mr. Ikono. You dashed against me in the street and I feel the pain still."

Fast Neglect of Forests.

The future forest industries which are almost the only industries possible on three-fifths of the area of eastern Canada, must be supported by the timber grown on the logged-over and burned-over non-agricultural lands. Looking at these lands we could see, not wastes, holding no promise for the future, but productive lands, needing only protection on fire to enable them to support logging camps, pulp mills, rural and industrial communities of a type which has done much for Canada. The young forest growth on the non-agricultural lands of Eastern Canada had been protected from fire during the past twenty years, railways would not now be importing railway ties and saw mills in Western Ontario, each the centre of a thriving community, would not be supplying markets with lumber, which, because of lack of forest protection in the past, is being supplied from British Columbia and the United States.—H.R.M.

Sailing Ships Back.

One effect of the war on Canadian seaports is that the windjammers have come back. When steam came the big sailing ships were gradually sent to the graveyard where they rested on the mud. Not for several years has a sailing vessel slipped up the St. Lawrence to berth here with a cargo or to load one. But war changed the face of things at sea as well as on shore. So the four masted ships have come back, and the square rigged barque is seen in port once more. The Calumet came in to Montreal recently with a huge load of molasses from the Barbados and the Pelican with supplies from London for the Hudson Bay Company. Others are to follow in the track of these sailing craft and the return of the pioneer ship is predicted in Montreal harbor—even by the old salts who love the steamers which slip over the ocean in a little more than a week.

Stopped Game to See Duel.

In a letter to W. F. Nickle, M.P., Lieut.-Col. A. E. Ross, commanding No. 1 Field Ambulance, describes a thrilling incident which occurred during the Canadian soldiers, including some of his own corps, were playing baseball. Two aeroplanes, one French and the other German, suddenly appeared overhead and began a lively battle, which ended in a draw. The baseball game was stopped while the air fight was in progress.

Hard to Understand.

Arnold Daly says that once, when he was talking to Bernard Shaw, the latter admonished him, "If you wish to get on in the world never take anybody's advice."

"This," said Daly, "resolved itself into a paradox, for if I took Mr. Shaw's advice I was taking somebody's advice, and if I took somebody's advice then I should never get on, yet if I didn't take Mr. Shaw's advice I shouldn't get on, and—well, I came to the conclusion that Bernard Shaw was one of those people whom, as Lord Dundreary says, "we feller can understand."—Baltimore Sun.

Wind Velocity.

The majority of people are unable to determine the wind's velocity. When the smoke from a chimney moves in a straight, vertical column it means that a one to two miles an hour breeze is blowing. A three miles an hour wind will just stir the leaves on the trees. Twenty-five miles an hour will swing the trunks; at forty the small branches will break, and it takes a mile a minute gale to snap the trunks of big trees. London Answers.

Rev. Dr. Blagrove Received Degree

At the autumn convocation of the Central Theological College, held on the evening of the 7th inst., the Rev. Dr. Blagrove of Christ Church received the degree of Doctor of Divinity in course from the Provincial Synod of the Ecclesiastical Province of Canada. The Archbishop of Nova Scotia as chairman of the board was present in person, and conferred the degree. With him on the platform were the Bishops of Montreal and Kootenay, the Ven. Archdeacon Patterson-Smith, Revs. Dr. Hestford, Dr. Abbott-Smith, Dr. Howard, Dr. Charles and the recipient of the degree, Rev. Dr. Blagrove who is one of only six to receive this degree in twenty-five years, was presented by Dr. Abbott-Smith, and after the formal conferment of the degree gave a short address. Bishop Drouin of Kootenay delivered the convocation address.

A Will Case

A somewhat complicated case concerning a will was tried yesterday before Judge Frazer in the Surrogate Court. The evidence showed that in 1910 Robert J. Thompson, Contractor of this city, now deceased, made a will leaving all his property to Trustees for the benefit of his alleged illegitimate child. At his death in 1914 the will was not produced and administration of his estate was granted to Thomas Manly at the request of his widow and lawful children now residing in the United States. Later on the Trustees named in the will produced it and asked for probate. At the trial it was contended that he had not mental testamentary capacity at the time sufficient to make a valid will. A number of witnesses were examined and the case was argued and continued to Monday, the 23rd for judgment.

FRANCIS JOSEPH, Emperor of Austria and King of Hungary, has just turned eighty-five, and he is completing the last months of a reign of sixty-seven years. Not for thirty centuries, since the great Rameses reigned in the land of the Pharaohs, also for sixty-seven years, has there been a sovereign who has been so long in actual possession of a throne. Not in the whole of the history from the remotest days can there be found the record of a sovereign who has been longer and more intimately acquainted with grief.

Golden Wedding

A very pleasant and interesting event occurred in the city of Belleville, Oct. 16, when the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Johnson, who were celebrated at their home at 484 St. George Street on that day, was marked by a very large number of relatives and friends who journeyed from afar to share in the happy occasion.

Places Where Subscription Lists are Available

In response to the appeal by the British Red Cross Society the City Council has arranged to have subscription lists placed in convenient and prominent locations throughout the city. The citizens who desire to contribute to this worthy object, in response to the urgent appeal found elsewhere in our columns will have an opportunity to do so on Thursday, Oct. 21st and following days. Owing to the urgent demand the lists can be held open only for a short time so that prompt action is necessary on the part of the citizens.

The City Council has headed the list with a donation of $300 and the members of the council have each put their names down for a subscription. The City Clerk has consented to receive and forward the money checks to be made payable to his order. It is suggested that to save time the money when lists are signed which will be found by permission in the following places:

- City Clerk's office
- Bank of Montreal
- Bank of Toronto
- Merchants Bank
- Standard Bank
- Dominion Bank
- Union Bank
- Canadian Bank of Commerce
- McGill's Bank
- City Post Office
- Station Post Office
- Intelligencer Office
- Ontario Office

Finnish Respect For The Law

In Finland there is a deep and prevailing respect for the law. "Can I have a shot at an elk?" asked a stranger of a peasant who lived on the fringe of a forest well stocked with this noble game. "No, sir. It's against the law." "What is the penalty?" "Two hundred Finnish marks." "All right. Will you come along with me if I agree to pay the fine?" "No, I won't. It's against the law, and I'm not going to break it."—"Russian Characteristics."

Light Bulb Burst

An explosion occurred in the basement of Queen Victoria School yesterday which startled the pupils. An electric light bulb burst in the face of the curator, Mr. James Mills and only for the fact that he had a cap with the peak pulled down in front of his eyes, he might have been seriously injured. As it was some particles of the glass, struck his face.

Rev. Mr. Knox was in Brighton Tuesday and Wednesday last week. Miss Lula Meyers spent a couple of days in Trenton.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church met at the home of Mrs. C. Powell's on Thursday afternoon. A large crowd was present. We had Mrs. Williamson and Mrs. Davidson of Stockdale with us.

The Patriotic meeting that was held at the Windover Hall here on Friday evening was very largely attended, the hall full and a large number that were unable to secure seats. The principle speakers of the evening were Captain Ponton, home from the firing line who seemed filled with the spirit of the war and anticipates returning as soon as health permits. He was listened to with wrapped attention as he gave us glimpses of what our boys have gone through and of what are still before them and what we as citizens might do for our King and country. Colonel Ponton, father of the Captain was also present and gave a very fine address. There was no charge at the door, but the voluntary contribution amounted to $65, which goes in aid of the Red Cross fund.

The funeral of Mrs. Evelyn Earl was held at the home of her mother Mrs. S. Carron Saturday afternoon. Rev. Mr. Knox preached a very impressive sermon. CONIFTON.
The concert held here in connection with the Methodist Church of this place was a success financially and the different numbers were ably executed, but the feature of the evening was the address of Capt. Ponton of his experience at the front and the words of praise he gave to our Cannifton and Corbyville boys who went with him. We think from the impression he made here some more of the boys will soon be enlisting, but our little village has done remarkably well in that line having sent six to the front with the first contingent and we now have seven in training with more to follow.

We are glad to report an improvement in the condition of Geo. Titterton, an old Cannifton boy who met with a serious accident in Corbyville recently.

ONTARIO
FORTUNE

Freed From That Weak, Languid, Always Tired Feeling, by Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Thessalon, Ont.—"I cannot speak too highly of your medicine. When my appetite is poor and I have that weak, languid feeling, always tired feeling, I get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it builds me up, gives me strength, and restores me to perfect health again. It is truly a blessing to women, and I cannot speak highly enough of it. I take pleasure in recommending it to others."—Mrs. ANNIE CAMERON, Thessalon, Ont.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these factors, doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

There are probably hundreds of thousands, perhaps millions of women in the United States who have been benefited by this famous old remedy, which was produced from roots and herbs over 30 years ago by a woman to relieve woman's suffering. If you are sick and need such a medicine, why don't you try it?

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

PALE, FEEBLE GIRLS

Weakness Generally Comes on as Womanhood Approaches.

Girls upon the threshold of womanhood often drift into decline in spite of all care and attention. How often one sees girls who have been strong and lively become suddenly weak, depressed, irritable and listless. It is the dawn of womanhood—a crisis in measures should be taken to keep the blood pure and rich with the hint of health. If the blood is not healthy at this critical stage the body is weak, nerves are overtaxed and the result is unequalled richness, strengthening every girl's need to sustain her health. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have saved thousands of young girls from what might have been life-long invalidism or an early death. They are a blood-builder and produce a healthy blood which weak nerves need to sustain their strength. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved their great value over and over again to young women who have been failing. Miss Minnie Duff, field, Eramosa, Ont., says—"It gives me great pleasure to tell you what I felt like after using six boxes, when I felt like a new person, and was again enjoying splendid health. I would strongly advise any girl who is weak or run down to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

You can get these pills from any dealer in medicines or by mail at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BEWARE OF OINTMENTS FOR CATARRH THAT CONTAIN MERCURY

Mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally. Sold by Druggists. Price 75c per bottle.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

PUBLISHER OF LINDSAY WATCHMAN-WARDER DROWNED

Allan Gillies and His Friend C. W. Hall meet a Watery Grave in the Scugog River when their Launch Capsized.

(Lindsay Post.) A distressing tragedy occurred on the lower Scugog Thursday shortly after six o'clock when Messrs. Allan Gillies, proprietor of the Watchman, and Charles W. Hall, barber, went to their deaths at a point near No. 12 bridge...

SHOUTED FOR HELP Between five and three o'clock in the afternoon, the two men in the launch in Mr. Gillies' launch left for a cruise on the lower waters. It is thought that they had started on the home trip shortly before dark and had entered the bay containing around six o'clock. Shortly before 6:30 o'clock shouts for help were heard from the river by Mr. Thos. Flynn...

Brave Efforts to Save. When the Flynn boys reached the river they bravely plunged in the cool water and swam to a crib of logs. On reaching the other side of the crib they quickly shoved out a log to the man struggling in the water, but he gave up his fight for life in the meantime...

Body Identified None of the party were able to identify the remains save Mr. Dennis, who knew the man only as a barber and was immediately sent to High County Coroner's Thornsburg, and Mr. T. J. Tilly hurried to the scene of the accident...

Friends were Alarmed In the meantime telephonic inquiries were received at Mr. Tilly's cottage and also at Mr. P. Brien's concerning Mr. Gillies. One of the Flynn boys had stated that a launch had been found on the river, and Mr. Tilly immediately started out in a punt to locate the craft...

News Spread Rapidly The news of the tragedy spread like wild fire around town, and in a short time searching parties in motors and launches hurried to the scene. The remains of the late Mr. Hall were brought to town in a motor car, and the news of his death death broken to his sorrowing wife by friends.

Search Kept Up. All through the night the search was kept up for Mr. Gillies and the hope was expressed on all sides that he was safe, but as no word of his whereabouts had been received from any points on the river and lake all hope for his safety was abandoned.

The News Broken A touching scene was witnessed at the home of Mr. Gillies when Mrs. Gillies was notified that he was missing. All through the night the distracted lady lived in hopes that her husband was saved, and her feelings can better be imagined than described.

Launch was Damaged An examination of the launch disclosed the fact that it had been punctured on either side. It is supposed that the unfortunate men in their anxiety to reach home, were travelling at good speed and in the darkness had left the channel and crashed into a stump or ran between two submerged logs. The force of the collision, it is believed, threw the two men into the river. The water at the spot where the launch was found was three feet deep, but the men evidently believed that they were near the channel and struck out for the crib of logs. It is said that Mr. Gillies was heard shouting to Mr. Hall not to give up. Both were good swimmers, but as the night was very dark and the water chilly, the odds against them reaching the logs were heavy.

Eloquent Sermons at Bridge Street Church Yesterday (From Monday's Daily)

Services in the interests of the educational work of the Methodist church were held at the Bridge St. church yesterday. Rev. Dr. J. W. Graham, Toronto, general educational secretary, was the special preacher for the day. There were large congregations present both morning and evening, and Dr. Graham's sermons were remarkable for their strength and impressiveness.

Allen Gillies The late Allen Gillies was born in Lindsay, 48 years ago and was a well known merchant. He ceased entering the office of the Watchman, the late Joseph Cooper being editor. The office at that time was situated in the stand now occupied by Mr. George Sheehar...

Heavy Week-End for the Police One of the busiest week-ends experienced by the police for some time was that which kept them busy on Saturday and Sunday. Besides investigation of complaints and routine duties, there were no less than eight calls.

"Rainbow" Shower Resulted in Fine Crop of Gifts for Soldiers.

All the circles of the Rainbow Club combined Thursday in holding a "shower" for the purpose of collecting Christmas gifts for our boys at the front. The "shower" was held at the officers' quarters in the Armouries were created into a veritable fairyland. The effect in the lecture room, where the donations were received, was unique. The scheme of the "Rainbow" being carried out in the decorations. Twenty-seven tables were arranged in a large semi-circle around the room, while from a large circle hanging from the ceiling, shreds cloth in all the colors of the rainbow radiated to the tables, each table being covered with a snowy white cloth, and having a bouquet of flowers, the color of the "ray" in the center.

The President of the Patriotic Association, Mrs. S. S. Lazier and Vice President, Mrs. F. E. O'Flynn did the honors at the reception room. The donations far exceeded the expectations of the circles, as every table was loaded with good things for overseas, and it will not be the fault of the citizens of Belleville if our boys do not enjoy Christmas cheer. The members of the Rainbow Circle wish to thank all who contributed to the shower from the youngest child to the old man of the town.

Ponton were most enthusiastic.

Market Report (From Saturday's Daily)

In many lines of offerings at the market this morning there were instances in prices eggs and poultry for example started in at steep prices and by eleven o'clock declines had taken place. The market was well stocked inside. The city building, while outside, the usual amount of offerings were exhibited. Potatoes rose in price towards the close.

Meats have experienced a collapse in prices. As the fall stuff is coming in and a decline is apparent in all classes, meat is plentiful everywhere and the local market is crowded. This is in the main due to the excellence of the fall grasses which are making their influence shown in the plentiful supply of meat.

Lamb is weakest, wholesaling at 14c and mutton at 12c. Beef has to bear the heaviest decline, hind quarters bring only $10 per cwt and fore 8c. Veal is very slow selling, although the quality of the meat is excellent.

There was a plentiful array of vegetable lines at the usual prices. Apples range from 15c to 20c per peck. Frost plums and blue damsons were selling at 35c per peck. There was a large market in these. The fruit showed looking for the signs of the recent mild weather.

Meat and poultry prices are as follows: Hides are weaker, the tanneries being well supplied. They range from 12c to 14c for farmers' hides and 13c to 15c for butchers'. Hides are quoted at $2 to $3, wool pelts at 50c to $1 and deskins 65c to 75c.

Chrysanthemums are beginning to arrive. They sell at 35c per pot. Potatoes began selling at 81 per bag but they were not too plentiful and later were being held at $1.10.

Ducks sold in plenty from 65c to 75 cents.

THE ANGLIO-FRENCH LOAN.

It was to be expected that the Anglo-French loan would be received with favor by our friends to the south. The sentiment of the American people, since the beginning of the war, has been most gratifyingly and overwhelmingly in favor of the Allied cause. Added to this strong sentiment, there are convincing business reasons why the American people should favor the flotation of such a loan at this time.

The United States is the one great neutral manufacturing nation to which the Allies may turn for the munitions and supplies so necessary for the early and successful termination of the war. Our American cousins have not failed to profit by reason of this fact. As a consequence, vast supplies of materials have been manufactured and sold to Great Britain and France. These supplies, of course, have to be paid for. They might be paid for by the shipment of gold, or the re-sale of American securities held abroad. In the event of either of these methods failing to provide funds in sufficient volume to pay for the materials as manufactured, there would be no alternative, save for the Allies to restrict their purchases. Again, large shipments of gold to the United States simply meant flooding that country with a commodity which it already possessed in ample quantities, which would of necessity lie in the bankers' vaults and upon which no interest would accumulate.

The United States is better off financially in every way by loaning the British and French Governments the money with which to buy the materials which they require in the neighboring Republic. In the first place, by making the loan, the United States ensures the continuance of a very profitable business. In the second place, it secures a handsome interest return upon the money it loans, and, thirdly, it materially assists in bringing the great war to an early and for the Allies—successful conclusion. The parties to the transaction may therefore, feel mutually and justifiably gratified that the negotiations have now been successfully consummated.

There is another gratifying and rather extraordinary feature of the loan, which as the New York World says, "may mark the opening of a new era in finance." It was a great popular loan. Small subscribers are to be favored and the big subscribers, as there is an over-subscription, will be scaled down to any extent necessary. Then too, the small subscribers will get their bonds at the same price as their more wealthy competitors. The price fixed for the general public was 98. The price which the Allies were to net was 96. The subscribers, however, are to get their subscriptions filled at the net price of 96, plus a fourth of one per cent. for expenses, which the World points out, means that Wall Street has surrendered the opportunity of cleaning up $10,000,000, less a fourth of one per cent. for expenses, of $1,250,000. "This is quite a change," remarks the World, "from Wall Street as possessed of some measure of the spirit of democracy in a great public financial operation."

BRITAIN'S LOAD.

Sir George Paish, one of the editors of the London Statist, has made a comparison between the burden carried or assumed by the people of the United Kingdom today and that of a hundred years ago, and also a comparison of the national income in these two periods. The result is cheering. In a hundred years the national income—that is, the income of the people, not of the Government—has increased from three hundred million pounds to twenty-four hundred million pounds, or eight fold.

The taxation has increased from sixty-two million pounds to one hundred and sixty-three million pounds, or less than three fold. The excess of income over taxation has increased from two hundred and thirty-eight millions to twenty-two hundred and thirty-seven millions. The ability to pay has increased between two and three times as fast as the obligation.

Sir George Paish deals with the national debt. The debt of 1816 was equal to three years of the people's income. The debt of today including the most recent loans, is £1,900,000,000, or far less than one year's income. The war will be won by the Nation with the greatest resources, and Britain's are ample for the demand.

She has the money, and she will get the munitions and the men, in quantities and numbers, sufficient to overcome her enemies and establish the security of freedom, if every Briton "does his bit."

A VICIOUS ASSAULT.

It looks—at this distance—as though the outburst of a section of the London press against Sir Edward Grey and the Foreign Office were as uncalled for as it is untimely. Sir Edward Grey has a world reputation as a diplomatist. The Germans hate him above every other British statesman. What higher compliment could be paid him? His wonderful management of the negotiations preceding the war was demonstrated beyond doubt by the official documents subsequently published by the various nations involved. It is quite true that those negotiations ended in war. They could not have ended otherwise, since Germany had definitely decided, in advance, on war, and fixed the date of its commencement, but they ended with the Germans publicly in the wrong, and with the British not only clearly in the right, but a people united as they had never been before.

Since then the British Foreign Office has been concerned in very delicate negotiations with Italy and the United States. It has secured Italy as an ally. It has preserved the most amicable relations with the United States in spite of the German Foreign Office. It Sir Edward Grey has failed in the Balkans, it would be much better for all patriotic Britons to assume that he there encountered insurmountable obstacles. Surely, at least, he should be free from vicious attack because of his lack of success in one field, in view of his signal achievements everywhere else! It is obviously mere nonsense for the London editors, or those behind them to bemoan, at this late date, his alleged inability to speak any other language than English. It is, if possible, still more ridiculous to raise an outcry now over the fact that the Permanent Under Secretary of his office is of German extraction, and has a German wife. That may be unfortunate, but Sir Edward Grey is not a statesman at all likely to leave to any underling, matters of importance, at a time of national danger.

As to the asserted failure of British diplomacy in the Balkans, there are many things to be considered before Sir Edward Grey should be found fault with, much less publicly denounced, in that connection. In the first place, the actual facts with reference to it are unknown to any but those within the British Cabinet. In the second place, Britain was, to say the least, no more responsible for the success or failure of Balkan diplomacy than was her Allies, France and Russia. Italy may be left out of consideration because it seems probable that she did not openly take sides until the Balkan affair had been finally shaped. There are many indications, at present, that the Balkan crisis, so far as European diplomacy was concerned, was reached and passed some six months ago, although the public had little hint of it at the time. To appreciate the problem with which Sir Edward Grey was at that date confronted, it is necessary to recall the exact conditions then existing.

France and Britain, six months ago, were stalemated with Germany in the West. They were immobilized through lack of men and munitions. Russia's military star was apparently in brilliant ascendancy in the East. She had overrun nearly the whole of Galicia. She was threatening Austro-Hungary from the summits of the Carpathian Mountains. She was menacing Germany in East Prussia. Which of the Allies should then have had commanding influence in the Balkans and taken control of the diplomatic situation there? Was it France or Britain, or Russia? It had been perfectly clear much farther back than that the only means of securing Balkan support for the Entente Powers was by direct purchase or territorial concessions. Britain had nothing to concede, neither had France. What they could promise they did, after obtaining conditional undertakings from Serbia and Greece—both of which nations were it seems prepared to make sacrifices to Bulgaria.

It was quite obvious that Bulgaria especially, but also Roumania would have to be "fixed." What could Britain and France have done? What did Russia do? She had Austria apparently beaten. It was known to all that Roumania coveted eagerly the Transylvania territory of Austro-Hungary, which is mainly peopled by Roumanians. It was equally well known that Bulgaria fiercely desired the recovery of the territory which Roumania took from her at the close of the second Balkan War in 1913. What better material for diplomatic negotiations could Russia have desired? Surely Roumania might have been induced to give back what she had snatched from Bulgaria, in exchange for a definite assurance that Transylvania would be hers as soon as it could be wrested from Austro-Hungary! Russia, moreover, held and still holds, a piece of territory largely peopled by Bulgars, which Bulgaria regards as, by rights, her own. Did Russia offer to concede that, as Serbia and Greece had offered to make concessions of their recently acquired territory in Macedonia? There has been no public evidence forthcoming to any such effect. Yet there is good reason to believe that Russia, long before that, had been definitely assured that Constantinople would be placed in her keeping after its capture by the arms of Britain and France. Should she not have been willing to yield something in return?

On whose national shoulders, then, so far as can be judged from the apparent facts, rests the responsibility for the temporary failure of the diplomacy of the Entente Powers in the Balkans? What could Sir Edward Grey have done more than he did do six months ago, at which time the future attitude of the Balkan States seems to have been actually determined? Does the blame for failure, if unnecessary failure there has been, rest with him, or with the statesmen of Russia? There is everything to suggest that Sir Edward Grey was in no way at fault. Whether Russia was seriously culpable, it would be presumptuous to assume to determine with the evidence now available. History alone can pronounce final judgment. In the meantime, it is not only profoundly regrettable but most reprehensible that British newspapers should undertake to assail and condemn the British Foreign Office, and inferentially the Imperial Government, as a section of the London press, has dared to do.

Although the King of Greece has spilled the beans in the Balkans the Allies are marching on.

The statement of the urgent needs of the Patriotic Fund should be all that it is necessary to say. It has paramount claims upon us.

Bulgaria declared that "armed neutrality" was her sole purpose, but all the while she has been playing the game of the Teutons. She has been talking fair and acting foul.

"Thirty thousand recruits a week" is the call of the Labor leaders in the Old Country. Their appeal comes to Canada as a fresh reminder of duty to keep the stream of reinforcements flowing.

No retaliatory measures have been adopted by Britain or France thus far in "gassing" the German soldiers. Dr. W. B. McLaughlin, a Brooklyn scientist, has stated, with corroboration from Washington, that before the Germans used chlorine gas against the Allies, he offered the British, through the British embassy at Washington, "a demonstrated process of throwing asphyxiating gases into trenches with gunfire accuracy, which temporarily rendered the enemy helpless, but caused no permanent effect. While acknowledging its effectiveness, the British promptly rejected it upon the ground that it violated the Hague conventions, in which decision France concurred.

Soldiers, statesmen, clergymen—leaders of all classes—have borne testimony to the value of the work done by the Y.M.C.A. at the front and among the soldiers at home and overseas. In a recent speech at the opening of recreation rooms for munition workers at Enfield Lock, Mr. Winston Churchill referred to the "admirable services rendered by the Y.M.C.A.—services which could not otherwise have been rendered at all." An appeal is now being made for funds to support the work undertaken by the Y.M.C.A. in Canada for soldiers. It is a worthy appeal, worthy of a generous response.

Some very exaggerated figures have been published in regard to Balkan armies. Bulgaria, which has been credited with 750,000 troops, has not over 400,000; Greece has between 350,000 and 400,000. Roumania 600,000. Of course Bulgaria's total would be increased by whatever Turkey and Germany and Austria contributed to the field of operations. Likewise Italy, England, France and Russia would swell the totals of Greece and Roumania if they should finally line up with the Allies. So far, as numbers go the anti-Teutonic forces in the Balkans would be the larger.

The London Times has a good story of an incident at Luxemburg. In that little Grand Duchy photographs of General Joffre, President Poincaré, the King of the Belgians, and others of the Allies' leaders are on sale in bookshops, but never a one of the German Emperor shows its face. During one of his visits to the town the Kaiser, accompanied by two aides-de-camp in mufti, was strolling along looking at the shop-windows, and noticing this omission went into a shop and asked why there were no portraits of his Imperial self. "There is no demand for them," said the girl behind the counter, without the least idea whom she was talking to. The story many not be true, but it certainly deserves to be.

On the anniversary day of the Battle of the Marne a correspondent of the Motor, who has recently been touring over the Marne battlefield, tells that a flag had been planted on every French grave, and on the places where numbers of men were buried together flowers and wreaths had been laid. It was only necessary to stand up in the car, look across country, and, without turning the head, count a hundred flags. There is no shelter on this plateau; for considerable distances there are neither hedges nor trees, the only things rising above the uniform level of the ground being the metal direction posts. One of the sharpest contrasts is to be found in the sight of men ploughing among the graves. Only in a few places have men fallen so closely together that the field has had to be abandoned. In scores of cases the farmer ploughed his field as usual, going as near the grave as possible, but taking great pains not to touch it.

Speaking in Glasgow the other day, when they made him an honorary member of the "Incorporation of Weavers," Lord Rosebery quoted Gray's couplet:

"Weave the warp and weave the woof,
The winding sheet of Edward's race," and said that we were now weaving all over the world the winding sheet of the "most infamous conspiracy" ever known against human liberties. That conspiracy might have been successful. Every nation besides Germany had been unprepared, Britain conspicuously so. "Blood is thicker than water," he said; so much thicker that it was "the cement from which an Empire is constructed which is meant to last all time."

The extent to which Germany colonized Russia in preparation for the eventual war is discussed—so far in part—by the decrees of the Russian courts ordering these German land holdings for sale. The first list, a partial one, because of Germany's occupation of Poland and Courland, directs the sale of well over 6,000,000 acres. A great deal of this land occupied by German colonists was located for strategic reasons, as the war has proved. It is a significant fact that some heavy holdings were obtained where the German population was not dense in proportion to other races. Everywhere, however, where a German colony could help an invasion there was one planted. The Russians also experienced considerable surprise at Lodz and elsewhere to find during the campaign that certain factories run by Germans before the war tide reached them, were built on permanent bases for big guns and were located with a fine eye to where heavy shell fire would be directed.

THE SONG OF THE MYSTIC.

I walk down the Valley of Silence—
Down the dim voiceless valley—alone!
And I hear not the fall of a footstep
Around me, save God's and my own;
And the hush of my heart is as holy
As hovers where angels have flown!

Long ago I was weary of voices
Whose music my heart could not win;
Long ago I was weary of noises
That fretted my soul with their din;
Long ago I was weary of places
Where I met but the human—and sin.

In the hush of the Valley of Silence,
I dream all the songs that I sing;
And the music floats down the dim Valley,
Till each finds a word for a wing,
That to hearts, like the dove of the Deluge,
A message of Peace they may bring.

Do you ask me the place of the Valley,
Ye hearts that are hallowed by Care?
It lieth afar between mountains,
And God and His angels are there;
And one is the dark mount of Sorrow
And one the bright mountain of Prayer.
—Father Ryan.

THE MAN IN THE TRENCH.

"Can you hear me, young man in the street?
Is it nothing to you who pass by?
Who down the dim lit ways in thousands roam
From here I watch you, through the driving sleet,
Under the evening sky
Hurrying home.
Home! How the word sounds like a bell,
I wonder can you know, as I know well
That in this trench
Of death and stench
I stand between your home and hell.
I am the roof that shields you from the weather
I am the gate that keeps the brigand back,
When the pillage, fire and murder come together
I am the wall that saves your home from sack
Man! When you look upon the girl you prize,
Can you imagine horror in those eyes?"

You have not seen, you cannot understand
This trench is England, all this ruined land
Is where you wander, street or field, or strand
Save for God's grace, and for the guns that rest
Upon this dripping mudbank of the west;
Our blood has stained your threshold—will you stain
Your soul, give nothing and take all our gain?

Why did I come? I ask not nor repent
Something blazed up inside me and I went,
The khaki fringe is frayed and now a rent
Needs men—needs men, and I am almost spent.
Night and the "ready"—so sleep well.
My friend
The guns again are going
I must stick it to the end.

THE LAW AGAINST THE DRINKER NOT THE SELLER.

The action of the Ontario Government and of the License Commission in closing all bars of hotels at eight o'clock during the war will meet with public approval.

We would prefer to see the hour of spirits still further shortened and more freedom allowed to the sale of beer. We also believe the sale of spirits for profit by private parties will soon have to give place to government control only. The factor of private profit out of the sale of spirits must be wiped out. A regulated sale of light beer by private parties is another proposition.

But while the war lasts the public will support early closing. The people will tolerate no one who is incapacitated by drink in these trying times, and every patriot owes it to the country to keep his wife, his energy, his money for the supreme struggle.

The warning, therefore, is not to the hotelkeeper, but to the man who drinks. Society, the country, the nation, has less and less use for him, and still less for the woman with that failing. Don't imagine, therefore, that it is against the owner of the licensed hotel that the law is really directed; it is against the man and woman who indulges in drink and weakens their usefulness to the state. Society is going to be more and more against drinking liquor; the law against its sale is only an incident.

And this is what each man and woman, old and young, must take to himself. And it applies to the soldier, to the artisan, to the business man, to the professional man, most of all to those in whom is the keeping of the lives of the people—railway men, motor drivers, doctors, watchmen, firemen, soldiers, policemen, heads of households.

But this does not mean that illicit sale is to be ignored. The law must be enforced in the strictest manner and absolutely without fear or favor. A single breach of the law will mean a canceled license, and sale by a blind pig worth to mean prison to the seller.

A PREACHER OF THE PLAINS.

The Rev. Isaac Hosey, the cowboy preacher, who died the other day in Dewey, Okla., was one of the best of a type of preachers who were the product of the old wild days of the backwoods, the frontier mining camps and cow ranches. They were "fighting parsons." No other kind could exist on the border in those wild times.

Peter Cartright, a Methodist circuit rider in the Middle West for fifty years, was one of that type. He preached fifteen thousand sermons and baptized twelve thousand persons in Illinois, Kentucky and Tennessee in an early day. He was a "fighting parson" who used to leap across his pulpit occasionally and whip a rough disturber of his meeting. There were many of those fighting parsons.

In his youth Hosey was a cowboy and as "rough as they make 'em." He became sincerely converted and started out to preach the gospel to the cowboys of the plains. At first he followed the advice of St. Paul to Timothy:

"And the servant of the Lord must not strive; but be gentle unto all men, apt to teach, patient."

But this did not well fit his case for the boys were in the habit of shooting off their pistols while he was preaching and thus break up his meetings, and so Hosey sought for another Bible text that would justify him in keeping order and found it also in St. Paul's advice to Timothy: "Resist the devil, and he will flee from you."

Hosey was seven feet tall and usually powerful. He could whip his weight in wildcats. In a cow camp he would get up behind his pulpit, often an upended feed box, open his Bible, lay his long-barreled six-shooter across the pages of the sacred Word and say:

"Boys, this is a meeting, and I am going to run it. I've got a message for you and I'd like you all to hear and hear it. If you don't want to hear it and be peaceable, go now, for I sure will make it hard sledding for the man who starts anything here tonight. Now let us pray."

He had many a fight, and he always won. He was gentle as a woman, but many stories are told of how tenderly he nursed sick cowboys and of what sacrifices he made in their behalf, for his religion was sincere and he lived it as he knew it.

The rough men of the plains came to love him, and he led thousands of them to be better men. He was a good soldier of the cross, he fought a good fight, and has gone to his reward.—Kansas City Times.

The ease with which Corns and Warts can be removed by Holloway's Corn Cure is its strongest recommendation. It seldom fails.

TWO LESS MEN IN ONE BAR

"We shall have to do with two less men in the bar," said a prominent Belleville hotelman today when discussing the effect of the new law of early closing at eight o'clock in the evenings. "That's how it will effect our house." The same would be true with other houses.

"The change will cut down the receipts," he was asked.

"Certainly," he replied. "We shall have to do with less help" and manage with the three hour shorter day by arranging different hours for the bar-keep.

He went on to say that there will be a great many late suppers. There is not such a great deal of drinking during the day, as the men are so busy. It will be an incentive to men to get out work and visit the bars during working hours. The social drinking that used to be done late in the evenings will now come before eight o'clock. Still the receipts will be cut down very materially.

Liquor men see that it will drive men to purchase liquor at the shops when bars are closed.

Asked if there were any hotels here likely to be so seriously hampered that they would be compelled to close up, the speaker said there might be several cases in which proprietors could not operate under the new conditions.

Card of Thanks

Fire Chief W. J. Brown desires on behalf of the Belleville Fire Department to express thanks to the McLoughlin Carriage Company for a cheque for $25 as an appreciation for services rendered at the recent fire.

Laid to Rest

The funeral of the late Mrs. Adelaide Matilda Jones took place yesterday. Rev. Mr. Johnson conducting an impressive service at the house assisted by Rev. J. A. Clarry. Many followed the remains to the last resting place in Belleville cemetery, the bearers being Messrs. W. Owens, Charles Farley, Manley Farley, W. S. Davis, R. Vandervoort and E. W. Bates.

Newspapers are Being Steadily Imposed Upon

The Toronto newspapers, in view of the pressure put upon their advertising columns for patriotic and other purposes—where a great deal of free notices seem to be expected, as though it cost the newspaper no money to set up these notices—have agreed upon a general scale of prices and upon a definite plan of action in order to protect themselves. The fact is, they have found, as other newspapers have, that they are being steadily imposed upon and that in the name of patriotism they are being asked to sacrifice the only earning power they have.

As a consequence the movement is spreading among all the newspapers to come to some definite understanding in the matter and Kingston has been consulted with the object in view of ascertaining conditions here, and seeing if certain remedies against a growing abuse cannot be arranged.

The Toronto announcement by the newspapers is as follows—

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Notices of any character relating to future events, for which an admission fee is charged are inserted in the advertising columns at 15c a line.

Announcements for Societies, Clubs or other organizations for future events, for which there is no admission fee, may be inserted in this column at 2c a word, with a minimum of 50c. for each insertion.—Kingston Standard.

Lieut. Noxon Drowned

Much sympathy is felt for Mr. and Mrs. William C. Noxon, Toronto, in their sad bereavement in the death of their eldest son, who was drowned several days ago by the upsetting of a canoe in one of the northern lakes. As he was conversant with the German language he was placed in charge of a detention camp where a number of German and Austrian prisoners are confined. At the outbreak of the war he was attending a University in Germany and it was with considerable difficulty that he succeeded in getting out of that country. All his belongings had to be left behind. Lieut. Noxon was a grandson of the late James Noxon who was well known to many in Prince Edward county as he was born at Bloomfield. Lieut. Noxon was only 19 years of age at the time of his death and had an exceedingly bright future before him. The body has not been recovered which has made the sad affair all the greater for the family.—Piloton Times.

RUPTIONS IN BELLEVILLE POLICE FORCE

Suspension and Possibility of Reinstatement of Sgt. Harman Causes Four Members to Threaten to Hand in Their Resignations.

(From Friday's Daily)

The suspension of one of the members of the Belleville police force, the threatened resignation of four other policemen if he should be reinstated by the police commission, and the efforts of Mayor Pantor who prevailed upon the four to remain on duty until the commission's action set in, deliberation on the situation, on account of the exciting features in the trouble which rears upon the police department. The disturbance has been developing since last Saturday and yesterday reached one of its climaxes when the four constables offered to resign. The police commissioners will meet tonight to deal with the trouble.

The only two members of the force not in the turmoil are Chief Newman and Sergeant Naphin, although they regret the situation exceedingly.

On Saturday last an event transpired which resulted in Sergeant Harman being relieved from duty for a few days. The police board should consider his case. While the best of feeling has to the public eye appeared to exist among the members of the force, there seems to have developed some lack of harmony. Some of the constables were not anxious for any discord of any kind, but after the commission's action yesterday afternoon they interviewed one of the members of the force and as a result of the conference, threatened to leave the force at once if such action as above were taken by the commissioners.

Mayor Pantor got in touch with the officers and begged them to stay with their positions until today with a meeting of the board would again be held. Rather than see the streets unprotected and unwilling to leave the city in the lurch without notice, the constables agreed to remain on duty.

Such is the situation at present. What tonight's meeting of the board will bring forth is the puzzle.

Well Known Steeple Jack of Chicago Is In Belleville on Business

"Art" Drummond, the noted steeple-jack of Chicago, arrived in town yesterday on business. He has attained a continental reputation by his aerial daring. Recently he was engaged in work on the towers of Chalmers and St. Andrew's Churches, Kingston, and also in Perth and Brockville. In Toronto he climbed to the top of the spire of the Royal Bank building, Toronto, 310 feet above the ground. His method of climbing is by the use of rope things which he fastens about the pole or chimney at intervals.

He is never happier than when he is in the air. He has never had a fall although he has climbed the highest spires on the continent. He put up the wireless on the roof of the T. Eaton Store, Toronto, and at one time was suspended by the pole on the top of the Singer Building, New York City. He has painted the poles on most of the buildings in the Queen City. The painting of smoke-stacks is one of his activities.

Bellevillians may look for some of his air ventures at any time.

Luxuries, which the people of the hometown are willing to forego for the sake of the soldier lads at the front, poured into the armories yesterday afternoon and evening. Men and women of all ages, boys and girls, came by hundreds to the headquarters of the luxury shower which was held by the Rainbow Circle. The ladies of this organization used the lecture hall for the receipt of the many gifts. There the gum and the candy, the hundred and one varieties of good things, were taken in charge by the officers of the circle.

Mr. Titterton was served in the officers' quarters by the ladies. The tearoom was a scene of splendor and the function was well patronized. The regimental orchestra of the 15th furnished the music.

The affair was a decided success.

Pte. J. C. Bowyer Slain on Oct. 3rd

James Cecil Bowyer, aged 18 years, was the first Belleville boy of the 21st Battalion, 2nd division to be slain in action during the war. The sad message of death arrived from Ottawa this morning at nine o'clock at the family residence, No. 3 Meyers street. It stated that he was killed in action on Wednesday, Oct. 3rd.

Private J. Cecil Bowyer, was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Bowyer and was born in Strathcona, near Napanee eighteen years ago. Cecil was but little more than a school boy when he enlisted two years ago. He was attending Belleville High School, and prior to the time of his enlistment he occupied an important position at the Belleville Cement Works, Point Anne. This position he gave up to answer the call of King and Country. About one year ago he joined the colors and on November 3rd left for Kingston. Before his battalion, the 21st went to England he had several opportunities to visit his parents and relatives in this city.

Cecil did not expect that he would ever see Canada again. This view he had communicated to his friends. While they feared the something might happen to him, they did not expect that his call would have come so soon.

Cecil was of a quiet but lovable disposition and the news of his death has been received with the deepest sorrow by his wide circle of friends. He was a communicant of Christ Church and a member of the A.Y.P.A. Before his departure overseas he had been presented with a gift by Christ Church congregation.

When the fatal tidings arrived this morning, his mother was out of the city visiting at the old family home at Strathcona. Mr. J. Bowyer went down shortly after the telegram arrived to break the tragedy to her and accompany her home.

Cecil leaves besides his parents, two brothers and three sisters, Mrs. David Lee, Belleville, Myrtle, Austin, Frank, and Leah at home, to mourn his loss.

The deceased soldier boy drilled for one year in the Fifteenth Regt. and was in the Scouts in Kingston.

At one time in his boyhood days he was employed for a short time at The Daily Ontario Office.

Crows Saved a Rooster From Hawk

A fine barred plymouth rock rooster, a little over a year old, yesterday made a heroic fight against a hen-hawk which swooped down on a flock of last spring's chickens which were in a field on Sidney street. The chickens are owned by a resident of that street. When the bird of prey came down, he was pursued by eight or twenty crows which kept flying above him. The plymouth rock rooster ran to protect the fowls and gave battle to the aerial warrior. The hawk, which was of mammoth dimensions, apparently would have defeated the rooster, but for the crows. They swooped down upon the hawk and plucked and tore at his head and back furiously. The air became hideous with the cries of the ravens, but they ultimately forced the hawk to relinquish his efforts to rob the flock and tired and sore he took flight, pursued by his black coated comrades.

There are four classes of people, for which auxiliary classes should be provided. Firstly, the backward pupils, who should be given a chance to catch up; secondly, the mentally deficient, who may, under supervision, be taught to earn part of their living. Their mental ability is not greater than that of a child of twelve years; thirdly, the imbeciles who are at an advance of a child of six years in mental ability; fourthly, are the idiots who have no mental ability whatever. The school haven't anything to do with these last two classes.

Geo. Titterton Victim of Serious Runaway

Mr. Geo. Titterton, of Foxboro was the victim of a most serious runaway accident on Wednesday afternoon that came very nearly having a fatal termination. The accident occurred near Corbyville. He was thrown out of his carriage and the team ran for some distance until they were stopped by Mr. Otis.

Mr. Titterton was picked up and taken to his home at Foxboro. Dr. J. A. Faulkner was summoned and attended to the injuries. It was ascertained that both legs were broken below the knees and three ribs had also sustained fractures. Notwithstanding the extremely severe nature of his injuries it is believed that Mr. Titterton has good chances for recovery. He is now resting as comfortably as could be expected.

SOUTH HASTINGS TEACHERS SUCCESSFUL CONVENTION

The Teachers' Convention for South Hastings, Belleville and Trenton, was held in Queen Mary School on October 7th and 8th. It was conceded by all to be one of the best conventions ever held in Belleville, both in regard to attendance (all present but one) and the excellence of the program.

The opening exercises of the first day were conducted by the Rev. Canon Beaumont, Rector of St. Thomas' Church. The order of business was then proceeded with by the president, Miss Laura Phelps, occupying the chair.

It was moved by Inspector H. J. Clarke, B.A., seconded by Mr. M. W. Mett, that a vote of thanks be tendered to Misses Drewry and Stimmons (last year's delegates to the Ontario Educational Association) for their excellent report.

Inspector H. J. Clarke, B.A., gave an explanation of the Superannuation Bill, which bill was almost unanimously approved of, by the teachers of the Inspectorate.

The afternoon session was preceded by the president's address, which dwelt particularly on the great part the teacher plays in determining the character of the pupil by precept and example. The great object is, to train the child so that he may leave the country better than he found it. Examinations should be made secondary to the training for citizenship. The teacher should set an example in patriotism to give the pupils a right view of national life.

Miss Berta Ross gave a most interesting paper on "The Uses of Pictures in Schools." A thing of beauty is a joy forever, was the predominant idea. In the beautifying of the school she advocated above all, simplicity. Pictures may be profitably used in the work in geography, history and literature, among others.

The chief speaker at the convention was Peter Sandford, Ph.D., Faculty of Education, University of Toronto.

His first lecture was on "Auxiliary Classes and the Abnormal Child." All people are not exactly alike, although according to civil law, all are equal. There are, of course, a great number who are equal, but there are others grading up to those from both sides. There are some who have not the same mental ability and others that have greater mental ability than the average type. These variations are illustrated by the bell-shaped curve known as the curve of chance. This curve starts with those who are pigmies and ends with those who are giants in mental ability.

There are four classes of people, for which auxiliary classes should be provided. Firstly, the backward pupils, who should be given a chance to catch up; secondly, the mentally deficient, who may, under supervision, be taught to earn part of their living. Their mental ability is not greater than that of a child of twelve years; thirdly, the imbeciles who are at an advance of a child of six years in mental ability; fourthly, are the idiots who have no mental ability whatever. The school haven't anything to do with these last two classes.

This problem is becoming more serious force with which she alighted against the fender.

Miss Hart passed a good night at the hospital and yesterday was getting along nicely. Miss Scrimm the other lady occupant of the car, accompanied her to the hospital and remained with her through the night.

The front axle, the front springs, and the fender of the auto were badly bent and twisted, and the heavy glass windshield smashed by the impact.

MADOC LADY HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Miss Mary Hart, a prominent resident of Madoc, lies in the General Hospital, Kingston, suffering from a severe cut on her face and a bad shaking up, four other people from the same village had a narrow escape from serious injury and an almost new Overland car was badly bent and twisted by a collision with street car number 14 at the corner of Princess and King streets Kingston, shortly after eleven o'clock Wednesday night.

The auto in charge of Mr. W. Kelly of Madoc, contained five residents of that village who were visiting friends among the military men at Partridge Camp and were on their way home. They were proceeding northward along King street and on approaching the corner of Princess street the auto party approached the curve. Thinking that the street car would continue down Princess street the auto party approached the curve. When the street car suddenly swung round the curve and caught the auto near the right front wheel.

Miss Hart was thrown through the glass wind shield and alighted on the fender of the street car which she was sitting in. This fact probably prevented more serious injury to the young lady. In the meantime Motor-man Reynolds had checked the movement of the street car and the young lady was quickly extricated from her dangerous position. The other occupants of the car were badly shaken up by the impact but were not injured. Miss Hart was removed to the General Hospital where her injuries were attended to by Dr. Muddell. A gash extending along one cheek from the forehead to the chin, was evidently received when she crashed through the glass of the front of the car. Several scratches and bruises on the body show the Celebrated the 25th Anniversary

The 25th anniversary of the Belleville District of the Women's Missionary Society was held in the Tabernacle Methodist church on Wednesday from ten o'clock in the morning until five in the afternoon. The meeting brought out an attendance of upwards of one hundred and fifty delegates. Mrs. Gay of Foxboro, district organizer occupied the chair. Excellent and enthusiastic reports were given of the year's work. Several papers were read by Dr. Meacham of Toronto, a returned missionary from Japan. Mrs. (Dr) Baker and Miss I. Martin. Mrs. Gay was re-elected district organizer.
