L'ENVOI

HEN Earth's last picture is painted, and the tubes are twisted and dried. When the oldest colors have faded, and the youngest critic has died, We shall rest, and, faith, we shall need it—lie down for an eon or two, Till the Master of All Good Workmen shall set us to work anew!

And those that were good shall be happy: they shall sit in a golden chair; They shall splash at a ten-league canvas with brushes of comets' hair; They shall find real saints to draw from—Magdalene, Peter, and Paul; They shall work for an age at a sitting and never be tired at all!

And only the Master shall praise us, and only the Master shall blame : And no one shall work for money, and no one shall work for fame; And each for the joy of the working, and each, in his separate star. Shall draw the Thing as he sees It for the God of Things as They are!

[October 26 to November 1]

THE week under review was marked by great activity on nearly all fronts the fortunes of war fluctuating from one side to the other, the net result apparen ly being to the advantage of neither. In the Western campaign the French and British made further advances on the Somme front. In the Herdun sector the French held all the ground taken in the preceding week, and made further gains in the direction of Fort Vanx. There was considerable activity in Flanders, where the Belgians and British made some slight gains of trenches. At other points, notably near Rheims, artillery duels were in progress, but without marked advantage to either side.

In the Eastern campaign the Russians made some gains in Volhynia west of Lutsk: but in Galicia, in the Carpathians, and in the Transylvanian Alps, the Russians and Rumanians barely held their
